

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. have nearly ready Dr. William B. Carpenter's book on "Mesmerism, Spiritualism, etc., historically and scientifically considered," in which one of the foremost of English scientific authorities shows how he has been able either to detect fraud throughout the "manifestations" submitted to him or to refer the phenomena to mental and physical causes, particularly hypnotic concentration of the mind and bodily action in answer to expectancy. This is one of the strongest books yet written against "spiritualism," and will command the attention of both friends and foes.

"TOM BAILEY'S ADVENTURES" is a recent transformation of name from "The Story of a Bad Boy," which is quite too good a story to be hampered by a title that may deter excellent people from buying or reading it. J. R. Osgood & Co. have put this delightful book by Mr. Aldrich (and some think it the best story he ever wrote) into blue-gray paper covers (like "Helen's Babies") for fifty cents, for summer reading. It ought to sell as fast as it can be printed.

MACMILLAN & Co. will have ready shortly "Elementary Lessons in Physical Geograv," by Professor Archibald Geikie, who is itled to high rank both as a physicist and a cher—a double virtue in the writer of a textok. The volume, in 16mo, will have several ored maps and be otherwise fully illustra,—but that it will be excellent and tasteful so with the imprint. Prof. Todhunter has tadded to his series of text-books a "Naal Philosophy for Beginners," Part I.

THE SPORTSMAN'S GAZETTEER" is the title of omprehensive book on hunting and fishing, rering 750 pages, to be published at once by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company, from the pen of Mr. Charles Hallock, editor of that journal. It gives the localities where the various game are to be found, full descriptions of apparatus and methods of catching, directions for taxidermic preparation—in short, every thing.

"KISMET" leads the "No-Name Series" in popularity. It has reached or passed the tenth thousand, which figure, in these times, means a very engaging story. "Deirdré" is in the seventh or eight thousand, a tremendous sale for a poem in dull times. "Afterglow" is said to be the best,—until "Hetty's Strange Story" comes out in July.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. call attention to two salient books on their list that should be brought to the eye of all summer readers—"Saxe Holm's Stories," certainly foremost of their kind, and the clever papers in Mrs. Dodge's "Theophilus and Others." Whoever buys either of these is not likely to be disappointed.

MESSRS. J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. will shortly issue the first volume of the "Foreign Classics for English Readers." This series will be uniform in size with the popular "Ancient Classics for English Readers." The volume is entitled "Dante," and is edited by Mrs. Oliphant, who is so well known to the American public.

NEXT week's issue including the new Educational Catalogue, that number will be a double one, and no other will be issued for the fortnight ending July 21st. This arrangement will give our patrons the full worth of their money, while saving labor and expense in dull times.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have ready the first four volumes of their excellent Wide Awake magazine, which they put in a box and label the Wide Awake Library. They offer this for summer entertainment, and are justified in doing so, for it is good the whole year round.

MR. LEAVITT announces the trade sale for the middle of September. We shall be glad to give our readers full particulars of its attractions, and also a further supply of the arguments against it. There is nothing like knowing both sides.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have just ready Mr. Hopkins's temperance story "John Bremm," and about all the didactic or preceptive portions of the Bible arranged by subjects, forming a little book which the editor, Rev. Dr. H. V. Dexter, entitles "The Unerring Guide."

THE neat "Tourist's Edition" of Gasc's little French-English and English-French dictionary, just issued by Henry Holt & Co., in flexible cloth binding of a new kind, the two volumes in case, ought to make a hit. It is "moighty convanient."

To those who like good editions, in handy, tasteful shape, we can commend the Globe edition of Milton and the Golden Treasury selection from Herrick, the latter a most elegant ittle volume, just ready at Macmillan & Co.'s.

THE popular editions of Bulwer's novels published by J. B. Lippincott & Co. have been reduced in price: the Globe Edition, 25 volumes, from $1.25 to $1 per volume; Lord Lytton Edition, 25 volumes, from $1.50 to $1.25; Library Edition, 47 volumes, from $1.25 to $1.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF BOOKS JUST PUBLISHED.

The Prices in this List are for cloth lettered, unless otherwise indicated. Imported Books are marked with an asterish: Authors and Subscription Books, or Books published at nes prices, with two asterishs: Educational Books published at "wholesale" prices, with a dagger.

" Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."-LORD BACON.

DULL TIMES.

It is a sad symptom of dull times in the trade when even the publisher of "Helen's Babies" does not hesitate to declare that he "don't care any more about books-the coffeeroom is worth the whole of 'em,"-an opinion backed up by a leading bookseller from the West recently in town, who stated his belief that a purely book business of a million dollars a year would not pay a living profit to a retailer under present conditions of trade, "net rates" on school-books and trade-sale prices on miscellaneous. Mr. Loring's book business, in the coffee and lunch line, is said to be the best retail book business in Boston, and we commend his example to the trade. There's no use whining, especially in these hot days,—all you have to do is to publish some other "Helen's Babies" and set up a coffee-room. No net rates or discounts on coffee! Mr. Loring also combines "our old-fashioned country Dier-Drink, compounded by Dr. Swett, from roots and herbs"—a great bookselling success. It is only five cents a copy, and "its medicinal properties invigorate the system and correct all derangements caused by excessive heat." The book trade has recently been considerably deranged, and there has been a good deal of excessive heat-more over the school-book business than from severe work-and we cordially recommend the application of this specific for invigorating the system, "packages for home making, twenty-five cents," trade-list price, postage extra.

Meanwhile a correspondent asks, "Are the Book Fairs dead?" and one man has been heard to query mildly what will be the date of To these questions, even the convention. Echo does not reply. She gives it up. In the present esprit du corps of the trade, meetings would indeed be of little use, simply because few would come. There is little hope of doing any thing in co-operation until better times give the basis for improvement.

When fall comes,-and with it, let us hope, the improvement so long looked for,—we trust there will be a general disposition to build up the new trade on a better basis. For that, let all hands work together. Let us not begin with demoralization, and thence keep going on from bad to worse. Foresight and fair dealing must then be the word, if the trade is to be saved. Ad interim, there is some animation in the soda-water business, and Mr. Loring has set an example to the trade.

BOOK NOTICES.

WAYSIDE SERIES.:—NIMPORT. (Lockwood, rooks & Co.) The anonymous author of Brooks & Co.) The anonymous author of "Nimport" bids fair to rival the unknown talent of the "No Name Series." His or her book (we should say her book) is as bright and witty an effort in the line of fiction as we have read for some time. It never hangs fire for a page; description and dialogue and incidents follow each other in rapid succession, all embued with the writer's freshness and originality. story is told alternately by Paul Fonde (who speaks in the first person), a young artist, and the head of a small family of orphans, and by his sister" Peg," in a series of letters. Peg has gone out governessing, and of course, being a distinguished looking girl, has her history. The characters are touched off with a happy felicity of expression and a keen sense of humor, "Aunt Bangs" and "Miss Phœbe Bligh" being quite new in fiction. The book deserves to become a very popular one, as it has many of the elements which the regular novel-reader fancies -viz., plenty of details, some love-making, and characters taken from every-day life. 16mo, cloth, $1.50.

SEA AIR AND SEA-BATHING, by Charles Parens. (Lindsay & B.) This is a practical and timely little guide for those who design spending their summer holiday beside the sea. It tells all about sea-bathing, the condition the body must be in to indulge in it profitably, the best time of day for indulging, the various good or bad effects it may have upon a person, and its power as a remedial agent in special diseases. As the book is for general readers, the author has aimed to render it as free as possible from technical terms; there is, however, a little elementary physiology and chemistry introduced, which adds both to its interest and value. 16mo, cloth, 60 cents.

LOLA, A TALE OF GIBRALTAR, by Arthur Griffiths. (Holt.) "The Rock," with its English garrison, its gossip, flirtations, bull-fights, and strange medley of inhabitants is the scene of this story. Lola, the heroine, is a saucy, vivacious Spanish girl, whose heart is won by Frank Wriottesley, one of the officers of the garrison. Her old grandfather, a Spanish Don, who lends money and sells all kinds of odds and ends, who appears as if in the depth of poverty, but is the possessor of quite a fortune, opposes the match, through a deep-seated hatred he nurses against the English, on account of a former wrong done his daughter, Lola's mother. The lovers in consequence go through many trials and misadventures before they are united. The story is noticeable for the wonderful care with which the details are worked up, and the very charming and picturesque portrait presented of the heroine. "Leisure Hour Series." 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

COLTON'S COMMON SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY heldon.) The progress in excellence and (Sheldon.) beauty of American text-books is nowhere more strikingly shown than in school geographies. How such atlases as the higher geographies, with many and beautifully-colored maps and costly illustrations, can be put on the market at their price must be a problem to those who do not stop to remember that in this country every child goes to school. The two books forming Colton's new series are reissued this year with all the study maps re-engraved, and with many other notable improvements. On these maps every place referred to in the text is now in heavy-faced type, applan which enables minor places to be added in unobtrusive type without disturbing the saliency of the important points. The railroad maps introduced in these geographies, with questions, give the child a practical idea of the country, while at the end are reference maps of all the States, colored by counties, and containing every town and county seat, the tabular and other statistical information being also placed at the end, so as not to interfere with more simple lessons. The illustrations, remarkable for beauty, are mostly new, and they have the merit that each teaches as well as amuses.

THOUGHT AND EXPRESSION; OR, THE CHILD'S FIRST BOOK IN WRITTEN LANGUAGE, by Samuel S. Greene. (Cowperthwait.) This method is designed to teach "the child to write as well as read, to combine elements with expressions of thought in writing as in speaking, and with as little regard to the elements themselves; to receive thought from combined elements in reading as in hearing, and with a like freedom from any distracting analyis or hinderance from spelling; in short, to make reading and writing what they really are, correlative and auxiliary processes—the one to draw thought from written language, the other to put thought into it." The little work is simple, easy, attractive, and practical, and adapted to the understanding of the very youngest child. 16mo, bds.

GRAMMATICAL PRAXIS IN AMERICAN LITERATURE, by Robert K. Buehrle. (Cowperthwait.) In the preparation of this book, the author aimed to aid pupils having some knowledge of the grammar of the English language to p sue its further study by carefully analyzing sections from the writings of standard autles. The selections embrace both poetry a l prose, and are all by American writers. I equestions cover the whole field of English g mmar, as treated in our ordinary text-books. I 10, bds.

HE COAL MINES OF THE WESTERN COAST OF UNITED STATES, by W. A. Goodyear. L. Bancroft & Co.) Mr. Goodyear in ing this book had in view not so much a sussion of the geological character of the fields of the Pacific coast, as a full and 'ligible description of the mines themselves as they exist to-day, a history which has never yet been published. The volume embraces facts, gathered by travel and observation, extending over a period of nine or ten years, during which period Mr. Goodyear remarks "It is safe to say I have done more work, and have been personally more familiar with the actual condition and workings of the various coal mines of the Pacific coast, than any other engineer has done." 8vo, cloth, $2.50 gold.

PLEASURE EXCURSIONS AND SEA-BATHING RESORTS IN THE VICINITY OF NEW YORK, compiled by J. Disturnell. (Wiley.) A very complete and reliable guide to the cities, villages, summer resorts, and watering places within fifty miles of the city of New York, including part of the States of New York and New Jersey. 16mo, paper, 25 cents.

ELEMENTS OF ARITHMETIC, by Edward Olney. A PRIMARY ARITHMETIC, by Edward Olney. (Sheldon.) These well-known books are both considerably enlarged and improved. They have both been submitted recently for examination to practical educators, their suggestions and revisions being in every case adopted. The "Elements" contains at least one hundred new pages, comprising a very full business arithmetic, a great quantity of the most practical kind of examples, and a very copious list of drill and test exercises in Fractions, Denominate Numbers, and Discount. The "Primary" has been thoroughly revised, and presents, together with the first volume, a full and complete course for schools.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Messrs. Gebbie & Barrie have just published parts 25 and 26 of the "Illustrated Catalogue" of the Masterpieces of the Centennial Exhibition. When completed, it will make three quarto volumes, devoted respectively to the fine arts, industrial art, and mechanics and science, as displayed at the Exhibition.

MESSRS. J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have issued a new edition of "Five Weeks in a Balloon; or Journey and Discoveries in Africa by Three Englishmen." This is one of Jules Verne's most popular works, and is now published in a very attractive cloth binding, with many illustrations. 12mo cloth, $1.25.

We have received from Mr. Geo. P. Philes, the well-known bibliographer, specimen sheets of a descriptive catalogue of a remarkable private collection of rare and curious books, amounting to nearly 12,000 volumes, upon which he is now at work. The catalogue is a model one, in typographical beauty and bibliographical fulness; and will be one of the most noteworthy ever issued in this country. Bangs & Co. will conduct the sale in the fall.

Mr. Wm. Tegg is preparing a collection of the marriage ceremonies of all nations, under the title of "The Knot Tied." Scribner, Armstrong & Co. will import it.

MR. W. A. TOWNSEND, of 177 Broadway, the publisher of Braithwaite's Retrospect, has nearly ready his "Physician's Monitor," a thirty-two page pamphlet of which he will circulate 50,000 copies gratuitously among physicians and druggists.

Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., successors to Wilson, Hinkle & Co., are preparing a number of important school-books for the opening of the new season. Foremost among these is a new General History, by Miss Thalheimer, formerly of the Packer Institute, Brooklyn, whose previous historical text-books have been widely successful. The new edition of Cæsar, edited by G. K. Bartholemew, with several maps and other useful features, follows his previous Latin books. There is also an improved edition of SuperIntendent Kiddle's valuable "How to Teach," lately transferred to this list. If any one knows how to teach, it should be Mr. Kiddle.

Wide Awake for August will contain, as the eleventh number of the series about Poets' Homes, an interesting article by R. H. Stoddard on R. H. Dana, Senior, now the Nestor of American poets.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have in press "Discourses at Eventide," sermons preached by Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Adams in Boston and Charlestown, and published at the urgent request of the Charlestown clergymen. The book will contain a portrait of Dr. Adams, and will be highly valued by the large circle in which he is admired for his talents and revered for his eminent purity and simplicity of character.

E. P. WHIPPLE, Esq., is conducting through the press a selection from the sermons of Thomas Starr King, which will be published in the fall by James R. Osgood & Co.

THE publishers of Mr. Habberton's "Jericho Road" announce the twentieth thousand now ready. This number of copies of a book which has been out but a short time, in addition to the large sales of the English and Canadian editions' goes to show that the author has a popularity which does not diminish as the public has more from him.

MR. AUG. BERTH. AUERBACH, of Stuttgart, is displaying both enterprise and good judgment in his Transatlantische Roman-Bibliothek, in which he has promptly issued Mr. Henry James, Jr.'s, story of "The American," in authorized translation by Hirchen-Abenheim, forming two volumes of the neat, tasteful, and reasonably-priced series. Mr. Howells' "Foregone Conclusion," Bret Harte's "Gabriel Conroy," and Max Adeler's "Elbow-room" (under the title of "Münchhausen in Amerika") are the other books so far included in it.

REV. LEONARD W. BACON, lately returned from a six years' residence in Switzerland, where his children have been educated, is preparing a book on the education of American girls and boys abroad, in which he will give personal experiences, the experiences of others, and various information and statistics as to educational life in French, German, and Swiss towns. G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish it, as a companion to Prof. Hart's book on German higher education, which has had an excellent sale.

Harper's Weekly, recalling the payment of £20,000 by the Longmans to Macaulay in one check,—26,500 copies of his history had been sold in ten weeks,—adds: This payment, large as it is, has been exceeded in this country. Harper & Brothers have paid as copyright to Mr. Marcius Willson, the author of their series of school readers, about $200,000; to the late Professor Charles Anthon, about $100,000; to Mr. Motley, about $60,000; to Jacob Abbott about $50,000; to the late Albert Barnes, $75,000; and to English authors, over $300,000.

MESSRS. J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have now ready a sumptuous edition of Alger's "Life of Edwin Forrest," in two volumes quarto, large paper, uncut edges, and bound in cloth. Only one hundred copies of these are printed, and but fifty are for sale. The engravings in this edition are proofs before letter, and are exceptionally fine. Each copy is numbered. Price $20.

THE American Metric Bureau, Boston, will issue before fall "The Teachers' Metric Manual," a complete guide to the most effective teaching of the metric weights and measures, with full illustrations and examples. The price will not exceed 20 cents.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. R. WORTHINGTON, 750 Broadway, sailed for Europe by the "Bothnia," of the Cunard line, Wednesday, the 4th inst. Mr. W. expects to make a personal selection from the best English and foreign publications. He intends to return before September 1st.

MR. JOHN CHURCH, JR., of Cincinnati, has been in town this week and reports large sales of their new Sunday-school music book, "Welcome Tidings," and a fair demand for their other publications in the West. Mr. C. has gone to Rhode Island to spend the summer.

Garton

issue a memorial volume commemorating the modern readers an exact facsimile of The First Book PRINTED IN ENGLAND BY CAXTON. This most interesting first English printed book is now generally admitted to be the Dictes and Sayings of the Philosophers, printed in the Almonry at Westminster in the year 1477.

The original copies from which the reproduction has been, by permission, made, are those preserved in the Library of the British Museum, and in the choice collection of Samuel Christie-Miller, Eq., at Britwell House, Bucks, the latter being the finest copy known, and it is by the aid thus courteously afforded that the work has been accomplished. The Britwell copy is a small folio volume in perfect preservation, very beautifully printed on thick ash-grey paper, with red initial letters; it is one of the most beautiful examples of Caxton's press, and is remarkable for its evenness of color, clearness, and careful printing. A very fine and perfect copy of this precious volume may be valued at one thousand pounds.

In order to render the reproduction an exact facsimile of the editio princeps a paper has been specially manufactured for the work, having all the peculiarities of the original; the printing is executed by a photographic process which reproduces infallibly all the characteristics of the original work, and the binding is a cereful reproduction of that of Caxton's day.

This memorial volume is rendered more interesting and, to the connoisseur, more valuable by an Introduction by William Blades, Esq., the author of the "Life and Typography of William Caxton," giving a short historical account of the book, the circumstances which led to its publication, and its position among the works printed by Caxton. It is believed that the publication of this work will, apart from its value to collectors, be generally acceptable as representing the first work issued from the press in England, and as illustrating the state of the art of printing in its infancy.

A limited edition of the DICTES AND SAYINGS OF THE PHILOSOPHERS will be issued, of which 100 copies will be sent to America, and offered to subscribers at $10.00 each.

Gentlemen desiring to secure copies are requested to send their names and addresses, as early as possible, to

THE POPULAR NOVEL,

GARTH,

By Julian Hawthorne,

Author of "Bressant," I vol., 8vo, paper covers, $1; cloth, $1.50,

SECOND EDITION NOW READY,

Has received the warmest commendations from the English press, extracts from which are appended.

PALL MALL GAZETTE.

"Far in advance of Mr. Hawthorne's previous works. The characters are drawn with great vigor. The work is full of picturesque and effective scenes."

ACADEMY.

"The charm of 'Garth' lies in a certain quaint raciness peculiar to our transatlantic cousins. The incident round which the plot centres is simple and yet cleverly handled, so as to mislead the solver of riddles."

GRAPHIC.

"A most remarkable advance on any previous work of the author's—an advance, indeed, so remarkable that no height of excellence in him will in future come upon us as a surprise."

GLOBE.

"The weariful world of contemporary fiction is happily forgotten on the threshold of a novel by Julian Hawthorne. Its style is a model of humorous simplicity. It ought to make an immediate mark, and will certainly make a lasting one."

MORNING POST

"A work of engrossing interest, though it is as a study of character that the book is to be valued—of characters which are not only intensely original, but placed in circumstances where even daily life is imbued with the romantic and picturesque."

GRAPHIC.

"Cuthbert Urmson, in his wisdom, his kindly satire, and his keenness of insight, reminds us of Austin Caxton in Lord Lytton's novel."

HIGH SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

We would respectfully call the attention of teachers and school officers to a few of our Textbooks especially adapted for use in high schools, academies, and colleges.

Series of Loomis's Mathematics.	A standard series, the most complete and practical yet published. The "Elements of Algebra" has just been revised, and now forms a complete course in algebra for high schools, with all that is required for admission to college.
Hooker's Natural Science Series.	Widely and favorably known. The "Chemistry" has lately been thoroughly revised, giving the latest discoveries in chemical science, with the new nomenclature.
Student's Series of Histories.	The volumes of this series form the best general history of the world, for perusal, study, or reference, yet produced in any language.
Harper's Greek and Latin Texts.	Superior to every other series in accuracy, elegance, and cheapness. They are used in nearly all the colleges of the country.
Orton's Zoology.	Warmly commended by the leading scientists, and already adopted in many normal schools and colleges.
Dalton's Physiology.	A new chapter on hygiene has been recently added. The work is in successful use in our normal schools and best high schools.
Nordhoff's Politics for Young Americans.	Recommended in the highest terms by the most eminent educators. Has been widely introduced and is giving excellent satisfaction.
Duff's Common School Book-keeping.	A new and practical work, moderate in size and price; well adapted to high-school work.
Seemann's Classical Mythology.	Contains a clear and readable account of the legends of the Greeks and Romans. An excellent text-book for classical schools.
Keep's Autenrieth's Homeric Dictionary.	Very recently issued, but already adopted for use in Harvard College, Yale College, Princeton College, Bowdoin College, Boston University, University of Vermont, Trinity College (Hartford), Phillips Academy (Andover), Phillips Academy (Exeter), and many other of the best classical institutions in the country.
Smith's Student's Smaller Classical Dictionary.	Contains all the subjects and names which a student will need to refer to in fitting for college. It is very fully and beautifully illustrated, and makes one of the most attractive and excellent books on classical literature ever issued in this country. Uniform in style with the Student's Series of Histories.

A catalogue and descriptive circulars of our school and college text-books will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer on application. Correspondence regarding books for examination, terms of introduction, etc., is solicited.

HARPER'S GEOGRAPHIES

A Complete Course in Physical and Political Geography,

IN TWO BOOKS.

Introduction. Exchange. Harper's Introductory Geography, 45 cents. 37 cents. Harper's School Geography, Harper's Introductory Geography is designed to prepare young pupils who are beginning the study of geography for the use of a more comprehensive manual.

The descriptive portions of this work have been carefully written in a familiar narrative form, and are intended to be read by the pupils.

The descriptive part of each lesson is followed by questions with appended answers, which extract from the part to be read its important points of information, and present them in a concise and convenient form for recitation.

Special attention is solicited to this feature, which, in its fulness and completeness, is believed to be without a parallel in elementary works on geography.

Harper's School Geography is essentially in two distinct parts—a physical geography and a political geography. The physical geography is treated very briefly; and, though important, presents no difficulty greater than the description of a chain of mountains or of the course of a nver. Each of the two parts has a series of special maps, exercises, and descriptions.

The geography of commerce has been made the leading line of thought. In involves a systematic presentation of the resources and industries of countries as dependent upon climate, soil, mineral deposits, and other physical conditions. It also includes all important information concerning cities and towns as commercial, manufacturing, and mining centres, and an outline of the system of transportation, domestic and international.

While great care has been taken to reject all matter not strictly relevant, it is believed that no other School Geography presents so many essential facts and principles in so few words.

Harper's Geographies are the result of the best professional skill and experience, and embody the true spirit of reform in geographical teaching. They have received the unqualified endorsement of many prominent educators, including the following:

R.C. HEWETT, President of Illinois State University. ALEXANDER WINCHELL, LL.D., late Chancellor of ALEXANDER WINCHELL, LLD., tate Chancetor of Syracuse University.

A POLITICAL ECONOMY FOR BEGINNERS.

AN INTRODUCTION TO POLITICAL ECONOMY.

From the New York Evening Post.

"Prof. Arthur Latham Perry has done an uncommonly excellent piece of work in the preparation of 'An Introduction to Political Economy;' and in saying this we mean to say not merely that the book is a singularly excellent one of its kind, but also, and more especially, that it is likely to be of great value to the public as the means of making the study of this important subject more popular and more general than it is."

Descriptive Catalogues and special Circulars in regard to all of our School Text-Books, Teachers' Reference Library Books, and selected Miscellaneous List, suited to the needs of teachers, may always be had on application.

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE FOR 1877.

TNOTICE.—In this catalogue, books on which the publisher makes only a wholesale price aremarked with a dagger (+), preceding the abbreviation of the publisher; publishers' retail prices are similarly designated with an asterisk (*). Where the book is exceptionally catalogued (at retail price by wholesale-list publisher, or at wholesale price by retail-list publisher), the word "retail" or "wholesale" is prefixed to the price in parenthesis. In comparing prices or ordering, a percentage ranging usually from twenty to twenty-five per cent, according to circumstances, should be added to prices quoted at wholesale, to cover handling, delivery, etc. Where inquiry has failed to elicit information from a publisher, the previous retail prices are given, with a query (?) affixed. Books forthcoming are marked with two asterisks ().

AMERICAN SCHOOL-BOOKS.

THE American school-book is a product of which we may justly be proud. The general verdict of educators in other countries gives abundant confirmation to ithis feeling, and so good an authority as the London Academy adds that they are "the cheapest in the world."

Take, for instance, the higher geographies issued within the past one or two years. One of these, to our certain knowledge, cost above $10,000 for the single book before the first copy had been produced; of another it is said that the maps alone cost much more than this. Here is one before us so admirable in its maps that in each State the individual peaks of mountain ranges can be named by those who have travelled among them, and the physical contour is perfectly shown, while mechanical ingenuity has so subordinated this detail in the printing that it in no wise interferes with the clearness of the general features. One could almost travel on foot by these maps. A fourth contains milroad maps so complete and accurate that they are used by the post-office authorities in making up mails,—capital for school-room travelling,—and reference maps of each State colored by counties and on which every county town is given, while in this also the utmost precaution has been taken that the learner shall not be confused by over-much detail. Many of these have also supplementary parts for use in the several States, with a large State map and special illustrations. Throughout, the illustration is copious and of high artistic excellence, many of the cuts costing one, two, and three hundred dollars each. Special care is taken that the pictures instruct as well as amuse. The text is by the best educators, who are at the utmost pains to obtain criticism and suggestion from practical teachers far and wide before their work is put in final shape. These books are kept up to the growth of the country and of geographical knowledge by frequent and costly revision. And yet atlases like these, such as no other country can show for school use, cost on the average but a dollar and a half each. Similar excellence and cheapness might be poi ted out in the other fields.

I spite all this, there was a loud hue and cry in: reral parts of the country last winter, that schol-books were dear and that the State should tak up the business of producing text-books. In ome cases, this was simply the job of dei gogical politicians; in more, it was a real pulic opinion, but based on distortion or mi onstruction of facts by such interested palis. The Publishers' Weekly for March 1877, corrected these misquoted facts and mi ren impressions in an article showing from publishers' books what the real cost and profit of school-books are, and showing also why the State cannot profitably manufacture them for itself. But the best evidence on this latter point was furnished by the State of Minnesota, which, with great promise of economy, passed a law contracting for the State supply of text-books. The lauded contract simply became a dead letter, and not by any interference of the publishers. The system did not work, and this gave the best practical proof that the relentless competition among publishers of rival books is sure to keep down profits just as low as the risk and labor involved permit. The muchabused Board of Trade of the school-book publishers, since given up partly because of the mistaken public prejudice against it, never did anything to dictate at what price a publisher should issue his books: its purpose was to check abuses of excessive discounts and agency corruptions, which were both to the disadvantage of the general and educational public by "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

This public feeling was influential not only in causing the Board of Trade, and with it the check on the obnoxious agency system, to be given up, but in occasioning a change of base on the part of school-book publishers in the matter of prices. Hitherto a retail price had been fixed by the publisher on school-books, as on all other books, which would allow a reasonable sum for the expenses of transportation, handling, etc., while permitting books to be sold anywhere at the "publishers' price." The new system, adopted by many but not by all publishers, gives up this feature, and the publisher makes simply a "wholesale" or "trade" price, to which the cost of postage or other transportation, of handling, etc., is to be added. extra cost varies according to distance from publishing centres, etc., but is generally calculated for average distances at twenty to twentyfive per cent additional,—the rate adopted by several publishers in sending out individual copies from their own store.

The Educational Catalogue for 1877 accordingly contains prices on two systems: "retail prices" are designated by a star (*) before the abbreviation of the publisher; "wholesale prices," by a dagger (†). The books priced according to the first system can be supplied anywhere at the price made; in the second case, some such proportion as named must be added, to cover expenses of handling and delivery. This should be kept in mind in comparing the prices of rival series, issued by publishers following different systems. The natural result, between on the one side the discount usually allowed to teachers or in quantities, in "retail prices," and, on the other, the necessary addition to "wholesale prices"-which the teacher must pay either directly or, more conveniently to himself, through the bookseller-is to practically equalize the two systems of prices. The confusion, however, is not a comfortable one either to bookseller or teacher, and it is to be hoped that a uniform scale will again be adopted, at such a price as will be fair to the buyer, while affording a sufficient margin for the necessary expenses in local supply.

It may be well, in this connection, to remind teachers how false, from their own point of view, is the too prevalent notion that books are simply paper and print, to be judged and bandled like groceries. It would be just as sensible to rate the pay of teachers by the wages paid to farmhands, because it doesn't cost any more for their eating. There are in both elements of intellectual ability, of judgment, of fitness, that cannot be rated in this way. Moreover, the books that succeed and are sold must pay the cost of the books that do not take and are not sold, just as the teacher's salary must cover the long vacation, when he or she is doing nothing except the important work of getting ready for the next year! And this holds not only in the price but in the choice of school-books. Books should be selected by careful examination and comparison, such as is afforded by the booksellers' shelves. Teachers too often overreach themselves by mistaken economy and spend money, time, and trouble in doing work which the booksellers will do more cheaply for them. It would be poor economy for the teacher to suspend his classes every once in a while to shingle the school-house roof; it is not more wise to take time for the book business which may more profitably be employed in developing the school. In presenting the Educational Catalogue for 1877 for the convenience of teachers, it is only fair to ask their attention to these considerations, and we may add that the competition among publishers to give them the best books at the lowest prices, and among retailers to offer them every facility of choice and purchase so that they may save the time which is money, is such that the teacher may safely conclude that his economy as well as his educational interests will always be well served. It is to the interest of every teacher, as of education in general, that he should win his way upward by giving his entire thought to the work itself, nor should the State, nor a mistaken view of his own interests, divert him into the details of the trader's work or the risks of a speculation which makes him worth less to his pupils and to the public, and finally worth less to himself.

REFERENCE BOOKS IN ENGLISH.

WE quote from a recent number of the American Library Journal an interesting and valuable paper on this important subject by Mr. Justin Winsor, who as superintendent of the Boston Public Library has the widest experience in the usefulness of such books to the people. The article was intended to guide the librarians of small libraries in purchasing, but will be found only less useful to teachers, or any who consult books. A few paragraphs, of interest chiefly to librarians, are omitted:

Dictionary, in I. Webster's Unabridged more respects superior than inferior to Worcester, which may be preferred in some instances of spelling and pronunciation.

[In the "battle of the dictionaries," it should be stated, there are able authorities on both sides. Many literary men differ from Mr. Winsor, and give general preserence to Worcester. A well-provided school should of course possess both.—ED.]

II. Keith Johnston's or Black's Atlas, each costly, and the best for the world at large; but better for America are A. J. Johnson's, Mit-chell's, and Colton's, and they cost less. For classical students, Smith's Ancient Atlas, though expensive, will not be amiss.

III. Appleton's "American Cyclopædia" is better illustrated and stronger on American topics than Chambers', which costs, however, a good deal less, and is very serviceable. Johnson's Cyclopædia is its leading rival. Zell's "Popular Encyclopædia" is more compact, and costs still less.

IV. Haydn's "Dictionary of Dates," Harpers' edition; but Putnam's "World's Progress" costs less money. The English edition of Haydn, lacking, however, the adaptability for American readers of the Harpers' revision, is brought down nearly to date; and Townsend's "Manual of Dates" may stand for a good alternative. Woodward and Cate's "Encyclopædia of Chronology" condenses a great deal of biographical as well as historical date-knowledge. Of less cost is Bond's convenient "Handy Book for Verifying Dates." Blair's "Chrono-logical Tables" gives parallel summaries of events, while the same matter is put into an alphabet of items in Rosse's " Index of Dates" together a useful means of commanding general chronology.

V. Allibone's "Dictionary of English and American Authors," alphabetically arranged, may be supplemented for chronological order by Chambers' "Cyclopædia of English Literature," and Duyckinck's "Cyclopædia of American Literature." For less costly books substitute Underwood's "American Authors" and "British Authors," or some of the manuals, like Shaw's, Hart's, and Angus'.

VI. For making lists of books to purchase, use Bohn's edition of Lowndes' "Bibliographer's Manual," with Low & Co.'s "English Catalogue," 1835-71, and Annual Supplements and Index of Subjects, for English books, if you have the money to buy systematically. For American books you will get equivalent help in the American Catalogue of Roorbach and Kelly, if you can afford the money to buy them, and the time to find a complete set; but you will probably do best to trust the Publishers' Trade-List Annual, for books in print, till the new American Catalogue, announced by Mr. Leypoldt, is ready. Still, for quick reference and ordinary purchases of American and English books, Perkins' "Best Reading" will answer every purpose.

biography Thomas' VII. For universal "Dictionary of Biography and Mythology" is the best, supplemented for living and less known Americans by Drake's "Dictionary of American Biography." Phillips' "Dictionary of Biographical Reference" is good for following up search in other cyclopædias.

VIII. To elucidate references and allusions, you will be well provided if you choose—Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," with a capital catchword index. Wheeler's "Noted Names of Fiction," but if you have Webster's "Unabridged," you get it in a less extensive form in an appendix.

Brewer's "Phrase and Fable," which borrows largely from Wheeler, but complements it somewhat. Clarke's " Concordance to Shakespeare." Cruden's "Concordance to the Bible.

Smith's Dictionaries of Greek and Roman Antiquities, Biography, Mythology, and Geog-raphy, if they can be afforded; if not, substiute his general "Classical Dictionary."

Lippincott's "Gazetteer," or Keith Johnston's "General Dictionary of Geography.

Spooner's "Dictionary of the Fine Arts."
Martin's "Statesmen's Year-Book," for contemporary history.

IX. For finding subjects treated in periodicals—Poole's Index, now twenty-five years old, and hard to find; but until a new edition of it is ready, get along as best you can with the index volumes of Harper's Monthly, Scribner's Monthly, Atlantic Monthly, and those of some of the English quarterlies and monthlies, if you have the set; the History, Biography and Travel Catalogue of the Boston Public Library; the Catalogue of the Quincy Public Library, and that of the Brooklyn Mercantile Library, when done.

I have pretty much avoided special topics. If you need them, you will find cyclopædias of Agricultural, Chemistry, Genealogy, Heraldry, Mechanics, Medicine, Music, etc., etc.

Those interested in Bible Classes cannot fail to make good use of McClintock and Strong's Cyclopædia, as far as it is published; and Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible," which in the enlarged form I should prefer in the American edition, edited by Hackett and Abbot, and in the abridged form in Smith's singlevolume edition.

Dana's "Household Book of Poetry" will often answer for you the question as to authorship of minor poems; and Bryant's "Library of Poetry and Song," Beeton's "Book of English Poetry," and Mackay's "One Thousand and One Gems of English Poetry," will serve the same purpose.

Often when the Encyclopædia fails you in some curious research, you will not be disappointed in Chambers' "Book of Days." Hone's "Every-Day Book" and "Table Book" are Finally, this advice and these preferences might be expanded indefinitely; and few experiences may exactly tally with mine.

SELECTIONS.

HAT SHALL I READ?—What shall I read? Shall I pursue a general course? Or shall I work at some department of knowledge exclusively? What book shall I begin with? What books shall I go on with?

Answer: Do you want to read as work or as relaxation? for accomplishment, or for knowledge? What do you know already?

What have you read already?

The answer is only another question, for the questions supposed—they are the usual onesquestions supposed—they are could not be answered otherwise. They are like the well-known queries: How long is a string? How much does a horse cost? There string? How much does a horse cost? are a great many people for whom the profundities of Tupper and Titcomb are the solidest reading that can be endured, and Southworth is splendid! There are others who want Plate in the Greek and Kant in the German; who like Queen Caroline, take Butler's Analogy for their light reading. I beg pardon; that is not : breast with the Spirit of the Age. I ought to sar, who read the Vedic hymns in the original anscrit for amusement, and decipher in-Iought scriptions in the arrow-headed character when they have five minutes' leisure, or as they ride in the street-cars.

A long the gayly-variegated mosaic stuff that con itutes a certain well-known pavement, I sup ose there are as many Courses of Reading 25 nod resolutions of any other kind. Perhap as good a rule as any to begin reading

Don't pursue a course of reading. Or, rather, don't try to; there's very little danger that you will,

And yet it is very agreeable to sit down and plan out a full and rounded series of noble books, which shall train the mind into strength and swiftness and beauty. There is something extremely attractive, for instance, in the conception of a series of masterpieces, or Monumental Course of Reading, which shall acquaint the student with the great thoughts of the great men in historic order, and thus set before him a history of mankind in its noblest representa-tions. Thus, for instance:

Filled out with a few titles in parentheses, as being either out of chronological order, or as connectives, etc. Translations are always meant, of non-English books. Epithets and estimates are taken for granted.]

First seize a few pictures of the pre-historic civilizations, executed in the modern manner; by reading Rawlinson's Five Great Monarchies and Wilkinson's Ancient Egyptians. background laid in, read Bryant's Homer, and, along with it, dictionary-wise, Gladstone's Juventus Mundi. Follow with Greek his-Juventus Mundi. torians: Herodotus (Rawlinson's), Thucydides, Xenophon's Anabasis. Now add the leading Greek philosophies of mind and action; the Ethics and Politics of Aristotle, Plato's Dialogues (Jowett's), and Xenophon's Memora-bilia. Supplement with Grote's Plato and the Companions of Socrates. Add the greatest Greek dramatists and an orator: Æschylus, Sophocles, Euripides; Aristophanes, most won-derful of all; and Demosthenes. Then read Plutarch's Lives. Lastly, round up and vivify your knowledge of the Greek nation and spirit by reading Grote's magnificent History of Greece.

Next comes Rome. Read of the historians, Livy, Sallust, Cæsar, Tacitus; of poets, Virgil (Conington's), Horace (Francis' or Martin's, or both); for oratory, philosophy, and belles-lettres, Cicero's writings. Supplement Greek and Roman antiquity together with Becker's Charicles, and his Gallus; then revise and solidify your Rome by reading Mommsen, as Grote for Greece. But you will find it, though good, far inferior to Grote.

Now comes the transition from heathen to Christian history. Read Gibbon's Decline and Fall. To keep your balance against the often denounced innuendoes of Mr. Gibbon, don't quiddle with the goody little notes to Gibbon, by Milman and others, but having let Gibbon poison you as much as he can—he won't hurt you if you have much intellect of your ownturn away and master at once the right side of the main question of Christ in History, by a thorough study and mental appropriation of Horne's Introduction to the study of the Sacred Scriptures. I mean not the obsolete old edition, still obstinately and improperly kept in the American market to the exclusion of the proper one, but the last edition, with Horne's own latest revisions, and with the addition, by first-class evangelical English scholars, of all the recent learning on the subject. No man of sound mind, having mastered Horne, will ever be materially troubled by such little snips and sneers as Gibbon's, or by any other attempt to destroy the historical argument for the substantial truth of the Bible.

To further familiarize yourself with this great turning-point in the history of mankind, read Augustine's Confessions, and his City of God, as specimens of the best effects of the new religion upon a fervid and powerful and noble nature. Add for completeness Milman's First Three Centuries of the Christian Church, Merivale's Conversion of the Roman Empire, and his Conversion of the Northern Nations.

Now, grasp at once the beginnings of modern history, by reading carefully Hallam's Middle Ages and Guizot's History of Civilization. Turn back a moment and surrender yourself to one of the latest phases of heathen romance, in reading the Nibelungen Lied. (If you like to add a prose romance of the same key, but having also the transition to Christianity in it, read Fouque's Thiodolf the Icelander.) Now, for two narrower pictures, yet full of bright, sharp drawing and character, read Thierry's Merovingians, and his Norman Conquest. Add Froissart; for the chivalric romances, read Morte d'Arthur and Amadis de Gaul; and for the times of the Crusades, take (history quite as much as romance) Ivanhoe, The Talisman, and Quentin Durward.

Next comes the Great Awakening of the Fif-teenth Century. Yet Dante belongs earlier. Read, then, Dante (Longfellow's); after him Ariosto (Rose's), and Tasso (Wiffen's). (Now take d'Aubigné's spirited and graphic History of the Reformation, and follow it with Schiller's Thirty Years' War, and you have the transition from Catholic Europe to the Catholic-Protestant Europe of to day. For glimpses into ways of thought and speech, read Luther's Table-Talk; and to fill out the whole with its immense and indispensable Fine Art portion, read Eastlake and Kugler's Hand-Books.) As the Nibelungen Lied marked in some sense a close of heathen national epics, so now read Don Quixote, to mark the extinction of the romance of chivalry. Follow it with Gil Blas, which establishes the transition to the earliest period of modern Fiction Proper, viz., the string-ofadventures and character novel. (To fill out the historical impressions of that imperial time, read Prescott's Ferdinand and Isabella, Philip II., Mexico and Peru, and Motley's Dutch Repubic and United Netherlands.)

Cross the channel, and come into the splendid blaze of the Elizabethan period. But it will bear, and, indeed, requires, ample intro-duction. This is the place to ascertain your views of English History; you may come down well past it in that department, and then, returning, set your Elizabethan jewels all the more distinctly in the middle of the broad field. Read, therefore, Hume and Macaulay. Then take Hallam and May's Constitutional History; add Blackstone's Commentaries, and De Lolme on the Constitution, because English history and English law are peculiarly in-terwoven. (To give breadth to your views, add also, here, Maine's two valuable works on Ancient Law, and on Municipal or Village Law in the East and West.) Now return to Queen Elizabeth. Specimens must do. So read Shakespeare (White's, if you can afford it; if not, any you can. Shakespeare can be bought almost as cheap as the Bible); Spenser, and Bacon, and Montaigne. Miss Aikin's Court and Times of Queen Elizabeth is picturesque and comprehensive for the general reader.

Step forward two generations. Read Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, Carlyle's Cromwell, Milton's Prose Works, and Forster's Statesmen of the Commonwealth. Diaries of Evelyn and Pepys are instructive pictures of the times of Charles II. Then read Milton's Poetry, Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, and Holy War; Sir Thomas Browne's Religio Medici and Urn-Burial, and (if you can) Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy. Selden's Table-Talk also belongs here; you can read that, or else you have no business with this list. (For the state of things on the Continent, read Schiller's Thirty Years' War.)

The Restoration and the Revolution of 1688 have been dealt with already in your historical reading, presatory to the Elizabethan period. Omit, therefore, the war and politics of that stirring time, and consider next the literary activity of the reign of Louis XIV. in France, and of Queen Anne in England. Read Corneille, Racine, and Molière; the Thoughts and Provincial Letters of Pascal; the Letters of Madame de Sévigné; and—though he belongs a little later—the Maxims of La Rochesoucauld. Read also the philosophical works of Locke, and those of Descartes. Then, for Queen Anne's time, read Swift, Addison, and Pope. (The writings of Bolingbroke might be added, and a notion of Marlborough may be obtained from Alison's Life.)

We rapidly approach the modernest times, and to-day. After the wars of Queen Anne, the next historical epoch is that of the wars of Frederick the Great, of whom read Carlyle's Life. In the latter half of the century a slow, silent victory, yet greater than Prague or Rosbach, was won by Kant, whose Critique of Pure Reason and Metaphysics of Ethics should be read. Read also the first of human biographies, written by one of the last of men, Boswell's Johnson; and Burke's Speeches, and Sheridan's Comedies, and Goldsmith's Works. Continue the philosophical strand of your cord, with Stewart. Brown, and Reid.

Now prepare for the splitting off of the American Colonies into an independent historical career. Read the Federalist, to show what the men meant who founded our polity, and De Tocqueville's Democracy in America, for a marvellous and only not prophetic exposition of what their purpose turned out to be. (While you are about it, shape our own history at once by reading Bancroft's mammoth preparation to begin our history, and Hildreth's dense and full annals.)

Make a backward step for France. Read De Tocqueville's Ancient Régime, to show you why the French Revolution broke out; and then Thiers and Carlyle, to show you what it did. Follow with Thiers' Consulate and Empire; read Napier's Peninsular War, a wonderfully clear and vigorous narrative of the military achievements which were the real en-tering wedge toward Napoleon's downfall; and avoid Scott's Life and Abbott's Life of Napoleon. For German literature in these days, read Goethe (Taylor's Faust, the rest of his works as you can get them); Schiller—I mean both the Works and the Life of both.

Then take up the literary harvest of England in the first part of this century. Read Scott's Works, and Lockhart's Scott; Byron, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Keats, and Shelley; and read after the writings of each a biography of each. Read also Lamb's Writings, and those of Thomas de Quincey.

Then opens out the vast arena of the present epoch, with its innumerable writers and its numerous entirely new departments of investigation. There is a sufficient conventional excuse for not venturing to even attempt to blaze out a path through such a crowded and luxuriant forest. Yet let the notice be ventured that the present age is notable most of all for advances in science, and what is closely related thereto: and (in belles-lettres), for prose fiction. I barely name Humboldt's Cosmos, Darwin's Origin of Species and Descent of Man, Sir William Hamilton's Metaphysics and Logic, the writings of Herbert Spencer, Charles Dickens, W. M. Thackeray, and Nathaniel Hawthorne. As for all the rest, any one who has read according to this series down to this point, or half-way down to it, with fair abilities and steady, careful attention, is b that time better able to choose both depart nents and authors for himself than I or any othe guide.

T en please to consider what a store of deep and broad and noble and beautiful thoughts, wha a wide range of classes of literature, what a v st mass of facts, the knowledge of that seri 3 of books implies; and yet it is a pretty sho "Course of Reading," as courses of read-

MERSON ON BOOKS. — Montaigne says, find certain books vital and spermatic, not leaving the reader what he was: he shuts the book a richer man. I would never willingly read any others than such. And I will venture, at the risk of inditing a list of old primers and grammars, to count the few books which a superficial reader must thankfully use.

Of the old Greek books, I think there are five which we cannot spare: 1. Homer, who, in spite of Pope and all the learned uproar of centuries, has really the true fire, and is good for simple minds, is the true and adequate germ of Greece, and occupies that place as history which nothing can supply. It holds through all literature, that our best history is still poetry. It is so in Hebrew, in Sanskrit, and in Greek. English history is best known through Shakespeare; how much through Merlin, Robin Hood, and the Scottish ballads !—the German, through the Nibelungenlied; the Spanish, through the Cid. Of Homer, George Chapman's is the heroic translation, though the most literal prose version is the best of all. 2. Herodotus, whose history contains inestimable anecdotes, which brought it with the learned into a sort of disesteem; but in these days, when it is found that what is most memorable of history is a few anecdotes, and that we need not be alarmed though we should find it not dull, it is regaining credit. 3. Æschylus, the grandest of the three tragedians, who has given us under a thin veil the first plantation of Europe. The "Prometheus" is a poem of the like dignity and scope as the Book of Job, or the Norse Edda. 4. Of Plato I hesitate to speak, lest there should be no end. You find in him that which you have already found in Homer, now ripened to thought,—the poet converted to a philosopher, with loftier strains of musical wisdom than Homer reached; as if Homer were the youth, and Plato the finished man; yet with no less security of bold and perfect song, when he cares to use it, and with some harp-strings fetched from a higher heaven. He contains the future, as he came out of the past. In Plato, you explore modern Europe in its causes and seed,—all that in thought, which the history of Europe embodies or has yet to embody. The well-informed man finds himself anticipated. Plato is up with him too. Nothing has escaped him. Every new crop in the fertile harvest of reform, every fresh suggestion of modern humanity, is there. If the student wish to see both sides, and justice done to the man of the world, pitiless exposure of pedants, and the supremacy of truth and the religious senti-ment, he shall be contented also. Why should not young men be educated on this book? It would suffice for the tuition of the race,—to test their understanding, and to express their rea-son. Here is that which is so attractive to all men,—the literature of aristocracy shall I call it?—the picture of the best persons, sentiments, and manners, by the first master, in the best times, -portraits of Pericles, Alcibiades, Crito, Prodicus, Protagoras, Anaxagoras, and Socrates, with the lovely background of the Athenian and suburban landscape. Or who can overestimate the images with which Plato has enriched the minds of men, and which pass like bullion in the currency of all nations? Read the "Phædo," the "Protagoras," the "Phædrus," the "Timæus," the "Republic," and the "Apology of Socrates." 5. Plutarch cannot be spared from the smallest library: first, because he is so readable, which is much; then, that he is medicinal and invigorating. The lives of Cimon, cinal and invigorating. The lives of Cimon, Lycurgus, Alexander, Demosthenes, Phocion, Marcellus, and the rest, are what history has of best. But this book has taken care of itself, and the opinion of the world is expressed in the innumerable cheap editions, which make it as accessible as a newspaper. But Plutarch's "Morals" is less known, and seldom reprinted. Yet such a reader as I am writing to can as ill spare it as the "Lives." He will read in it the essays "On the Dæmon of Socrates," "On Isis and Osiris," "On Progress in Virtue," "On Garrulity," "On Love," and thank anew the art of printing, and the cheerful domain of ancient thinking. Plutarch charms by the facility of his associations; so that it signifies little where you open his book, you find yourself at the Olympian tables. His memory is like the Isthmian Games, where all that was excellent in Greece was assembled, and you are stimulated and recruited by lyric verses, by philosophic sentiments, by the forms and behavior of heroes, by the worship of the gods, and by the passing of fillets, parsley and laurel wreaths, chariots, armor, sacred cups, and utensils of sacrifice. An inestimable trilogy of ancient social pictures are the three "Banquets" respectively of Plato, Xenophon, and Plutarch. Plutarch's has the least approach to historical accuracy; but the meeting of the Seven Wise Masters is a charming portraiture of ancient manners and discourse, and is as clear as the voice of a fife, and entertaining as a French novel. phon's delineation of Athenian manners is an accessory to Plato, and supplies traits of Socrates; whilst Plato's has merits of every kind, being a repertory of the wisdom of the ancients on the subject of love,—a picture of a feast of wits, not less descriptive than Aristophanes,and, lastly, containing that ironical eulogy of Socrates which is the source from which all the portraits of that philosopher current in Europe have been drawn.

Of course a certain outline should be obtained of Greek history, in which the important moments and persons can be rightly set down; but the shortest is the best, and if one lacks stomach for Mr. Grote's voluminous annals, the old slight and popular summary of Goldsmith or of Gillies will serve. The valuable part is the age of Pericles and the next generation. And here we must read the "clouds" of Aristophanes, and what more of that master we gain appetite for, to learn our way in the streets of Athens, and to know the tyranny of Aristophanes, requiring more genius and sometimes not less cruelty than belonged to the official command-Aristophanes is now very accessible, with much valuable commentary, through the labors of Mitchell and Cartwright. An excellent pop-ular book is J. A. St. John's "Ancient Greece;" the "Life and Letters" of Niebuhr, even more than his Lectures, furnish leading views; and Winckelmann, a Greek born out of due time, has become essential to an intimate knowledge of the Attic genius. The secret of the recent histories in German and in English is the discovery, owed first to Wolff, and later to Boeckh, that the sincere Greek history of that period must be drawn from Demosthenes, especially from the business orations, and from the comic poets.

If we come down a little by natural steps from the master to the disciples, we have, six or seven centuries later, the Platonists,—who also cannot be skipped,—Plotinus, Porphyry, Proclus, Sy. nesius, Jamblichus. Of Jamblichus the Emperor Julian said, "that he was posterior to Plato in time, not in genius." Of Plotinus, we have eulogies by Porphyry and Longinus, and the favor of the Emperor Gallienus,-indicating the respect he inspired among his contemporaries. If any one who had read with interest the "Isis and Osiris" of Plutarch should then read a chapter called "Providence," by Synesius, translated into English by Thomas Taylor, he will find it one of the majestic remains of literature, and, like one walking in the noblest of temples, will conceive new gratitude to his fellow-men, and a new estimate of their nobility. The imaginative scholar will find few stimulants to his brain like these writers. He has entered the Elysian Fields; and the grand and pleasing figures of gods and demons and demoniacal men, of the "azonic" and the "aquatic gods," demons with fulgid eyes, and all the rest of the Platonic rhetoric, exalted a little under the African sun, sail before his eyes. The acolyte has mounted the tripod over the cave at Delphi; his heart dances, his sight is quickened. These guides speak of the gods with such depth and with such pictorial details, as if they had been bodily present at the Olympian feasts. The reader of these books makes new acquaintance with his own mind; new regions of thought are opened. Jamblichus's "Life of Pythagoras" works more directly on the will than the others; since Pythagoras was eminently a practical person, the founder of a school of ascetics and socialists, a planter of colonies, and nowise a man of abstract studies alone.

For history there is great choice of ways to bring the student through early Rome. If he can read Livy, he has a good book; but one of the short English compends, some Goldsmith or Ferguson, should be used, that will place in the cycle the bright stars of Plutarch. The poet Horace is the eye of the Augustan age; Tacitus, the wisest of historians; and Martial will give him Roman manners—and some very bad ones—in the early days of the Empire: but Martial must be read, if read at all, in his own tongue. These will bring him to Gibbon, who will take him in charge, and convey him with abundant entertainment down—with notice of all remarkable objects on the way-through fourteen hundred years of time. He cannot spare Gibbon, with his vast reading,—with such wit and continuity of mind, that, though never profound, his book is one of the conveniences of civilization, like the new railroad from ocean to ocean,—and, I think, will be sure to send the reader to his "Memoirs of Himself," and the "Extracts from my Journal," and "Abstracts of my Readings," which will spur the laziest scholar to emulation of his prodigious performance.

Now having our idler safe down as far as the fall of Constantinople in 1453, he is in very good courses; for here are trusty hands waiting for him. The cardinal facts of European history are soon learned. There is Dante's poem, to open the Italian Republics of the Middle Age; Dante's "Vita Nuova," to explain Dante and Beatrice; and Boccaccio's "Life of Dante,"—a great man to describe a greater. To help us, perhaps a volume or two of M. Sis-mondi's "Italian Republics" will be as good as the entire sixteen. When we come to Michel Angelo, his Sonnets and Letters must be read, with his Life by Vasari, or, in our day, by Herman Grimm. For the Church, and the Feudal Institution, Mr. Hallam's "Middle Ages" will furnish, if superficial, yet readable and conceivable outlines.

The "Life of the Emperor Charles V.," by the useful Robertson, is still the key of the following age. Ximenes, Columbus, Loyola, Luther, Erasmus, Melanchthon, Francis I., Henry VIII., Elizabeth, and Henry IV. of France are his contemporaries. It is a time of seeds and expansions, whereof our recent civilization is the fruit.

If now the relations of England to European affairs bring him to British ground, he is arrived at the very moment when modern history takes new proportions. He can look back for the legends and mythology to the "Younger Edda" and the "Heimskringla" of Snorro Sturleson, to "Mallet's "Northern Antiquities," to Ellis's "Metrical Romances," to Asser's "Life of Alfred" and Venerable Bede, and to the researches of Sharon Turner and Palgrave. Hume will serve him for an intelligent guide, and in the Elizabethan era he is at the richest period of the English mind, with the chief men of action and of thought which that nation has produced, and with a pregnant future before him. Here he has Shakespeare, Spenser, Sidney, Raleigh, Bacon, Chapman, Jonson, Ford, Beaumont and fletcher, Herbert, Donne, Herrick; and Milton, Marvell, and Dryden, not long after.

In reading history, he is to prefer the history

In reading history, he is to prefer the history of individuals. He will not repent the time he gives to Bacon,—not if he read the "Advancement of Learning," the "Essays," the "Novum Organum," the "History of Henry VIII.," and then all the "Letters" (especially those to the Earl of Devonshire, explaining the Essex business), and all but his "Apophthegms."

The task is aided by the strong mutual light which these men shed on each other. Thus, the works of Ben Jonson are a sort of hoop to bind all these fine persons together, and to the land to which they belong. He has written verses to or on all his notable contemporaries; and what with so many occasional poems, and the portrait sketches in his "Discoveries," and the gossiping record of his opinions in his conversations with Drummond of Hawthorndon, he has really illustrated the England of his time, if not to the same extent, yet much in the same way, as Walter Scott has celebrated the persons and places of Scotland. Walton, Chapman, Herrick, and Sir Henry Wotton write also to the times.

Among the best books are certain Autobiographies: as, St. Augustine's Confessions; Benvenuto Cellini's Life; Montaigne's Essays; Lord Herbert of Cherbury's Memoirs; Memoirs of the Cardinal de Retz; Rousseau's Confessions; Linnæus's Diary; Gibbon's, Hume's, Franklin's, Burns's, Alfieri's, Goethe's, and Ha don's Autobiographies.

I nother class of books closely allied to these, and of like interest, are those which may be called Table Talks: of which the best are Saadi's Guistan; Luther's Table-Talk; Aubrey's Lives; Sp. nce's Anecdotes; Selden's Table-Talk; Bowell's Life of Johnson; Eckermann's Convenations with Goethe; Coleridge's Table-Tak; and Hazlitt's Life of Northcote.

'ere is a class whose value I should designate as Favorites: such as Froissart's Chronicles; Southey's Chronicle of the Cid; Cervantes; Sully's Memoirs; Rabelais; Montaigne; Izaak Walton; Evelyn; Sir Thomas Browne; Aubrey; Sterne; Horace Walpole; Lord Clarendon; Doctor Johnson; Burke, shedding floods of light on his times; Lamb; Landor; and De Quincey;—a list, of course, that may easily be swelled, as dependent on individual caprice. Many men are as tender and irritable as lovers in reference to these predilections. Indeed, a man's library is a sort of harem, and I observe that tender readers have a great pudency in showing their books to a stranger.

Another class I distinguish by the term Vocabularies. Burton's "Anatomy of Melancholy is a book of great learning. To read it is like reading in a dictionary. Tis an inventory to remind us how many classes and species of facts exist, and, in observing into what strange and multiplex by-ways learning has strayed, to infer our opulence. Neither is a dictionary a bad book to read. There is no cant in it, no excess of explanation, and it is full of suggestion,—the raw material of possible poem and histories. Nothing is wanting but a little shuffling, sorting, ligature, and cartilage. Out of a hundred examples, Cornelius Agrippa "On the Vanity of Arts and Sciences" is a specimen of that scribaciousness which grew to be the habit of the gluttonous readers of his time. Like the modern Germans, they read a literature while other mortals read a few books. They read voraciously, and must disburden themselves; so they take any general topic, as, Melancholy, or Praise of Science, or Praise of Folly, and write and quote without method or end. Now and then out of that affluence of their learning comes a fine sentence from Theophrastus, or Seneca, or Boëthius, but no high method, no inspiring efflux. But one cannot afford to read for a few sentences; they are good only as strings of suggestive words.

There is another class, more needful to the present age, because the currents of custom run now in another direction, and leave us dry on this side:—I mean the Imaginative. A right metaphysics should do justice to the co-ordinate powers of Imagination, Insight, Understanding, and Will. Poetry, with its aids of Mythology and Romance, must be well allowed for an imaginative creature. Men are ever lapsing into a beggarly habit, wherein everything that is not ciphering, that is, which does not serve the tyrannical animal, is hustled out of sight. . . .

If our times are sterile in genius, we must cheer us with books of rich and believing men who had atmosphere and amplitude about them. Every good fable, every mythology, every biography from a religious age, every passage of love, and even philosophy and science, when they proceed from an intellectual integrity, and are not detached and critical, have the imaginative element. The Greek fables, the Persian history (Firdusi), the "Younger Edda" of the Scandinavians, the "Chronicle of the Cid," the poem of Dante, the Sonnets of Michel Angelo, the English drama of Shakespeare, Beaumont and Fletcher, and Ford, and even the prose of Bacon and Milton,-in our time, the Ode of Wordsworth, and the poems and the prose of Goethe, have this enlargement, and inspire hope and generous attempts.

There is no room left,—and yet I might as well not have begun as to leave out a class of books which are the best: I mean the Bibles of the world, or the sacred books of each nation, which express for each the supreme result of their experience. After the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures, which constitute the sacred books of Christendom, these are, the Desatir of the Persians, and the Zoroastrian Oracles; the Vedas and Laws of Menu; the Upanishads, the Vishnu Purana, the Bhagvat Geeta, of the Hindoos; the books of the Buddhists; the "Chinese Classic" of four books, containing the wisdom of Confucius and Mencius. Also such other books as have acquired a semi-canonical authority in the world, as expressing the highest sentiment and hope of nations. Such are the "Hermes Trismegistus," pretending to be Egyptian remains; the "Sentences" of Epicte-tus; of Marcus Antoninus; the "Vishnu Sarma" of the Hindoos; the "Gulistan" of Saadi; the "Imitation of Christ" of Thomas à Kempis; and the "Thoughts" of Pascal.

All these books are the majestic expressions of the universal conscience, and are more to our daily purpose than this year's almanac or this day's newspaper. But they are for the closet, and to be read on the bended knee. Their communications are not to be given or taken with the lips and the end of the tongue, but out of the glow of the cheek, and with the throbbing heart. Friendship should give and take, solitude and time brood and ripen, heroes absorb and enact them. They are not to be held by letters printed on a page, but are living characters translatable into every tongue and form of life. I read them on lichens and bark; I watch them on waves on the beach; they fly in birds, they creep in worms; I detect them in laughter and blushes and eye-sparkles of men and women. These are Scriptures which the missionary might well carry over prairie, desert, and ocean, to Siberia, Japan, Timbuctoo. Yet he will find that the spirit which is in them journeys faster than he, and greets him on his arrival,—was there already long before him. The missionary must be carried by it, and find it there, or he goes in vain. Is there any geography in these things? We call them Asiatic, we call them primeval; but perhaps that is only optical; for Nature is always equal to herself, and there are as good eyes and ears now in the planet as ever were. Only these ejaculations of the soul are uttered one or a few at a time, at long intervals, and it takes millenniums to make a Bible.

These are a few of the books which the old and the later times have yielded us, which will reward the time spent on them. In comparing the number of good books with the shortness of life, many might well be read by proxy, if we had good proxies; and it would be well for sincere young men to borrow a hint from the French Institute and the British Association, and, as they divide the whole body into sections, each of which sits upon and reports of certain matters confided to it, so let each scholar associate himself to such persons as he can rely on, in a literary club, in which each shall undertake a single work or series for which he is qualified. For example, how attractive is the whole literature of the "Roman de la Rose," the "Fabliaux," and the gaie science of the French Troubadours! Yet who in Boston has time for that? But one of our company shall undertake it, shall study and master it, and shall report on it, as under oath; shall give us the sincere result, as it lies in his mind, adding nothing, keeping nothing back. Another member, meantime, shall as honestly search, sift, and as truly report, on British mythology, the Round Table, the histories of Brut, Merlin, and Welsh poetry; a third on the Saxon Chronicles, Robert of Gloucester, and William of Malmesbury; a fourth on Mysteries, Early Drama, "Gesta Romanorum," Collier, and Dyce, and the Camden Society. Each shall give us his grains of gold, after the washing; and every other shall then decide whether this is a book indispensable to him also.—From Emerson's Books, Art, etc. (Osgood).

WHAT TO READ.—I have seen many courses of reading laid down for young people, but I never knew one to be tollowed. The growing tastes and wants of each student soon lead him away from any predetermined plan, and the literary adviser must be satisfied with giving a few general hints. After the Bible and Shakespeare, I hold that the most generally useful and entertaining books (and no book is faithfully read that is not entertaining) are Plutarch's Lives, Boswell's Life of Johnson, the Waverley Novels, Montaigne's Essays, Pepys's Diary, and Don Quixote. If the manual control of the property of the manual control of the property of the manual control of ture reader has a turn for philosophy, he will add the Dialogues of Plato, the works of Herbert Spencer and J. Stuart Mill, and Porter on the Human Intellect. If more fiction be desired, as will be quite likely, he can draw upon Thackeray, Dickens, George Eliot,—adding Gil Blas, Hawthorne, Cooper. Goethe, La Motte Fouque, and Andersen. One of the chief uses of fiction is for recreation after the study of more weighty books.

At some time during youth should be read Gibbon, Hume, Macaulay, Freeman, Grote, Niebuhr or Mommsen, Hallam, Motley, Prescott, Bancroft or Hildreth-not forgetting Burke, nor Carlyle, probably the most prejudiced, but certainly the most picturesque and The claims of science powerful of them all. must not be overlooked. No person can be considered well-read who has not some aquaintance with the works of such writers as Lyell, Hugh Miller, Tyndall, Huxley, Humboldt, and Darwin. In poetry there is room for a wide diversity of taste; but all critics agree in the pre-eminence of these authors: Chaucer, Spenser, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Cowper, Goldsmith, Burns, Scott, Wordsworth, Byron, Coleridge, Shelley, Tennyson, Bryant, Longfellow, Emerson, Whittier, Holmes, and Lowell. Read the Brownings also, if you like them, and William Morris, if you have time. I would read Homer in Bryant's translation, Dante in the version of Longfellow or Parsons, and Faust as rendered by Taylor or Brooks. Cranch's Virgil is also highly commended. To supplement your knowledge of history and geography you will need to read travels occasionally; among them those of the Abbe Huc, Captain Burton, Bayard Taylor, Eliot Warbur-ton, Kinglake, Dr. Kane, J. L. Stephens, La-yard, Livingstone, and G. W. Curtis. Criticism is best read late in your course, when you have acquired some general knowledge and the power of independent thought. The first of all modern critics is Carlyle, and, next to him

Macaulay. Channing, Taine, and Ruskin are each admirable in diverse ways. Examples of the Essay—a form of composition which has been adopted by many of the finest writers—may be found in the words of Addison, Steele, Lamb, De Quincey, Leigh Hunt, Emerson, Irving, Holmes, and Lowell. You will become acquainted with many other writers in this fascinating department when once you begin to read. Biography should be regarded as a branch of history, and, in many respects, the most instructive part of it. There is not space to give even a tolerable list of the best biographies, and you must consult the library catalogues.

It is a good plan, if you have the time, to have two books on hand at once, so that every day you may read history or popular science, and refresh yourself afterwards with travels, action, poetry, or amusing essays. The order of reading is not very important. It is only important to begin, and to pursue what you have chosen until it becomes a pleasure and a daily necessity. Thirty pages a day will in a year amount to twenty ordinary volumes.

I have not mentioned any works for your religious instruction, because I prefer to leave that subject to the care and direction of your narents.

I wish to add that the most pure and idiomatic English ever written is to be found in Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, De Foe's Robinson Crusoe, and Franklin's Autobiography.

You will need to have always at hand an unabridged dictionary—Worcester's or Webster's —and a large atlas. If you write or speak you will find Soule and Wheeler's Manual of English Pronunciation and Spelling indispensable; and you can hardly do without Wheeler's Dictionary of Noted Names of Fiction. For practice in elocution you will find the lessons in Professor Munroe's Vocal Culture of great service. For reference, an Encyclopædia is very essential.—From Underwood's Handbook of English Literature, American Authors (Lee & Shepard).

AVORITE BOOKS OF FAMOUS MEN.—We are told that Shakespeare's favorite writers were Plutarch and Montaigne. Milton's favorite books were Homer, Ovid, and Euripides. The latter book was also the favorite book of Charles James Fox, who regarded the study of it as especially useful to a public speaker. On the other hand, Pitt took especial delight in Milton, whom Fox did not appreciate, taking pleasure in reciting from "Paradise Lost" the grand speech of Belial before the assembled powers of Pandemonium. Another favorite book of Pitt's was Newton's "Principia." Again, the Pitt's was Newton's "Principia." Again, the Earl of Chatham's favorite book was "Barrow's Se nons," which he read so often that he was ab to repeat them from memory, while Burke's to panions were Demosthenes, Milton, Boling-br te, and Young's "Night Thoughts." Cur-ral s favorite was Homer, which he read through on : a year. Virgil was another of his favorites s biographer, Phillips, saying that he once him reading the Æneid in the cabin of a rhead packet, while every one about him prostrated by sea-sickness.

the poets, Dante's favorite was Virgil; neille's, Lucan; Schiller's was Shakespeare; v's was Spenser; while Coleridge admired ins and Bowles. Dante himself was a favorite with most poets, from Chaucer to Byron and Tennyson. Lord Brougham, Macaulay, and Carlyle have alike admired and eulogized the great Italian. The former advised the students at Glasgow that, next to Demosthenes. the study of Dante was the best preparative for the eloquence of the pulpit or the bar. Robert Hall sought relief in Dante from the racking pains of spinal disease, and Sidney Smith took to the same poet for comfort and solace in his old age. It was characteristic of Goethe that his favorite book should have been Spinoza's "Ethics," in which he said he found peace and consolation such as he had been able to find in no other work. Barrow's favorite was St. Chrysostom; Bossuet's was Homer; Bunyan's was the old legend of "Sir Bevis of Southampton," which very probably gave him the first idea of his "Pilgrim's Progress." One of the best prelates that ever sat on the English bench, Dr. John Sharp, said: "Shakespeare and the Bible have made me Archbishop of York." The two books which most impressed John Wesley when a young man were "The Imitation of Christ" and Taylor's "Holy Living and Dying." Yet wesley was accustomed to caution his young friends against overmuch reading. "Beware you be not swallowed up in books," he would say to them; "an ounce of love is worth a pound of knowledge." Wesley's own life has been a great favorite with many thoughtful readers.

Coleridge says, in his preface to Southey's Life of Wesley, "that it was more often in his hands than any other in his ragged-back regi-ment." Soumet had only a few books in his Soumet had only a few books in his library, but they were of the best—Homer, Virgil, Dante, Camoens, Tasso, and Milton. De Quincey's favorite few were Donne, Chillingworth, Jeremy Taylor, Milton, South, Barrow, and Sir Thomas Browne. He described these writers as a Pleiad, or constellation of seven golden stars, such as, in their class, no literature can match, and from these works he would undertake to build up an entire body of phi-losophy. Frederick the Great manifested his strong French leanings in his choice of books, his principal favorites being Bayle, Rousseau, Voltaire, Rollin, Fleury, Malebranche, and one English author-Locke. His especial favorite was Bayle's Dictionary, which was the first book that laid hold of his mind; and he thought so highly of it that he himself made an abridgment and translation of it into German, which was published.

It was a saying of Frederick's that books made up no small part of true happiness. In his old age he said: "My last passion will be for literature." It seems odd that Marshal Blucher's favorite book should have been Klopstock's "Messiah," and Napoleon Bonaparte's favorites "Ossian's Poems" and "Sorrows of Werther." But Napoleon's range of reading was very extensive. It included Homer, Virgil, Tasso, novels of all countries, histories of all times, mathematics, legislation, and theology. He detested what he called the bombast and tinsel of Voltaire. The praises of Homer and Ossian he was never wearied of sounding. "Read again," he said to an officer on board the Bellerophon, "read again the poet of Achilles; devour Ossian. Those are the poets who lift up the soul and give to man a colossal greatness." The Duke of Wellington was an extensive reader. His principal favorites were Selections.

Clarendon, Bishop Butler, Smith's "Wealth of Nations." Hume, Archduke Charles, Leslie, and the Bible. He was also particularly interested in French and English memoirs, more especially the French memoirs, pour servir of all kinds. When at Walmer, Mr. Glegg says, the Bible, Prayer Book, Taylor's "Holy Living and Dying," and Cæsar's "Commentaries" lay within his reach, and, judging by the marks of use on them, they must have been much read and often consulted.—From Smiles's Character (Harper).

HE GREAT BOOKS AND THE LITTLE BOOKS. 1—Fix, therefore, in your eye the great books on which the history of human thought and the changes of human fortunes have turned. In politics look to Aristotle; in mathematics to Newton; in philosophy to Leibnitz; in theology to Cudworth; in poetry to Shakespeare; in science to Faraday. Cast a firm glance also on those notable men, who, though not achieving any valuable positive results of speculation, were useful in their day, as protesting against wide spread popular error, and rousing people into trains of more consistent thinking and acting. To this class of men belonged Voltaire amongst the French, and David Hume in our country. But, of course, while you covet earnestly a familiar acquaintance with all such original thinkers and discoverers in the world of thought and action, you will feel only too painfully that you cannot always lay hold of them in the first stage of your studies; you will require steps to mount up to shake hands with these Celestials; and these steps are little books. Do not, therefore, despise little books; they are for you the necessary lines of approach to the great fortress of knowledge, and cannot safely be overleapt. On the contrary, take a little grammar, for instance, when learning a language, rather than a big one; and learn the fundamental things, the anatomy, the bones and solid framework, with strict accuracy, before plunging into the complex tissue of the living physiology. This may appear harsh at first, but will save you trouble afterwards. while you learn your little book thoroughly, you must beware of reading it by the method of mere CRAM. Some things, no doubt, there are that must be appropriated by the process of cram; but these are not the best things, and they contain no culture. Cram is a mere mechanical operation, of which a reasoning ani-mal should be ashamed. But cramming, however often practised, is seldom necessary; it is resorted to by those specially who cannot, or who will not, learn to think. I advise you, on the contrary, whenever possible, to think before you read, or at least while you are reading. you can find out for yourself by a little puzzling why the three angles of a triangle not only are, but in the very nature of the thing must be, equal to two right angles, you will have done more good to your reasoning powers than if you had got the demonstrations of the whole twelve books of Euclid by heart according to the method of The next advice I give you with regard to books is that you should read as much as possible systematically and chronologically. Without order things will not hang together in the mind, and the most natural and instructive order is the order of genesis and growth. Read Plutarch's great Lives, for instance, from sors. The question, therefore, is not whether Theseus down to Cleomenes and Aratus, in chronological sequence, and you will have a much more vital sort of Greek history in your memory than either Thirlwall or Grote can supply. But of course neither this nor any other rule can be applied in all cases without exception. The exception to systematic reading is made by predilection. If you feel a strong natural tendency towards acquainting yourself with any particular period of history, by all means make that acquaintance; only do it accurately and thoroughly. One link in the chain firmly laid hold of, will by and by, through natural connection, lead to others. As you advance from favorite point to point, you will find the necessity of binding them together by some strict chronological sequence. For general information a sort of random reading may be allowed occasionally; but this sort of thing has to do only with the necessary recreation or the useful furnishing of the mind, and is utterly destitute of training virtue; and such reading, to which there is great temptation in these times, is rather prejudicial than advantageous to the mind. The great scholars of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries had not so many books as we have, but what they had they made a grand use of. Reading, in the case of mere miscellaneous readers, is like the racing of some little dog about the moor, snuffing everything and catching nothing; but a reader of the right sort finds his prototype in Jacob, who wrestled with an angel all night, and counted himself the better for the bout, though the sinew of his thigh shrank in consequence.

PROFESSORSHIPS OF BOOKS AND READING.—

. . . We cannot but think that our colleges, while they provide the student with libraries, should also provide him with a pro-fessor of books and reading. It is not enough to introduce him to these quarries of knowledge; he should also be taught where to sink his shafts and how to work them. Mr. Emerson, speaking of such a professorship in one of his later essays, says: "I think no chair is so much wanted." Even the ripest scholar is puzzled to decide what books he shall read among the myriads that clamor for his attention. What, then, must be the perplexity of one who has just entered the fields of literature! If in Bacon's time some books were " to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested," how much greater must seem the necessity of discrimination at this day, when the amount of literary pabulum has quadrupled and even quintupled! there not then an absolute necessity that the student who would economize his time and make the best use of his opportunities, should be guided in his reading by a competent adviser? Will it be said that, according to the theory of a collegiate education, the studies of the curriculum will demand all his time; that he will have no spare hours for general culture? We reply that, as a matter of fact, whatever the theory, in no college does the student, as a rule, give his whole time to the regular lessons, however long or difficult. Unless very dull or poorly prepared, the student does find time to read,—often several hours a day,—and he is generally encouraged to do so by the profeshe shall concentrate all his time and attention upon his text-books, but whether he shall read instructive books, for a definite purpose and under competent direction, or shall acquire, without direction, the merest odds and ends of knowledge.

... There are some persons, no doubt, who are opposed to all guidance of the young in their reading. They would turn the student loose into a vast library and let him browse freely in whatever literary pastures may please him. With Johnson they say, "Whilst you stand deliberating which book your son shall read first, another boy has read both; read anything five hours a day, and you will soon be learned." Counsel, advice in the choice of books, they condemn as interfering with the freedom of individual taste and the spontaneity which is the condition of intellectual progress. "Read," they say to the young man, "what you can read with a keen and lively relish; what charms, thrills, or fascinates you; what stimulates and inspires your mind, or satisfies your intellectual hunger; 'in brief, sir, study what you most affect.'" No doubt there is a vein of wisdom in this advice. It is quite possible to order one's reading by too strict and formal a rule. A youth will continue to study oaly that in which he feels a real interest and pleasure, constantly provoking him to activity. It is not the books which others like, or which they deem best fitted for him, that he will read and read with profit, but the books that hit his tastes most exactly and that satisfy his intellectual cravings. No sensible educator will prescribe the same courses of reading for two persons, or lay down any formal, cast-iron rules for the direction of the mental That which is the most nutritious aliment of one mind may prove deleterious and even poisonous to another.

To some extent, too, the choice of books may be left to individual taste and judgment. There will be times when, under the attraction of a particular subject, or the magnetism of a particular author, it may be advisable to break away from the prescribed list, and follow the thoughtful promptings of nature. That must be a sorry tameness of intellect that feels no impulse to get out of the groove of even the most judicious course of reading. Again, there are some minds that have an eclectic quality which inclines them to the reading they require, and in a library they not only instinctively pounce upon the books they need, but draw at once from them the most valuable ideas as the magnet draws the iron filings scattered through a heap of sand. But these are rare cases, and can furnish no rule for general guidance. To assert that a learned and judicious adviser cannot help the ordinary stude in the choice of books, is to assert that all tes hing is valueless. If inspiration, genius, tas, elective affinities are sufficient in the sel tion and reading of books, why not also in a choice of college studies? Why adopt a iculum? The truth is, the literary appetit of the young is often feeble, and oftener a icious or perverted. While their stomachs ge rally reject unwholesome food, their minds of a feed on garbage and even poison. m ority of young persons are fond of laborng processes and short cuts to knowledge, an have little taste for books which put much n upon the mind. The knowledge too easily acquired may impart a temporary stimulus and a kind of intellectual keenness and cleverness, but it brings no solid advantage. It is, in fact, "the merest epicurism of intelligence—sensuous, but certainly not intellect-ual." Magnify as we may the necessity of regarding individual peculiarities in education, it is certain that genius, inspiration, or an affinity for any kind of knowledge, does not necessarily exclude self-knowledge, self-criticism, or self-control. As another has said: "If the genius of a man lies in the develop-ment of the individual person that he is, his manhood lies in finding out by study what he is, and what he may become, and in wisely using the means that are fitted to form and perfect his individuality.'

Will it be said that there are manuals or "courses of reading," such as Pycroft's, or President Porter's excellent work, by the aid of which an undergraduate may select his books without the aid of a professor? We answer that such manuals, while they are often serviceable, can never do the work of a living guide and adviser. Books can never teach the use of books. No course of reading, however ideally good, can be exactly adapted to all minds. Every student has his idiosyncrasies, his foibles, his "stond or impediment in the wit," as Bacon terms it, which must be considered in choosing his reading-matter, so that not only his tastes may be in some degree consulted, but "every defect of the mind may have a special receipt."

Will it be objected to our plan, that a vast majority of American colleges are ill endowed, and cannot afford to have a Professorship of Books and Reading, however desirable? We reply that such a chair, specially endowed, is not indispensable; but that its duties, in the smaller colleges, might be discharged by the professor of English Literature, or by an accomplished librarian.

But, it may be asked, what are the qualifica-tions, and what will be the duties, of such a literary gustator and guide? We reply that a professor of books and reading should be a man of broad and varied culture, with catholic tastes, a thorough knowledge of bibliography, especially of critical literature, and much knowledge of men; one who can readily detect the peculiarities of his pupils, and who, in directing their reading, will have constant ref-erence to these as well as to the order of nature and intellectual development. While he may prepare, from time to time, courses of reading on special topics, and especially on those re-lated to the college studies, he will be still more useful in advising the student how to read most advantageously; in what ways to improve the memory; how to keep and use commonplace books; when to make abstracts; and in giving many other hints which books on reading never communicate, and which suggest themselves only to one who has learned after many years of experience and by many painful mistakes the secret of successful study. He will see that the young men who look to him as their guide read broadly and liberally, yet care "multum legere potius quam multa." He will see that they cultivate "the pleasuregrounds as well as the corn-fields of the mind;" that they read not only the most famous books, but the best reputed current works on each subject; that they read by subjects, and not by authors; perusing a book not because it is the newest or the oldest, but because it is the very one they need to help them on to the next stage of their inquiries; and that they practise subsoil ploughing by re-reading the master-pieces of genius again and again. Encouraging them to read the books they "do honestly feel a wish and curiosity to read," he will teach them to discriminate, nevertheless, between true desire, the monition of nature, and that superficial, false desire after spiceries and confectioneries which, as Carlyle says, is "so often mistaken for the real appetite, lying far deeper, far quieter, after solid nutritive food;" and, discouraging short cuts in general, he will yet often save the student days of labor by pointing out some masterly review article in which is condensed into a few pages the quintessence of many volumes.—From Mathews' Hours with Men and Books (Griggs).

'HE UNIVERSITIES OF EUROPE.—Doellinger was installed Rector of the University of Munich in the year 1866. Conformably to custom, he delivered an oration on the assumption of the rectorate, taking as his theme:
"Die Universitäten Sonst und Jetzt." He gave an outline of the history and present condition of the Furnance Heistory and present condition of the Furnance Heistory and present condition of the Furnance Heistory and present conditions of the Furnance Heistory and present conditions which I dition of the European Universities, which I here reproduce. Of course it could not be expected that Doellinger should do justice to the Protestant element in modern intellectual growth; but, leaving this very natural defect out of the question, his survey is remarkable for conciseness, learning, and a profound appreciation of the advanced state of learning in the present century.

The first great school of any note, combining the main features of the modern university, was the medical college at Salerno, which enjoyed a wide reputation in the eleventh century. After the lapse of a century we hear of the flourishing law school at Bologna. In the thirteenth century, the law school at Padua was founded. But these institutions were surpassed in extent of studies and financial support by the university at Naples, founded by the king of Sicily in 1224, for the education of young men. The laws of the country were so stringent that no young men were permitted to attend any seat of learning in other parts of Europe; hence it was natural that this institution should grow up devoid of that freedom and breadth peculiar to the real university in its best sense.

The spirit of usurpation exhibited by the popes, long anterior as well as subsequent to this time, found expression in the studies of the Italian universities. The branches that favored the temporal sovereignty of the papacy and humiliated the princes were taught with great assiduity. There was at that day no scientific tendency whatever in Italy, though that was the very country which contained the great treasures of the classic age. Dante made the complaint that "every body was studying the decretals of the popes." Roger Bacon "The jurisprudence of the Italians has. for forty years, been destroying the study of philosophy, natural science, and theology, yea, even the Church and all the kingdoms." This even the Church and all the kingdoms. ecclesiastical or papal jurisprudence was the sole pursuit of the theological students; and it was far back in these times that the Roman priesthood assumed that character of political management and trickery which long since took organic shape in the order of the Jesuits. The Italian universities were visited by immense numbers of students. In Roger Bacon's time—taking the year 1262 as an example—there were in Bologna alone 20,000, nearly every one of whom was engaged in the study of papal jurisprudence.

Coming north of the Alps we find the great school of Paris, which was at first devoted to general studies," but afterward elevated to a University. It was at the outset under the patronage of the popes, but afterward under the care of the French kings. But the popes still controlled the studies, as, indeed, they controlled every thing else in Europe. So they prohibited the study of jurisprudence in Paris, fearing, no doubt, that at that distance from Rome there might be an admixture of independence or political heresy in the instruction. Theology was the principal study in Paris; the students remained generally fifteen or sixteen years, until they were from thirty to forty years of age, before they were thought sufficiently indoctrinated to become trusty priests. Nearly half of Paris was converted to the use of the students, who flocked thither in great multitudes from all parts of Europe, except Italy. A Venetian embassador, living at the end of the sixteenth century, states that there were then more students in the universities of Paris than in all the Italian universities together. He reports the number to have been 30,000, a statement which is sustained by an account of the General Procurator of the same period.

It is remarkable that three centuries passed by after the founding of the first of the Italian universities before the thought seems to have occurred to any one in Germany to establish a similar institution. Even England had followed in the wake of Italy, and had endowed Cambridge and Oxford long before. But in Germany there was no school of any prominence, much less one bearing any resemblance to the German university of to-day, until 1348, when the Emperor Charles IV. founded one at Prague after the model of the University of Paris. In this he does not seem to have been actuated by any very elevated motive, but from the mere accident that he had himself been a student in Paris, and had been fond of student life. Very soon the University of Prague was visited by many thousands of students, the Germans taking a national pride in it. The University of Vienna followed that of Prague,

But two more centuries elapsed before the German university attained that universal and liberal character which it now possesses in a remarkable degree. Doellinger cannot be expected, Catholic as he is, to do justice to the Reformation, and to Protestantism in general, in their elevating influence on higher education at this time. But he does make the confession that in the sixteenth century a new and better era dawned upon the German universities. This was the time, when the Humanists, or Philologians, first brought the classics of Greek and Roman literature home to the German mind, and when scholasticism was in its deathagony.

The German universities increased rapidly, though now and then one was compelled to go down with the downfall of a patron prince, or the decline of a tendency which it had been established to sustain. But wherever the Reformation gained a firm footing, new universities arose as by magic; for example, Marburg, Königsberg, Jena, Helmstædt and Altdorf. The Thirty Years' War, which laid all Germany waste and revolutionized the history of Europe, seems to have had but little power to destroy these institutions. Yet the decline in scientific learning and religious spirit in the universities was deplorable. John Valentine Andreä says: "I have long ago learned from my own experience that there is nothing made more profane than our religion; nothing more fatal than our medicine; nothing more unjust than our justice.

As far down as the end of the seventeenth century Latin was the only language in which lectures were delivered. Any man who ven-mred to use the language of the people was regarded vulgar. But men of any good degree of etymological and rhetorical acuteness could see that the German tongue was eminently adapted to the purposes of higher education. Leibnitz had long ago said that "the German was the best language in existence for the purposes of philosophical and scientific tech-nology." Thomasius, of Halle, and Buddæus, of Jena, made a desperate effort to introduce the German language into the universities.
They offended all the professed advocates of good-breeding and culture by lecturing in German, in spite of opposition. The result was, they carried their point. From their day down to the present, the German student has heard the professor lecture in his own vernacular.

From 1690 to 1730 Halle occupied the first rank among the German universities. Each of its faculties possessed men who were representatives of the varied progress of their times. In one respect, however, it was surpassed by Göttingen—we mean in the study of history. The eighteenth century closed and the nineteenth began amid as violent convulsions as have ever occurred in Europe. At this time of general disruption a number of the universities -some of which had previously enjoyed a good share of favor—ceased to exist. We may reckon among the unfortunate number those of Helmstædt, Rinteln, Frankfort-on-the-Oder, Duisburg, Wittenberg, Erfurt, Mayence, Bamberg, Cologne, Paderborn, Münster, Dillingen, and Salzburg.

The foundation of the University of Berlin, in 1810, was Prussia's offering to the new period of the progress of humanity in art and science. This institution was the first university established in Germany that did not formally embrace in its programme some distinct ecclesiastical confession. For this reason there has always been the largest liberty granted to th theological professors, from the beginning de in to the present time. The University of Berlin very soon rose to high honor. In 18 1—only five years after its foundation, and w n Germany and Europe were settling their t grudge against Napoleon at Waterloo-R lin had in all fifty-six professors, and as la e a number of students as many of the oldinstitutions in Europe. In 1860 there were ohundred and seventy-three professors and stordinate lecturers. As far back as 1835 th re were two thousand students in attendurning to the universities of France, we find that there is no real bond of unity connecting the faculties, as there is in Germany. Each faculty is a sort of independency—or, rather, a college working on its own account, instead of being an organic part of a university. The greatest university is the College of France, which was established by Francis I., and in 1789 had nineteen professorships.

Dr. Doellinger disclaims for the English universities, as well as for the French, any title to be ranked with those of Germany. He holds that the professors, unlike their German con-frères, "do not place themselves in the middle of a subject," but take their position on one side of it, and lecture in such a way as "to produce a satisfactory effect on a mixed audience.

The Scotch universities are of a more liberal cast than those of Cambridge and Oxford. Still, even here, learning has declined of late. Blackie makes the broad assertion "that Scotland, at the present moment, is in no sense of the word a learned country; especially in our universities learning is at the lowest possible ebb." "The American universities," says Dr. Doellinger, "are of a low grade, occupying a midway position between the German gymnasia and the philosophical faculty of a German university."

In Spain there is no institution that is worthy of the name of university. For a century her best institutions of learning have been deserted, the buildings have been lying in ruins, and the Spanish young men who desired an education have resorted to Paris or Germany. Russia has seven universities, all after the German model. The University of Odessa was founded in 1865. Switzerland, small as she is, boasts three universities—that of Basle being the largest and strongest. Holland has also three universities, though they are not supported as they should be by the government. Belgium has four universities, which bear the two-fold character of the French and German systems of higher education. Denmark, with its two universities, has lately enjoyed the advantages of more than an ordinary class of scholarly divines. We need only refer to Munter, Gunt-vig, and Martensen. The two Swedish universities of Upsala and Lund are not equal to the demands of the present day, for they are still hampered by the obstructions that have come come down from the Middle Ages.

After Doellinger has completed his survey of the European universities, he strikes a balance vastly in favor of those of Germany, and then indirectly attributes their superiority to a rare "capacity of perceiving and appreciating every foreign trait of character, every national peculiarity, or foreign service to universal human growth . . . As far as this capacity manifests itself in science and literature, it may be called the historical sense of the Germans. We must make due allowance for Doellinger's partiality for his own countrymen; but even then we have to confess that it is a partiality pretty well sustained by the achievements of the Germans themselves in this very sphere. Gladstone, the English statesman, was found one morning with Huber's "History of the English Universities" on his breakfast-table. A visitor calling attention to it, Mr. Gladstone replied that it was an indispensable book, and far better than all which the English themselves had written on the same subject. The works of Gneist on English law, the historical works of Ranke relating to England, Schäfer's History of Portugal, Ranke's French History, Hermann's History of Russia, Hegel's History of the Italian State Constitution, Schäffer's History of French Law, Schack's History of Spanish Dramatic Literature, and the German criticisms on Dante and Shakespeare, are all indubitable proofs of the German power of properly estimating the men and work of other nations.—From Hurst's Life and Literature in the Fatherland (Scribner).

DEVELOPMENT IN THE WORK OF EDUCATION.

—We see from the preceding lectures how the Caucasian race has gradually and surely approached the principles of development or evolution in the work of education. It appears that these principles were already, in a degree, felt and followed by the Greeks; on the other hand, even the superficial student of the educational systems of our day will often come across practices that seem to be fully as far removed from the laws of development as Chinese education has been from time immemorial.

The Greeks emancipated education from the curse of caste and asserted the claims of individuality; not, it is true, without a grand final struggle between Plato, who would sacrifice the individual to the state, and who calls for an equal, common, public education, and Aristotle, the champion of individual liberty and of the sacredness of family ties, with which public education never must interfere. At the same time, the Greeks teach the race to look upward beyond the realms of merely sensual existence, establish high ideals of education—"the Good and the Beautiful"—and demand harmony in culture; while their greatest teachers, Pythagoras and Socrates, pave the way to sound natural and rational methods of instruction.

Subsequently, the excessive idealism of Greek culture found a corrective in the sturdy realism, the practical common-sense of the Romans; and when Rome lay dying of her own gross sins, Christianity came to save the highest achievements of the race, and to fertilize them with new elements of health and vigor.

Christianity, a child of Semitic civilization a civilization that looked with the greatest reverence upon the family, and considered the fear of God as the highest virtue—engrafted upon European culture the principle of strict humanity, liberated it from the bane of arbitrary and accidental external distinctions among men, raised woman to full equality with her mate before God, and taught respect for children, the framers of the future.

And when, in the middle ages, its high teachings had been misapplied by the selfishness of man for sordid and ambitious ends, or perverted by diseased superstition into a curse, blasting earthly happiness and paralyzing usefulness in real life, philosophy came to the rescue, dispelled the clouds, the Sun of Truth was again revealed, and his restoring and reforming rays aroused European civilization to a new and better life. Progress, that had slumbered so long, awoke to new vigor and made rapid strides under the leadership of Bacon, Locke, Descartes, Spinoza, Kant, and a host of others.

Through the influence of these great men, pure, unalloyed humanity became the soul; the harmonious development of well-balanced, self-dependent, vigorous, and virtuous human beings, the aim of educational efforts. Man was shown to be an organic being, subject in all his manifestations of existence to ordinary, natural laws; growing, developing, in all directions of his being, organically, from within outward; and all educational ends and means that are not in accordance with these conquests of philosophy were proved to be pernicious, and are gradually yielding before the supreme power of better insight.

Among the many prominent mediators of this better insight, we have singled out Comenius, Francke, Pestalozzi, and Froebel, each one representing some important phase in the growth of a school practice, corresponding in scope and spirit with the laws and aims of the developing education: Comenius as the pioneer of vernacular schools, of intuitional teaching, and of analytico-synthetic methods; Francke, as the founder of scientific and technical schools, the champion of individuality and of the greater importance of training the pupil's powers and forming his character, compared with mere instruction; Pestalozzi, as the father of popular education and expounder of natural methods in the acquisition of knowledge; and Froebel, as the apostle of selfactivity, of the productive side in child-nature, and of female influence in the work of education.—From Hailman's History of Pedagogy (Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co.).

REVERENCE IN EDUCATION.—The most remarkable piece of randiments. markable piece of reading that you may dy is a book by Goethe—one of his last books, which he wrote when he was an old man, about seventy years of age—I think one of the most beautiful he ever wrote, full of mild wisdom, and which is found to be very touching by those who have eyes to discern and hearts to feel it. It is one of the pieces in "Wilhelm Meister's Travels." I read it through many years ago; and, of course, I had to read into it very hard when I was translating it, and it has always dwelt in my mind as about the most remarkable bit of writing that I have known to be executed in these late centuries. I have often said, there are ten pages of that which, if ambition had been my only rule, I would rather have written than have written all the books that have appeared since I came into the world. Deep, deep is the meaning of what is said there. They turn on the Christian religion and the religious phenomena of Christian life-altogether sketched out in the most airy, graceful, delicately-wise kind of way, so as to to keep himself out of the common controversies of the street and of the forum, yet to indicate what was the result of things he had been long meditating upon. Among others, he introduces, in an aerial, flighty kind of way, here and there a touch which grows into a beautiful picture—a scheme of entirely mute education, at least with no more speech than is absolutely necessary for what they have to do.

Three of the wisest men that can be got are met to consider what is the function which transcends all others in importance to build up the young generation, which shall be free from all that perilous stuff that has been weighing us down and clogging every step, and which is the only thing we can hope to go on with if we would leave the world a little better, and not the worse of our having been in it for those who are to follow. The man who is the eldest of the three says to Goethe, "You give by nature to the well-formed children you bring into the world a great many precious gifts, and very frequently these are best of all developed by nature herself, with a very slight assistance where assistance is seen to be wise and profitable, and forbearance very often on the part of the overlooker of the process of education; but there is one thing that no child brings into the world with it, and without which all other things are of no use." Wilhelm, who is there beside him, says, "What is that?" "All who enter the world want it," says the eldest; "perhaps you yourself." Wilhelm says, "Well, tell me what it is." "It is," says the eldest, "Honor the world want it. reverence—Ehrfurcht—Reverence! done to those who are grander and better than you, without fear; distinct from fear." furcht—" the soul of all religion that ever has been among men, or ever will be." And he goes into practicality. He practically dis-unguishes the kinds of religion that are in the world, and he makes out three reverences. The boys are all trained to go through certain ges-ticulations, to lay their hands on their breast, and look up to heaven, and they give their three reverences. The first and simplest is that of reverence for what is above us. It is the soul of all the Pagan religions; there is nothing better in man than that. Then there is reverence for what is around us or about us-reverence for our equals, and to which he attributes an immense power in the culture of man. The third is reverence for what is beneath us-to learn to recognize in pain, sorrow, and contradiction, even in those things, odious as they are to flesh and blood—to learn that there lies in these a priceless blessing. And he defines that as being the soul of the Christian religion—the highest of all religions; a height, as Goethe says—and that is very true, even to the letter, as I consider—a height to which the human species was fated and enabled to attain, and from which, having once attained it, it can never retrograde. It cannot descend down below that permanently, Goethe's idea is.—From Cartyle's Choice of Books (Osgood).

RT EDUCATION.—In this country the conditions of art knowledge are exceptional. It would not be strictly true to say that there is but little art taste here, when our citizens go into the ateliers of the most famous artists, and into the auction-room, and contest possession of costly works with the richest connoisseurs of Europe. In Europe, as well as in the United States, people sometimes buy pictures upon the strength of the author's name, and without caring for their artistic merit. Among us, as among older nations, there is genuine taste for pictures, music, fine architecture, house decoration, dress, omamentation, landscape - gardening, books, and all objects which art has touched and beautified. This art culture is, however, individual rather than general. It is possessed by a considerable number of persons, but these rarely come together, and they exert little or no perceptible influence upon society. . .

The National Academy of Design in New York has been a powerful means of education; yet, like the Royal Academy in London, its influence is crippled, because, with excellent intentions, it is conducted by professional artists in the interests of themselves rather than in furtherance of the general interests of art. It is a praiseworthy institution, and fills an important office so far as its influence extends. The Metropolitan Museum in the same city has the better organization; it is broad and receptive. There are also the Boston Athenæum, the Pennsylvania Museum at Philadelphia, and the Corcoran Gallery at Washington. These and similar efforts are doing good to a limited extent. They exercise an influence for culture and refinement, but it is general, and not direct. In order to reach the people at large, it is necessary to organize a plan which shall begin with primary instruction in drawing in the public schools. We require a system of education which shall be comprehensive in its conception, universal in its application, and practical in its results. Such organized means of art education has existed among us only in a restricted way. There are a few schools of design in different parts of the country, but until very recently there has been no effort toward the art education of the masses of the people, and especially of those industrial classes whose occupations require a knowledge of design.

The American mechanic has heretofore been more ingenious than artistic. His inventive faculty exceeds that of any other people, but he has not had the advantages of artistic training. He has filled the world with useful labor-saving machines, without adding much to the sum of grace and beauty. We have attempted to put the machine in the place of the man. It has been the tendency of our industries to save labor by making the laborer almost as automatic as the machine itself. The idea that art enters into the mind of those most interested in the matter. Our mechanics are too often workmen, and not artisans. If this condition of thing is not changed, we shall go on in our subserviency to European art products, and will never be able to gain any independence or any individuality. is not simply an amusement, an indulgence which delights the fancy of the idle and the rich. It is decidedly practical, and concerns the well-being, the advancement, the pleasure, of the laborer and the poor. Whenever art is applied to the simplest, commonest product of labor, then will come order, intelligence, grace, and increased value. Art is not the privilege of a class; it is essentially human, and is both individual and universal. How can it be developed? How can it be applied? How can it be put to the best use? There need be no uncertain answer to these questions. The experience of other nations teaches us what we have to do, and how it is to be done. It is by technical education in public and special schools; by the study of great works of art; by the establishment of museums which shall be open to the public; by the organization of societies in the interest of special industries; by expositions of pictures, statuary, objects of ancient art, and of all products into whose composition art may enter.—From Nichols' Art Education Applied to Industry (Harper).

NOTES IN SEASON.

T. B. Peterson & Bro. will issue at once "Panola," the Louisiana story previously spoken of, by Mrs. Sarah J. Dorsey, of Beauvoir, Mississippi. Dr. R. Shelton Mackenzie, literary editor of the Philadelphia Press, who read the work in manuscript, speaks highly of the story. It is replete with stirring incidents of life in the southwestern part of Louisiana, and abounds in interest, there being a marriage, divorce, a great musician's debut and triumph, the alternations of various and conflicting passions, death by poison, etc., etc. Who could ask more? Mrs. Dorsey is also the author of "Agnes Graham" and "Athalie."

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish next week, in the "Town and Country Series," Mr. Hale's bright and thoroughly interesting story, onght and thoroughly indicesting story, "G. T. T.; or, The Adventures of a Pullman Car;" and, in the "No Name Series," Hetty's Strange History," by the author of "Mercy Philbrick's Choice." Mr. Niles, of Roberts Brothers, calls this new story remarkably good, and the well-known modesty of authors would prevent his speaking so unblushingly in its praise if he had written it, as hinted by the lite vy World. The series is so popular that Mr. Viles' sensibilities are not wounded at all by the suggestion.

J. S. LIPPINCOTT & Co. will soon have ready "Be ond the Sierras," or observations on the Pacific coast, by Rev. A. H. Tevis, A.M., auth r of "Jesuitism, the Bible and the Schols." They are also about to publish the long expected Volume XII. of the memoirs of John Quincy Adams, edited by Charles Francis Ada is, which comprise portions of his diary from 1795 to 1848. 8vo, extra cloth. The first volume is now out of print and cannot be had, even at a high premium, as only a certain number were printed.

ESTES & LAURIAT add to the "Cobweb Series" next week "Vineta," a new story by E. Werner, author of "Good Luck;" "Jack," by Alphonse Daudet, author of "Sidonie;" and in paper covers, in their octavo library of novels, "My Bonnie Lass," by Mrs. C. V. Hamilton, author of "Woven of Many Threads." Three good additions to the stock of summer reading, which booksellers and readers will do well to note.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have nearly ready "The Four Chautauqua Girls at Home," a sequel to the "Four Girls at Chautauqua," published last year, and winning great popularity. The new story may fairly be expected to command at least as great favor as that. It describes the efforts of the girls to be Christians at home and in society, and the obstacles they met, but is not gloomy, morbid, or in any way repellent to lovers of really interesting stories.

Osgood's "Vest-Pocket Series" goes on like Tennyson's "Brook," and it is as good as con-The next handful will give Cowper's Favorite Poems, Lowell's charming prose paper, "A Moosehead Journal," Thomson's "Summer," and Milton's L'Allegro, Il Penseroso, Hymn of the Nativity, and eighteen of his noblest sonnets.

A new edition of Besant's excellent work on "The French Humorists" from the twelfth to the nineteenth century will shortly be issued by Roberts Brothers in a square 12mo volume, uniform with Hamerton's works, and at the same price ($2). It ought to find a ready and continuous sale.

HURD & HOUGHTON are beginning the issue of their new edition of the British Poets, the well-known series edited by Prof. Childs, of Harvard. The volumes will be very neat and tasteful, and the sets will pay to sell.

JOHN CHURCH & Co. have in preparation a new music book for the fall trade. Their "Song Herald," by H. R. Palmer, is having a large sale at the present time.

M CMILLAN & Co. have just sent us early shees of their new educational catalogue, whi h deserves special mention on account of its very careful preparation and elegant issue. It is systematically arranged in classes followed complete alphabetical index-the most praical method both for general and trade use Explanatory notes and press notices are add dto almost all the books, the titles of which are iven in full—a feature which, though most vali ble and useful, is generally underrated and sad neglected by the educational publishers.
The atalogue will make about 110 pages in small 4to. We are glad to add that the prices published are retail.

Another important class-catalogue of educational books is Mr. F. W. Christern's new special catalogue of school and text books, including the best and most popular works for the study of the French, German, Italian, Spanish, etc., languages and literatures, foreign editions, of course, prevailing. The public circulation of wholesale price-lists, a practice formerly tried in this country without succes, will scarcely commend itself for imitation to publishers abroad.

The Unblishers' Weekly.

JULY 14, 1877.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

" Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."-LORD BACON.

THE EDUCATIONAL NUMBER.

THIS number contains the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE for 1877, newly made from the latest publishers' catalogues. In this dilemma between "wholesale" vs. "retail" prices, we found we could follow but one rule—the price set by the publisher. The two classes of prices are carefully discriminated throughout the list, and the matter is further explained in the editorial herewith, which, intended, as will be seen, for teachers rather than for the trade, will be printed in all the imprint editions. We would also call attention to the valuable reference-list of books for teachers-most of these are yet at retail price-which is extended into a special feature. Besides this, the imprint issues will be made more attractive to teachers and more useful to the trade by several pages of extracts from books on education, selected with especial reference to usefulness in pointing out other books. We would remind the retail trade that this catalogne will be very useful in helping them hold on to what of the school-book trade there is left to them, and that, unsatisfactory to the retailer as the present state of things is, it is nevertheless well to make the best of it. This number being of extra size, there will be no issue of the Publishers' Weekly for July 21st. In a future issue we propose to group the opinions of the trade called forth by the recent change in the system of prices.

THE latest protest against Post-Office "ups and downs" comes from the publishers of The Lakeside Library, at Chicago. We should hesitate to give an opinion as to whether this enterprise is a periodical in any ordinary sense, though published at regular intervals of time, but the publishers add another example to the record of the uncertainty which seems to shadow the practical administration of that department. A publisher now lives in daily fear of what the Department may do next. He feels no certainty but that his plans and methods may be interfered with, and his business threatened with breaking-up, to-morrow. And yet the Department, it must be acknowledged, has many perplexing questions to decide; it is the contradictoriness of its rulings, and its frequent interferences contra common-sense, that we criticise.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A WORD TO PUBLISHERS.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co., BOSTON, July 10, 1877.

Mr. F. Leypoldt:

DEAR SIR: Your bill for Publishers' WEEKLY for next year to hand. Of course I wish to ontinue my subscription.

I wish you could impress on publishers the desirability of advertising all their new books in your paper. The English Bookseller is in your paper. mainly made up of advertisements, and it is exceedingly useful on that account. Valuable as ceedingly useful on that account. your editorials are, you must excuse me when I tell you that I always read all the advertisements first. Wishing you all success, and thanking you for your efforts in behalf of our trade, Yours most respectfully,

ALEX. LAUGHTON.

POST-OFFICE PERPLEXITIES.

CHICAGO, July 2, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

We are glad to notice your protest against the absurd action of the postal authorities in excluding a considerable number of papers from the benefit of the pound rates. As a "fellow-sufferer," we can appreciate your feelings.

In our own case, which preceded their general advance upon the periodical interests, the Lakeside Library was carried for three years as a regular periodical; then, at the instigation of James H. Marr, during his personal visit to New York, it was decided "not a periodical." On submitting the case to the Department, it was referred to the Assistant Attorney-General, who decided "it was a periodical within the law." Immediately following the change of administration, the former Assistant Attorney-General was displaced, and the new incumbent promptly decided that "The Library was not a periodical."

If there is no hidden motive behind their actions, the present postal officials might be replaced with a different class of men without very serious injury to the interests of the country at large; they are evidently about two centuries behind the times, and do not understand the American ideas concerning cheap and widespread literature.

Very respectfully, Donnelley, Loyd & Co.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE PHYSICAL BASIS OF MIND, by George Henry Lewes. (Osgood.) The second series of "Problems of Life and Mind." Four problems are considered in this volume, "The Nature of Life," "The Nervous Mechanism," "Animal Automatism," and "The Reflex Theory." The first essay deals with the speciality of organic phenomena as distinguished from the inorganic; the second, on the "Nervous Mechanism," sets forth what is known and what is inferred respecting the structure and properties of that all-important system. In the third essay, Mr. Lewes says he has attempted "a psychological solution of that much-debated question, the relation between "Body and Mind," besides discussing "The Course of Modern Thought," "The Vital Mechanism," etc. The volume is illustrated in the text throughout, adding to the interest, and fully explaining the author's meaning. Mr. Lewes is so well known as a philosopher, and as a writer of more than ordinary depth and erudition, that every library and book-lover will be glad to purchase his work. 8vo, cloth, $3.

BUCKEYE COOKERY AND PRACTICAL HOUSE-KEEPING. (Buckeye Pub. Co., Marysville, O.) This book should receive the special patronage of the fair sex, as it was "compiled by women, published by women, the sales being managed by women." It is stated that in "compiling this new candidate for favor, the one aim has been to pack between its covers the greatest possible amount of practical infor-mation of real value to all, and especially to the inexperienced." We think the compilers have succeeded in their aim, for the book is a perfect mine of information about every thing pertaining to housekeeping; to the dining-room, kitchen, dinners and how to give them; marketing; carving; the sick-room, food for the sick, hints on health; beauty and how to preserve it, with a large number of medical and miscellaneous recipes, etc. It tells in detail how to do every thing, in fact, from the peeling of a potatoe to the managing of the "help." The recipes have been gathered from the best sources without sparing time, labor, or expense. The subjects are treated in alphabetical order as far as possible, adding very much to the usefulness of the book. A very complete alphabetical index is also to be found at the back. 12mo, water-proof binding, $1.75; muslin, $1.50.

OTHER PEOPLE'S CHILDREN, by the author of "Helen's Babies." (Putnam.) "Budge" and "Toddie," "Helen's Babies," are again the heroes of a story. This time we find them under the charge of Mrs. Burton, the Alice Mayton of the former story, who is quite sure the can manage them and teach them to obey rules and regulations. She cheerfully takes them in hand, and begins their regeneration without delay—that she is worsted goes with-out saying to those who have read of any of the exploits of these ingenious imps. They continue their tricks and questioning without intermission, until poor Mrs. Burton is almost rejoiced to turn them over again to their mother, without a sign of improvement. An amusing conversation between the heads of the two families, relative to the training of children, especially "Other People's Children," points a moral, and very gracefully winds up the story. Those in search of amusement are recommended to read this little book—there is a laugh on every page. 16mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 60 cents.

HEAPS OF MONEY, by W. E. Norris. (Harper.) The title of this book alone ought to sell it in these days. Apart from the title, however, it is a very clever story, very cleverly told. The heroine, who has all her young life suffered from the inconvenience of a limited income, thinks that happiness is only to be found in "heaps of money." Her wishes are unexpectedly realised one day, by a fortune being left her from an unlooked-for source. The effect this fortune has upon her and her old father is very amusingly related. Although the story has no very salient points to notice, it is unusually interesting and pleasing, and will be read through by any one who takes it up. 8vo, paper, 25 cents.

THE DANCE OF DEATH, by William Herman. (Henry Keller & Co., San Francisco.) This little book aims to set before the minds of young people and parents and guardians what the writer calls the "abominations" of the modern waltz, or, as he terms it, the "Dance of Death." Those who have indulged innocently in this favorite amusement will be shocked to read his description of the waltz, and the depths of degradation he finds in it for both men and women. He does not pretend to veil his meanings, but uses the plainest language all through to depict the dangers from which he would screen his readers. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE "HIGHER LIFE" DOCTRINE OF SANCTIFICATION TRIED BY THE WORD OF GOD, by Henry A. Boardman. (Presbyterian Bd. of Pub.) An exposition of what Christian people call the "Higher Life" Doctrine, and a comparison of the system with the word of God. Dr. Boardman finds it "a bleak system for doubting and desponding believers, incompatible with the general tone of the inspired word, and deficient in solid comfort for God's children." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

MODERN GREECE, MONTENEGRO AND BULGARIA, by George M. Towle. (Osgood.) With these two little works the Osgoods complete their admirable series of handbooks on the "Eastern Question." They are both succinct and graphic, like their predecessors, and afford all the information and enlightenment the general reader needs on the subjects they discuss. They both contain good maps. Each 16mo, cloth, 50 cents.

PAUL DOUGLASS. (J. L. Sibole & Co.) The novel point in this story is the attempt of the author to overcome some deep-rooted Northern and Southern prejudices, by making a beautiful young lady from Virginia, while visiting in Boston, fall in love with Paul Douglas, the son of a slave. Of course the lady is unconscious of his origin, and he bears no traces of it in his appearance. When she learns his story, she discards him, but her love is so strong they are finally reunited. 16mo.

THE CHILD-HUNTERS, by a Friend of Italy. (Claxton, R. & H.) A touching and pathetic little story founded upon the facts well-known relative to the selling of little Italian children to men called "Padroni," who brought them to this country and lived off the money made by the children as street musicians. The misery and cruelty suffered by these poor little waifs are graphically described. 16mo, cloth, $1.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

THE "Novelty Photograph Album," a unique novelty, bids fair to become one of the most successful hits of the season. It combines the upright design and opening doors of the Easel album, and yet presents the appearance of an ordinary oblong album when open, as shown in the cut below. The interior is cylindrical in marvellous. It is made of the Company's colored pulp at its cellulose paper mills, and consists of nothing but pure cellulose, from which it takes its downy appearance. This paper is very strong, fibrous, and the opposite of woodpulp paper. It is made in about a hundred patterns, in ten different colors on ten divers grounds. The coloring is similar to ordinary calico printing.

AMONG those in the trade recently in town are the following: J. P. Nurse, of E. B. Smith & Co., Detroit; Mr. T. Lee, of Wilstach, Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati; B. E. Pike, of W. H. Brett & Co., Boston; John W. Madder, N. O.; W. B. Keene, of Keene, Cook & Co., Chicago; Mr. Andrews, of Cobb, Andrews & Co., Cleveland, is expected to be in town soon. Col. A. W.

shape, and the leaves of the album are made to rotate on hinges attached to a central shaft. The entire construction of the album is simple, and it is elegantly made in both cloth and leather of assorted colors, handsomely embossed in black and gold. The price is $2 each. Messrs. Liebenroth, Von Auw & Co., New York, have purchased the patent and are now manufacturing these goods. The Novelty photograph albums are also being made in Persian style, and illuminated with silver and gold designs, unique and most attractive. This style will sell at $5, list. Orders have been taken for 4000 in cloth, and the sales are rapidly increasing. Liebenroth, Von Auw & Co. have also ready a new line of Russia-leather tuck memorandums which sell from $12 to $18, list.

Hyatt, New Orleans, has been in town, and will return after rusticating several weeks in Maine.

JOHN A. SWASEY, Boston, Mass., "has registered a trade-mark for penholders, "the word symbol 'Star.'"

Brower Bros., New York, have two sizes of Bankers' prism inkstands, which are new and handsome in appearance and finished in cut and uncut styles. Their new paper-weights are very unique, made in iron and decorated with handsome scroll designs, and made in two sizes.

THE COLORED PAPER AND GLUE Co., situate at Aschaffenburg, in Germany, have manufactured a new and first-class paper, of which the London Stationer gives a sample, a close imitation of silk, so true to the glossy fabric as to be quite

The above cut represents their new pattern of pen-rack, which can be used with either round or square inkstands. It is very handsome, and will no doubt meet with great favor. Price, $16 per gross.

IVORY N. RICHARDSON, Malden, Mass., assignor to Ivory W. Richardson, has had his patent, number 155,752, reissued. The patent consists, 1st, of playing cards with face or court cards distinguished by an indicating color of the regalia or head dress of the effigy designating character of card; 2d, the suit or spot cards are emblematically indicated by a color showing a numeral or figure whereby the player can distinguish at once the value or character of card. The same patent covers round playing cards.

HENRY DAWSON, 58 Broadway, New York, has control of McElhinney's "Patent Blotting

Ruler." It is claimed that this ruler does away with the slightest chance of leaving a blot, does not soil the fingers when ruling, will not slip on the paper as the hard ruler is sometimes inclined to do, and can also be used as a blotter. It is said not to warp as other rulers do, and to be superior to all ordinary round or ebony rulers. The goods are made in three sizes, 12, 15, and 18 inches long, and wholesale at from $1.75 to $2.50 per dozen.

G. A. SMITH, Boston, Mass., has patented a copping-press, consisting of a combination slide with a lower vertically reciprocating plate. The upper movable platen is connected at one side with the lower bed-plate by spring hinges or their equivalent, adapted so as to be automatically raised at the front or opposite side when the pressure is removed, in combination with a vibrating actuating arm moving back and forth over said platen. On the end of the arm a friction roller is attached, made adjustable to the outer end of the arm or cam.

SYDNEY J. SAUNDERS & Co., 54 St. Mary Axe, London, E.C., have a very handsome new line of pen-wipers, the figures all made in leather, and the designs new and attractive. This house has a startling novelry called a Turkish Torpedo, which, when thrown against the wall or any hard substance, will make a loud explosion, accompanied with a shower of sweets. They are said to be packed perfectly safe for export. They have have also a fine line of crystal photo-frames, entirely new.

J. C. BLAIR, Huntingdon, Pa., keeps constantly on hand a variety of shelf labels suitable for the stationery trade, which will no doubt be found of great value. The labels comprise the names of various articles such as blank, pass, order, and other books, and will be sent in sets on receipt of 25 cents.

JOSEPH C. WHITE, New York, has patented a twine-holder as a new article of manufacture. It consists of an ornamented stand with screw is for fastening to a table or counter, on the to of which is a cylinder arranged so as to be to receive the twine. On the top is an or mental twine-cutter.

D. EMACK has just returned from a trip ugh the West, and reports that a general i feeling prevails among western merchants riding the fall business. The basis for their ictions are that crops throughout the West never in a more flourishing condition than a resent.

VINCENT BROWNE, New York City, has ued a new mucilage-holder. The bottle is round-bottomed, for hand use, and the sponge, used as a brush, is fed through a tube inserted in the sponge, the flow of mucilage through the tube being regulated by a spring valve.

PETER B. HANSBURY, Philadelphia, Pa., has just patented a slate-pencil sharpener in combination with a slate frame having an angular notch formed therein of inclined file-plates and spaced parallel bars extending across the said notch.

A NEW English Duplex Blotting Case has a slate tablet at the end, which does away with the necessity of having loose bits of paper for calculations, or separate sheets, or slates, or other tablets for memoranda, and saves time and inconvenience.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

The series of "Restaurations des Monuments Antiques," now being published in magnificent shape by Firmin-Didot et Cie., Paris, is the result of the enterprise of the French Academy, which has for nearly a century past sent a number of gentlemen (architectes pensionnaires) to Rome, from whose drawings, forwarded to the Academy, these superb plates are engraved. The series was commenced with the Trajan Column in the Roman forum, illustrated by thirteen steel-plate engravings, and other interesting monuments follow. Both as architectural studies and faithful copies of historic monuments they are worthy of the utmost attention and admiration. The text is by able experts. Although intended to form, a complete series, each part is complete in itself, and is sold separately. The temples of Pœstum, of Marcus Aurelius, of Pudicitia, of Vesta, of Serapis, the Baths of Caracalla and of Diocletian, are among the objects to be included in the series. The name of this house is guarantee that the work will be of the highest attainable excellence.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. will shortly issue four new juveniles edited by Uncle Herbert. The "Prattler." issued last year, was one of the most successful hits of the season; a companion volume to it will be published under the title of the "Budget for Boys and Girls," which will be full of the most entertaining matter for the young folks, and will be replete with beautiful illustration. They will also publish a series of these books, uniform in size with the "Prattler," but with a less number of pages. These will be suitable for children of all ages, from those just learning their alphabet to those who are so far advanced as to be able to read without the assistance of any one. They will be entitled "My Primer," "My Pet Book," and "My Own Book." They will be bound in a very attractive manner, and the price is to be made very low.

An important book on American Colleges, which Mr. Charles F. Richardson, literary editor of The Independent, and Mr. H. A. Clark, one of the editors of the "Harvard Book," have had in preparation for some time, will be published by James R. Osgood & Co. next fall. Twenty-four leading colleges, including West Point and the Naval Academy, will be described, each with the aid of at least one heliotype illustration, Harvard and Yale having each five or six.

LEE & SHEPARD have in press "Isles of the Sea," a new Oliver Optic book; a new edition of "Life in Danbury" (at $1), and Mr. Bailey's new book "Mr. Miggs in Danbury, and other Sketches;" and a volume by Rev. Sereno D. Clark, entitled "The New England Ministry Sixty Years Ago. The Memoir of John Woodbridge, D.D., his method of work, his great success in powerful revivals, in high moral and educational influences, his theological views and the theological controversies of his time, beginning with the 'New Departure' of Stoddard."

AN old name reappears in the publishing business in a second generation of Derbys. The new firm of Derby Brothers, which commences business at 21 Park Row, New York, is composed of Frank and Chas. S., both sons of J. C. Derby, with whom they have heretofore been associated in the subscription department of D. Appleton & Co. A Habberton book, "Some Folks," a collection of stories and sketches, will be their first venture.

A. S. Barnes & Co. have just issued four new wall maps by Mr. James Monteith. Three are for the use of Sunday-schools—namely, "Map of Palestine, to illustrate the New Testament;" "Map of Canaan, to illustrate the Old Testament;" "Map of S. E. Europe and Western Asia, to illustrate Paul's Travels"—the fourth being a "Physical Map of the World."

J. R. Osgood & Co. will publish Rev. Joseph Cook's famous Monday lectures the coming fall in two volumes, the first on "Biology" in September, the second on "Transcendentalism" in November. The Preludes, or Talks about Current Events, with which Mr. Cook prefaced his lectures, will be printed in connection with them.

A PRIVATE subscriber, away off in Mississippi, writes, in renewing his subscription: "You are partly to blame for not getting the money sooner. Your excellent journal has led me to buy too many books. But, however, you can be comforted, for the trade has had the benefit."

MR. CHRISTERN has received the twelfth and last fascicule of Vapereau's 'Dictionnaire universel des Littératures.' The complete work fills 2096 pages, large octavo, in double columns, and, although not free of inaccuracies, is of great value in literary research.

LEMOINE BROTHERS, St Louis, publish "The Eastern Question in Prophecy," by Rev. S. J. Niccolls, under which title are comprised six lectures, on the rise and fall of Mohammedanism and the events to follow, as presented in the prophecies of St. John.

JOHN CHURCH & Co., Cincinnati and New York, have just published "The New Song Era," revised by Dr. Geo. F. Root for conventions, singing schools choirs, etc. This book contains Geo. F. Root's "New Idea" in church music.

REV. H. M. DEXTER, D.D., is preparing for the press his lectures on the early history of Congregationalism which he has been delivering at Andover, and of which synopses in The Independent have attracted attention.

PROF. DOLBEAR'S telephone book is to be entitled "The Telephone. An Account of the Phenomena of Electricity, Magnetism, and Sound, as involved in its Action; with Directions for making a Speaking Telophone."

"SARATOGA," an Indian tale of frontier life, and a true picture of the famous springs in 1787, is the fourth volume of the "Dollar Series of Good Novels" published by T. B. Peterson & Brothers.

"FROM OVER THE SEA" is the name of the "Little Classic" book which Osgood & Co. will shortly publish, containing the European letters of Miss Blanche Willis Howard, author of "One Summer."

THE "Poets' Homes" papers in Wide Awake will be collected into a volume this fall, which D. Lothrop & Co will publish.

MR. HORACE E. SCUDDER is suggested as the author of that clever book, "Nimport."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

In the "Midsummer Holiday Number" (August) of Scribner's there will be a story by Berthold Auerbach, for which, states the Tribune, has been paid one of the highest prices on record. The tale covers, with illustrations, about six pages, and cost over $600—a hundred dollars per page of text.

THERE is to be a new magazine issuing from Portland, under the title of Once a Month. Several leading writers of light literature will contribute, and the first number is announced for August, by W. L. Sawyer, publisher.

In the August Lippincott's, Mrs. R. H. Davis commences a new serial, "A Law unto Herself," which promises to be one of her most powerful works.

GET THE STANDARD.

"It ought to be in every Library, also in every Academy and every School." -Hon. CHARLES SUMNER.

"It is known that WORCESTER'S has long been considered the standard dictionary of the English language by such eminent philologists as Marsh, such scientists as Agassiz, such poets as Longfellow, such statesmen as Summer, such educators as Mann; and that its spelling is the standard of the National Printing Office at Washington. It follows from this with unerring accuracy that WORCESTER'S Dictionary, being preferred over all others by scholars and men of letters, should be used by the youth of the country and adopted in the common schools."—New York Evening Post, March 26, 1877.

LATEST TEXT-BOOKS.

STEELE'S FOURTEEN WEEKS IN ZOOLOGY.

THE latest and best of a series in the Natural Science, of unprecedented popularity.

WILLIS' HISTORICAL READER;

OR, COLLIER'S GREAT EVENTS OF HISTORY, adapted to American Schools. This rare epitome or general history, remarkable for its charming style and judicious selection of events on which the destinies of nations have turned, has been skilfully manipulated by Prof. Willis, with as few changes as would bring the United States into its proper position in the historical perspective. As reader or text-book it has few equals and no superiors.

MANUAL OF ENGLISH HISTORY.

BY E. M. LANCASTER, Master of the Stoughton Grammar School, Boston, Mass. The most practical of the "brief books." Though short, it is not a bare and uninteresting outline, but contains enough of explanation and detail to make intelligible the cause and effect of events. Their relations to the history and development of the American people is made specific. cially prominent.

THE POLYTECHNIC

COLLECTION of Part Songs for High and Normal Schools and Clubs. This work contains a quantity of exceedingly valuable material, heretofore accessible only in sheet form or scattered in numerous and costly works. The collection of "College Songs" is a very attractive feature.

PECK'S MANUAL OF GEOMETRY.

CONCLUSION of the new brief series in Mathematics, comprised in seven books. This volume embraces Geometry proper, Conic Sections, and applications to Trigonometry and Mensuration, all in three hundred pages. Pure science, divested of the too common plethora of "words, words," is the specialty of this eminent author, Dr. W. G. Peck, of Columbia College.

BARNES' BRIEF HISTORY OF FRANCE.

By the author of the "Brief United States." With all the attractive features of the last-named popular work, including the copperplate maps, profuse and artistic illustrations, biography and anecdote in foot-notes, historical recreations, division into rational epochs, topics in heavy type, dates at head of page, chapters on "Manners and Customs," etc., etc. The book reads like a romance, while it indelibly impresses the "great outlines."

MACNIE'S ALGEBRAICAL EQUATIONS.

A WORK of high merit and value, serving as a complement to the more advanced treatises on Algebra. It presents succinculy the general theory, giving special attention to the analysis and solution of equations with numerical coefficients. Dr. Church, of the United States Military Academy, says the author particularly excels in the treatment of cubic equations and the modern theorems.

PENDLETON'S SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURE.

A TEXT-BOOK for Colleges and Schools; treats of the following topics: Anatomy and Physiology of Plants; Agricultural Meteorology; Soils as Related to Physics; Chemistry of the Atmosphere; Chemistry of Plants; Chemistry of Soils; Fertilizers and Natural Manures; Animal Nutration; Appendix. By E. M. PENDLETON, M.D., Professor of Agricultural Manures. ture in the University of Georgia.

MARTIN'S CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

A N admirable summary, by Prof. MARTIN, of Massachusetts State Normal School. It is expressly suitable as a text-book by reason of (1) its full Statement of Principles, (2) its Comprehensive Plan, (3) its Historical Method, (4) its Topical Arrangement, and (5) its Omission of Details.

TEACHER'S HAND-BOOK. THE SCHOOL HYMN AND TUNE BOOK.

EDITED by J. D. Bartley, Principal of the Concord (N. H.) High School. A selection of appropriate Hymns, of an unsectarian character, carefully classified and set to popular and "singable" Tunes, for opening and closing exercises. The National, Anniversary, and Parting Hymns form a valuable feature.

TAVERNER-GRAHAM'S REASONABLE ELOCUTION.

THE first presentation, in book form, of the method of this very successful teacher. It is hased upon the axiom that "Elocution is the right interpretation of thought;" hence, "Mental Perception must be the basis of all 'Reasonable Elocution." Almost all previously published methods partially or wholly ignore this, and by a set of merely mechanical rules proour automatic readers and speakers.

POOLER'S TEST SPELLER.

HE best collection of "hard words" yet made. The more uncommon ones are fully defined, and the whole are arranged alphabetically for convenient reference. The book is designed for Teachers' Institutes and "Spelling Schools," and is ared by an experienced and well-known conductor of Institutes. Post-paid, 30 cents.

The celebrated ROBERTSONIAN SYSTEM of teaching living languages, so called from the name of its author, a well-known teacher in Paris, has been acknowledged throughout Europe as SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

It combines the literal, interlinear translations of HAMILTON, and the oral and written exercises of MANESCA and OLLENDORF, with a more thorough and critical analysis of the language than has been attempted by either. The text a which the volume is founded is an original and attractive narrative, presenting all the peculiar idioms of the French landary.

1 p, together with a complete vocabulary of the words most commonly occurring in familiar discourse.
This system is strictly progressive, and combines great thoroughness with remarkable perspicuity. The pupil is led on by and almost unconscious steps from the rudiments of the grammar to the most complicated forms of the language.

Copies will be sent by mail to teachers for examination, on receipt of the advertised wholesale prices.

NATIONAL STANDARD. тне

More than 30,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States, by State enactments or School Officers.

Recommended by State Superintendents of Schools in 27 different States.

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary contains one fifth more matter than any other, the type being smaller, therefore giving much more matter on a page.

Webster contains 3000 Illustrations in the body of the work, nearly three times as many as any other Dictionary, and these are repeated and classified at the end of the book.

Has about 10,000 words and meanings not in other Dictionaries.

Embodies about one hundred years of literary labor, and is several years later than any other large Dictionary.

The sale of Webster's Dictionaries is 20 times as great as the sale of any other series of Dictionaries.

"Indispensable to every student of the English language."-M. R. Waite, Chief Justice United States.

The American Library Journal.

THE AMERICAN LIBRARY JOURNAL, established and sustained by the co-operative efforts of the leading librarians, aims, first, to elevate the profession to the highest standard; secondly, to enable library work to be done in the best way, at a saving of cost.

The JOURNAL especially meets the needs of the smaller libraries, offering them the costly experience and practical advice of the largest. The library that "cannot afford to take the JOURNAL" is the very one that cannot afford not to take it, for it shows how to reduce expenses without reducing efficiency. It is the library itself, not necessarily the librarian, that should subscribe, since the JOURNAL makes the librarian worth more to the library, and the library worth more to the people. Committee men and library assistants should give it careful study, and, if placed in the reading-room, the work of the library will often be facilitated, and its public support strengthened, by public acquaintance with the JOURNAL. The JOURNAL aims to be practically useful, and the curious or learned is put aside to give place to matter which shall make the reading in libraries better, readers more numerous, work more effective, or expenses less. Not a word is admitted in its reading or advertising pages that does not directly interest the librarian as a librarian. The IOURNAL, nevertheless, proves itself valuable to all interested in books.

In proof may be cited, from the early numbers, Mr. Pendleton's papers on "How to Start Libraries," as suggesting much saving to those projecting libraries; Mr. Winsor's list of "Reference Books in English" and Mr. Perkins's "Hundred Best Novels," as guiding purchasing committees; Mr. Cutter's and other contributions on cataloguing and bibliography, and Mr. Whitney's department, as furnishing information otherwise inaccessible or costly; the papers and correspondence on how to prevent defacement of books as productive of direct saving in lending libraries; and the various co-operative plans set forth in the JOURNAL, and through its efforts now in actual operation, by which the supplies required by the ordinary library can be purchased of the best sort, at so much less cost as to cover every month more than the price of the JOURNAL. This, without dwelling on its usefulness to librarians for inspiration and guidance, over and above the money-saving. Previous to the co-operative efforts of 1876—the Government Report and Library Conference, whose work the JOURNAL supplements and practicalizes—the librarians had been working, like a carpenter making his own tools, each for himself, in a field where (with each book a duplicate through its edition, and methods generally similar) perplexing questions can easily be settled once for all, and work done by general co-operation with the JOURNAL as a means, at half the usual expense of trouble and money.

The LIBRARY JOURNAL, averaging at least thirty-two quarto pages monthly, elegantly printed, and in every way worthy of the profession, will be sent, post-paid, at $5 the year.

Inquiries should be addressed to MELVIL DEWEY, Man'g Editor, I Tremont Place, Boston. Subscriptions should be addressed to F. LEYPOLDT, Publisher, 37 Park Row, New York.

THE

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE,

For 1877 [Eighth Year].

NEARLY all School-book houses having issued their price-lists on the new basis, it was desirable that an entirely new Educational Catalogue be given to the Trade at the earliest date possible.

The Educational Catalogue has been found so valuable to the Trade, not only as a finding list, but for circulation among educational customers, for the purpose of soliciting orders, and saving at the same time much troublesome correspondence, that its continuance is recognized as a necessity. In order to secure this, it will be necessary that booksellers who have the facilities for placing one hundred or more copies should immediately forward their orders. The imprint editions are now in press.

In making up special orders for the Educational Catalogue, Booksellers should bear in mind that it possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. As numerous orders for editions are received every summer, after the issue of the Educational Catalogue, we again call attention to the necessity of being in possession of all orders on or before August 1st.

CASH TERMS FOR EDITIONS:

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, 100 copies, $5; 1000 copies, $40.

The last page will be left blank, unless a stereotyped or electrotyped page, uniform in size with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, shall be sent before going to press. If we are to make the plate, it will be charged extra at the mere cost of composition and electrotyping—viz., $5.75. Mode of shipping must be stated with order.

THE

Publishers' Trade-List Annual

For 1877.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL for 1877 is expected to be ready in August. The special features this year will be the resumption of the Annual Reference List, which, embracing the books published from July 1, 1876, to June 30, 1877, will serve as the first Supplement to the American Catalogue, now well advanced toward publication, and an entirely new Educational Catalogue, compiled from the new revised publishers' lists.

The price will be One Dollar per copy, bound in cloth. The price of the volume will be raised after close of subscription.

No single subscriptions can be taken into account that have not been paid up on day of publication, as the small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor the expense or risk of numerous accounts, bills, statements, and subsequent collections.

Remittances should be made by money-order on New York, or registered letter, as we cannot be responsible for any losses. Receipt for remittance will be sent by return mail.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be dispatched by express.

THAT LASS O' LOWRIE'S.

"The best original novel that has appeared in this country for many years."—PHILADELPHIA DAILY PRESS.

WILL BE PUBLISHED NEXT WEEK.

THE MIDSUMMER EDITION OF

THAT LASS O' LOWRIE'S.

By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

1 volume. 12mo. Paper Covers. Price, 90 cents.

The publishers have determined to meet the popular demand for "That Lass o' Lowrie's," by the issue of a popular Midsummer Edition (in paper covers), much reduced in price. In its new form this extraordinary story cannot fail to have an immediate audience trebled in numbers.

The cloth edition (price, $1.50), of which over 5000 copies have been sold, will still be obtainable by those who prefer to have the book in more desirable covers

This story seems to be constantly increasing in popularity, and many believe with the Springfield Republican that it is "no idle story of a day, but one that attests the entrance of a new, original force into the field of fiction."

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE blockade of transportation delays the delivery of the latest orders for the Educational Catalogue. They will be shipped as soon as the express companies resume receiving goods.

D. APPLETON & Co. have ready to send out the first volume of their new "Collection of Foreign Authors," destined to be an American Tauchnitz, and in form somewhat similar to that well-known German publication. This first issue, "Samuel Brohl & Co.," is a powerful novel from the French of Victor Cherbuliez, and it will be followed by "Gerard's Marriage," from the French of André Thuriat; two volumes by the Russian writer, Prince Lubormirski, "Safar-Hadgi: the Russians in Samarcand," and "Scenes of Military Life in Russia;" and Théophile Gautier's "Spirite." There are also ready a reprint of the Rev. Samuel Peters' General History of Connecticut, 1781, the book containing the famous "blue laws" whose authenticity Mr. Trumbull denies, edited by S. J. McCormick, who takes Mr. Trumbull severely to task; Dr. Carpenter's book on "Mesmerism, Spiritualism, etc.," and fresh volumes in the new Dickens and Scott editions.

ESTES & LAURIAT, also, are most enterprising in supplying summer readers. A new book by the author of "Sidonie" is certain to command buyers, and "Jack," translated from the French of Daudet by the translator of his other book, is just ready, and will be found noticed elsewhere. "Le Nabob," translated by Mrs. Lucy H. Hooper, will be the next book from his pen on their list. A new novel by an American writer, Mrs. C. V. Hamilton, author of "Woven of Many Threads," and other books favorably known, is also just ready, under the title of "My Bonnie Lass."

"THAT LASS O' LOWRIE'S" has made its mark as, from the literary point of view, perhaps the strongest American novel of the year. Its sales, in cloth, have already reached 5000, and the book is likely to take a permanent place on library-shelves as the first volume of the works of a great writer. To satisfy a more immediate demand, Scribner, Armstrong & Co. will issue at once a Midsummer Edition, in paper, at the low price of 90 cents, and for those who want a strong as well as bright book for summer, reading, nothing could be more timely.

GEO. P. PUTNAM'S SONS are doing no little this summer to supply the lovers of light literature with abundance of what they desire. Of "Other People's Children" 22,500 copies have already been disposed of, though, in company with many other passengers, Budge and Toddie are blockaded on account of the railroad strike. The new series of "Tales for Travellers," little pocket volumes at a quarter or so, will be begun with Mr. F. B. Perkins' clever short story, "My Three Conversations with Miss Chester," which has been a favorite with those who knew it ever since its first publication in Putnam's Magazine over twenty years ago. With it, this or next week, will go out the historical novel of the Mohawk Valley, "The Johnson Manor," by James Kent, and for readers disposed to defy the heat and do some real thinking, the new edition, cloth, of "The Jukes," which remarkable study of pauperism and crime has been re-worked by Mr. Dugdale for this re-issue into permanent form.

LEE & SHEPARD have just ready their anonymous story "That Husband of Mine," which, it is hinted, will make no little sensation; and "Froebel and his Work," translated from the German of Baroness Markenholz Bülow, and containing also a biographical sketch by Miss Emily Shirreff. This will merit, and doubtless receive, the earnest attention of teachers of children, and of mothers who can appreciate the excellent work Froebel did in the direction of educating and entertaining children wisely.

THE next instalment of Osgood's charming "Vest-Pocket" books will include Tennyson's "Maud," Charles Kingsley's "Favorite Poems," Shakespeare's Sonnets, and Dr. John Brown's admirable essay on John Leech, the famous artist of Punch.

SIR RANDAL ROBERTS has written, from recent personal observation, of "Asia Minor and the Caucasus," describing the country, people, government, military resources, etc. His book will be published next week, with a map, as the seventh of Osgood's handy books on the "Eastern Question."

Col. Waring's excellent and practical papers on "Village Improvements and Farm Villages," which have appeared in the Atlantic and Scribner's Monthly, have been carefully revised, and will be published, with diagrams, next week by J. R. Osgood & Co., in a 75-cent volume. The subject is a very timely one, and Col. Waring is just the man to write on it.

W. W. HARDING will soon have ready a new line of albums, that promises to be one of the most attractive and salable features of the fall trade. The goods are now running through the press, and are in styles and patterns entirely There are two sizes, the quarto and folio, and two designs for card openings, the easel and rustic. The easel design is that of a frame the sides of which are in imitation of walnut in gold—resting on an easel, and the other, that of a pretty rustic frame surrounding the picture. One style of the quarto is for cabinet pictures and will contain 50; the other will hold 104 cartes-de-visite and 24 cabinets, and the folio will contain the same number as the latter, thus making three styles in all. The card openings are made of the finest bristolboard of different tints, which have a charming effect. They are bound in Turkey morocco, Russia, seal-skin, and calf. A most important feature of these albums is the chain-back, of which Mr. Harding is the patentee. Mr. Harding is also preparing new lines of Bibles, as per his catalogue noticed elsewhere, and he claims that his new edition of Brown's Self-interpreting Bible is one such as has never before been handled by the trade. It contains 1600 pages, selling fully as cheap as any other Bible of like quality.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have now ready "Belle Langley and Other Stories," the title story being by Edgar Fawcett; Miss Furman's "Good-for-Nothing Polly," which is warranted to entertain young folks; and "Nan the New-Fashioned Girl," by Mrs. S. C. Hallowell. This house has a bewildering list of books coming in September and October.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. have nearly ready a "Little Classic" edition of Harriet Martineau's work on "Household Education." It is one of he wisest books ever written on this subject, a ne of the most important and permanently results and martineau's works.

Self-Love, A Book for Women," is the fifth v ume of "Peterson's Dollar Series of Good N vels," published by T. B. Peterson & Bros. I shouse has also reissued in cheap paper m Miss M. E. Braddon's "Aurora Floyd."

issued in an entirely novel style of board covers at a low price, and will be very attractive books Other beautiful books for children for the coming holidays will be announced later.

A NEW contribution to the literature of the war is about ready at Macmillan & Co.'s, in the Hon. Dudley Campbell's volume of Travels in Turkey and Greece. This is the latest report of Turkish journeying previous to the war, and should prove interesting.

PORTER & COATES will add immediately to their "International Series of Novels," forming volume twentieth, "Until the Day Break," by Mrs. J. M. D. Bartlett ("Birch Arnold"), a story of American society, said to be of varied and absorbing interest. They have also nearly ready a considerable list of new books and reissues, including a new series of arithmetics, by Albert N. Rauk, to be ready by August 1st, the "Complete Arithmetic," combining oral and written exercises, and the "Elementary Arithmetic." T. S. Arthur has still another book on temperance, "Bar-rooms at Brantly."

THE trade should note the line of British poets, comprising sixteen volumes of standards, averaging nearly 500 pages each, offered by Mr. Thomas Y. Crowell, at the very low price of $1 cloth, $1.25 gilt edges. The "dollar stores" themselves can scarcely get below these prices, even by the assistance of frequent compromises. Mr. Crowell also offers an attractive line of illustrated juveniles for younger readers.

A. WILLIAMS & Co., Boston, have on sale the "History of the City of Belfast, Maine," by Joseph Williamson. It covers nearly 1000 pages, and is said also to cover in an admirable manner the records of the city it commemorates. In addition to its narrative and descriptive excellences, it is furnished with maps, charts, facsimiles of adornments, portraits, and views of buildings. It costs $6, but to any one interested in Belfast is worth more than that.

SINCE publication, January 2d, the sales of Bishop Gibbon's book, "The Faith of Our Fathers," have been nearly 18,000, an unprecedented sale, which is said to be the largest sale of any Catholic book ever issued in this country.

"NIMPORT" seems to start off very much as if it belonged to the "No Name Series" de facto as well as de jure. Mr. Horace E. Scudder is positively said not to be the author; other "certain" guesses are now in order.

THE BUSINESS BLOCKADE.

THE strike of the railroad employés, which has suspended transportation on the leading freight lines throughout the country, is having the most serious effects upon general business and in our own trade. The news companies and other jobbers have revoked or suspended a good part of their orders—the Western houses by telegraph; publishers having books ready have postponed their publication-day; the railroad book business, especially important at this very time, is altogether stopped; and wholesale houses cannot ship goods to fill pending orders. But this is not the most disastrous feature; for the general disorganization, whose expressions in violence or embargo are likely to be soon over, will produce a moral effect which will last into the fall and do much to prevent that revival of active trade for which every interest alike hoped.

There is of course no present remedy; the evil is done, and consequences must follow causes. Nor do we propose to discuss the question, except to say that in this choking of the channels of commerce, the commercial houses must do their best to accommodate those temporarily embarrassed, especially in such matters as the payment of notes, by the failure of supplies. All are involved in a common difficulty, and the danger of failures must be averted as far as possible by such means, as a measure of self-protection. But there is one point which should be insisted on by all representatives of intelligent trades. A great danger has been opened before us, which can only be averted for the future by the more intelligent classes doing their best to show to the disaffected that such measures as they have recently | resorted to remedy nothing and only aggravate the evils they are meant to cure. The present demoralization will react most seriously upon the working classes themselves, because the postponement of a renewal of commercial activity threatens increased poverty and misery the coming winter. It is the part of every business man to do his personal share in this enlightenment, and it should be some satisfaction to the book trade that, as professionally purveyors of intelligence, they may take a double part in this good and vitally necessary work.

BOOK NOTICES.

JACK, from the French of Alphonse Daudet, translated by Mary Neal Sherwood. (Estes & Lauriat.) "Jack" was no doubt written as "Sidonie" was, to point a moral, the characters being taken from one of the worst classes of Parisian life, while all their hideous ugliness and immorality are laid bare with an unfaltering Poor little Jack, introduced to the reader at the tender age of seven, the child of a fashionable woman of the demi-monde, suffers both from the vicissitudes of his mother's life and from her selfishness and heartlessness. story is painfully realistic, and is given to the reader with the wonderful power of description that Daudet has displayed in all his works. The character sketches are wonderful throughout, all the actors in the story taking actual form in the reader's mind. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

MRS. ARTHUR, A NOVEL, by Mrs. Oliphant. (Harper.) Tells how a young man, of high so-cial position, while studying in a small English town, falls in love with a girl far his inferior both in position and personally, and how he marries her in spite of the remonstrances of friends and parents, and how her temper and vulgarity bring about a swift ending to his enchantment, and a life-long misery. "Mrs. Arthur," the and a life-long misery. "Mrs. Arthur," the wife, with her ill-bred sisters and vulgar, warm-hearted old mother, is excellently de-The husband's relations also fill out scribed. a great part of the story, his sister and his friend making up a very pretty love story. Written in the easy, flowing style natural to Mrs. Oliphant, with a keen appreciation of the weaknesses and failings of poor human nature. 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

No Name Series: HETTY'S STRANGE HIS-TORY. (Roberts.) This story is by the author of "Mercy Philbrick's Choice," the work which introduced the "No Name Series" to the pub-It even exceeds "Mercy Philbrick's Choice" in interest, while it is more healthy in tone and better constructed. The plot is very singular, and quite new in the way in which it is handled. "Hetty," the central figure, is a fine specimen of womankind, admirable even in It is a story of New England her mistakes. life, the scene shifting finally to a little French town in Canada. The hard, narrow, pitiless characters of the primitive New England village are equally well sketched with the warmhearted, demonstrative people, from the Catholic priest, "Father Antoine," down to the villagers of the little French settlement. Destined to be one of the most popular volumes of thisseries. 16mo, cloth, $1.

G. T. T.; OR, THE WONDERFUL ADVENTURES OF A PULLMAN, by Edward E. Hale. (Roberts.) It is well to explain, as the author does in his preface, that these mysterious letters which do duty as a title, mean, when interpreted, "Go to Texas," a phrase in vogue so many years ago that the present generation has probably forgotten it. Two young ladies do go to Texas, as the book relates, journeying first in a Pullman car, and afterwards in a Mississippi steamboat, and so on till they arrive at San Antonio, where one designs opening a school. But they meet their fate by the way in the shape of two very good-looking young men, who turn up at all sorts of unexpected moments, and who finally persuade them to change their plans. The book is quite humorous and lively, and very good reading. "Town and Country Severy good reading. 16mo, cloth, $1.

A TREATISE ON THE MANUFACTURE OF PERFUMES, by John H. Snively. (C. W. Smith, Nashville.) There seems to be a great need for a simple text-book for the use of beginners learning the art of perfumery. In the present volume, the author has endeavored to begin at the beginning, and to furnish a guidebook complete enough to lead the student from the most elementary facts to a full understanding of the subject. The work, consequently, includes accounts of all processes in which the perfumer is indirectly interested, as well as those which are ordinarily employed in the laboratory. Especial care has been taken to describe the materials used in the manufacture of perfumes. The various compounds formed from these materials have also been treated at great length, nothing being wanted to render the work complete in every respect. Illustrated throughout. 8vo, cloth, $3.

A PEEP BEHIND THE SCENES, by Mrs. Walton. (Carter.) Little Rosalie, the heroine of this pretty, simple tale, belonged to a travelling theatre, such as they have in England, and which frequent all the fairs and public gatherings. Her life was spent in going from place to place in a caravan through the daytime, and acting at night. Her story is quite a pathetic one, as she possessed a very bad father and a sick mother. A great deal of religious teaching runs through the book, not, however, to interfere with the story, which is full of incintent and very charmingly told. It may be ranked among the very best and most desirable juveniles. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

SATAN AS A MORAL PHILOSOPHER, with other essays and sketches, by C. S. Henry, D.D. (Whittaker.) This is a collection of essays and sketches, the first of which gives a title to the book. The others are named "An Idyl of the Vales and of the Court," "Judas, the Betrayer," "Festus, a Type," "Three Royal Birthdays," "Jael and Sisera," "The Rechabites," "Mote-sceing. Sharp-sightedness, Hypocrisy," "On Good Manners," "On the Goodness of Good Amusements," "On the Love of Country," etc., etc. Dr. Henry writes with much pungent humor and elevation of thought. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

BEAUTIFUL EDITH, THE CHILD-WOMAN. (Loning.) An English society novel, by an anonymous writer. Quite clever and readable, and full of stirring incidents and bright conversations, with several well-worked-out love episodes. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

STATIONERY NOTES.

Olney, Agent, where sales are made at factory

THE POWERS PAPER Co., Springfield, Mass., have completed a new and handsome line of papeteries, which will compete favorably with those of any other manufacture. Among the leading styles in wicker is the "work-basket," which contains one quire and envelopes of satin-finish paper, two spools of fine sewing-silk, silver thimble, an inkstand, a rosewood-handle ivory paper-cutter, a penholder and pencil; the whole affair is neat and attractive, and retails at $3.50. THE "La Princesse" is a patent leatherette box of elongated shape, on the top of which is a picture of statuary, encased in glass; the box is intended to be used as a handkerchiefbox. The whole is tastefully ornamented, and retails for $1.50. The "La Comtesse" and "La Marquise" are similar boxes, containing Alexandria and Baronial sizes of paper and envelopes; they sell at $1.35. ROBERTS BROS.' SUMMER BOOKS.

HETTY'S STRANGE HISTORY. Ready July 21st.

This is the 8th volume in the No Name Series, and is by the author of "Mercy Philbrick's Choice," the initial volume in the Series, which has had a great popularity. The other volumes are:

Less than a year has elapsed since the "No Name Series" of novels was inaugurated, and it is now an assured success. There are two prominent reasons for this:

THE NOVELTY OF PLAN. The novels are new and original, written by writers of established reputations, whose names are withheld, expressly for this series.

ITS CHEAPNESS. The newels are not republications of foreign books or reprints of old works, but are new and copyrighted, and, though averaging over 300 pages each, are sold at the moderate price of $1.00 each.

PETERS' GENERAL HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT.

The Rev. Samuel Peters' Original "General History of Connecticut, from its First Settlement to its Latest Period of Amity with Great Britain prior to the Revolution: London, 1781." To which are added additions to appendix, notes and extracts from letters, verifying many important statements made by the author. By Samuel Jarvis McCormick. One vol., 12mo, cloth, price, $1.50.

Dr. Peters's "History of Connecticut" was published in London, in 1781; the copies that came to this country were publicly burnt; consequently it has become a very rare work, so much so that last March a copy brought the great price of one interest in a recent publication entitled "The Blue Laws of Connecticut and New Haven, and the False Blue Laws invented by the Rev. Samuel Peters." Mr. Trumbull's work gives the public but one side of the case; the editor of the present volume has, therefore, been induced to republish the history from the original copy belonging to Dr. Peters, using notes and quotations from writers and authors of high repute, and from documents and manuscripts which have come into his possession since Mr. Trumbull's work appeared.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE strikers have interfered not a little with the sale of successful books; nevertheless a bopeful feeling for fall is to be observed amidst the general dulness, based primarily on the excellent reports from the crops.

MR. J. WHITAKER will have ready during the current month the third issue of his "Reference Catalogue of Current Literature." The volume is expected to form about 3000 pages, but the price will be at the usual nominal rate. Subscriptions should be sent to this office.

We learn that the fall trade sale promises to be one of the largest for some years; consignments are already arriving. Messrs. W. O. Davie & Co., Cincinnati, announce their fiftieth Cincinnati trade sale for October 16th, for which consignments are solicited up to September 10th. Circulars and catalogues will be mailed on application.

Mr. J. W. Bouton has just in Elliott Stock's fac-simile reprint of Caxton's first book, the "Dictes and Sayings of the Philosophers." It has a preface by Mr. William Blades, and is altogether very interesting. Two hundred and is y were printed; all of the English and most the hundred allotted to this side have been t ten. The price is $10.

THE "Vest-Pocket Series" shows no signs of proaching completion, and there is no reason y it should stop while it continues so unimly good. The next numbers will include ren Meredith's "Songs of Servia," which ght to find many readers now; Tennyson's perb and unequalled elegy "In Memoriam;" rorite Poems of Shelley, Moore, and Campl; Holmes' charming "Story of Iris;" Dick', "Mr. Nightingale's Diary," and other betizing tidbits of literature.

PORTER & COATES are just now catering to the tastes of the public with works on all topics. The most noticeable are those of Joseph H. Seiss, who treats of the Great Pyramid of Egypt, under the title of "A Miracle in Stone;" Dr. Charles West's small brochure, in which full directions are given; "How to Nurse Sick Children;" and "Famous Horses of America," which is divided into two different works under the titles of "Famous American Race Horses" and "Famous American Trotting Horses," each profusely illustrated with portraits of the favorites of the turf.

THE Petersons announce for speedy issue a book by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, the author of "That Lasso' Lowrie's." The title of this story is "Theo, a Love Story." So great a success has her former work been that everything that comes from her pen will be eagerly sought after. It will be in cloth and paper. Also volume 6 of the popular "Dollar Series," entitled "The Man of the World," by William North, author of "The Man that Married his Grandmother," etc., etc. This volume is spoken of as remarkable for pureness of style and elegance of diction.

A FLOOD of Half-Hour books comes from the Harper press-rooms. Into two of them Mr. Eugene Lawrence, the well-known historical writer, has condensed, with a good deal of skill, the leading facts as to classic authors and literature, and for twenty-five cents apiece the purchaser of his primers of Greek and Latin literature may have the classics in a nutshell. Mr. Motley's brilliant sketch of "Peter the Great," originally published in the North American Review for 1875; Wilkie Collins' novelette of "Percy and the Prophet," reprinted from the magazine; and a story called "Kate Cronin's Dowry" complete the list of these handy little books. Author's edition of Livy, left nearly finished by him, and Cox's "School History of Greece," in the smaller "Student's Series," come with them.

LIPPINCOTT & Co. have taken advantage of the present railroad troubles to bring out in a new form "The Conflict Between Labor and Capital," by Albert S. Bolles. Common-sense books supplied to each of the strikers would go far to put an end to the present condition of affairs, perhaps. They also announce an important series of works, which will give one of the after-results of the Great Exhibition. These are "The Official Reports of the International Board of Judges," upon objects exhibited within the respective groups, including generally reports upon the industries and arts illustrated in the Exhibition, as well as the full text of every award which has been decreed by the United States Centennial Commission. This valuable series will comprise in all about thirty-six publications, ranging all the way from pamphlets to large 12mos. Some of these groups are now ready, and others will follow as rapidly as they can be prepared. A new serial will be added to their list. Its title, "Words for the New Church," tells its denomination. It is controlled by the Academy of the New Church, and will not be published regularly, but from time to time. It will contain papers or monographs on subjects of special interest to that denomination, and will contain in all about five hundred pages in the course of the year. Part I, "The Advent of the Lord," is now ready.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL.

THE Trade-List Annual for 1877 is now well advanced in preparation, and promises to be the most full, especially in the representation of larger publishers, of any volume yet issued. The lists so far delivered or definitely promised already outnumber those of any previous year, and there are nearly fifty of the smaller publishers with whom arrangements are still pending. To such as these, who have not yet decided to be represented in the ANNUAL, we would reiterate the arguments advanced in the many letters already printed from jobbing and retailing houses, and which will be found confirmed on inquiring at any others of general experi-While it is of the utmost importance in the case of the large houses that they should offer to the bookseller the facilities for handling and ordering their books afforded by this time and labor-saving compilation, the books of the smaller houses, unrepresented here, are often entirely lost sight of. It is their small lists that are thrown away or mislaid; it is their books that the trade has little knowledge of outside of these easily-lost catalogues. few dollars' expense involved in putting the catalogue into this permanent shape is directly saved to any publisher who has half a dozen minor books that are likely to be called for at other bookstores.

We wish to impress upon these publishers the absolute importance of an immediate decision, and upon all contributors whose lists are not yet delivered the necessity of prompt delivery. Under our arrangements with the large houses, who have prepared their catalogues to go to press August 10th, we must push through our own part of the work with no delay after that date. We shall at once pro- age, his blemishes beyond that of later times," ceed with the collation and arrangement of the lists then in hand, and we cannot assure the inclusion of any lists received after next week. This will give us but a fortnight for the considerable work of preparation and binding for the publication of the Annual on August

The present Annual will contain, in addition to other features of interest; the invaluable Annual Reference List, for books published July 1st, 1876, to June 30th, 1877—the first yearly supplement to the "American Catalogue," which no bookseller can afford to be without, and which can be had in no other shape; also, the Educational Catalogue, more easy of reference than as a separate pamphlet. We shall be obliged if those who intend to order the ANNUAL will send us their favors before day of publication; it is of considerable convenience to us, while ensuring copies on first delivery.

WE shall be glad to rectify any omissions or errors in our Educational Catalogue for 1877, in the Supplementary List to be published in an early number of the WEEKLY. Some of these were the errors that will creep into the most careful compilation; more were the fault of publishers who failed to reply to our repeated inquiries for information, carried so far in some cases as telegraphic dispatches and registered letters. Corrections should be sent to us at HIGHER LESSONS IN ENGLISH, by Alonzo Reed and Brainard Kellogg. (Clark & Maynard.) This work is divided into four parts: nard.) This work is divided into four parts:

BOOK NOTICES.

"The Sentence and the Parts of Speech;"
"Parts of Speech Subdivided;" "Modifications of the Parts of Speech;" and "Composition.' Its aim is to make the science of language, of which the essentials are thoroughly presented, tributary to the art of expression. Every principle unfolded, and every idiom, common construction, and form learned by the pupil in the analysis and parsing of the wide range of sentences given, are fixed in memory, and, above all, in practice, by varied and exhaustive drill in composition. The pupil is constantly stimulated to the attractive labor of composing sentences, arranging and rearranging their parts, contracting, expanding, punctuating, and criticising them. It will be found an easy and delightful and very serviceable way of imparting to young people the dry and apparently complex science of grammar. 16mo, cloth, 60 cents.

A SELECTION FROM THE LYRICAL POEMS OF ROBERT HERRICK, arranged with notes by Francis Turner Palgrave. (Macmillan.) Herrick was one of the poets of the seventeenth century, whose "merits may be said to have placed him beyond the sympathy of his own as Mr. Palgrave very felicitously puts it. This selection has been made in the hope of rendering him accessible to readers in general, few of whom are acquainted with his full merits or the great charm of his style. His lyrics are among the most charming and elegant in the language; as presented to us now, divested of their obsolete spelling and pruned of much that would now seem indecorous, they form one of the most delightful little volumes of poems one could desire to dip in for occasional recreation. The volume belongs to the "Golden Treasury Series," and is most dainty and beautiful in appearance both inside and out. 15mo, cloth.

THE LIFE OF EDGAR ALLAN POE, by William F. Gill. (William F. Gill & Co.) Although Mr. Gill's "Life" offers very few facts that have not already been placed before the public by the numerous recent defenders of the memory of the cruelly-defamed poet, it is nevertheless very fresh and interesting reading. New corroborative evidence has been gathered from many sources relative to Mr. Poe's habits, his social qualities, and his domestic virtues. course Dr. Griswold comes in for some pretty strong abuse, as Mr. Gill is able to disprove the very last of his assertions against Poe's character. Facts and anecdotes already made public are so elaborated, and related with so much additional detail and comment, as to be entirely new reading. Numerous illustrations embellish the work, while several fac-similes of original MSS, and letters add to its interest and value. 12mo, cloth, $2.

God's Word Man's Light and Guide. (American Tract Soc.) This volume contains a number of lectures given before the New York Sunday-School Association during the past winter, 1876–7. They are, namely, "The Inspiration of the Scriptures," by Rev. Wm. M. Taylor; "The Languages of the Bible," by Rev. Charles A. Briggs; "The Unity and the Variety of the Bible," by Rev. R. S. Storrs; "Ancient History in its Connection with the Old Testament," by Rev. Howard Crosby; "Miracles and Prophecies which show the Bible Divine," by Rev. Noah Porter; "Method Jesus Christ as a Teacher," by Rev. Geo. D. Boardman, etc., etc. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

HISTORY OF TURKEY, by J. D. O'Conor. (Moses Warren, Chicago.) Comprises an account of the political and physical geography, the chief cities, manners and customs, religion, education, industries, manufactures and commerce, form of government, taxation, revenue, etc., the army and navy, primitive traditions, genealogy of the Osmanli dynasty, etc., etc. An admirable handbook, as it contains, in a small compass, a most remarkable amount of information on the subject of Turkey. Contains three colored maps. 25 cents.

THE DISCIPLINE AND DRILL OF THE MILITIA, by Major Frank S. Arnold. (Van Nostrand.) A series of lectures relating to "Military Establishments," "Instruction of the Militia," "Discipline," "Subordination," "Elementary Drill," "The Future Method of Attack," "Hints to Officers," etc. An excellent little manual designed to aid in the improvement and efficiency of the neglected militia service of our country, especially in the details of discipline and drill. 10mo, cloth, red edges, $2.

MY BONNIE LASS, by Mrs. C. V. Hamilton. (Estes & Lauriat.) Mrs. Hamilton is well known as the author of several good novels, "Woven of Many Threads," "A Crown from the Spear," etc. This book will be found equally interesting with those mentioned. It is a quiet story of love and sacrifice, but well written, with a good plot and well-contrasted characters. 8vo, paper.

TABLES FOR SYSTEMATIC QUALITATIVE CHEMICAL ANALYSIS, by John H. Snively. (C. W. Smith, Nashville.) A series of short directions, in tabular form, accompanied by a certain amount of concise oral instruction, designed to aid the student in the study of chemical analysis. Especially prepared with reference to the wants of beginners. 8vo, bds., $1.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

- J. REYNOLDS, of Dayton, O., was awarded three patents for bookbinding and temporary binders. The first is for a metallic spring back, covered with cloth to prevent cutting at the edge, the side-covers to be inserted in flanges of the spring back. The second for a removable binder or cover, in which the two sides are pockets to be slid over the permanent cover, such pockets being strengthened at the edges by tapes or bands. The third for a metal back secured by turning the ends of the metal over as a clamp upon the contents, in combination with which a book is provided for made by stitching single sheets through their centre, the thread passing through all sheets alike.
- J. Q. PREBLE & Co., New York, have got out a new line of copying-books called "The American Letter Copying-Book." These books are claimed to be superior in all essential particulars to the French, German, and other foreign-made books. The paper is of American production, of very strong fibre; gives a clear, sharp copy, and can be written upon with pen and ink. This paper resembles parchment and Japanese paper in color and appearance, and the goods are strongly bound and very handsomely put up. This house has also issued a new price list of blank-books, which will be forwarded to the trade on application.

THE ERIE PUBLISHING Co., Erie, Pa., have issued a new descriptive price-list of indexed diaries (perpetual), comprising the most popular sizes and styles now used. These diaries are printed on fine rose-tint paper, and are equal to any in the market. The popular favor with which the indexed diary was received last season was most gratifying to the publishers, and the most convincing proof of its excellence. The improved facilities of the manufacture of these goods have enabled them to reduce the price fully twenty per cent, thus making them quite as cheap as the ordinary diary of equal quality.

S. S. NEWTON, Binghamton, N. Y., has received three distinct patents in connection with stoppers for mucilage-bottles, covering numerous points. One of these is for a stopper-support, fitting closely to the bottle-neck, and also by a circular flange to the stopper itself, for the purpose of preventing drippage. Another is a combination for a sponge-delivery through a discharging-tube, with elastic plug, and a third a combination with a sponge-brush on the end of a metal rod.

MAY, HARD & Co., have just opened a new store at 165 William street, New York, and will keep a full line of flat, wrapping, and other papers, and will also manufacture a fine wedding and staple stationery for the trade. Mr. May was for many years connected with Henry Lindenmeyer; Mr. Hard with Chamberlin, Whitmore & Co., also with Mr. Richard Denton. They are young and energetic men, and we wish them success in their new undertaking.

In Town.—There have lately been a great number of buyers in town, among whom we noticed: Howard Barney, of Robt. Clarke & Co., Cincinnati: S. C. Abbott, Omaha; R. D. Patterson, of St. Louis; Mr. Baker, of Gray. Baker & Co., St. Louis; Mr. Arthur, of the Omaha Book Concern, Omaha; Col. Merrill, of Merrill, Hubbard & Co., Indianapolis; R. Crampton, Rock Island, Ill.; H. H. Shepard, Kansas City.

R. C. CARTER, Kingston, Ont., has patented an improvement in envelopes so that they may be conveniently opened and reclosed, for use in the postal service, as a cover for office documents, and for containing merchandise samples, etc. The flap, at one of the long ends, is provided with a slot, through which a loop from the body of the envelope protrudes, permitting of fastening by running through the loop a tongue of paper attached to the flap.

HENRY M. PAYNE, Newark, N. J., has received a patent for a stencil pen or style consisting of magnetic bars revolving in an open armature frame in combination with a cam, having two or more waves cast or otherwise secured upon the upper end of the bar within the circumference thereof and toe-stop and spring, all constructed and arranged for operating for stencilling purposes.

The new German patent law has been put into operation throughout the entire empire. The law that repressed native invention is repealed, and a policy of encouragement adopted. Patents are granted for new inventions which admit of industrial use. The duration of patents is fifteen years, and persons not resident in Fatherland must advance their claim through representatives resident in Germany.

RICHARD M. COLARD, New York, has received a patent for a pen and pencil case, which consists of a guide-tube secured rigidly at one end, inside of the outer case, and extending through the same, in combination with a double-slotted tube, pencil stock and slotted sliding actuating-tube.

ALFRED & HOUGH, New York, have purchased some new machinery and enlarged their manufactory very materially. They are now prepared to manufacture a large line of cut cards, etc. Joseph W. Wilson, late with Belcher & Houghton, is now with the above-named firm, and will attend to their near-by trade.

STORY B. LADD, Washington, D. C., has patented an improved penholder, consisting of a handle provided with a plug having the convolute or spiral pen-retaining groove or socket, whereby it is adapted to hold pens of varying sizes and curvatures. The handle is made of wood.

WM. T. BERRY, Maysville, Ky., has patented a letter sheet and envelope combined. It consists of a letter sheet having notches or serrations in its edges, short side flaps and an outer flap rectangular in form and gummed on three sides.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co. have in preparation several books of good promise. "The Life of Rev. Dr. Edward N. Kirk," by Rev. D. O. Mears, recently of Cambridge, now of Worcester, is nearly completed. It will contain portraits of Dr. Kirk in his youth and old age, and a view of the American Chapel in Paris, which he originated. It will be a crown octavo, and, by reason of Dr. Kirk's large reputation in religious and educational circles, it will naturally find many readers. "Real Boys and Girls," by Miss M. C. Bartlett, will tell a very interesting story, or series of stories, which have already been found highly entertaining by the young readers of one of the Boston weeklies. "A Happy Winter," by Mrs. S. S. Robbins, is the narrative of a season in Florida, with views of Florida scenery and character sketches. "Mother Goose," in a new version by Miss Alice Parkman, with illustrations (mostly silhouettes), by J. W. Champney ("Champ"), will be one of the attractions of the coming season. Lockwood, Brooks & Co. have in a friendly way severed their connection with the American Tract Society, of Boston, and Messrs. Noyes, Snow & Co. will hereafter be its pub-

MR. GLADSTONE, in the course of his address opening the Caxton Festival, exhibited a copy of the Bible bound in morocco, with gilt edges, of which not a sheet had been worked off the day before. This remarkable feat was performed partly at Oxford and partly in London. The impression was limited to 100 copies. Not a sheet was worked till the clock struck two on the morning of the 30th; they were then dried, hot pressed, and sent to London by an early train, taken to the binding shop of the Oxford warehouse, rolled, folded, rolled again, pressed, collated, sewed, backed, cut, gilt, and then excellently well bound in morocco, all within twelve hours. The first copy was sent to Mr. Gladstone, who afterward presented it to the Emperor of Brazil.

Mr. Howard Challen, of Philadelphia, has made arrangements with Mr. Howard Lockwood, of this city, to be associated in editing the American Mail and Export Journal, a monthly devoted to the advancement of the American export trade, and giving a full resume of American affairs, the circulation of which will be mainly abroad. The trade journal hitherto issued by Mr. Challen will hereafter be published in this city, at 74 Duane street, and his entire list of publications will be supplied to the trade by the American News Co. of this city and the Central News Co. of Philadelphia, who will also act as agents for the several trade journals with which Mr. Challen will hereafter be connected.

THE Jewish Messenger will begin in its issue of August 10th the publication of a novel by Leopold von Sacher-Masoch, entitled "The Student," to be completed in about ten numbers. Sacher-Masoch, whom the German critics call the "Galician Turgenieff," has made Polish Judaism a study, and persons who have read "The Student" in the original German say that his knowledge of Jewish customs and ideas is hardly inferior to that displayed by George Eliot in " Daniel Deronda."

"THE Wonder World," which will be one of George P. Putnam's Sons' fall books for the children, will attract attention as an attempt to gather really representative stories from the literature of all times and countries. French, German, Hungarian, Irish, Russian, Turkish, Hindostanee, Swedish, Chinese, and Japanese folk-lore will be pressed into the service. Maria Pabke and "Margery Deane," of Newport, have projected and edit the book.

MR. CHATTO, of the London publishing firm of Chatto & Windus, arrived in New York on Sunday last in the White Star steamer Germanic. He has brought with him early copies of a large number of highly important new publications to be ready the coming Autumn, comprising poetry, fiction, science, and choice illustrated works in the fine arts. His address in New York is care of Messrs. Scribner, Welford & Armstrong.

MACMILLAN & Co. have now issued the new catalogue of educational publications referred to in our educational number, and the tastefulness of its appearance fully bears out the praise given to the advance sheets. The catalogue, which was prepared and printed in this country, should be in the hands of every bookseller and educator.

THE London Publishers' Circular notes a slight improvement in English trade. The export of printed books for the first half year of 1877 reached £401,124. as against £394.274 for that of 1876.

Dr. Palfrey's "History of New England" will be completed by the publication of the fifth volume, which its venerable author has nearly completed in MS.

"ONE Summer," which has had two summers of remarkable popularity, has now the honor of appearing in a popular edition in Germany.

THE

Publishers' Trade-List Annual For 1877.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL for 1877 is expected to be ready in August. The special features this year will be the resumption of the Annual Reference List, which, embracing the books published from July 1, 1876, to June 30, 1877, will serve as the first Supplement to the American Catalogue, now well advanced toward publication, and an entirely new Educational Catalogue, compiled from the new revised publishers' lists.

The price will be One Dollar per copy, bound in cloth. The price of the volume will be raised after close of subscription.

No single subscriptions can be taken into account that have not been paid up on day of publication, as the small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor the expense or risk of numerous at ounts, bills, statements, and subsequent collections.

Remittances should be made by money-order on New York, or registered letter, as we cannot be responsible for any losses. Receipt for remittance will be sent by return mail.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be dispatched by express.

The American Library Journal.

THE AMERICAN LIBRARY JOURNAL, established and sustained by the co-operative efforts of the leading librarians, aims, first, to elevate the profession to the highest standard; secondly, to enable library work to be done in the best way, at a saving of cost.

The JOURNAL especially meets the needs of the smaller libraries, offering them the costly experience and practical advice of the largest. The library that "cannot afford to take the JOURNAL" is the very one that cannot afford not to take it, for it shows how to reduce expenses without reducing efficiency. It is the library itself, not necessarily the librarian, that should subscribe, since the JOURNAL makes the librarian worth more to the library, and the library worth more to the people. Committee men and library assistants should give it careful study, and, if placed in the reading-room, the work of the library will often be facilitated, and its public support strengthened, by public acquaintance with the JOURNAL. The JOURNAL aims to be practically useful, and the curious or learned is put aside to give place to matter which shall make the reading in libraries better, readers more numerous, work more effective, or expenses less. Not a word is admitted in its reading or advertising pages that does not directly interest the librarian as a librarian. The JOURNAL, nevertheless, proves itself valuable to all interested in books.

In proof may be cited, from the early numbers, Mr. Pendleton's papers on "How to Start Libraries," as suggesting much saving to those projecting libraries; Mr. Winsor's list of "Reference Books in English" and Mr. Perkins's "Hundred Best Novels," as guiding purchasing committees; Mr. Cutter's and other contributions on cataloguing and bibliography, and Mr. Whitney's department, as furnishing information otherwise inaccessible or costly; the papers and correspondence on how to prevent defacement of books as productive of direct saving in lending libraries; and the various co-operative plans set forth in the JOURNAL, and through its efforts now in actual operation, by which the supplies required by the ordinary library can be purchased of the best sort, at so much less cost as to cover every month more than the price of the JOURNAL. This, without dwelling on its usefulness to librarians for inspiration and guidance, over and above the money-saving. Previous to the co-operative efforts of 1876—the Government Report and Library Conference, whose work the JOURNAL supplements and practicalizes—the librarians had been working, like a carpenter making his own tools, each for himself, in a field where (with each book a duplicate through its edition, and methods generally similar) perplexing questions can easily be settled once for all, and work done by general co-operation with the JOURNAL as a means, at half the usual expense of trouble and money.

The LIBRARY JOURNAL, averaging at least thirty-two quarto pages monthly, elegantly printed, and in every way worthy of the profession, will be sent, post-paid, at $5 the year.

Inquiries should be addressed to Melvil Dewey, Man'g Editor, I Tremont Place, Boston. Subscriptions should be addressed to F. LEYPOLDT, Publisher, 37 Park Row, New York.

FROM RECENT NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"A happy thought—this librarians' organ."—Common-wealth (Boston).
"Every keeper of books ought to have it."—Congregation-ville Courier-Journal.

"The literary work in the initial number is very superior, and the typography is worthy the finest class of book-work."

"This periodical is one which every literary man should have. A rich treasury of thought and experience in all matters pertaining to books and libraries."—N. Y. Times.

"Would save money and time wherever libraries are begun. The whole science of handling books to the end of their best popular use is expounded in its pages with the knowledge which comes by experience."—Literary World (Boston).

"In brief, the American Library Journal, elegantly printed on fine paper, should take its place upon the desk of every librarian and every collector of books, to whom it will furnish more than one useful help."—Journal des Débats (Paris).

"No one at all interested in books or libraries, public).

"No one at all interested in books or libraries, public) or private, but will find in every number, so far issued, information of value that cannot be handily found elsewhere. Each writer has a practical object in view, and is too busy to use unneceshas a practical object in view, and is too busy to use unnecessary words in stating it."—Detroit Free Press.
"A handsomer periodical does not come to our table, nor one which better fills out its announced plan and intent. The number is exceedingly valuable to all readers—to those interested in libraries especially, but to every one who attempts to keep, in any degree, pace with the advance of literature."—

Boston Evening Traveller.

"Aims at supplying that want ot a means of mutual com-munication, suggestion, and discussion which intelligent and active librarians have long felt. There is no reason why the Nourmal should not be as much read on this as on the other side of the Atlantic. To every librarian who wishes to bring his library to the most perfect method and highest degree of usefulness, it bids fair to be invaluable."—Academy (London).

"Ot course all librarians take the Library Journal, for it is a absolute necessity to them. We do not believe there is in an absolute necessity to them. We do not believe there is in the whole country a librarian who cannot find in this number of the Yournal something which it is important for him or her to know; and if the frequenters of libraries as well were to read and heed some of the papers and remarks in the number, it would be better for themselves and a lightening of the load which librarians have to carry."-Cleveland Herald.

"Promises to accomplish more in the way of practical beseft for all readers of books than any dozen publications issued since the invention of printing. To every librarian and to every assistant, in any large library, it is indispensable. It claims the attention of every trustee, director, or manager of any such library, and we are willing to believe that in a short time no one will consent to accept the responsible position of director, in a hoard of library managers, without keeping himdirector, in a board of library managers, without keeping I self constantly acquainted, through the Library Yournal, the current topics of library interests."—St. Louis Globe.

NOTES IN SEASON.

PETERSON BROTHERS have just ready "The Man of the World," by William North, which forms the sixth volume of their really attractive "Dollar Series," and announce as in press and early ready "Panola," a Louisiana tale, by Mrs. Sarah Dorsey. It will be bound in cloth, gold and black, price $1.50.

THE "United States Official Postal Guide" for July, issued by Hurd & Houghton, contains full information respecting the Post-Office Department. It gives all the rates of postage to every country on the globe, the rules which govern as to weight, size, and class of mail matter, the names of all the money-order offices in the country, and a digest of the decisions of the department upon the vexed questions which constantly arise in the course of dealing with the Post-Office. The accuracy of the work and its official character render it very useful to a large class of the community. The "Guide" is published quarterly.

PORTER & COATES publish a household edition, in 23 volumes, of the Waverley Novels, uniform with the 23-volume Author's edition of Dickens. The ever-popular Andersen comes in for a new edition of his stories, which will be issued as "Andersen's Stories for the Household." This will be from new plates, and will have twelve full-page engravings. Grimm's fairy tales, almost as popular as Andersen's, will now be issued in two volumes instead of one as heretofore. "Grimm's Popular Tales" and "Grimm's Household Stories" are the titles. The one-volume edition is reduced from $2.50 to $2.

W. H. STELLE & Co., 7 Murray street, are the publishers and agents of George E. Woodward's art publications. We have received from them the first five numbers of three different serials, all noticable for their typographical excellence and beauty. They are entitled "Woodward's Artistic Drawing Studies for Artists, Art Students, and Schools;" "Woodward's Ornamental and Fancy Alphabets, Monograms, and Titles;" and "The National Architect, Volume 2," a work of interest to every builder or draughtsman. These series will each be completed in 24 numbers, each containing 8 plates with descriptive matter.

LIPPINCOTT & Co. have in preparation two new works from the pen of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, the author of that popular little work " and Tear; or, Hints for the Overworked." "Fat and Blood" is the title of one, and in it the doctor gives full and complete directions for the proper making of such important articles as fat and blood. The other is "Nurse and Patient, and Camp Cure." These two essays first appeared in Lippincott's Magazine, and excited much attention, and are now for the first time published in book form. Treating as they do on subjects of great interest to every one, and of which but comparatively little is known, there is no doubt but that they will find many readers. They have also brought out their pocket edition of Contanseau's French Dictionary and Longman's German Dictionary in a very attractive style. Each work is bound in two volumes, the English portion being in one and the foreign in the other, both volumes being enclosed in a neat cloth case. It is just what is wanted for travellers and students.

THE "New Song Era," revised by Dr. George F. Root and published by John Church & Co., is now on the market. The book has just been used at the National Normal, Warren, Ohio, with great success.

THE first number of the Nineteenth Century has reached a circulation of 18,000, and new editions of the second and third numbers are in press. Really a most important magazine success.

J. MUNSELL has just published the fifth edition, with additions, of an important and interesting work, "Chronology of the Origin and Progress of Paper and Paper-Making," by Joel Munsell. He has also just issued "Arnold's Campaign against Quebec," by John Joseph Henry, one of the soldiers of the expedition.

The International Review for July-August is specially designed for summer reading, being pre-eminently a summer number. The forth-coming number for September-October will contain a most interesting description of printing presses in the article on "The Late World's Fair," by General Francis A. Walker, Chief of Bureau of Rewards.

THE Boston Public Library continues in Bulletin 42 its very valuable notes on courses of reading, consisting of "Early English Explorations in America;" "Russia, Turkey, and the Eastern Question," comprising very extensive notes on titles of books bearing on the history of the Eastern Question; together with reference to articles in American, English and French periodicals of recent date, mostly within the year, on the same subjects, and "History of Mental Philosophy."

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."-LORD BACON.

THE PUBLISHER AND THE LIBRARIES.

THERE are two great agencies in existence for the distribution of books among individual readers, the bookstores and the libraries. former reach the final buyers, the latter are final buyers. The relations of these two systems is one of the most important points for the consideration of the publisher who has a care for the future of his trade, that is of his own business, that is of himself. Much of the difficulty connected with the operation of the "twenty per cent rule" arose from the direction of the libraries, and their relation to the trade is by no means settled.

There is one notion that ought to be abandoned at once-that the libraries, the free libraries in especial, are the enemies of the book trade. We are not prepared to believe that the library, in this respect, runs counter to all the analogies of civilization. It seemed very plain logic, to workingmen, that steam and machinery would take the bread out of their mouths: but it advanced their wages. It seems very plain logic, at first sight, that the libraries by supplying books to lenders prevent sales; but the contrary is in the long run true, that they stimulate sales by educating readers. Few patrons of libraries are content until they have books of their own, and the more they read the more they want books. What they do, however, is to direct book sales into other directions: in purely ephemeral literature they supply much of the immediate demand, and in these books there is no demand but the immediate. They do hurt, we take it, the sale of these books in many instances, though perhaps they make it up in the general by spreading the appetite for this as well as other read-

The high price of English novels is partly due, we should say, to the fact that Mudie's library concentrates most of the demand for them into comparatively small editions. But even should it be shown that their influence on the sales of light literature is wholly restrictive, they do enough in other directions to more than make up the balance.

In this light, the libraries should be looked upon as helping, not hindering, the trade, and the trade, publishers particularly, should be willing to return the compliment. Especially should they join heartily in the present plans of the libraries for co-operative work, which is likely to result in giving the libraries more money to spend for books by the total of what they save in machinery. The publishing trade should give careful attention to their suggestions as to cataloguing, the preparation of title-slips, etc., etc., and it is to be hoped that the New York conference of librarians, September 4th and 5th, will be particularly fruitful in this direction.

There is one particular, however, in which the relations with libraries are not satisfactory. They are, of course, entitled to all the advantages of large buyers, and it is human nature that with those advantages they should buy as low as they possibly can. The result is, with the scramble for trade, that most library purchasers do not pay a margin sufficient to compensate for the actual outlay of work. The Library Association has not proposed to deal co-operatively in books, but, if it did, it would soon find that the cost of storing, handling, and distributing books was a serious matter, amounting very possibly to more than the actual amount which the individual library was paying its bookseller. We submit to publishers, especially, that while a library is to have all the advantages of large customers, there must be over and above these a margin for the men who buy books to sell,-who take the commercial risk; in other words, that neither they nor any one outside the trade should be given the full trade discount. With this the libraries themselves should be contented.

"POLITICAL Economy, Finance, and other Kindred Subjects" is the latest issue of Messrs. Robert Clarke & Co.'s admirable special bibliographies. It comprises American and British works written on such subjects as Banking, Commerce, Free Trade, National Debts, Panics, Poor Laws, Population, Wages, etc. An index to subjects adds to the completeness of the catalogue. Students and readers in special lines will be glad to have the Messrs. Clarke & Co.'s catalogues brought to their notice, as they are among the most time-saving and valuable aids for the bookbuyer.

BOOK NOTICES

"THE JUKES:" A Study in Crime, Pauperism, Disease, and Heredity, by R. L. Dugdale. (Putnam.) This is the third edition, revised and enlarged, of a monograph that has excited a most profound interest among scientists and thinking people having at heart the regenera-tion of criminals and paupers. Under the pseudonym of the "Jukes," Mr. Dugdale follows the career of a family for several generations, tracing its various members and descendants through prisons and poor-houses, finding their numbers year by year growing greater, instead of less, under the present modes of punishment. He calculates now that the "Jukes" number over 1200, all more or less helping to swell the lowest and vilest classes of the community, and that the State has already expended over a million dollars in their behalf. The design of the essay is to call attention to our prison system, and to substitute new methods which will prove reformatory and rid society somewhat of the fast-in-creasing class, so-called "Jukes," that infest and degrade the lower strata of all large towns and cities. The essay is introduced by some appropriate remarks by Dr. Elisha Harris, Corresponding Secretary Prison Association. 8vo, cloth, $1.25.

VILLAGE IMPROVEMENTS AND FARM VILLAGES, by Geo. E. Waring, Jr. (Osgood.) The four papers contained in this volume, viz., "Village Improvements," "Village Sanitary Work," "Farm Villages," and "Life and Work of the Eastern Farmer," are reprinted, with some amendments, the first three from Scribner's Monthly, and the last from the Atlantic. Every one will be glad to find these essays in permanent form, as the interest in the topics discussed is widespread and growing. "Little Classic" style. 75 cents.

AMERICAN SEASIDE RESORTS. (Taintor Bros., M. & Co.) This handy little guide-book describes all the seaside resorts on the Atlantic coast, from the St. Lawrence river to the Gulf of Mexico. It tells of the hotels to be found, the prices and accommodations offered, and the means of transportation. It is an invaluable guide to all seeking a resting-place for the summer. 25 cents.

THAT HUSBAND OF MINE. (Lee & S.) Evidently written by no inexperienced pen, although the lady does not give her name, chosing to appear anonymously, according to the present fashion. The story is a mere trifle, with only a thread of a plot, but exceedingly clever and amusing notwithstanding. "That husband of mine" is one of the unfortunates in life who are always, figuratively speaking, putting their foot in it. His want of tact and awkward blunders produce any amount of laughable scenes, and move his pretty little wife from tears to smiles with amusing swiftness. The character-sketching is very vivid and lifelike. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1; pap., 50 cents.

THE PRESERVATION OF BEAUTY, by Dr. Leo. (De Colange & Co.) This work, based upon well-known hygienic principles, is a most excellent handbook for the use of ladies, both young and old. It shows how beauty is only preserved through the preservation of the health, and gives many rules for the latter, which are exceedingly simple and yet known to be helpful. The hair, the teeth, the eyes, the skin, etc., etc., all come under discussion, and the reader is told how each may be improved or retained in full beauty. A number of recipes add to the value of the work. These recipes consist of perfectly harmless ingredients, and are offered as beautifying cost metics in the place of the many injurious ones in the market. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

REMINISCENCES OF FRIEDRICH FROEBEL, by B. von Marenholz-Bulow, translated by Mrs. Horace Mann. (Lee & S.) The last four years only of Froebel's life are embraced in these reminiscences. They give, however, one of the fullest expositions of his methods of training and his views upon education we have yet seen. The man's own nature and various peculiarities, with many little particulars of his domestic life, and his struggles with the world and with fortune to carry out his special views, are described in a graphic and careful way, that gives the book an unusual interest. In the appendix will be found a paper by Mrs. Emily Shirreff, President of the Froebel Society of London, and author of "Intellectual Education of Women," which gives in a brief but very satisfactory manner all the particulars of Froebel's life. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE COMPLETE ARITHMETIC, by Albert N. Raub. (Porter & C.) This work is offered to supply a growing need in our schools for a shorter course in arithmetic. The author says, "that the truth that too much time is given in our schools to the subject of arithmetic" has constantly forced itself upon his attention during twenty years' experience as a teacher. As he considers that the term "mental arithmetic," as applied to the study as pursued, is a misnomer, the same mental or intellectual process being necessary however the problem be solved, whether orally or written, he has considered the subject under the general head of arithmetic, the processes being either oral or written, as the teacher prefers. The work is carefully graded and very practical, the problems being drawn from the various business interests of 12mo, bds., 80 cents.

SWINE HUSBANDRY, by F. D. Coburn. (Orange Judd Co.) Our agricultural literature has heretofore been deficient in works giving an account of the wholesale process of pork-making, as practised in the great corn-producing States; the present book, therefore, by one practically engaged in the pursuit, will be generally welcomed. The first portion of the work discusses the claim of leading breeds, their characteristics and worth; the second, the raising and fattening of swine; while the third goes very carefully into the diseases of swine, giving practical information as to their causes, symptoms, prevention, and cure. The author not only gives his own experience, but, to render his work as valuable as possible, embraces that of the most practical, successful, and observant men who have followed the business. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

GRETCHEN'S JOYS AND SORROWS, from the German of Clementine Helm. (Williams & Co.) SEPTEMBER-OCTOBER, 1877.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market will find the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns, from the records of the Publishers' Weekly, containing the titles and prices of the Principal Books Published During the Previous Month and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, invariably payable in advance.

As the December issue will hereafter be published as a double (Christmas) number, regular subscribers at the above rates, who fail to send their special order, will receive only one half the quantity for this month. Special terms for the Christmas number will be announced in the Publishers' Weekly during the month of November.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED

PETERS'S GENERAL HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT.

The Rev. Samuel Peters's original "History of Connecticut, from its First Settlement to its Latest Period of Amity with Great Britain, prior to the Revolution; London, 1781." To which are added, Additions to Appendix, Notes, and Extracts from Letters verifying many important statements made by the Author. By Samuel Jarvis McCormick.

Dr. Peters's "History of Connecticut" was published in London in 1781, and but few copies of the work came to this country. Its truthfulness was so supplied to a portion of the New England people, that tradition says they had the copies collected, and burned by the public hangman, and the republication of it prohibited by the court.

Among the many amusing incidents and historical facts contained in the work, are those of the original "Blue Laws" of the colony, prohibiting the making of mince-pies, shaving, walking (except reverently to and from meeting), or a mother kissing her child upon the Sabbath-day; the ridiculous fright of the Wendham County Braves, by the troops of frogs; Jonathan Trumbull's base treatment of Dr. Peters, and his action regarding the destruction of the teas in Boston Harbor; John Hancock's duplicity in instigating the destruction of the teas, for the purpose of disposing of his own stock; the barbarous treatment of the Rev. Mr. Beach, by dragging him across the Osootonoc River by the neck, for praying for the royal family during divine service; Benedict Arnold and Colonel Wooster's attack on Dr. Peters, who defe ids himself; his escape from Boston, and meeting he trooper in search of him; his concealment in the two on the sea-shore, and escape to England in the ship "Fox;" the singular custom of bundling in the colony, etc., with many amusing anecdotes; the story of the love affair of the deacon's daughter, etc. Also a full description of all the towns in Connecticut, giving the manners, customs, and habits of the people at that period, with the products and manufactures of the country.

Mr. James Hammond Trumbull, the author of the work entitled "The True Blue-Laws of Connecticut and New Haven, and the False Blue-Laws invented by the Rev. Samuel Peters," attempts to throw discredit upon the history, and accuses Dr. Peters of inventing these "Blue-Laws," when, in fact, the laws mentioned, it will be found, were in force a century before he was born. The work having now become very rare (so much so that a copy in March last brought, at a public auction, the great price of $115). the editor has been induced to republish it, for the purpose of laying before the public both sides of the question (they having heretofore had but one side), giving them an opportunity to judge for themselves of its truthfulness; using such notes and quotations from authors and writers of high standing, and from unpublished documents, manuscripts, and journals, belonging to the late Dr. Peters, as have come into his possession since Mr. Trumbull's work appeared,

"Until the Day Break" is a novel of American life and society, and the strong delineation of character, as well as the absorbing interest of the story, will give it a high place among the best works of fiction of the day. The work is realistic; events occur in the same manner as they do in actual life, and the characters are persons, with whom we become acquainted, and for whom we have our predilections and our dislikes. It is essentially an American novel, and portrays the strong points as well as the defects of our social life.

NOTES IN SEASON

THE "Monthly Reference Lists" supplement to the Publishers' Weekly has been thrown out by the P. O. Department, and we are compelled to notify our subscribers of the probable discontinuance of that feature in supplements. The June-July lists will be sent to any subscriber enclosing a stamp for postage. We shall discuss the matter hereafter.

W. J. WIDDLETON will publish this week "The Prose Tales of Edgar Allan Poe," in a paper edition, at 50 cents a series.

APPLETON & Co. have in preparation Dr. Cunningham Geikie's "Life of Christ," which they will publish in two volumes octavo, with maps.

DODD, MEAD, & Co. will begin their autumn work with the Rev. E. P. Roe's new story, "A Knight of the Nineteenth Century," and an entirely new edition of J. S. C. Abbott's "American Pioneers and Patriots."

WE were misinformed last week in stating that F. T. Bartlett, State Assayer of Massachusetts, was about to publish a work; it should have been F. L. Bartlett, State Assayer of Maine.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. will publish Dr. Holland's new novel, "Nicholas Minturn," very soon, and Jules Verne's story, "Hector Servadoc. They will add to the series of "Epochs of English History" a history of "The Age of Queen Anne," by E. E. Morris.

HARPER & BROTHERS have nearly ready Dr. Charles Anthon's notes on Euripides, "Cooking Receipts from Harper's Bazar" in their Half-Hour Series, and the "Midsummer Night's Dream" in Rolfe's edition of Shakespeare.

Blackmore's "Erema," Mary Patrick's "Marjorie Bruce's Lovers," Mrs. Leith Adam's "Winstowe," and Mrs. Oliphant's "Carità" will be their forthcoming novels.

T. Y. CROWELL has added to his list of Sunday-school juveniles the "Follen Stories," originally published by H. B. Fuller. "The Well-Spent Hour," by Eliza Lee Follen, has just been reissued, and will be followed shortly by the sequel, "The Birthday."

PORTER & COATES have new editions of Mrs. Leonowen's works, formerly published by the Osgoods, "The English Governess at the Siamese Court" and "Romance of the Harem," at $1.25 each, and also "Remarkable Events in the World's History." They have also added to their list "Duyckink's Cyclopædia of American Literature," 2 vols. imperial 8vo.,

HENRY HOLT & Co. will presently publish "Pauline," by the author of "Mrs. Smith," as the 91st volume in their "Leisure Hour Series," and two new works upon Eastern matters, namely, Sir Edward Creasy's "History of the Ottoman Turks," and "Egypt as It Is," by J. C. McCoan, which will be published as a companion volume to Wallace's "Russia" and Baker's "Turkey."

"THAT Husband of Mine" is heard of everywhere. His persistency in attracting public attention is equalled only by his pertinacity in getting into scrapes. Advance orders for 20,000 copies of a new venture are something extraordinary, but these orders seem fully justified by the hit the book is making. Much of its success is due to the very clever and salient advertising with which Lee & Shepard are pushing the book. For this booksellers should show themselves grateful.

CLERKS' MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIA-

We should be glad to hear more from Mr. Geyer's suggestion for an insurance or mutual benefit association among stationery clerks, which, as a well-known traveller suggested to us, might well take a broader range, to include the clerks of the combined book and stationery trade. How far class associations for insurance purposes are useful and desirable is of course a mooted point in life insurance, but perhaps the most significant bit of evidence that can be quoted is the fact that the insurance clerks themselves, instead of or besides insuring in their own companies, have a mutual benefit association of the kind, which has so far worked excellently. The principles of their organization are very simple. Each applicant, after passing a careful medical examination, pays an admission fee proportioned to his age, thus equalizing the system with that of the There are now several regular companies. hundred members, and on the death of any one a dollar from each is paid over to his representatives without red tape. The assessments are always kept one ahead, so that payment of losses may be prompt, and the collection is done by the single salaried officer of the association, who receives about $500 per year for the proportion of his time which he gives to this work. The admission fees or a slight yearly tax are usually sufficient to cover the expenses outside of the payments on deaths.

The success of such an organization depends primarily upon the accuracy with which the tables for admissions are made, the carefulness of medical examination, and the wise selection of the executive agent. There are many advantages of this system, and also many disadvantages, in comparison with the usual insurance methods. We trust there may be enough interest in the question to bring out the arguments pro and con such an association in our trade in some detail.

BOOK NOTICES.

MY THREE CONVERSATIONS WITH M CHESTER, by F. B. Perkins. (Putnam.) strange history of the singular mesmeric influence one mind exercised over another. The story is told in three conversations which the hero has with a Miss Chester, a lady he meets at a Fifth-avenue reception, and who afterwards becomes his bride. The first volume of the "Traveller's Series." Sq. 16mo, paper, 25 cents.

Two Kisses, by Hawley Smart. (Loring.) The two kisses which play such an important part in this novel are the innocent agents which separate a husband and wife. Of course there is a long misunderstanding on both sides, and then matters finally adjust themselves. The scene of the story is England, the characters being fashionable society people. story is well written, and very bright and clever. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

UNTIL THE DAY BREAK, by Mrs. J. M. D. Bartlett ("Birch Arnold"). Laura Gordon is the name of the young lady whose heart-experiences fill up this volume. She is an American country girl who has been jilted by a fashionable city man. Her father sends her to New York to be consoled, in the care of a fashionable aunt, who polishes her up and takes her into society, where she again meets the gay deceiver, and has the pleasure of retaliating by rejecting him in her turn. There is a good deal of light and shade in the book, some very dark pictures of crime and villainy, and some very bright ones of society and society people. hero of the book turns out to be a "sawdust" man and the son of a murderess, and finally commits suicide, while the heroine through sorrow and trouble is taught to be more true and womanly, and at last reaches the "sunrise." International Series." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, by Josiah W. Leeds. (Lippincott.) In spite of the numerous histories of the United States that have been written, the present one is noticeable for its comprehensiveness and its thoroughness. Besides giving a full history of our wars, with all the details of the battles, it goes into many side issues, such as the Indians, slaves, the early settlers and discoverers, the Northmen and the Mound-Builders, which have had a strong influence upon our country's welfare, but which are rarely entered into with any show of completeness by writers of school histories. The writer is evidently a member of the Society of Friends, as he deprecates the instilling into pupils what he calls "warlike ideas," by merely dwelling upon the wars of our own country; hence his endeavor to supply information of many things in our past and present, a knowledge of which will tend to promote peace and prosperity. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WE regret to learn, as we go to press, of the death of the eminent London publisher, Mr. William Longmans.

THE Athenaum denies the statement which has appeared in some American papers that Sir W. Vernon Harcourt has undertaken to write a life of the late Mr. Motley.

MR. GEORGE H. TRIPP is authoritatively announced by Lockwood, Brooks & Co. as the author of that popular novel "Student Life at Harvard," of which they have just published a cheaper edition for $1.

TRÜBNER & Co. have just sent out the "Bibliotheca Orientalis," which is a complete list of books, papers, serials, and essays published in 1876 in England and the Colonies, Germany and France, on the history, languages, religions, antiquities, literature, and geography of the East, compiled by Charles Friederici. The list may be had in New York of Westermann & Co.

E. C. EASTMAN has just published the "Memoir and Official Correspondence of General John Stark," the hero of Bennington, written by his grandson, Caleb Stark. The book contains also biographies of Captain Phineas Stevens and of Colonel Robert Rogers, with an account of his services in America during the "Seven Years' War."

So little is known by the public at large of the laws under which they live and are governed that Thomas L. Smith, late Judge of the Supreme Court of Indiana, has compiled a work called "Elements of the Laws." With this in his hand, the citizen can acquire a complete knowledge of his legal rights and privileges in the most important political and business relations of the citizen of the country. It will soon be issued.

MR. JAMES T. FIELDS is engaged on two important volumes. The first volume, of about 800 pages, will be entitled "Family Library of English Poetry, from Chaucer to Tennyson," and will contain all the standard poems in the language that are not too long to be embraced in such a collection. The other volume, of the same size, will bear the title of "Family Library of English Prose, from Sir Philip Sidney to John Ruskin," and will contain specimens of the best prose authors in the language.

PROF. MATHEWS' "Hours with Men and Books" is meeting with a very favorable reception in England. The London Morning Post, in a long review of it, remarks that "a vigorous intellect, wide and attentive reading, a tenacious memory, a lucid and nervous style, are the gifts underlying the pleasant pages of this eminently readable book. . A storehouse of valuable information and pleasantly imparted, and combined with much originality of thought. 'Hours with Men and Books' will be welcome on both sides of the Atlantic. These essays evince a high state of culture without a single trace of the bookworm. They stimulate like wine and refresh the sense like flowers."

LIPPINCOTT & Co. have two new works under way that will be particularly welcome at this season. Every one is now travelling who can, and all works that give information in the way of sketches of travel, stories of adventure, and descriptions of places, will be eagerly sought after. Just such a work is "Persons, Places, and Things," with its two hundred illustrations, and also "Highways and By-ways of American Travel." The latter is made up of contributions from such well-known writers as Edward Strahan, Sydney Lanier, the author of "Florida," E. A. Pollard, etc. Like its companion, it will have plenty of illustrations. "Pegasus Resaddled" is the title of the new work by the author of "Puck and Pegasus," Mr. H. C. Pennell. It will make a small quarto volume, and will contain twelve illustrations by the celebrated artist Du Maurier, all of them full page. One of the handsomest books ever issued by this house will be that of Thomas à Kempis' "On the Imitation of Christ." The illustrations are of the finest order of steel engraving, and are by the most renowned artists of Europe. The binding is extremely appropriate, it being bound in dark vellum with white label.

THE list of Smithsonian publications, as re vised up to July, 1877, shows a total of issues of 319, distributed among its Miscellaneous Collections (octavo), Contributions to Knowledge (quarto), and the Annual Reports to Congress, in addition to which are a number of monographs not appearing in either of the above. As the earlier editions printed were comparatively small, nearly all of the first fifty issues (in chronological order) are now out of print, as are also many of the second fifty; after the first hundred, however, copies of most can be obtained by the public at prices ranging from fifteen cents to twenty dollars. The present catalogue gives full data as to author, title, size, date, and price, arranged in order of publication; a table of contents of the Contributions and Collections; a list of the Reports; a classification by subject; an index to titles and authors, and the contents of the Reports: the whole forming what would be a model publisher's catalogue.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

St. Nicholas for September will beging George MacDonald's story "Gone Astray," a Scottish narrative which is said to contain many fine touches and descriptions. The same magazine will also soon bring out "Under the Lilacs," a serial which Louisa M. Alcott has been busy writing during the past spring and summer, and a short illustrated story by the author of "Alice in Wonderland."

Lippincott's Magazine will publish in September an anonymous article on Madame Patterson-Bonaparte, which is likely to attract much attention. In the same number will also appear "Among the Kabyles," by E. C. Bruce; an amusing account of the Venetian playwriter, Carlo Gozzi; and a paper on the Battle of the Brandywine, by Mr. Howard Jenkins.

In Scribner's Monthly Edward Eggleston's novel "Roxy" will succeed Dr. Holland's "Nicholas Minturn." Dr. Eggleston's new work, like his other books, deals with Western life, and is said by some who have seen it in the manuscript to be his most careful and important study of character and life in that part of the country with which his "Hoosier Schoolmaster" and other stories have already made the public somewhat familiar.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY as the source of their information.

E. WALTER GILES has left for the West, making his usual trip for the Esterbrook Pen Co.

CHAS. S. ADAMS will make his usual trip through the East for Willy Wallach in a few days.

J. A. McQuillan, who has been in the paperbox business for the past several months, has accepted a position as travelling agent with Geo. Routledge & Sons, of New York.

THOS. KRAFT, for many years engaged in the store of Willy Wallach, has now started on a trip for the above house, and we trust will meet with every success in his new position.

VICTOR E. MAUGER & PETRIE, wholesale agents for Waterston, Sons & Stewart's "Bee Brand" Sealing Wax, announce a reduction in those goods in a circular dated August 15.

FARRINGTON'S Blotter and Clip are meeting with marked success in the trade. They are handy, cheap, and durable, and adapted to the use of ladies at home, as well as for general business purposes. James G. Kent, 145 Nassau street, New York, is the general agent.

In a circular dated August I, the Richards Manufacturing Company, of New York, announce a reduction in the price of their "Perfect Mucilage Bottle." The recent improvements in this bottle have so much improved its utility that it may safely be asserted that it is to-day better than it ever was. The manufacturers warrant every bottle to work perfectly. No stationer should be without them.

MYERS BROS., 62 John street, New York, are now prepared to offer to the trade a handsome line of new papeteries for the fall trade, among which are the Poulet de Luxe, Bothnia, and Scythia; the two latter are put up in handsome wicker boxes tastefully decorated, containing one quire and envelopes in Baronial and Royal note sizes. This house has taken the store on the ground-floor, giving increased facilities for its growing business.

Wm. P. Dane, 139 William street, New York, has just issued a new catalogue and price-list, together with sample-book of standard cover papers. The price-list is very complete, and contains glazed, plated, and enamelled papers, French enamelled tints, white enamelled in ordinary and special sizes (which he carries in stock), pamphleticover-papers, fine linen papers, colored mediums, tissue, fine satin-finished wedding tints, waterproof, tin-foil, and gold and silver papers, as well as foreign and domestic embossed. The catalogue comprises 22 pages exclusive of cover. Every stationer should have one.

LIEBENROTH, Von Auw & Co. have just published a most unique and appropriate gift-book called the "Floral Album," which is a happy combination of an autograph-book and the language of flowers. The latter idea is fully carried out by having a series of twelve beautiful floral illustrations, selected with particular reference to their meaning, placed at equal intervals in the book, leaving room on the page containing the plate for the inscription of the desired verse, sentiment, or autograph. The album is made in two sizes, crown and demy octavo, oblong, and in three styles of binding, viz.: cloth, Persian, and Persian illuminated in gold and silver. The retail prices will be $1 to $2.25, according to the style, and as these figures are only slightly higher than those asked for the ordinary autograph-book, we predict an unusually large demand for this very attractive souvenir.

G. A. RAISBECK, representing Ph. Hake, has left on his regular fall trip through the West. He carries as handsome a line of samples as we have ever seen, comprising fine card and wedding stock in every variety and style. The wedding goods are a new feature with this house, and for quality and finish are not excelled. Mr. Hake has also added a very large and varied line of mourning papers and envelopes which are neatly gotten up, as well as numerous new styles of visiting cards with bevelled edges gilded and silvered, also in blue and cardinal red, silver and gold mourning (called "Hake's New Mourning"), which are chaste in every particular: they are also made round and square cornered, and are entirely new. His perquisites for ball purposes are gotten up in an elaborate style, and cannot fail to meet with general favor. Mr. Hake has made great improvements in pasting and finishing his superior white and cream wedding goods, and also in banding, boxing, and putting up for sale all his manufactures.

THE attention of the trade is called to a new instrument entitled the "Juvenile Time Instructor." is designed for teaching children how to tell time, and is made to all outward appearances like a marine clock. The centre-post extends through the back and is fitted with a wheel, by means which the teacher can move the hands backward and forward, and the gearing is so perfect that the smallest turn of the wheel moves both hands as accurately as the turn of a key does those of a watch. The dial is about six inches in diameter, and is numbered (in addition to the usual Roman figures), from 5 to 30 showing the minutes after the hour, and from 25 to 5 showing the minutes to the hour (see cut), so that the pupil is more easily taught to comprehend the divisions. The need of just such an article has long been felt by the teachers in the public schools and kindergartens, as the endorsement of over 3000 of them, received at the Centennial Exhibition, proves. Price, $3, with liberal discount to the trade. Peter Paul & Bros., Buffalo, N. Y., are sole agents for the United States.

the language of flowers. The latter idea is The same firm have just issued a handsomelyfully carried out by having a series of twelve lithographed show-card of their well-known "Ladies' Visites and Calling Record," to be presented to the trade through Messrs. Chamberlin. Whitmore & Co., 45 Beekman street, N. Y., their agents for the United States. They (Messrs. Peter Paul & Bros.) have made several improvements in the new issue of the "Visites;" the most prominent consists in having the book adjustable, so that when filled it is easily replaced by duplicate blank sheets at a trifling cost.

NOTES IN SEASON

THE Trade Sale will open on the 19th of September if the catalogue can be prepared in time for thorough distribution. If not, probably at the beginning of the week following. One of the largest sales for many years is promised. The Cincinnati Trade Sale is also to be remembered by the Western and Southern trade.

THE next parcel of "Vest-Pocket" books will include Favorite Poems by Coleridge and Byron, Schiller's world-famous "Lay of the Bell," and Thomson's "Winter." These little volumes please the public immensely.

GEO. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week Prof. Proctor's "New Star Atlas," with twelve circular maps; the long promised part second, relating to non-metallic substances, of Thorpe's valuable "Inorganic Chemistry;" and John B. Jervis' treatise on "Labor and Capital," in which that veteran engineer gives the results of a lifetime of experience.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have now ready the group reports of the Centennial Exhibition, and three reports on special machinery exhibits, at prices according to number of pages, d the twenty-two remaining will follow as eedily as possible. Complete sets of the re-1 rts, when completed, will be furnished at 10, and there is a reasonable discount to purasers in quantities.

GINN & HEATH have in press, and will pubh some time next month, Prof. George A. entworth's "Elements of Geometry," Prof. rrison's "Odes of Horace in English Verse," aucer's "Parlament of Foules," and "Paral-Rules of Greek and Latin Syntax," which tter is designed to put clearly to a student correspondences and the differences in eek and Latin syntax.

U. D. WARD has in preparation a story by Rev. Wm. D. Hedden, entitled "Sunshine among the Clouds," which will deal of the power of truth when severely tested by trial, and be based on facts of an interesting and instructive nature; the price of it is set at $1.50. He will also soon issue a new series of four volumes to be called the "Aim High Series," consisting of "Mary Rutlege," "Lenore's Trials," "Deserted Jesse," and "Old Grips."

THE National Temperance Society has in press, and will publish next month, "Alcohol and the State," by Hon. Robert C. Pittman, of Mass. From what we can judge by the chap-ter headings of the book, this vexed question of alcohol and the State will be treated exhaustively and from more than one point of view. It will contain about 350 pages, and be sold at $1.50. The same society has also just issued the "Liquor Laws of the United States," including decisions of courts, etc. Price, 25 cents.

If the other books which are to follow "Other People's Children" in the same neat square 16mo do half as well, G. P. Putnam's Sons will have no reason to complain of the Mr. Habberton's latest is summer trade. already up to 35,000 copies, and is still selling at the rate of nearly a thousand a day. "His Grandmothers," said to be a very bright book, will follow within a fortnight, and soon after another anonymous venture under the clever title of "Six Sinners."

"TRAPS Baited with Orphans; or, What is the Matter with Life Insurance?" is the somewhat startling title of a little book by Mr. Elizur Wright, and just ready at J. R. Osgood & Co.'s. Mr. Wright's long and intimate acquaintance with the whole subject of life insurance enables him to discuss it with especial force and intelli-gence. The recent miserable failures of some life-insurance companies, and the sense of insecurity produced thereby, will gain for Mr. Wright's wise and pithy book an immediate and eager reading.

THE family is now complete. Beginning, in inverse genealogy, with "Helen's Babies" and "Other People's Children," we have now "That Husband of Mine" and "That Wife of Mine," "My Mother-in-Law," and "His Grandmothers"—"Six Sinners" in all. "They All Do It," these publishers, but this completes the present census of "A Paper City."—The explanation of all which will be found in the planation of all which will be found in the current number of the Publishers' Weekly by any one who wears glasses sufficiently strong to distinguish small type.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready several books of interest. Miss Kate Thompson's hand-book to the "Public Picture Galleries of Europe" is exceedingly useful to tourists, giving in one part a brief sketch of the progress of painting in each country, mentioning the leading works of great artists, and in the other select catalogues of the principal picture-galleries, directing the observer to those paintings best worth seeing. There are also a new volume of Dean Stanley's addresses and sermons, at St. Andrew's; a little volume summarizing "The Treaty Relations between Russia and Turkey," with the text of the leading treaties; Prof. Archibald Geikie's "Physical Geography," a remarkably compact and informing text-book, with many illustrations, etc.

THE OLD STORY AGAIN.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 21, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

I would like to make an inquiry regarding discounts to libraries. I had supposed that 20 per cent was the established discount, but some time ago, finding that I was losing this kind of trade and that others were getting it, and this, too, of parties who had made application to me for prices, I resolved that in future I too would give the 25 per cent; but imagine my surprise, some few days ago, when I was applied to for discounts on a collection, to receive from a reliable source the following reply by mail: 'Yours received. We would be glad to buy from you, but a party in Boston offers to supply us with the desired books at 331 per cent from retail prices.' Now if the publishers of books can find no remedy for this, can they, in all human probability, expect dealers who get but 33} per cent, and who rely upon a certain amount of this kind of trade, to pay one hundred cents on the dollar? In my own case, it does not so much interfere with me as it does with some other dealers, as I do not depend upon books alone for a profit. But I should, for the good of the whole book trade, like it very much if this sort of business could be stopped, aid I, for one, will never buy from a house which I am aware protects its trade in this kind Respectfully yours, 0 a way. JAMES D. GILL.

CURIOSITIES OF THE TRADE.

The following letter was lately received by a | blisher out West:

" Augest the 7.

"Dear Sirs, allow me to ask what way yow int books as I think I shal have som writing itch I think of geting put into a book this il it wil be a history of life in part and decription of things of difrent kind if it is all put to gether pleas let me know yowr rules of doing sutch work.

" Pleas anser sone."

A NEW YORK publisher, "David Apleton, book store, 549 and 551 Broadway," was similarly favored one day recently with a series of postal-cards of which the two annexed are examples:

"Mr. Apleton, Sir. I want to know Who you Claim to buy the Dickens Works from. I Claim the right of all the works of Charles Dickens of Europe. I am the person known as Edwin Drood and Ollever Twist and the other Caracters of the Dickens Works yours Edwin Drood Detroit.'

"Mr. Apleton My post office address is homas Stackable Edwin Drood Deroit Mich I have never Sold you any right of the Dickens Works the person that Sold the right to you is a perjurer named Eugene Hale or Zachrioh Chandler of Detroit I Can prove you a perjurer. and I will advertise the Books for Sale. Now My address is Thomas Stackable Detroit Mich."

GOOD WORDS.

An appreciative correspondent, on sending his subscription for the Trade-List Annual, closes his letter with: "The book trade throughout the country is under great obliga-tion to you for your labor in their behalf in compiling and arranging for them the trade lists of the different publishers. Speaking for myself, I can truly say that I could hardly get along without this work; scarcely an hour passes without its pages being consulted by some one. Thanking you once more for your effort, and trusting that your subscription-list will be of great length and prove remunerative, I remain, etc., D. F. W.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

FALL PROSPECTS.

THE prospects for next fall look much brighter than they did a month ago, and the feeling through the trade seems to be generally hopeful. This improvement in feeling is based largely on the reports from the crops, which continue to give more promise than for many years, and on the belief that if, having reached hard-pan, we can once get things moving again, there is likely to be a steady increase in prosperity. This belief seems to have solid foundation, and on it hopes of improvement that shall be permanent are built up. The strikes have not interfered with business so much as was feared at the time, and there is less solicitude from trouble in this direction.

Most of the publishers are making preparation for a reasonably busy season, as their lists of announcements will show, but we do not propose to put them before the trade until the opening of the season, when there begins to be practical interest in them. The trade sale will open Sept. 19th, or shortly after, and our Fall Announcement Number is planned for the issue for Sept. 8th. Announcements and advertisements should be forwarded as early as possible.

A CORRESPONDENT tells anew the old story, of as large discounts to libraries as the trade itself gets. On this point we have recently spoken freely, but at present it seems useless to urge a better practice. The twenty per cent rule certainly no longer holds as to libraries—if it holds in any particular—except on the common-sense and individual ground that it doesn't pay to do business for nothing.

OBITUARY.

WE hear with regret that Walter S. Campbell, son of James Campbell, the well-known publisher of Boston, died on the 20th instagement of Boston, died on the 20th instagement of Boston, died on the 20th instagement of Boston, after an illness of eleven months. Although a young man (34 years of age), Mr. Campbell had few superiors as far as the knowledge of the book trade is concerned, and had life been spared him, would no doubt have taken a lead in the affairs of the trade some time in the future. Such men as he are greatly missed.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FIRMIN-DIDOT ET CIE. have ready the second volume of Amb. Firmin-Didot's French translation of Thucydides' History of the Peloponnesian War. The work is to form three volumes.

GUILLAUMIN, GARNIER & BLOCK'S Year-book (Annuaire) of Political Economy and Statistics for 1877, now in its 34th year, has just been published by Guillaumin & Cie., at its usual price of 6 fr.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. have just published in their "Vest Pocket Series" Holmes "The Story of Iris," Dickens' "Mr. Nightingale's Diary," Tennyson's "The Princess," and James Thomson's "Autumn."

THE "New Song Era," revised by Dr. Geo. F. Root, contains 60 pages of new matter, and is just published by John Church & Co., at the same price as the "Song Era," 75 cents per copy or $7.50 per dozen.

LEE & SHEPARD have already printed 52,000 copies of "That Husband of Mine"! And apparently he has only just begun his conquests. This "mine" of a husband has suggested to the lucky author the immediate production of the companion story about "That Wife of Mine."

THE London Spectator pronounces Miss Jewett's "Deephaven" very charming, and says, "If New England has many such young women as Kate Lancaster and her friend, and has also such very pleasant writers to describe them to us, it is very much to be congratulated."

HERBERT SPENCER is to appear in a French translation. The first volume of "Essays Moral, Scientific, and Æsthetic" is announced under the French title "Essais sur le Progrès," translated by M. A. Burdeau, in Baillière's "Bibliothèque de philosophie contemporaine."

AUG. BERTH. AUERBACH, of Stuttgart, has just published a clever translation by Heichen-Abenheim of Bret Harte's "My Friend the Tramp," "New York between 6 and 7 A.M.," "The Man from Solano," "A Night in a Sleeping-Car," and "Sanherib's Death."

FROM the annual book catalogue for Sweden for 1876 we learn that 1044 new works were published there in that year. The catalogue classifies them according to subject, theology comprising 192 works, general literature 166, historical literature 126, philosophy 8.

THE circulation of German literature in Russia is large, and many Russian bookselling houses are managed by Germans, with German connections. The latter have received news that their correspondents in Russia are unable for the present to settle in full.

GARNIER FRÈRES have just issued the first volume of the Literary Correspondence of Grimm and Diderot, with annotations, etc., by Maurice Tourneux, to embrace 10 volumes uniform with Garnier's edition of Diderot's complete works, of which the last (20th) volume has also just made its appearance.

THE third volume of the "Sea-Side Series." which D. Lothrop & Co. are issuing for the young folks, is entitled "Pehe Nu-e, the Tiger Whale," and is a captivating story, for boys, of adventure in the Pacific Ocean. The two preadventure in the Pacific Ocean. vious issues, which have rendered this series so popular, were "Nan: the New-Fashioned Girl" and "Good-for-Nothing Polly."

Messes. Firmin-Didot Frères call attention elsewhere in this issue to a number of their superb publications for which enterprising booksellers should find sale in the United States, not simply among French customers, but among all who appreciate books de luxe. Paul Lacroix's new volume, "The Eighteenth Century," for instance, will be one of the leading features of the holiday trade. Of these books we shall speak further in a later issue.

MR. JAMES P. HOYT, of Newtown, Conn., has just published "An Outline of a New Method with English, with an English Language Exera tabular sheet the object of which is to state in the briefest manner possible the essentials of language and grammar, and to present a novel but thoroughly-tested and successful form for applying the knowledge previously acquired, and for perfecting the student in everything pertaining to a mastery of the English language.

According to the Journal des Débats, the annual circulation per head of population in France consists of 10 letters and 4 newspaper or book post packets, while it consists in Great Britain and Ireland of 34 letters and 5 packets; in Switzerland, 27 and 17; Germany, 25 and 11; Holland, 14 and 7; Belgium, 13 and 12; Denmark, 11 and 10. The countries in which the circulation is less than in France are Austria (10 and 2); Norway and Sweden (5 and 5); Spain, Italy, and Hungary (4 and 2). In Russia, Roumania, and Turkey the average is I letter and I packet per individual per an-Where the rates are lowest the circulation is largest.

When the pen is dipped in water, the ink-solid will, to a certain extent, dissolve in the water and produce an ink or writing fluid which will be given off by the pen in the usual way of writing. It is mounted on a nickel-plated holder, and made so that the pen can be drawn up and into the same.

DAVID A. ROBERTS, Columbus, O., has received a patent for an indexing process. The book is opened to any desired page by placing a blade (provided with a shoulder to bear against the edges of the closed leaves) upon the first leaf, when a slight pressure and a downward movement cause the blade to pass through consecutive slits until a point is reached opposite the desired page number, seen upon a movable or fixed marginal index. The book has a slit in each leaf, each successive slit being cut a little lower down as described, to adapt a book to be posted in the manner described.

T. ORTON, Chicago, Ill., has patented a temporary binder. It is an index constructed of folded sheets slit in the backs, and having the alternate flaps united, thereby forming an extensible or chain back, for the purpose of holding postal-cards, which may be filed under the appropriate index and in connection with letters if desired.

Publishers' Trade-List Annual For 1877.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL for 1877 is expected to be ready in August. The special features this year will be the resumption of the Annual Reference List, which, embracing the books published from July 1, 1876, to June 30, 1877, will serve as the first Supplement to the American Catalogue, now well advanced toward publication, and an entirely new Educational Catalogue, compiled from the new revised publishers' lists.

The price will be One Dollar per copy, bound in cloth. The price of the volume will be raised after close of subscription.

No single subscriptions can be taken into account that have not been paid up on day of publication, as the small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor the expense or risk of numerous accounts, bills, statements, and subsequent collections.

Remittances should be made by money-order on New York, or registered letter, as we cannot be responsible for any losses. Receipt for remittance will be sent by return mail.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be dispatched by express.

DR. HOLLAND'S NEW NOVEL,

NICHOLAS MINTURN

A STUDY IN A STORY.

By DR. J. G. HOLLAND,

AUTHOR OF "SEVENOAKS," "ARTHUR BONNICASTLE," ETC., ETC.

I Vol., large 12mo, WITH FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS, Cloth, $1.75.

"Nicholas Minturn," Dr. Holland's latest story, which has been followed with so much interest by thousands of readers during its publication in Scribner's, is now ready in book form. In the volume Dr. Holland has added a few words to the title, which he aptly calls "A Study in a Story." In this story the author not only has attempted to show the effect upon character, both in the upper and the lower classes, of a loss of self-respect, but he has made, in addition, a "Study" of a social problem which may be said to be peculiarly timely.

The elucidation of the pauper and tramp question forms, in fact, a leading theme of the book; for, like Dr. Holland's other stories, this is "a novel with a purpose." A large part of the interest lies in the relations of Nicholas, the hero, to the "dead beats" of a great city and his extraordinary experiments in their reclamation.

Subjects like these are illustrated and discussed with strong convictions, in a spirit of humor as well as of earnestness, and in a manner calculated to awaken and to do good. Evidently, not a little of personal experience has been wrought into this part of the narrative.

But there are one or two love stories involved, and Dr. Holland has given his readers see characters evidently studied from life and not from books, namely, Mr. Benson, who is tragic figure on the scene, Mrs. Coates, and Capt. Hanks, that "hard-working and slowsing man."

Altogether, "Nicholas Minturn" is destined to be one of Dr. Holland's most popular and uential works.

LOOK out for "My Mother-in-Law."

PUBLICATION OFFICE.

TRADE SALES, September 18th-27th. The trade will make a note in season.

Dr. Holland's story of "Nicholas Minturn" will be the first leading novel of the season. will start off with an edition of ten to fifteen thousand, and will not take long to pass into the twenties. Not only the popularity of its author, but the timeliness of its subject—pauperism and tramps-will give it an immense sale.

THOSE who have been perplexed by "the tricks and the manners" of "That Husband of Mine"—and there are by this time several hundred thousand of them-may find the key to the difficulty in "How I Managed My Hus-band," advertised elsewhere by Robert Clarke

"THEO," a love story, by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's," which has recently attracted so much attention, is very nearly ready by T. B. Peterson & Brothers. "Theo" will be issued both in cloth and paper, and the author's name may reasonably be expected to secure for it an extensive and rapid sale.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready the first -olume of their "Experimental Science Series," n "Light," suggesting experiments that any by can make for a few cents; Prof. Huxley's merican lectures on evolution; and "Phyiological Æsthetics," a discussion, after Darrin and Herbert Spencer, of the natural basis faste, by Grant Allen.

"THE QUEEN'S FAVORITE; or, The Price of a rown," will make volume 7 of Peterson's Dollar Series." It is an historical romance of e fifteenth century, a period full of thrilling Iventure. September 5th is the time appoint-d for its appearance. A new edition of the Prairie Flower," by Gustave Amiard, is also in press and nearly ready at T. B. Peterson & Brothers'.

WITHIN the three weeks since the publication of "That Husband of Mine," Lee & Shepard have printed the enormous number of one hundred thousand copies, distancing any of the anonymous books so far issued. In one day orders came for fourteen thousand copies. This extraordinary success is the result of a capital title still more capitally advertised. "That Wife of Mine," by the same author, is nearly ready, and an equal sale is expected for it. "They All Do It," is the title of the Danbury News man's new book.

HURD & HOUGHTON have just ready the three volumes containing the works of Wordsworth, in their new edition of the British Poets-an enterprise which will be one of the leading features of the fall trade. The books have been remodelled into elegant and compact style, befitting the Riverside Press, and are sure to please. They have also ready the new popular edition of Bacon's Works, in two volumes of a thousand pages each, with complete index in each volume,—a much desired book. Mr. Scudder's new book for the children, "The Bodleys Telling Stories," is a charming collection of sketches, stories and poetry, in the most novel and striking binding yet put upon a child's

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL for 1877 is now in course of delivery, and if the opinion of a considerable proportion of the trade is to be taken, the bookseller is not wise who tries to "get along well enough without it." Besides the lists of t60 houses, more than ever before, the volume contains the annual reference list for 1876-7, the new educational catalogue, and an extended sketch of the Harper brothers, with steel-plate portraits of the four. The schedule of contributors lacks no large miscellaneous catalogue, with the exception of that of Messrs.

J. B. Lippincott & Co. To non-subscribers the price of the Annual is $1.50.

SCRIBNER, WELFORD & ARMSTRONG import, and Hurd & Houghton announce an immediate and Hurd & Houghton announce an immediate American edition of, "Poetic Interpretation of Nature," by J. C. Shairp, LL. D., author of two books which, as republished by the latter, have been widely read in this country—"Culture and Religion," and "Studies in Poetry and Philosophy." Mr. Shairp has been principal at St. Andrew's, Scotland, but has lately been appointed to the Professorship of Poetry at Oxford, a post formerly filled by Matthew Arnold. In this volume he takes up the question of the relation which poetry holds to science as an interpreter of nature.

HAPPY DAYS, so eagerly looked forward to by many, will soon be with us, but not per-haps in the way expected. The "Happy Days" we speak of is the juvenile Porter & Coates are bringing out, which will be profusely illustrated, and will be similar to the famous "Chatterbox" and "Prattler." With contributions from such capital writers for the young as Miss Alcott, Mary N. Prescott, and Alice and Phoebe Cary, etc., it certainly will be "Happy Days" to the fortunate ones who may possess a copy. "Little Folks," from Cassell, Petter & Galpin; "Chatterbox, Junior," from the World Publishing Company, and "Lilliput Land," to be imported by Baker & Pratt, are other leading rivals in this line.

GOOD WORDS.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, issued in New York, is primarily, as its name indicates, a journal for the publishing and bookselling trade, and it aims to give all the information concerning books and literature generally which is of interest to every person engaged in any capacity in the preparation and distribution of books. In that respect it is probably the most thorough trade journal published in any country. Whilst the Publishers' Weekly is intended primarily for those who make and sell books, it is no less useful for bookbuyers, and is interesting to those who wish to know something about the course of current literature although unable to invest in books except in the most modest way.—Cleveland Herald, Aug. 2, 1877.

A LIBRARIAN writes: "How many people would gladly buy the Publishers' Weekly of July 14, if they knew that there were twenty columns of choice selections from Emerson, Carlyle, &c., giving their opinions on the choice books to read! How can such a fact be brought before the people?"

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE PUB-LISHING BUSINESS.

It is one of the cardinal American principles that our government is not to run other people's It is supposed, in this country at least, that every one knows best how to run his own, and should be let alone, except when he interferes with other people's rights. government, in collecting its revenues and managing the particular business, such as that of the Post-Office Department, which is committed to its hands, must of course take reasonable precautions to assure that it shall not be defrauded of its dues, but these must be limited absolutely to necessity and must not be made a pretext for unnecessary interference with individual rights. The Post-Office Department seems altogether to have lost sight of this fundamental principle, to which there must always be right of appeal.

The grievances of the press against the recent management of this department are manifold: they are especially serious because, under the government monopoly of this part of the carrying trade, there is no redress by the usual resource of patronizing some other means. Newspapers cannot be carried by the express companies at rates within the practical possibilities, although they might have done so had to the government taken to itself all postal to this.

Our own latest grievance is the rejection of r Monthly Reference Lists as issued in sepate supplements for the convenience of our bscribers. It is they who are the losers, and twe, to be sure, but this does not make our ievance the less. There was certainly no innegement on or defrauding of the government in this publication, and the single result of the government's action is to put an end to this particular enterprise, and, instead of saving money, to lose so much postage.

It may be said in reply that the government has not suppressed the enterprise, but simply made its rates higher for carrying. Nevertheless the result of the recent policy of the department has been the virtual suppression of legitimate enterprises. They were planned and arrangements made with subscribers under exist-This is no good reason why laws ing laws. should never be changed, but it is very good reason why decisions should not practically revolutionize, without notice, existing interpreta-The government puts a prohibitory rate upon newspapers when it charges them half a cent an ounce, a rate much higher, be it remembered, than that of previous laws. And so it kills them off.

The latest circulars of the Department are printed herewith, and they take the shape of directions to publishers as to how they shall page their issues. These were aimed, doubtless, at the abuse of packing magazines with parti-colored circulars here and there inserted. But we are not sure that even this is an abuse. Newspapers or periodicals can live only by the advertising their circulation commands, and if advertisers are willing to pay for the circulation any particular publication has achieved, that publication should not be denied the right to receive them. There is no attempt to cheat the government, nor is it simple carriage that the advertiser pays for. Quality of circulation is a large element, and this is the result, not of the government's facilities, but of the publishers' In short, Mr. Marr's law officer seems to be verging toward a proclamation that newspapers may no longer print advertisements at all, because all advertisements should pay postage at circular rates.

Another ruling of the department is against labels affixed to second-class matter. A city publisher who uses labels, reading, "From — —, Publisher, Importer, and Bookseller, — Broadway, N. Y.," has just been notified that this is rejected as an "advertisement." And so it goes.

What is wanted here, Mr. Key, is a good dash of common-sense. The newspaper proprietor has rights, which the government is violating. Our legislators or the authorities, in striving to check minor abuses, have made rules so stringent as to strangle legitimate enterprise. This is simply an outrage. The only remedy is the creation of a strong public opinion which shall right these wrongs in the proper way, and in this work the press and its patrons must heartily join.

THE American Book Trade-we were about to write Association-will assemble at Clinton Hall, New York, Wednesday, September 19th. No 20 per cent rule to discourage buyers! The trade sale seems never to have been more flourishing it has returned to its old glory, despite all the abuse and satire lavished upon There are few leading firms whose names are not to be found upon the catalogue, those who do not believe in trade sale having come in under the desire not to be left out in the cold while buyers were in the East, and in the fear that those who come to the sale would not have much capital left to invest in purchases afterward. We have never been able to advise retailers to keep away from the sale, undoubted evil as we consider it to be, so long as the leaders of the trade send invoices. For it certainly doesn't do to let the people outside the regular trade get the best bargains. So "come one, come all !"

Our fall announcement number, previous to the trade sale, will be the issue for next week, and we trust publishers will not neglect to take action accordingly. Both announcements and 'advertisements should be sent in at once, to be in time. The indications so far are that there will be a very fair list of books from which to select fall purchases. When the buyer comes to the trade sale, it should be with full knowledge of what is coming all through the fall, that he may distribute his purchases accordingly.

THE Louisiana "suggestion" to the educational publishers is the most modest yet. "Minimum rates," books on sale, and a bonus of 25 to 30 per cent given away in goods. Walk up, gentlemen, walk up,—a most excellent opportunity for philanthropy!

THE TRADE SALE.

THE catalogue of the Fall Trade Sale is now ready, and will be forwarded by Messrs. Geo. A. Leavitt & Co. to any applicants in the trade. It is very large, covering over 500 pages, with invoices from nearly all the leading houses of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, seventy-three contributors entering the main sale, besides miscellaneous invoices and the contributors to the special sale preceding. For this the catalogue is in rapid preparation.

The preliminary sale will be on Thursday, September 18th, and will include plates, remainders, and the Catholic books, the feature last named being separated from its usual place toward the close of the main sale. J. B. Ford & Co. will offer a large number of stereos and electros, including Beecher's sermons, etc., with remainders in sheets of many of their publications. The estates of W. B. Evans, Philadelphia, and Wm. J. Hamersley, Hartford, will close out their plates, and M. A. Walsh, Cincinnati, will dispose of 40 sets of plates of Catholic publications. The publisher of Godey's Lady's Book, Philadelphia, will offer 600 steel plates used for illustration in that magazine and suitable for use in miscellaneous illustrated books. Catholic publications are sent by Messrs. Kelly, Piet & Co., Baltimore; J. A. McGee and P. O'Shea, New York; and Eugene Cummiskey, Philadelphia.

The opening feature of the main sale will be the immense invoice of Jas. R. Osgood & Co., reaching above $130,000 retail prices, which will occupy all of Wednesday, September 19th. Their invoice runs in large lots, including 5000 of a new illustrated Tennyson, 12mo, $1.50, to range with the popular editions of other English poets. Tennyson, of course, cannot be made in England except by his copyright publishers, and so is missing from many of the English series. Diamond editions will be offered in lines from 1000 down; Household and Fireside poets, the war books, Vest Pockets, etc., in 500s; heliotype and other gift-books in 100s. The new books will be sold as far as ready.

The second day will open with Worcester's Dictionaries and other publications of J. B. Lippincott & Co. in moderate lots: Clark & Maynard; Little, Brown & Co.; Andrew F. Graves; Henry A. Young & Co.; James Miller; and Ira Bradley & Co. (Bibles) are also included.

Geo. P. Putnam's Sons lead the third day with 1000-500 of Habberton's books, lots of 250-25 of their new and forthcoming publications, and a general selection, mostly in 25s, from their standard stock. Estes & Lauriat offer the Cobweb novels in lines of 100, with Daudet's latest novels, if ready, and a general line; Hurd & Houghton invoice their standards in lines chiefly of 10s; Widdleton has a good invoice of Poe and other leading lines; W. W. Harding has 100 each of his new Bible helps, and a representative assortment of his well-known Bibles and albums, with a considerable remainder assortment of the latter.

The week is concluded, on the fourth day, with Donnelley, Loyd & Co.'s Vernes and other higher-priced books; Jansen, McClurg & Co.'s offering of 600 "Jericho Road" and their other publications in lines of 20; a general assortment, in good lines, from Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, including prayers and hymnals; representative invoices from Shaefer & Koradi; Collins & Bro.; Sheldon & Co.; Henry Hoyt; Thompson, Brown & Co.; Lovell, Adam, Wesson & Co., including 1000 "Peepshow;" and Wm. Rutter & Co., and from Vantine & Co., the New York importers of Oriental goods, a large assortment of glove and handkerchief boxes, cabinets and other fancy goods, including—this being a book-trade sale—a quantity of Japanese books of which, unfortunately, the titles are not mentioned.

The first day of the second week is devoted entirely to the large invoices of D. Appleton & Co. and Lee & Shepard. The former's extensive catalogue is well represented throughout, the new and "Choice" novels in lines of 100-50 and standards in lines of 25-10. A considerable variety of remainders in prayers are included. Lee & Shepard's invoice opens with their well-known juveniles, in lines of 100, reaching a total of 6000 volumes, and includes 250 each Higginson's histories, large lines of Illustrated Boston poets, and many fresh books. They ensure a continued attendance by putting their new books, in lines of 500-100, at the close regiment of 500.

The sixth day opens with Webster's Dictionaries, the Unabridged and Pictorial from the Merriams, and 2000 of the smaller from the Ivison house. Porter & Coates contribute novels, standards and juveniles, chiefly in 25s, with their popular 12mos in 100s and 50s, and 250 "Happy Days." Scribner, Welford & Armstrong have a good invoice of English importations, and Scribner, Armstrong & Co. offer lines of 25-10 through their catalogue, with 125 sets "Bric-a-brac," and including school-books. Their new books are also put at the end of the invoice, Dr. Holland's and Jules Verne's new stories in lines of 100 each.

The seventh day's sale, besides a number of minor invoices, comprises Roberts Bros.' popular books, mostly in lines of 50, with a number of new books, if ready; Lockwood, Brooks & Co.'s invoice, in good lines, including their field portfolios and book furniture; those of J. M. Stoddart & Co., John E. Potter & Co., Virtue & Yorston, J. W. Bouton, R. Worthington, including 65 sets Chambers' Cyclopedia and 500 "Peepshow," and Milner & Co., Chatto & Windus, and Bernard Quaritch, London.

The final day, Thursday, the 27th, opens with publications of Wm. F. Gill & Co., "for account of whom it may concern," lines mostly of 100, with some slightly damaged books; and, aside from many small invoices, are to be noted those of the World Publishing House; Harper & Brothers, a general selection, in lots of 25-5; J. B. Ford & Co., in 100s and 50s; National Publishing Co.; Chas. Desilver & Sons; U. S. Publishing Co.; Burlock's Bibles and albums; and a quantity of stationery, concluding the eighth day's sale.

This is certainly sufficient to attract a multitude of buyers to New York. Of the Western trade sale, Cincinnati, October 16th, the catalogue will be ready about the middle of Sep-

RECENT POST-OFFICE DECISIONS.

Post-Office Department, Office of the First Asst. P. M. Genl., Washington, D. C., May 5, 1877.

SIR: This Department holds that printed slips or circulars stitched or pasted in with the body of periodicals or magazines with which they have no legitimate connection are attempts to evade the law, and all such matter which does not form, and was not intended or originally printed to form, a regular part of the contents of any given number of a periodical or magazine and its cover must be considered as extraneous matter, subjecting the whole copy—ith which it is thus sought to be incorporated postage at the rate for printed matter of the i class.

The Postmaster-General desires that notice given to said publishers that unless such adritisements are printed at the same office, on uper of the same size and regularly paged with e other sheets of the publication, third-class tes of postage must be charged thereon to be epaid at the mailing office, viz.: one cent for ch two ounces or fraction thereof.

Very respectfully, etc.,

Post-Office Department, Office of the First Asst. P. M. Genl.. Washington, D. C., Aug. 20, 1877.

Hon. Thos. L. James, Postmaster, New York.

SIR: Your attention is called to the accompanying letter from the law officer of this Department under date of the 18th August, relative to advertising pages in periodical matter of the second class. In accordance with the views therein expressed, you will henceforth permit no periodical matter of the second class to pass through the mails at the pound rates of postage whenever it contains advertising pages, unless the same shall be paged consecutively either by numbers or letters, and shall have every appearance of having been printed at the office of publication of the periodicals in which they may be inserted. You will please cause a notification of this order to be sent to publishers of periodicals within the delivery of your office, and insist upon a strict compliance with this order.

Very respectfully, etc.,

SOMETHING NEW IN THE SCHOOL-BOOK LINE.

WE present to the trade some interesting extracts from a remarkable circular issued by the State Board of Education of Louisiana, and address to the publishers, and publishers' agents, whose books were recently adopted by the State Board. The italics are our own:

"The State Superintendent having explained that, in this city and in all the parishes, many children attending, and others who should attend, the free public schools are unable to purchase the books needed for their use, and that it is therefore desirable that some arrangement be made with publishers to secure a certain percentage of the books adopted, for presentation to such pupils as are known to be actually indigent, it was, on motion of Mr. Ogden, "Resolved, That the executive officer of the Board (the State Superintendent) correspond with the respective publishers to the following effect: 1st, urging that each publisher of an adopted book shall as soon as possible deposit a sufficient number of said book with some bookdealer of his own choice in or near each parish of the State, and in each of the municipal districts of the city of New Orleans, and shall authorize said dealer to deliver to pupils applying to him a copy of such book at some fixed price not exceeding the minimum retail rate, or, if said pupil surrenders the text-book last used by him on the corresponding subject, at the minimum exchange rate; and 2d, suggesting that, in consideration of this waiver of the privilege of securing such book at the introductory rate, said publisher shall donate to each parish board and to the City Board of Directors of the Public Schools of New Orleans a number of said books equal to twenty-five or thirty per cent of the whole number required in the parishes and New Orleans, during each of the four years for which the adoption of said books shall last; said donated books to be exclusively for the use of indigent pupils who attend, or can be induced to attend, the free public schools of the State."

OBITUARY.

JOSEPH DESILVER.

Mr. Joseph Desilver, of the publishing firm. Charles Desilver & Sons, Philadelphia, is dead About to take the train for a visit to Atlantic City, where his family were summering, he was by some unexplained accident thrown down, dragged over some thirty feet of ground, and finally under the cars, where he received terrible internal injuries, of which he died on the following day. The death of Mr. Desilver leaves his brother undecided as to the business of the firm.

WILLIAM LONGMAN.

THE English papers bring further particulars as to the death of Mr. William Longman, at Ashlyns, near Great Berkhampstead, on the 13th ult., in his sixty-fifth year. The deceased was a son of Thomas Longman, for many years the head of the celebrated publishing house of Longmans in Paternoster Row, and was admitted to a share in the business in 1839. By his devotion to business he materially assisted in increasing the prosperity and reputation of the firm. Indeed, the thirtyreputation of the firm. eight years during which he had a share in the firm were marked by several publications memorable in English literature, the very year in which he and his brother succeeded to the control of the business being that of the production of the "Lays of Ancient Rome," which made Macaulay such a hero in the eyes of book-sellers. His Essays from the Edinburgh, the first two volumes of the History, and, above all, the second two, issued December 17th, 1855, which produced the celebrated check for 20,000/., were all of them events of magnitude. Other notable successes have attended the proceedings of the house in later years, among which may be mentioned Colenso's among which may be mentioned bolt on the Pentateuch, "The Greville Memoirs," "Lothair," and "Ure's Dictionary," all acquisition of Mr. Parker's stock and business connection, in 1863, made the house publishers for many writers of note, such as Mill, Froude, and the late Sir Cornewall Lewis.

Mr. Longman did not, however, confine himself to publishing for other people. He was himself an author, and his "Lectures on the History of England," down to the reign of Edward the Third, and an elaborate life of that monarch, would be a credit to a writer who could devote his whole time to historical research, and was therefore still more honorable to one whose time was so much taken up. A lecture delivered by him on Switzerland was printed for private circulation in 1857, and a little work containing suggestions for the exploration of Iceland passed into a second edition

As a business man, he was at once clear-headed and considerate. His courtesy and kindness of heart won for him a large circle of friends wherever he went. He leaves behind him a widow and eight children. One of his sons, Mr. C. J. Longman, is engaged in the business, and, with two sons of Mr. T. Longman, Mr. Thomas N. Longman, a partner in the firm, and Mr. G. Longman, represents in Paternoster Row the fifth generation of the great publishing house.

BOOK NOTICES.

HIS GRANDMOTHERS. A SUMMER SALAD. The unfortunate husband in this (Putnam.) story, the unlucky possessor of two grand-mothers, is surprised by two letters on the same day, announcing that, through a series of accidents, both the grandmothers would be glad to accept a previous offer of his of a home, a promise made with no thought that he would be called upon to redeem it in both cases at the same time. Of course the grandmothers come, to the wife's great dismay, and then the The grandmothers quarrel and fun begins. interfere, and advise, and turn things upside down generally, almost bringing discord into the lives of the loving husband and wife. When the reader takes leave of them, the trying activity of the one has disabled her for the rest of her days, while the other still flourishes. But as they are both at an advanced age, hopes may be entertained that the afflicted husband and wife may not have many years before them of such misery as recorded here. 16mo, paper,

FOUR IRREPRESSIBLES. (Loring.) The author of "Helen's Babies" is responsible for a numerous progeny. We have here four more little irrepressibles, who rival "Budge" and "Toddie" in mischief and never-ceasing play and merriment. There seems to be no end to the plots which their imaginations conceive to trouble and distract their poor Aunt Agnes, with whom they are spending the summer. "What They Did," and "What They Undid," have found as graphic a historian, and as humorous a one almost, as did "Helen's Babies." We could almost attribute the little work to Mr. John Habberton himself, so like is it to his peculiar style, and so thoroughly is it worked out in a field he appears to have made entirely his own. Whoever the author may be, this dar-ing little "Tribe of Benjamin" will soon rank with all the other babies of Helen's in the regard of the mothers and fathers of families. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

A LATIN GRAMMAR, by J. H. Allen and J. B. Greenough. (Ginn & H.) In issuing a new edition of this work, the editors have taken advantage of the recasting of the plates to make many improvements. The principal changes are the making into chapters the matter of each part, with subdivisions by numbered paragraphs; a considerable expansion of several portions, especially those on phonetic changes and the formation of words; putting into the form of marginal notes strictly philological matter not intended for class use; and some important additions and illustrations in the prosody. So it will be seen that although the substance of the book remains the same, it has been so carefully reconstructed and revised that it may be offered almost as a new grammar. It is handsomely printed and gotten up. 12mo, cloth, $1.12

THE PRACTITIONER'S REFERENCE BOOK, by Richard J. Dunglison, M.D. (Lindsay & B.) The author prepared this work, "a handy-book for every-day consultation," from personal experience of the wants of the busy practitioner. It contains, in a compact and tangible shape, information of a purely practical character, which the physician is frequently at a loss to know where to look for; the facts and hints here collected being either widely scattered through voluminous professional treatises or in the inaccessible pages of medical periodicals. There are also other original suggestions and precepts offered for the doctor's guidance, which the author believes will meet many of his daily needs. The work is clearly and hand-somely printed on fine white paper, and substantially bound. 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

HAPPY DAYS. (Porter & C.) This is a very pretty juvenile, uniform in style and size with the well-known "Chatterbox." It contains short stories and poems suitable for boys and girls, contributed by such favorite writers for the young as Louisa M. Alcott, Mary N. Prescott, Alice and Phœbe Cary, F. Cheseboro, S. W. Lander, J. G. Wood, and others. Its illustrations are mostly full-page pictures of subjects interesting to children, each having some story attached to it, and they number in all, including the small illustrations in the text, 136 pictures. The binding is bright and attractive, both in cloth and in boards. Quarto, cloth back, illuminated side, with picture in bright colors, $1.25; full cloth, black and gold, picture on side, $1.75.

ELYRIA, by Elsie Leigh Whittlesey. (Claxton, R. & H.) Elyria, introduced to the reader at the early age of ten, is found engaging herself to marry a young man some few years her senior. The young man unfortunately dies shortly after we make his acquaintance, and the little girl Elyria goes through the rest of her life blighted and unhappy, mourning her young lover. When she is a full-grown girl, her intended's father adopts her, educates her, and brings her out into society. Here the real story of her life begins. In spite of her grief she attracts other lovers, arouses the jealousy of another woman, and finally loves again. The story is thoroughly American in scene and characters, is very brightly told, and is quite readable.

Winstowe, by Mrs. Leith Adams. (Harper.) English society novels possess so many of the same characteristics, it is difficult to describe them clearly. We can only say of this, that although by a writer unknown to us, it is an exceedingly good novel, full of life and fine character-sketching. It tells the life of a young man who is rescued as a mere child from starvation by the owner of Winstowe,—a rich old bachelor. The young man turns out afterwards to be the heir of a great house. There is a lovely heroine, who loves an unworthy society young man who dies a victim to his vices. Indeed, misery and happiness are very evenly mixed, the reader being left quite satisfied with the final adjustment of the various love affairs 8vo, paper, 25 cents.

SHAKESPEARE'S A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM, edited by William J. Rolfe. (Harper.) The text of this edition, edited with numerous notes, is the result of a careful collation of Fisher's and Roberts' quartos and the folio of 1623 with the leading modern editions. Many of the notes are original; the others, as a rule, are credited to the sources from which they were drawn. "The History of the Play," "The Sources of the Plot," and "Critical Comments on the Play" are the introductory features of the beautifully illustrated and very elegantly gotten-up little volume. Cloth, 16mo, 60 cents.

OUR MARRIAGE Vow, compiled by the Rev. William N. Irish. (Whittaker.) This is designed to be an interesting souvenir of the wedding-day. It contains the marriage service and the minister's certificate. The book can be used for the ceremony, and the blank filled in with the parties' names. The blank is held in a pocket in the back of the book, the book being attractively bound, with gilt edges, making altogether a pretty and not easily lost memento of this important occasion. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

THE CULTURE OF BEAUTY, by T. S. Sozinskey, M.D. (Allen, Lane & Scott.) If the men and women of the present generation fail to grow beautiful, it is because they do not read the innumerable books provided them on the cultivation of the human form. The present one does not offer any new facts, but is written in a clever and attractive way, which will induce every one to read it through, thus impressing on the mind many common-sense rules and regulations for the health well worth remembering. 12mo, cloth.

PLATO'S APOLOGY OF SOCRATES AND CRITO, by W. Wagner. (John Allyn.) This edition, the first American one, is based upon the third English edition of Wagner. It has been prepared with great care, and it is said will be found unusually correct as regards the text, and especially adapted in its notes to college and school use. The principal changes consist of the addition of frequent references to Goodwin's Greek Moods and Tenses, and to Goodwin's and Hadley's Greek Grammars, the omission of some references to parallel passages, and the correction of a few errors. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

CICERO'S TUSCULAN DISPUTATIONS, literally translated, chiefly by C. D. Yonge. (Harper.) This edition is founded upon that of Francis Barham, Esq., who translated and published a greater portion of the Republic in 1841. Although ably translated, it was not sufficiently literal for the purpose of the "Classical Library," and was therefore placed in the hands of the present editor for revision, and for collation with recent texts, thus occasioning material alterations and additions. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

GINN & HEATH, Boston, have just ready a novel educational book, "Six Weeks' Preparation for Reading Cæsar," prepared, as the result of class-room experience, by the principal of one of the chief academies in New England. The author's idea is that the best Latin Reader is a classical author, and his brief manual of about 40 pages is accordingly arranged so that boys may begin Cæsar after a period of from four to eight weeks.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

DRYEFUSS & SACHS, New York, have patented a trade-mark, "The diamond-shaped border or symbol.

JOHN BECKERS, Boston, Mass., assignor to Estes & Lauriat, same place, has patented a design for a book-cover.

MESSRS. CAMERON, AMBERG & Co., Chicago, have recently sold to James Vick, of Rochester, N.Y., a large Amberg letter-file cabinet containing three hundred and forty-nine files, which took Mr. Amberg six days to plan and arrange. This is the largest cabinet of files ever made.

MR. CHAS. H. HUNTER, the energetic secretary of the Stationers' Board of Trade, has sent out a circular with list of members, constitution and by-laws, asking suggestions of any changes that might seem to promote the best in-terests of the association. There are now 104 members, and large additions are expected this

MORGAN ENVELOPE Co., Springfield, Mass., have patented a trade-mark for writing-paper and envelopes, "The representation or symbol of a chess or checker board." This firm have added a great many new and elegant styles of papeteries to their extensive stock, and are constantly bringing out new goods. They have in preparation a great variety of new papeteries in various shapes, in wicker, leatherette, etc., etc., which will be ready in time for the holiday trade.

Powers Paper Co., Springfield, Mass., have now an elegant line of papeteries (comprising wicker-work, leatherette, porcelain, etc.), in work-box, portable desk, glove and handkerchief box shapes. In looking over their various styles of putting up papeteries, it really puzzled us how and where they get their ideas for making so many neat and handsome styles. They have now several hundred varieties, and are constantly getting up new designs, for the fall trade, of boxes containing papeteries, all of which differ from each other, and will no doubt prove salable with the trade,

C. C. Shepherd, Passaic, N. J., has patented a drawing-slate which is composed of an ordinary slate and a transparent slate, with copies, arranged in the shape of an inclined desk or box, and combined so that it can be used on either side. There is also a receptacle for holding the pictures, slate-pencil, and slate-rubber. He has also patented slates for school purposes, one combination consisting of a slate and frame with incline pieces, each piece having channels or slots on the inner surface for the reception of copy-slips. The other combination makesan inclined desk with hinges, so that either surface of the slate can be made use of while in an inclined position.

Turner, Andrews & Co., 702 Arch street, Philadelphia, have just published a new illustrated catalogue and price-list of their large

This is the first and only catalogue is sued by any manufacturer of this class of goods in America, and the above-named firm have had to labor under many disadvantages to simplify it for the use of those wishing to order their goods. This firm do not pretend to give an accurate description of all fancy goods, as the styles are constantly changing. On the whole, the catalogue, which contains twentyeight pages exclusive of cover, is neatly gotten up, and is an indispensable help to the trade. Those having occasion to order goods in this line will do well to write for a copy of the list, which will be furnished on application.

Perry & Co., London and New York, have put in the market a new manugraph, said to be capable of producing 50 copies, which may be taken on an ordinary copying-press. It is used by taking a sheet of copying-paper and placing it with the cut corner to the left on a sheet of blotting or other paper, writing in the ordinary way the matter to be reproduced. The writing is then left to dry as long as possible. When ready, invert it on the japanned plate, adjusting it to the lines marked thereon, the cut corner to the right; wet the paper with a sponge or brush just enough to glaze the surface, then place the wet surface on the reverse side of the writing, the dampening sheet on the top, and squeeze in the copying-press. If the original is sufficiently wet, it will adhere to the zinc plate, and will not be disturbed when the printed paper is lifted up by the right hand corner; if printed regularly, 50 good copies can be taken.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

SIGNORA BIANCIARDI, formerly Miss Elizabeth D. Rice of Springfield, Mass., is to furnish from Italy, for Harper's Monthly, a series of illustrated papers on the minor Italian cities.

In the first number of Once a Month, the new Portland magazine, is promised a paper by James Freeman Clarke, on "The Study of Human Nature," and a review of the writings of the late J. S. C. Abbott.

GEN. F. A. WALKER'S interesting papers on "The Late World's Fair" have proved an attractive feature of the International Review. They comprise: Part 1.—"Mechanism and Administration," May-June No.; Part 2.—"The Display in Main Building and Memorial Hall," July-August; Part 3.—"The Display in Agricultural Hall, Machinery Hall, and Special Buildings," September-October.

THE first issue of The Metallurgical Review (monthly), dated September, 1877, has just reached us. The Review, which is handsomely gotten up, full of interesting reading, will be devoted exclusively to metallurgical interests, which have developed sufficiently in this country to support a journal. The subscription is $5 a year, single copies 50 cents. David Williams of this city is the publisher.

THE North American Review, under its new management, has certainly taken a new lease of life. The current number makes a dozen hits, with a paper on "The Recent Strikes," by Col. "Tom Scott," President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who talks with authority on one side, and a counter-article on "Fair Wages," by a "Striker." Hon. E. W. Stoughton replies line of pocket-books, fancy and Russia leather | to Judge Black's paper on the electoral commission, Dion Boucicault discusses "The Decline of the Drama," Gen. McClellan reviews "The War in the East," Hon. David A. Wells questions "How Shall the Nation Regain Prosperity?" there is an essay by Mr. Emerson on "Perpetual Forces," and several other timely articles aid to make this issue unusually vigorous.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. CHATTO, of the house of Chatto & Windus, returned to England by Saturday's steamer, having successfully placed a number of fall publications among American publishers.

R. Worthington, of 750 Broadway, has just returned from Europe, where he has been for last month, collecting fine editions of standard books in fine bindings. There may now be seen at his store the choicest editions he could pick up in London, Paris, Edinburgh, Dublin, and other marts.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEWARK, O.—A. P. Taylor has disposed of his book and stationery business to Mr. E. T. Weiant, who will carry on the same under his name

New York CITY.—Porter & Bainbridge, who suspended last week, have filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. Two meetings of the creditors have been held at the rooms of the Stationers' Board of Trade, but, pending the meeting before the Register, no definite action was taken.

New York City.—Alfred & Hough, manufacturers of envelopes and fine stationery, 149 and 151 William street, are liquidating preparatory to going out of business. The firm desire it to be understood that they are "entirely solvent and will pay a hundred cents." Mr. Hough's interests in the West, requiring his personal attention, are given as one of the principal causes for this change.

NEW YORK CITY.—The firm of Mucklow & Simon has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Wm. B. Mucklow retaining the publishing and wholesale department, while Mr. P. A. Simon assumes the retail book and stationery branch, which will be carried on by him at 52 East Forty-third street, opposite the Grand Central Depot. Mr. Mucklow will settle all accounts due to or incurred by the late firm, and will publish hereafter in his own name.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

W. B. MUCKLOW will issue shortly another volume by Miss Lillie E. Barr, author of "Dot ar | Dime," entitled "Coral and Christian."

THERE is a break among the jobbers on the di count on Osgood books. The American N ws Co. have issued a circular offering these gods at a third.

IR. ALBERT COGSWELL, 139 Eighth street, is very the New York agent for Messrs. Porter & C ates, and will keep in stock their full line of standard and popular publications.

/E have received a catalogue, published by J. .. Stargardt, of a very valuable collection of b ks, manuscripts, and autographs to be sold | lerlin on the 11th of October.

"KILMENY" is the last volume issued of William Black's works by Harper & Brothers, in their handsome uniform 12mo edition.

OCTAVE FEUILLET'S pen, after a long rest, is shortly again to delight the Parisians by a new "romance of a poor young man,—or woman," under the insinuating title "Les Amours de Philippe," to be issued in Calmann Levy's 3.50 fr. series.

THE CONGREGATIONAL PUBLISHING SOCIETY, Boston, has just issued new imprints of "Woman and Her Saviour in Persia," by a returned missionary, and "Glimpses of Christ in Scripture," by Thomas Laurie. These works were formerly the property of Gould & Lincoln.

THE latest additions to James R. Osgood & Co.'s favorite little "Vest-Pocket Series" are "Favorite Poems" by S. T. Coleridge, "Favorite Poems" by Lord Byron, "Winter" from Thomson's "Seasons," and Schiller's "Lay of the Bell."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. call the special attention of the trade to the reduction in the price of the "Globe" and "Lord Lytton" editions of Bulwer's Novels. The publishers have aimed to place these popular editions at a figure within the reach of all book-buyers.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will have Rev. E. P. Roe's novel of "A Knight of the Nineteenth Century" ready some time this month, and, judging by previous sales of his books, it will run close rivalry with Dr. Holland's new story in its sales. It has already won friends through its large circulation in the Christian Advocate.

THE Yankee schoolmaster is extending his travels. Eaton's Primary Arithmetic, published by Thompson, Brown & Co., Boston, has been translated into Chinese, and reprinted in Peking for use in the primary schools of the empire. A few copies were sent to the American publishers by way of compliment and acknowledgment.

THE new catalogue of Harper & Brothers, under date of September 15, makes a considerable reduction in prices, especially throughout the Library of Select Novels, that should be noted by the trade. They introduce the feature of offering their paper-covered octavos in half-bindings for libraries at 25 cents per volume net additional.

ROBERTS BROTHERS are preparing for fall trade by making considerable improvements in their headquarters in Washington street, Boston. They have occupied and opened communication with the room just above their old office, and, with double the room, Mr. Niles is prepared to sell double the number of "No Name"—or any other—books.

WE are glad to note that the eight cases of books containing Osgood and Lee & Shepard consignments to trade sale stolen from Messrs. Leavitt & Co.'s truckman at the Grand Central Depot have been recovered; there is hope that the thieves will be caught. The truck was found in Ave. A.; the books in a deserted cellar in Stanton st.

DISCIPLES of old Izaak should know of a new addition to their literature. Sampson Low & Co., London, will publish shortly "Fish and Fishing," by the Rev. J. J. Manley, M.A., which, besides chapters on chiefly English topics, will contain others on Fishing as a Sport, Fishing as a Fine Art, Fishing Ancient and Modern, High Education of Modern Fish, The Literature of Fishing, Ichthyology, Trout Streams, Winter Fishing, Preservation of Fish, Pisciculture, Fish as Food, Fence Months, Storage of Winter Water, Aquaria, etc.

"THE HIGHER LIFE," published by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, has met with marked success, the first edition being exhaust-The author, the Rev. H. A. Boardman, is one of the most prominent of the Presbyterian ministry of Philadelphia, and is well known in literary circles as the author of the "Bible in the Family," "Bible in the Counting-House," There is a singular coincidence concerning this work. Some years ago, Hoyt, of Boston, published "The Higher Christian Life," by the Rev. W. E. Boardman, a Baptist minister, and now we have "The Higher Life," by the Rev. H. A. Boardman, a Presbyterian minister.

A great difference exists between them, however, the former being based on religious experience, and tending towards personal perfection, while the latter simply treats the higher life through the doctrine of sanctification, tried by the word of God.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS., with the opening of fall, call the especial attention of the trade to their remarkably cheap and tasteful "Dollar Series" of novels. The following popular books so far constitute the "Dollar Series:" "Country Quarters," by the Countess of Blessington; "My Son's Wife," by the author of "Caste;" "The Heiress in the Family," by of "Caste;" "The Helress in the Family, by Mrs. Daniel; "Saratoga, the Famous Springs," a love story; "Self-Love," a book for young ladies, and for women; "The Man of the World," by Wm. North; "The Queen's Favorite; or, The Price of a Crown;" and "The Cavalier," by G. P. R. James, and a new one will be added to the series every month. will be added to the series every month.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market will find the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns, from the records of the Publishers' Weekly, containing the titles and prices of the Principal Books Published During the Previous Month and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

NOTES IN SEASON.

We are now printing editions of the Educational Catalogue, with the page of corrections and additions given in the last WEEKLY. Orders for further imprint editions will accordingly contain this page, and it will be furnished gratuitously for pasting into the previous editions to all purchasers of editions who apply for it within seasonable time. The number required should, of course, be mentioned.

DR. HOLLAND'S "Nicholas Minturn" starts off with an edition of about 15,000, and instead of twenty, it seems likely to get well along toward thirty thousand before the turn of the year. Even the Social Science Congress has now taken up the subject of tramps, and the readers of Dr. Holland's book say that he has solved the problem so far as it admits of solu-

Mr. F. B. PERKINS has been a sufficiently busy man of late. His most recent task is the revision and continuation of Mr. George P. Putnam's well-known and valuable dictionary of dates, "The World's Progress," nearly ready as brought up to August, 1877, in a volume of 1200 pages. This is one of the monuments built to himself by this much-loved pub-

T. B. Peterson & Bros., who state that they will contribute no books to the Trade Sale, announce, in their advertisement on another page, that during their special fall sale, which they are now holding, they will give to the trade extra special rates of discount from their Number One Wholesale Price List. On that list discounts are as follows: On cloth books, 40 per cent; sheep, 33½ per cent; half calf, 30 per cent; Dickens' works in paper cover, and almost all other paper-cover books, at 50 per cent off, or half price. From these prices they make still further discounts, according to the size of the bills, which makes this an excellent time to lay in a stock of their popular books.

J. B. Ford & Co.'s sale of electrotype plates which precedes the general Trade Sale by one day, taking place on the 18th, will dispose of some notable books. The principal feature is, of course, the works of Henry Ward Beecher, twenty-eight volumes, fourteen of which are the "Sermons," from 1869 to 1875, and three the "Yale Lectures on Preaching," the rest being miscellaneous books, all of which are in steady demand. Besides these, there are in the domestic line Mrs. H. W. Beecher's "Motherly Talks with Young Housekeepers" and Miss Catherine Beecher's "Domestic and Miss Catherine Beecher's Dolliestic Science;" for home hygiene, Dr. Verdi's "Ma-ternity" (which has passed through five or six editions) and his "Mothers and Daughters;" a bright book of Grace Greenwood's, and Mrs. Barr's "Romances and Realities"—both readable and clever books; several capital novels (including Edward Eggleston's "Circuit Rider") and other miscellaneous plates. specially good work of its kind is Arnold Burges' admirable dog book, "The American Kennel and Sporting Field," which Wilkes' Spirit calls "the most valuable addition to the literature of field sports since Frank Forrester's standard work." There are also sundry remainders of editions, some forty-six books in all being represented. G. A. Leavitt & Co. will furnish catalogues on application.

THE Tribune for Thursday, September 6th, contains a two-column summary of books for the fall, classifying the announcements by sub-

Of coming book sales, the Tribune says: The trade sale will be followed by many minor sales of books, at both Leavitt's and Bangs', but it seems probable that both the great sales, of the Brinley and Odell collections, may be deferred to the spring, though it is hoped to have the catalogues ready for sales in November or December. The library of the late George Brinley of Hartford is one of the richest in rarities in this country, though the disposition of its retiring and secretive owner made it little known; it includes a Mazarin Bible, for which $12,000 is said to have been paid, several copies of the Eliot Indian Bibles, a remarkable collection of Mather books and other valuable Americana. The Hon. J. Hammond Trumbull of Hartford is to prepare the Mr. Odell's library is especially catalogue. rich in black-letter and other early books. Geo. P. Philes has been for some months at work on the catalogue, which for bibliographical research and variety and beauty of typography will be the most remarkable sales catalogue yet produced in this country.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Mr. Barrie, of the firm of Gebbie & Barrie, Philadelphia, sailed for Europe a few days ago for the purpose of making arrangements for the publication of an illustrated catalogue of the French Exhibition of next year, similar in character to the very handsome illustrated catalogue of the Centennial Exhibition now in course of publication by his firm.

MR. HENRY A. SUMNER, the New York representative of John Church & Co., left the city Wednesday for a business trip in the Eastern States.

THE PROSPECTS FOR FALL.

A MONTH ago we should almost have been obliged to enter under this caption the famous contents of the Irish chapter on snakes. tween the remembrances of the spring dulness and the fears of the influence of the strikes and the difficulties of which they were the symptom upon the immediate future of trade, the general feeling was one of apprehension, and the outlook was anything but hopeful. Since then, prospects have been visibly and steadily brightening. Expectations, it is true, are not extravagant, but the fact that business men are willing to do business on a scale less inflated than that of former years is one of the symptoms of approaching prosperity.

The basis of business hopefulness is, first, the excellent outlook of the crops, which promise to give the great mass of people, whose buying or non-buying largely makes times good or bad, more money to spend than they have had for many years. The travellers now out all emphasize this feature of the case. Secondly, the feeling that the worst has been reached and passed, and that the enforced economy of the past few years must soon show its results in having prepared the way for new prosperity. Thirdly, the fact that business men have prepared to transact business on a new basis of reduced expenditure, and, as we have said, of reduced expectancy. These constitute the lead in factors of the general commercial situation.

n the book trade these conditions hold, and th re are others, some on the dark and some of the bright side. The increasing dulness of th past few years culminated in the deadest of lead summers, with the exception of a few bis of exceptional liveliness. But the sol-book trade has opened fairly, better in f: than was generally expected, and though li le has yet been done in miscellaneous books the centres, the travellers who have already started out are sending back very good orders, all of them encouraging, and many of them pleasantly disappointing. Those at the West, in particular, are doing finely. It seems selfevident that stocks throughout the country cannot be large, so that any popular demand must immediately be reflected from the retailers. The frequent breaking of publishing and jobbing discounts continues, on the other side, to discourage retailers from laying in stocks to cover more than immediate needs, and is an element tending to check large purchases.

Reductions of prices are quietly being made, the most noticeable being the considerable lowering of the Harper brown-paper novels, on which the decrease is from 20 to 40 per cent. How far the proportions assumed by the "cheap libraries," just now so rampant, may emphasize this tendency to lower prices is matter of question, but experience seems to show that regular publishing is not much interfered with, in the long run, by these issues. They appeal rather, it would seem, to readers of the "story papers," and divert patronage from them more than from book publishers proper. There is also a tendency to issue new books on a lower scale of pricing, which is certainly a healthful tendency, in accordance with the times; but the passion for large discounts is by no means eradicated, and books are still often published at a much higher price than the normal rate, simply to permit a large discount. This holds especially true in juveniles. We submit, in justice to the trade, that reductions should not be sprung on dealers carrying stocks; they should, as a rule, either have fair notice or some rebate. The influence of the new system of pricing school books, in the trade and on their sale, will be one of the most interesting and vital questions of the fall.

Altogether the outlook for the trade this fall is much better than could have been prophesied a few weeks ago, and gives occasion for a reasonable hopefulness. "Reform" is nowhere just now, most of the publishers and retailers having evidently made up their minds to accommodate themselves to the difficulties of hard times by looking after present policy rather than permanent results. But hard times have also been teaching a lesson, and with better times we may again hope for a return to better methods of business. As it is, better times are certainly nearer than they were a year ago, and affairs are really bettering already. That good sales can be made even in bad times is notably proved by some recent experiences, and with a due admixture of caution and enterprise the ledgers of 1877-8 ought to show better balances than those for several seasons back.

BOOKS FOR FALL.

We present herewith our usual summary of the books announced for fall issue, from which it may be gathered that the supply will, after all, be far from small. Even this long article is not complete, since many publishers are not yet ready to give particulars of their fall lists, while others have neglected to send us any information at all. These omissions we shall be glad to supply in a supplementary article in our next issue, which also will be in time for the trade sale.

ADAMS, VICTOR & Co., are about to issue a book on "Vital Magnetism," by Frederick T. Parson, of Brooklyn, who undertakes to group the facts of its use for curative purposes, under various names, from the earliest times.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION announce three new works. "The Story of a Hessian" is a narrative of the Revolution. The scene is laid in New Jersey, which for a long time withstood the brunt of the conflict. Also, "Jasper the Carver and Aunt Gracie's Trust," and "What will Come of It," by E. W. B.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY proposes this season to make a point of low prices for goodsized books, in specially handsome bindings. They have recently issued the strong series of lectures delivered by Drs. Storrs, Crosby, and others, before the Sunday-School Association, "God's Word Man's Light and Guide," and have nearly ready "Daily Light on the Daily Path: Evening Hour," of the two parts of which interesting devotional book over a quarter of a million copies have been sold by Bagster & Sons; and "Our Little Ones in Paradise," a collection of poetry for the solace of bereaved parents. For children there will be a fine book of "Dear Old Stories told once more," Bible topics treated by Faith Latimer, printed in large type, with 40 full-page and handsome cuts, and strikingly bound, at the low price of $1.25. "Grace Ashleigh's Life Work," "Betty and her Cousin Harry," by Sally Chester; and "Almost a Man," by S. Annie Frost, are all pleasant Sunday-school books illustrated but pleasant Sunday-school books, illustrated but issued at a very low price, averaging 260 pages, with several cuts, for $1. "Daughters of with several cuts, for $1. "Daughters of Armenia," by Mrs. C. H. Wheeler, a missionary among those people, will interest a wide range of people.

D. APPLETON & Co. already announce one of the most important lists of the season, though there is in it an exceptional dearth of books in general literature. Their art-book will be on "Pottery and Porcelain," by Charles Wyllys Elliott, of Boston, which they will publish with superb illustrations and in sumptuous style. There is hope of the new Lacroix book on "The Science and Literature of the Middle Ages" being ready. The most notable book on the list is, however, Dr. Cunningham Geikie's "Life of Christ," a work in two large octavo volumes, spoken of by English critics and American readers as setting forth with remarkable power the social and other conditions of life preceding and during the Messianic days, and quite as able and remarkable a book as Canon Farrar's. "The Church of the Apostles," by Bishop Kip, of California, is a less extended work, filling out Luke's picture of the early church under the captions of creeds, fellowship, Eucharist, and liturgies. In bio-graphy, there will be a sketch of "Four Years with General Lee," by Col. Walter H. Taylor, adjutant-general on his staff; and the "Memoirs of Jefferson Davis," edited by Major W. T. Walthall, which latter, however, may be delayed till spring. In connection with their cyclopedias, published by subscription, we may note the compilation of a General Index to the American Cyclopedia, in which all the articles are analyzed and the minor points brought into the alphabet, under the direction of Dr. Conant; the early completion of the Condensed Cyclopedia, in four volumes, and the progress of Prof. Youmans' "American Household Cyclo-pedia," which, however, will scarcely be started out this year. Another important enterprise, in the educational line, is the preparation of a new reading series, "Appleton's Readers," un-der the direction of Wm. T. Harris, Superintendent of Schools, St. Louis; A. J. Rickoff, Superintendent of Schools, Cleveland; and Mark Bailey, Professor of Elocution at Yale and Dartmouth. The "Collection of Foreign and Dartmouth. The Contention of Potengia Authors" will be steadily extended, the near-est volumes being Théophile Gautier's "Spi-rite" and Prince Lubomirski's two books, "Safar-Hadgi: The Russians in Samarcand" and "Scenes of Military Life in Russia." In poetry, there will be a collection of Mrs. Annie Chambers Ketchum's poems, under the title of "Lotos Flowers;" she will be remembered for her pleasant contributions to Harper's Magazine. In science, the list is, of course, exceedingly strong. Prof. Roscoe's "Chemistry," a most elaborate work in two large volumes, will be very important. The "International Scienbe very important. The "International Scientific Series" will be extended by another American contribution, a "History of Steam and the Steam Engine," finely illustrated, by Prof. Thurston, of the Stevens Institute; from which place also originates the new "Experimental Science Series," of Prof. Alfred M. Mayer and Charles Barnard, to include six low-priced volumes which shall instruct beginners how to make practical experiments with home-made apparatus of little cost. The initial volume, on "Light," is just ready. Prof. Jos. Le Conte, of the University of California, has prepared a text-book of "Elements of Geology," which, with 900 illustrations, is promised as the most complete text-book in this subject. There will be two books by Prof. Huxley, his "American Addresses, with a Lecture on Biology," and a "Manual of the Invertebrates," completing, with that of the Vertebrates, previously published, a work which he undertook twenty-two years ago; and one from Mr. Darwin, "The Different Forms of Flowers in Plants of the Same Species," continuing his recently published series of studies. Two books of general interest are a study of "Physiological Æsthetics," by Grant Allen, in which the writer, following Herbert Spencer and Darwin, discusses the physical basis of the love of beauty; and "Hospitals, their History, Orga-nization and Construction," by W. Gill Wylie, M.D., an important treatise with illustrative diagrams.

BAKER, PRATT & Co. will import one of the prettiest of the "Chatterbox" lines, "Lilliput Land," under which clever title will be issued the equivalent of Peepshow for 1877, as edited by Mrs. Cupples, the author of "Lilliput Levee.

A. S. Barnes & Co. have so far no new miscellaneous books under way for fall; they have arranged, however, with Rev. R. W. Dale, the prominent English preacher, who will deliver the next Lyman Beecher course, at Yale, of lectures on preaching, for the publication of his volume in the early spring.

J. W. BOUTON will publish in time for holiday use two superb folio volumes of etchings, "Contemporary Art," a series of twenty or thirty plates from representative works of living English and French artists, with descriptive text by J. N. Comys Carr, a leading contributor to the Portfolio; and "William Blake: Etchings from his Works," made by Prof. W. B. Scott, ten etchings with descriptive text which will sell probably as low as $6. Unger's superb series of 75 etchings after the old masters will be completed and issued in bound volume, late in the year, at $80. Mme. Blavatsky's "Isis Unveiled," for which many orders are stated to have been received from all corners of the world, will be ready, in two volumes, in September, and it is hoped to issue the first of the ten parts of Mr. Geo. H. Felt's long-deferred "Kaballah of the Egyptians and the Greek Canon of Proportion" in the following month. Stanfield's well-known "Coast Scenery of England," with the thirty-nine steels from the original plates, will be reissued at about $5. Mr. Bouton will also publish the edition of "The School of Shakespeare," the collection of old plays, biographies, etc., associated with his days.

G. W. CARLETON & Co. have in press a new long poem by Joaquin Miller called "The Baroness of New York," which is expected to make a sensation in society; there will be new novels by Mrs. Holmes, May Agnes Fleming, and other enterprises of which particulars cannot yet be given.

ROBERT CARTER & Bros. will publish this fall the eighth and concluding volume of d'Aubigné's great "History of the Reformation in the Time of Calvin," completing the work of a generation's time, which has taken nearly a generation for its publication. Thev have just ready "The Autobiography and Me-moir of Rev. William Arnot," the Scotch preacher, who will be remembered by those who attended the American meeting of the Evangelical Alliance as one of the most interesting of its members,—"a true and beautiful record of a life of rare honesty, beauty, and utility." "The Hidden Life," by the Rev. Adolph Saphir, recognized in Great Britain and by Continental scholars as one of the most original and instructive religious writers the day; and "Abraham, the Friend of God, y J. Oswald Dykes, D.D., the successor of le gifted Dr. James Hamilton in the Regent's

"Jack O'Lantern," a delightful book for little children, by a new author.

Cassell, Petter & Galpin offer this year an unusually full line of finely illustrated books. "The Royal Academy Album," a $30 volume with forty photographic reproductions of the pictures of 1877, and "Great Painters of Christendom," with steel plates and woodcuts, a $20 book, are both sumptuous works. A new Bible, quarto, illustrated amidst the text with woodcut maps, antiquities, etc., meets the want of a clear text, reasonably priced illustrated Bible. There will be new volumes of the "Library of English Literature," in a book of "Illustrations of English Religion," selections from the works of the great divines, edited by Prof. Henry Morley; of Thornbury's "Old and New London;" of Ollier and Chester's History of the United States, concluding the work; and of Wylie's History of Protes-tantism, also completing this enterprise. Two "Dictionaries," of English Literature and of Cookery, in large volumes, and "Common-Sense Cookery" and "Housekeeping," cheaper manuals, are of every-day importance. A large type edition of Goldsmith's select works, illustrated, is very well gotten up. "The Leopold Shakespeare," issued the previous season, should be noted as one of the live books. For should be noted as one of the live books. For children there are fine volumes without number, a new "Robinson Crusoe" in octavo, finely bound and with handsomely bordered page, 100 illustrations; a beautiful line of $2.25 books, rich in most exquisite illustrations of beasts, birds, and fishes, "Field Friends and Forest Foes," and its companions; a $1.50 line scarcely inferior, "Jungle, Peak and Plain," for boys, "Stories of Girlhood," for girls; a $1 line, 12mo, chromo cover, "Little Talke with Line and Chromo cover," tle Talks with Little People," and its mates, with a picture at every opening; a very neat 50-cent series in cloth, "Simple Rhymes for Happy Times," etc., similarly illustrated; a cheap 25-cent line in boards, in light tints; and, not to be forgotten, the new volume of the always welcome "Little Folks," a perennial delight to its namesakes.

CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER have as yet few special announcements to make, "Scenes and Incidents in the Peninsular Campaign" and "Thirty-four Years," a story of Southern life, being the only works so far announced for early issue.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL calls attention to his lines of poets, well worthy of the examination of those laying in stock, and will issue a new juvenile of the "Chatterbox" order, "Aunt Ethel's Picture Gallery," which he believes will prove one of the most popular of these very popular books.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will present the results of the most ambitious enterprise they have so far undertaken, an American edition of Lubke's great "History of Art," edited by Mr. Clarence Cook, from the seventh German edition instead of the Young," by the Rev. Dr. Macniff, author of the "Footsteps of St. Paul," c., with sixteen fine illustrations; "Blacktry Jam," by the author of the "Bessie coks;" "Moore's Forge," by the author of Win and Wear;" "Lettice Eden," by Emily rah Holt; "His Grandchild," a charming le by the author of "Nelly's Secret;" and far undertaken, an American edition of Lubke's great "History of Art," edited by Mr. Clarence Cook, from the seventh German edition instead from Mrs. Charles, "Edward Garrett," and Hesba Stretton, three English writers who know how to write strong, wholesome, religious stories which are not "goody." A new edition of Abbott's "Pioneers and Patriots," freshly bound with striking side stamp and very appropriate back, and having new illustrations, including a fine double-page frontispiece in each volume, is exceedingly attractive and very cheap at $1.25. Mr. Charles Nord-hoff's series of "Sailor Life" books comes on this list. There will also be a new Elsie book, "Elsie's Children." In general juveniles, they have made unusual and most successful endeavors to produce taking novelties. "Wee Elsie's Picture-Book," with fresh pictures, including many Giacomelli borders, and syllable-divided stories, and "Saturday Afternoons," with 112 full-page pictures, are match quartos, "Tom cloth with handsome chromo side. Dick and Harry—made a scrap-book and here it is" (the last picture is a little darkey, with the legend "Golly! Wish I could get one of dese yer picture-books") and "Gypsy's Rainy-Day Book" are elegantly printed small quartos, a picture on every page, bound in boards richly illuminated in gold and colors in most beautiful designs, at the press of Rand, Avery & Co.; they sell for only 50 cents. These four books are really remarkable. They have also "The Dorothy Library," decorated with the novelty of a floral chromo band; "The Morning Glory Stories," by Jennie Harrison; "The Rose Library;" "Picture Page Library," etc., at very low prices, the last, with chromo side and picture of the property of the story. ture at every opening, retailing at 25 cents per volume. To their "Economical Sunday-School Library" has just been added an "Infant's E. S. S. L.," 40 copiously illustrated easy volumes, with catalogues, at $7.50 net.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are issuing the new series of Yale Lectures on Preaching, from the vigorous mind of Rev. Phillips Brooks; a volume of "Studies on the New Testament," by F. Godet, D.D.; "Every Day," a brilliantly bound square romo, with text, hymn, prayer, and record of births, marriages, and deaths for every day in the year; Fenelon's "Spiritual Letters," divided into "Letters for Men" and "Letters for Women; the series of "Historical Biographies," edited by Rev. F. Creighton, very readable little books; and the three-volume popular "History of England," by J. F. Bright, lecturer at Oxford, used extensively on the other side as a school history and for popular reading. For the children they will have a new book in Mrs. D. P. Sanford's delightful "Pussy Tiptoe Series," "The Little Brown House," with new editions of the previous volumes, in board covers of very clever design; a pleasant story of "Lotty's Visit to Grandmamma;" with illustrations in etching style; a fully illustrated book on "Switzerland and the Swiss;" a seventh series of Mrs. Carey Brock's "Sunday Echoes in Week-Day Hours;" and "Capt. Fritz and his Friends," by Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller. Mrs. Sanford has also prepared another book, "The Sunday Evening Hour," finely illustrated, for the children's Sunday evening reading.

ESTES & LAURIAT will continue their very popular Cobweb Series of novels with "Forbidden Fruit," translated from Hacklaender, "the German Dickens," whose choicest works will be put in the Cobweb uniform, and two more novels by Alphonse Daudet, author of "Sidonie," "Le Nabob," translated by Mrs. Hooper, and "The Little Good-for-Nothing," by the translator of "Sidonie," Mary N. Sherwood. They will also issue an American edition, authorized and unabridged, of Haydon's "Correspondence and Table-Talk" in two octavo volumes; "The Fur-bearing Animals of North-America," a new work by Dr. Eliot Coues, the eminent ornithologist; and a cheaper edition of Packard's "Our Common Insects." They make a specialty of importing "Chatterbox."

GINN & HEATH have in press an "Introduction to the Study of the Rhythmic and Metric of the Classical Languages," by Dr. J. H. of the Classical Languages," by Dr. J. H. Heinrich Schmidt; to which Prof. J. W. White, of Harvard, will add the text of the lyrical parts of some of the more generally read of the Greek dramas, with rhythmical schemes and commentary. The Latin grammar of Allen and Greenough has just been thoroughly revised, and now seems to be almost ideally perfect in system, arrangement, definition, explanation, and illustration. Its absolute clearness and simplicity are remarkable, and its musical representation of prosody is very satisfactory. This day-schools, will be of great interest. house will also issue the novelty of "Cookery Cards for the Kitchen," a series of hanging sheets for the kitchen wall, by Mrs. Warren, the London apostle of home economy, of which 20,000 copies have been sold in England. They will be edited for American issue by Miss Huntington, of the Cooking School.

ROBERTS BROTHERS finish immediately their excellent library edition of Landor's "Imaginary Conversations" with the fifth volume, which contains a full index to the entire work, prepared expressly for this edition. To their choice "Wisdom Series" they add "Selections from Epictetus." The "Life of Charles Sumner," in two octavo volumes, by Edward L. Pierce, will be a work of remarkable interest, one of the most noteworthy biographies of the time. Miss Harriet W. Preston is translating from the French the "Life of Alfred de Musset," which cannot fail to be a work of much literary and personal attraction. The "No Name Series" will be increased by "The Wolf at the Door." A highly valuable religious volume will be the "Last Series of Christian Aspects of Faith and Duty," by the late John James Tayler, of London, edited by James Martineau. A pleasant selection of poems for the use of invalids, by the editor of "Quiet Hours," will be issued under the title of "Sursum Corda." Two attractive juveniles will be "Jack Granger's Cousin," by Julia A. Matthews, and "Jolly Good Times at School," by P. Thorne.

CHARLES F. ROPER will issue this fall "The Expiation of Saveli," by Mme. Greville.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & Sons present their usual long list for the fall trade, at the head of which should be mentioned a beautiful book of "Art Rambles in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland," by John T. Reid, a tasteful small quarto with a hundred and fifty illustrations from nature, engraved by the brothers Dalziel; and "The Birthday Book of Flower and Song, with many beautiful floral plates in colors, selections of poetry for each day, and spaces for the autographs of friends—the most elegant and expensive book of this kind yet produced. There will be an entirely new edition of Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare," with Sir John Gilbert's illustrations from the Staunton Shakespeare, and in the red line series Scott's poems and "The Poet's Corner," selections from the British poets, with biographical sketches, edited by the late J. C. M. Bellew. The new "Harry Lorrequer" edition of Charles · Lever, uniform with the Knebworth Bulwer, makes progress. To the "Useful Library" is added a little book on "The Pleasures of House-Building." Of new juvenile books the announcements are many; for the new editions and countless series, we must refer readers to the wareroom of the house. We may especially mention, as new, "Every Boy's Annual" and "Little Wide Awake," for 1878; Houdin's "Science of Conjuring," with notes by Prof. Hoffman; and "Mother Goose's Fairy Tales," a very full collection of standards, in large type and with two hundred illustrations.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. send out as one of their first books Dr. Holland's "Nicholas Minturn," in which he deals vigorously and suggestively with a leading "topic of the time"—pauperism and tramps. The story is of a rich young fellow in a great city, who devotes himself to putting the "dead-beats" into the way of earning self-respect and a living, and with Dr. Holland's popularity, the timeliness of his subject, and Mr. Reinhart's capital illustrations from the Monthly, the book ought to outreach twenty thousand before New Year's. Jules Verne's new book, "Hector Sewadæ," will not be ready till later in the season. An important book will be a history of "Modern Philosophy, from Descartes to Schopenhauer and Hartmann," by Prof. Francis Bowen, of Harvard, a work treating fully, though within reasonable compass, of recent and current philosophical controversies, from the point of view of orthodox theistic philosophy. A brief defence of "The Religious Feeling," by Rev. A brief Newman Smyth, an English clergyman, com-bats infidelity in somewhat new fashion. There bats infidelity in somewhat new fashion. will be a new edition of George P. Marsh's work on "The Earth as Modified by Human Action," at a reduced price. In the "Epochs of History" series, "The Age of Queen Anne," by Edward E. Morris, joint editor of the series, will be the next volume, with five colored maps and two plans. This house has other important enterprises on hand for the later fall, but as yet the particulars are not given.

SCRIBNER, WELFORD & ARMSTRONG will have, among other sumptuous books, the new edition of Jacquemart's "History of the Ceramic Art," reduced in price to about $10.50, and an edition of Miss Amelia B. Edward's finely illustrated volume, "A Thousand Miles up the Nile," also at a much lower price than that at which it could hitherto be imported. Of their importations in general literature for the fall it is not possible to speak at this date. To the Scribner "Popular Poets," at $1.50, there will be added a complete edition of Tennyson, illustrated, including "Queen Mary" and "Harold," which, in clear, legible type and with fancy binding, will rival any cheap edition in the market.

Sheldon & Co. will shortly issue a most important philosophical work in "A Vocabulary of the Philosophical Sciences," by Prof. Chas. P. Krauth, Provost of the University of Penn-sylvania. This virtually includes two separate books, the original vocabulary of philosophy, mental, moral and metaphysical, of Prof. Fleming of Glasgow, as edited in this country by Dr. Henry Calderwood, including all the matter of both the English and American editions, and Dr. Krauth's own supplement and vocabulary of all the philosophical sciences. In these two alphabets it is supposed that every term of importance in the literature of philosophy is entered, with definitions, citations of its use, parallels in various tongues, a historical statement of growth and fluctuations of meaning, etc., and there are many valuable synthetic tables. The bibliographical references are copious. Dr. Krauth has especially filled out the deficiency of Fleming's book in regard to the terms of German philosophy. The work will cover more than a thousand pages. A tenth volume of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's sermons, selected from his best of the last four or five years, has been prepared by Rev. J. S. Holme, under the title of "The Matchless Mystery;" Mr. Holme has also prepared a complete textual and topical index to the full ten volumes, which will be very useful to readers and students of Spurgeon. One of the most interesting books will be "The Narrative of a Blockade Runner," by Capt. J. Wilkinson, of the Confederate Navy, who ran the blockade successfully eighteen times, and also com-manded one of the rebel vessels at the time of the capture of New Orleans; he tells "a plain, unvarnished tale" of great interest. For fiction, Sheldon & Co. promise Justin McCarthy's "Miss Misanthrope," Mrs. Annie Edward's "A Blue Stocking," and "Ernest's Quest," religious story by the author of the famous "Grace Truman," of which 70,000 copies have been sold since its publication twenty years ago. Sheldon & Co. have just ready a new text-book on "The Science of Rhetoric," by Prof. D. J. Hill, who takes particular pains to avoid the frequent confusion of rhetoric with collateral sciences.

- J. L. SIBOLE & Co., Philadelphia, have in preparation for the holidays "The Gathering of the Lilies," a new book by L. Clarkson, whose "Violet with Eyes of Blue" will be remembered as one of the pretty things of last season.
- J. M. STODDART & Co. will have ready in a few weeks the sixth volume of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," in the usual styles of binding.
- E. B. TREAT now offers to the trade in sets, at the greatly reduced price of $4.50, the "Moody Library," consisting of "Glad Tidings," "Great Joy," "To all People," three very desirable works formerly sold only by subscription at $2 the volume.
- th it could hitherto be imported. Of their ortations in general literature for the fall it of possible to speak at this date. To the biner "Popular Poets," at $1.50, there will died a complete edition of Tennyson, ilrated, including "Queen Mary" and "Harwine which, in clear, legible type and with

Two books by Rev. John Cotton Smith are also nearly ready, one the series of lectures delivered in his church last winter, the other a collection of sermons on critical points in church matters. He also publishes a revised and corrected edition of his annual volume, "Perry's Hand-book of the General Convention of the P. E. Church.'

IOHN WILEY & SONS will confine themselves this fall chiefly to scientific text-books, the exception being the new and revised edition of Rotherham's "Critically Emphasized New Rotherham's "Critically Emphasized New Testament." These comprise a new Descrip-tive Geometry, by Prof. S. E. Warren; an Ele-mentary Mechanics, by Prof. De Volson Wood, with an enlarged edition of his Analytical Mechanics; a Differential Calculus, by Prof. J. M. Rice; and a revised edition of Mahan's industrial Drawing, made by Prof. D. F. Thompson.

THE WORLD PUBLISHING COMPANY has nearly ready "Chatterbox Junior," a rival of its elder brother, besides its usual lines of cheap standards.

R. Worthington, 750 Broadway, who has spent his whole summer (and not the last month only, as our printers made it in our last issue) in picking up fine books and rarities for the benefit of the trade, is ready to display to all visitors to the Trade Sale who will take the trouble to step around the corner, one of the finest assortments of imported books that can be found in the country. He has been singularly successful in obtaining the best library editions, oftentimes rare, of standard works, in full calf and other elegant bindings, and those dealers who supply private libraries cannot pass him by. He has also a considerable stock to show of recent English books, imported in quantities, and still supplies the trade, at lowest rates, with the authorized edition of Chambers' Cyclopedia. Mr. Worthington has also arranged for the American market for Bradbury's & Agnew's new "Handy Vol-ume Waverley" edition of Scott's novels, dainty, clear type, little pocket volumes, a remarkable triumph of the multum in parvo, comprising each the whole of a novel. They are sold separately, in paper, so far as ready, at 40 cents retail, but will be more desirable in cloth sets, neatly boxed, twenty-five volumes, $20 retail. These sets are likely to prove one of the most popular features of the holiday trade.

COMMUNICATIONS. A POST-OFFICE QUERY.

September 5, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: Here is a problem I would like to have solved by Postmaster Key's man Fri-Goodall's fine playing cards (English), and like many of American manufacture, have slips of paper between them for protection of the cards, and on the slips are printed advertisements.

Now, when I send a pack by mail to Saratoga or Jericho, must I break the revenue stamp and overhaul before mailing? This I think a very unjust decision, and needs speedy amendment.

Yours respectfully.

JAS. H. BARHYTE.

Our correspondent mistakes the nature of the decision: it is second-class matter, by the pound, from whose wrappers advertisements are to be excluded; the package he speaks of is third-class matter.—ED.]

OBITUARY.

WE regret to note the death of Mr. William H. Sadlier, for many years associated with the well-known firm of D. & J. Sadlier, and since in business for himself as a publisher of Catholic school-books. Mr. Sadlier died suddenly on Friday, the 7th, in his thirty-first year. At a meeting of the Catholic book trade, September 8th, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from amidst us Mr. William H. Sadlier, one of the youngest and most enterprising Catholic book publishers in the United most enterprising Catholic book publishers in the United States; therefore, Resolved, That while bowing to the decrees of an Allwise Providence, we cannot help expressing our poignant sorrow at the sudden and untimely death of our young associate, feeling as we do that each of us has lost a dear and tried friend, and that the Catholic book trade not only of New York, but of the whole country, have been deprived of an honest, honorable, and upright member; Resolved, That Mr. William H. Sadlier, during his short but successful career as a publisher of school-books of superior character and excellence, fully earned the respect and gratitude of all lovers of education and promoters of Catholic interests in America; Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, properly engrossed, be presented to the bereaved widow of the late Mr. Sadlier.

Mr. Sadlier.

J. C. McGer, Chairman, L. Kehoe, Secretary, Louis Benziger, James Sadlier, James Shrehy, Committee. P. J. KENNEDY, Thomas Kelly.

The funeral took place from the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. P. Cassidy, 965 5th avenue, near 85th street, on Monday morning at half-past ten o'clock; after which, at St. Lawrence's Church, 84th street, a solemn requiem mass was offered for the repose of his

THE CONFERENCE OF LIBRARIANS.

THE American Library Association, which met in the Y. M. C. A. Building in New York, September 4th-6th, was attended by from fifty to a hundred librarians and others from different parts of the country, including several members of the book trade. Mr. Justin Winsor delivered the opening address, after which the continuation of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature was considered. The list of periodicals it was proposed to index, with the proposed directions, were submitted in print, and the power to arrange for compilation and publication on the plans described were left to the special committee consisting of Messrs. Poole, Winsor, and Cutter. It was decided that the questions in which the book trade was also interested should be grouped together and made the order of business for II o'clock Wednesday, for which time a special invitation was issued to publishers, asking them to be present and to take part in the discussions.

The chief of these questions appertained to a uniform system of title entries in cataloguing, including uniform abbreviations and a more satisfactory method of designating the sizes of books. Quite a discussion arose as to whether capitals should be used or omitted in copying title-pages, the balance of opinion favoring the retention of capitals. In regard to sizes, discussed the third day, several difficulties in the proposed system were pointed out by Mr. L. E. Jones of the American Catalogue, and the drift of discussion indicated a desire to modify the measurements proposed so as to bring the lettering F, Q, O D, S, etc., more into conformation with the present present ideas of folio, quarto, octavo, etc. This whole line of subjects was referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Cutter, Spofford, Green of Worcester, Dyer of St. Louis, and Jones, to report through the Library Journal a uniform code, which they should recommend also to publishers for use in their cataloguing.

The question of printed slips to be issued by publishers for the use of libraries and buyers in general, on which should be given the title according to the code recommended, and possibly a brief note on the book, was discussed by Mr. Winsor, who presented a draft of a slip and enlarged on its usefulness to libraries, by Mr. Bowker, who spoke of the possible commercial usefulness of such a plan, and by Mr. Dewey, who showed examples after the Italian method. These three were appointed a committee to take action, in co-operation with publishers. In the matter of binding for libraries, the suggestions reported by the committee and printed elsewhere were accepted as satisfactory. Mr. Winsor showed samples of buckram for book covering, and a method of re-binding with spring back was shown by its inventor.

During the Convention, Mr. William F. Poole, of the Chicago Public Library, reported as chairman of the committee to confer with publishers as to discounts. The committee, he said, had held no meeting, because the publishers had held no convention. But the 20 per cent men had disappeared. "In Chicago a publisher, in a competition, one year, gave him 38 per cent discount in purchasing books for the Chicago Library, and, at the present time, he was buying books at 37 per cent discount.

Publishers could not find much profit in this, but they probably found some advantage in having their publications in a public library."

On Wednesday evening a pleasant reception was given in the Y. M. C. A. parlors to the visiting librarians, at which the trade was represented by Mr. G. H. Putnam, Mr. F. W. Christern, Mr. J. W. Bouton, Mr. F. W. Dodd, Mr. J. Sabin, Mr. F. Leypoldt, and others, Mr. Christern and Mr. Sabin made remarks. On Thursday evening Mr. Christern gave a delightful private reception at his house to the party going abroad for the London Conference of Librarians (October 2d-6th) who sailed this (Saturday) morning to the number of nineteen. These are authorized to confer with the English librarians as to the international adoption of proposed improvements. A full report of the Convention will be given in the Library Journal for September.

LIBRARY BINDING.

In the August number of the Library Yournal, the Co-operative Committee of the Library Association submits in its report a recommendation to publishers as to bindings for libraries, as follows:

Some leading publishers having expressed a willingness to furnish their books in that style of binding which was agreed upon by the Association as the best for library use, the committee submit the following specifications. Each signature to be sewed, and, for books larger than ducdecimo, on at least three strong cords; backs and corners of genuine goat (vellum, put on under the paper, as in French bindings, is still more desirable for the corners); boards laced on, solid backs, paper sides, tops burnished, edges trimmed no more than absolutely necessary to make them even. Material and workmanship to be strictly first class throughout. This binding is intended to secure the greatest durability for a given expenditure.

The Association binding cannot be done by alternating signatures in sewing as in most cheap work. Solid backs are preferred, as giving much greater strength, and if good Turkey morocco is used, there will be little danger of the back cracking. The leather glued firmly to the backs of the signatures gives a support that is lacking in the spring-back.

Paper sides, while two or three cents cheaper, are thought to wear as long, certainly more smoothly, as cloth sides often fray out at the edges, and when wet blister in patches. The paper is also more convenient for putting on outside labels, and can be replaced more readily if soiled. It has a further advantage in slipping more easily into a full shelf, the friction being less than with cloth.

The burnished top is recommended as a substitute for gilding, which in job-work is too expensive, costing something like 15 cents per top. By pressing the leaves firmly together and polishing the top as if it were to be gilded, almost the same protection from dust is secured at only a trifling expense. At the annual cleanings, these burnished tops can be dusted much more quickly and safely, for it is difficult for the dust to find its way down between the leaves. It is understood that the term "Association binding" will under no circumstances be given to any work not conforming to the specifications laid down by the Association.

It is evident that it would be much more satisfactory to buy books in the best library binding, if it could be obtained, rather than be compelled to pay for cheap muslin and imitation leather, which must be replaced after the first issues.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

hich is formed by two harlequins holding by us to a central cut-glass vase. They are ade in electro bronze, verd antique, and new panese bronze, and are very handsome and at.

In visiting A. & E. Wallach, of Broadway, New ork, we were shown one of the handsomest sortments of fine fancy goods yet seen, and ere informed that this house was constantly dized, with square and fancy-shaped glass inks, both single and double.

MAY, HARD & Co., 165 William street, New York, are now prepared to offer to the trade a fine line of fancy and wedding stationery, comprising the latest novelties and styles in papeteries in silk and leather. Their Russia-leather writing-desk papeterie is neat and attractive, and is meeting with great favor. This firm have a handsome line of papers called the Rosebud, each sheet having rosebuds watermarked therein; they come in various delicate tints in forty-five and sixty pounds. They have also gotten up various new designs in wedding envelopes, and keep a full supply of everything pertaining to fancy stationery. This firm is composed of energetic young men, and their efforts are deserving of success.

Messing's letter-file, patented July 10th, 1877, for filing and securely binding letters, bills, bills of lading, and other office papers.

The above cut represents the file two-third size, and the filing is done simply by pressing the papers to be filed over the prongs until they reach the back of the file. The binding is then done by turning the points of the prongs over and pressing them down. The wire being pliable, no tools of any kind are required. They are sold to the trade at 50 cents per dozen, with a liberal discount to jobbers. Willy Wallach, New York, is the sole agent.

CHAMBERLIN, WHITMORE & Co. have brought out a very handsome line of bevelled-edge cards, with rounded, concave and clipped corners, in gold, silver, red and blue, for visiting purposes. Their new tint in satinfinish note-paper will, no doubt, be decidedly popular. Their week-day and japanesque card papeteries, with drop-front boxes, are meeting with favor, and have a good sale among the trade. This firm are now manufacturing a fine line of Russia leather and silk novelties, which they expect to place on the market in about ten days. Their new Dunbarton papeterie is very neat and attractive, and made in three sizes.

THE SOUVENIR PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, will soon have ready a novelty for teachers, called the "Progressiometre," which consists of a movable disk on a fixed card, designed as a practical means for the just distribution of school prizes, awards, and privileges, for weekly or monthly improvement made by the pupils, instead of, as now, for the attainment of high rank.

THE DIXON PENCIL Co., Jersey City, N. J., shipped on August 31st 933 gross of pencils, and received additional orders for 1375 gross more. This looks something like a revival of trade.

An English compiler, Mr. Howard Williams, promises to delight the vegetarians with a volume comprising quotations from all the decriers of flesh-eating from Hesiod down. Short critical essays on the authorities are a part of the scheme of the book.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"HASHED LIES" is the elegant title under which the Congregationalist reviews the new edition of Peters' History of Connecticut.

J. CHURCH & Co.'s singing-school and convention books are being extensively adopted now in the East, and they look for a very large trade in that line this fall and winter.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY have become the publishers of Captain Bogardus' "Field, Cover, and Trap Shooting," heretofore published by J. B. Ford & Co.

THE NATURALIST'S AGENCY has just issued a new and revised edition of "Maynard's Naturalist's Guide," with two new colored plates and an appendix containing much new matter.

REES WELCH & Co., Philadelphia, have taken the next store to their old establishment on Walnut street, and are now prepared not only to furnish many rare and valuable works, but also to do a larger business.

A PRESBYTERIAN minister of Adrian, Michigan, the Rev. John C. Hill, is about to publish "Hints on the Preparation and Delivery of Bible Readings," which will contain a compilation of Bible readings by prominent ministers of different denominations.

"FAVORITE POEMS," by Robert Southey, "The Pleasures of Hope," by Thomas Campbell, "Elizabeth Barrett Browning," by Edmund C. Stedman, and "The Tale," translated from the German of Goethe by Thomas Carlyle, are the latest additions to the "Vest Pocket Series," published by James R. Osgood & Co.

In preparing the material for his forthcoming "Domestic Cyclopedia," Prof. E. L. Youmans has taken extraordinary precautions to insure absolute accuracy. He has rented and furnished a house up-town, where every detail to be treated in the cyclopedia is tested by the criterion of practical experience. This is science applied to housekeeping.

THE Literary World states that previous to Peter Harvey's death the manuscript of his reminiscences of Webster had been placed in the hands of Mr. George M. Towle, to be prepared for the press. "In his editorial charge it now remains, and under his supervision it will be published at an early day by Little, Brown & Co. A work of considerable size and great interest may be expected."

We have received through Mr. F. W. Christern, from M. René Fouret of Hachette et Cie., Paris, his report upon Printing and the Book Trade at the Centennial Exhibition, made as the French representative on the Board of Judges, for their departments. It is an interesting document, issued in fine shape from the National Printing Office, and we shall present in our next issue a number of extracts in translation.

One of the coming events is "The Yale Book," intended to be for Yale what the famous "Harvard Book,' published by Harvard's class of 1874, was for that institution. "The Yale Book," which will have the imprint of Henry Holt & Co., will be in two imperial quarto volumes of nearly nine hundred pages each, illustrated by more than one hundred views, portraits, maps, etc., mostly heliotypes. W. L. Kingsley, of the New Englander, is the editor, and among the contributors are Dr. Leonard Bacon, Prof. H.

N. Day, Prof. Elias Loomis, Prof. W. D. Whitney, Rev. Dr. I. N. Tarbox, Rev. Daniel Butler, Prof. J. D. Dana, and President Porter. §

BOOK NOTICES.

THE BIBLE OF HUMANITY, by Jules Michelet, translated from the French by Vincenzo Calfa. (Bouton.) Michelet's work is best described as "a large epic in prose." In it, to quote from some introductory remarks upon the author's life and works, "the artist-historian, in the manner of inspired men and prophets, sings the evolution of mankind. There is no doubt that he throws brilliant glimpses of light on the long course of events and periods which he unfolds; but at the same time he carries away the reader with such rapid flights of imagina-tion as almost to make him giddy." The work is divided into two parts; in the first, under the title of "The Children of the Sun," the very earliest literature and beliefs of India, Persia, and Greece are discussed. Under the second part. entitled "Children of the Twilight, of the Night, and of the Light reflecting against of the Night, and of the Light reflecting against the Darkness," we find the sub-titles "Egypt—Death," "Syria—Phrygia—Enervation," "Bacchus — Sabazius — His Incarnation—The Tyrant," "The Incarnation of Sabazius—Military Orgies," "The Jew—The Servant," "The World—Woman," "The Struggle between Woman and the Stoic—Law and Grace," "Triumph of Woman," "Period of Universal Weakness—Middle Ages," which give a key to the various matters over which Michelet to the various matters over which Michelet casts the vivifying rays of his brilliant imagination. The work is very handsomely printed on fine laid paper, with a broad margin, uncut. A new and complete index gives additional value to the work. 8vo, cloth, $3.

PANOLA, a Tale of Louisiana, by Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey. (Peterson.) Southern life before and after the war finds a brilliant delineator in Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey. Her work is thoroughly local in characters and scenes, and even in thought. It is unusually fresh and bright in style and quite original in construction. actors are different from anything to be found out of New Orleans, where the strange admixture of races as shown in the heroes and heroines is no novelty. Panola boasts of the blood of the Cherokees, her coquette of a cousin, Natika, is the daughter of a Greek, while others betray French, German, and even quadroon affiliations. A fortune of three millions left, in the first chapter, to one of the cousins, a handsome fellow deprived through some unaccountable cause of the use of his legs, on condition that he recovers his health, walks again, and marries, is the main point in the story. The true history of his misfortunes, when all 1 d, brings out some startling descriptions of c me and revenge, lightened, however, by some vy charming love scenes. The characters tching is all very fine, old Doctor Ceauze, Panola and her mother, and the Cherokee ef being quite new in fiction. 12mo, cloth, FOREIGN CLASSICS FOR ENGLISH READERS, ted by Mrs. Oliphant. DANTE, by Mrs. Oliphant. (Lippincott.) The plan of this series is a same as that of the "Ancient Classics for lights Readers," which met with such a favorile reception from the reading public. It will embrace the names of Voltaire, Pascal, Goethe, Petrarch, Cervantes, Montaigne, and others, the volumes being prepared by well-known scholars. The present volume, the initial one of the series, treats of the life and works of Dante. His works are analyzed, a brief synopsis of the events of the poems being given in prose, while some parts of the poems are ably translated by the editor. The English reader unacquainted with Italian or not caring to go through an entire translation may thus gain a very thorough idea of Dante's writings, his position in the literature of his country, and the reasons which influenced him to write as he did. Mrs. Oliphant's style is exceedingly taking, and gives additional interest and value to the work. 12mo, cloth, $1.

THE PHYSICIAN'S VISITING LIST FOR 1878. (Lindsay & B.) This valuable little publication, now in its twenty-seventh year, should be known to every physician; once used, he will find it an indispensable companion in his rounds, both for recording his visits and for consulting in cases of emergency, such as poisonings, etc. It contains tables of antidotes for the latter, Marshall Hall's ready method in asphyxia, and other tables which will prove very convenient, with blank leaves arranged for recording all a doctor's various engagements. In a neat morocco case, with tucks and pencil.

THE ANTI-BILED SHIRT CLUB. (Authors' Pub. Co.) The club whose doings are recorded in this little book consists of a party of young men and women from Brooklyn, who go up and camp in the "wilderness" for a short period in the summer. They start out with the intention of "roughing it," and eschewing fashionable attire, hence the name of the club, and of the book—"biled" shirts being admissible only on special occasions. They meet with many adventures and have considerable amusement, and come home thoroughly pleased with their vacation. 12mo, paper, 35 cents.

NURSE AND PATIENT, AND CAMP CURE, by S. Weir Mitchell. (Lippincott.) The two brief essays in this volume, reprinted from Lippincott's Magazine, are full of plain, practical advice which everyone will be glad to make his own. The first essay, "Nurse and Patient," refers to the duties of the nurse and the claims of the patient, and specially sets forth the best way of nursing, and the best person to place in that position. "Camp Cure" should be read by the overworked either in body or mind; its suggestions are extremely valuable. 16mo, cloth, 50 cents.

A MANUAL OF ELOCUTION, by M. Josephine Warren. (Fortescue & Co.) This manual has been so thoroughly revised and so much enlarged that it can be offered as a new book. Its design is to furnish the principles of the art of elocution in a comprehensive and practical form adapted to all grades of students and schools, under the direction of a judicious teacher. It gives instruction for mechanical voice training and intelligible and expressive reading, with a number of selections for students' drill. 12mo, cloth.

POETS' HOMES.—This handsome Book is a valuable | Hopkins, has a hundred laughs in it, more or less. No huaddition to the literature of Literature. No recent collections have been made of sketches relative to our modern American Poets, and this one, freshly prepared by such writers as R. H. STODDARD, GEORGE LOWELL AUSTIN, etc., etc., includes many of the younger authors, Aldrich, Edgar Fawcett, Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford, the Piatts, etc. It abounds with personal gossip, and is illustrated with engravings of the Poets' Homes, Library and Parlor Interiors, and Original Portraits.

IN COMPANY WITH CHILDREN is a new Volume of Poems, by Mrs. S. M. B. PIATT, and is perhaps the truest motherbook in the language; the highest, fullest, most songful expression of motherhood-its loss, its tears, its sweetness, its gladness. [The volume is happily illustrated by Mrs. Humphrey, Jessie Curtis, and Robert Lewis.

SUGAR PLUMS, by ELLA FARMAN, is a book of sweet, ender, funny verses, not simply about children, but for children themselves to read. The poems, even the lightest and merriest, holds a germ of thought or feeling; and the little book is one of the few children's books likely to meet with a permanent sale. It is handsomely illustrated by C. A. Northam.

GOOD-FOR-NOTHING POLLY.—The Boston Transcript says: "This story is every whit as good as T. R. ALDRICH'S 'Story of a Bad Boy.'"

WIDE-AWAKE PLEASURE BOOK "D."-Delightful. Delicious. Dainty. Desirable. Delightful, because it contains Sophie May's "Quinnebasset Girls." Delicious, because of "Child Marian Abroad," by WM. M. F. ROUND. Dainty, because it is full of pictures. Desirable, because it is pure and wholesome from cover to cover.

"It should be in every public library, and in every private one of any pretension; for, as a work of reference in regard to all the facts of our history from the time of the Revolution till after the close of the war with Mexico, it is without an equal. A more tasteful and elegant publication has rarely been issued in America."—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

"Uncle Herbert is a real juvenile benefactor, and every boy and girl who sees 'The Prattler' will say so. To be sure, they will not say 'juvenile benefactor,' perhaps. PARKMAN'S NEW WORK.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO.

Count Frontenac and New France under Louis XIV.

By Francis Parkman. Small 8vo. Cloth, $2.50.

"In vigor and pointedness of description Mr. Parkman may be counted superior to Irving, while frequent passages in his narrative recall the seductive enticements with which the best-beloved writer of our country invested his magic portraitures of external nature."—New York Tribune.

UNIFORM WITH PARKMAN'S WORKS.

The Pioneers of France in the New World.

(I. Huguenots in Florida. II. Samuel de Champlain.) Figh Edition. Small 8vo. Cloth, $2.50; half calf, $4.50.

"It is a narrative which has all the animation, variety, and interest of a romance, and to most readers it will be as fresh and novel as a pure creation of the imaginative faculty."—New York World.

"In interest this work exceeds any novel which has been published during the year. Every page bears unmistakable impress of power—power of patient investigation, power of dramatic conception, power of philosophic thought, power of pictorial diction."—Boston Transcript.

"One of the very finest contributions to the historical literature of this country."—Providence (R. I.) Press.

The Jesuits in North America in the Seventeenth Century.

Fourth edition. Small 8vo. Cloth, $2.50; half calf, $4.50.

"We feel that he is for us a faithful and competent interpreter and commentator of Indian life, manners, superstitions, and fortunes. He has a marvellous skill in observing and describing the phenomena of nature—the features and scenes of the wilderness amid which they roved. We know of no writer whose pages are so real and vivid in qualities harmonizing with his theme as are his."—Atlantic Monthly.

"Parkman's work is as fascinating as the best of Scott's novels. Once commenced, you cannot lay the book down; you will read every line of it."—Boston Pilot.

The Discovery of the Great West.

Third Edition. Small 8vo. Cloth, $2.50; half calf, $4.50.

"This volume embodies the exploits and adventures of the first European explorers of the valley of the Mississippi; the efforts of the French to secure the whole interior of the continent; the attempt of La Salle to find a westward passage to Iodia; his colony on the Illinois; his scheme of invading Mexico; his contest with the Jesuits, and his assassination by his own followers. The narrative is founded entirely on contemporary documents, including many unpublished letters and journals of the chief explorers, which, for the first time, place in a clear light one of the most interesting and striking and journals of the chief explorers, which, for the first time, place in a clear light one of the most interesting and striking portions of American History.

"A subject which Mr. Parkman has made as much his own as Motley the Dutch Republic, or Macaulay the English Revolution. He is thorough master of his material, which is much scattered, and exists largely in manuscript; and his magination, his picturesque narrative style, and his admirable perception of the true point of interest give to his historical works a wonderful charm and symmetry. It is to the pages of Mr. Parkman that we must go for the American Indian. Cooper so bewitches our young fancies with Uncas and the red heroes that it is very difficult to divest our estimate of the Indian of a false and foolish glamour. Mr. Parkman, however, knows him by personal experience and long and thoughtful study."—George W. Curtis.

The Old Régime in Canada under Louis XIV.

Fourth Edition. Small 8vo. Cloth, $2.50; half calf, $4.50.

"The author here presents the results of his researches into the early history of Canada under French rule, including m his view the century bounded by 1633 and 1753. He has had access to a mass of State papers in the archives of France which have never before been drawn upon, and with the material thus derived has wrought an historical fabric at once substantial and fascinating. The influences which controlled the colony in its beginning, and during its first century of life—the Roman Catholic mission spirit and the monarchical ambition of Louis XIV.—are delineated in character and operation with remarkable skill; and the extracts from the voluminous official correspondence maintained between France and Canada lend a singular and delightful piquancy to the narrative.

"In this volume Mr. Parkman details intelligently and in a symmetrical and impressive narrative the efforts of French Monarchy and the Church of Rome to grasp the Continent of North America. He has chosen a peculiar but very effective method to this end. Instead of discoursing at length of state-craft and church-craft, and overwhelming the reader with dry documents and historical lore, he invites him to look upon a series of scenes in the early life of Canada, in which that life is set forth with marvellous vividness and realism. But in him the historian always controls the painter; and, amid the fascination of these pictures, he never loses sight of the two forces the history of whose operation is the history of Canada—the spirit of monarchy, and the spirit of Roman Catholic missions."—The Literary World.

The Conspiracy of Pontiac, and the Indian War after the Conquest of Canada.

New Edition. 2 vols., small 8vo. Cloth, $5.00; half calf, $9.00.

"An admirable production. Combining thoroughness of research with a picturesque beauty of expression, it presents fascinating narrative of one of the most pregnant episodes in American history."—Westminster Review.
"Mr. Parkman's 'Conspiracy of Pontiac' takes rank, among competent judges, as the most satisfactory historical ionograph that our literature has produced."—The Nation, New York.

The Oregon Trail.—Sketches of Prairie and Rocky Mountain Life.

Fourth Edition, revised. Small 8vo. Cloth, $2.50; half calf, $4.50.

"The sketches of which this volume is made up were originally published in 1847. They comprise a record of the sumter adventures of two young men just out of college, and preserve the features of a state of nature and society which has anished for ever. No more graphic pictures of life on the frontier and in the wilderness thirty years ago have ever been trawn. For the present, we must only praise this delightful book for its absolute good qualities, for the unfailing interest the narrative, for the vivid pictures of such Indian life as rarely reveals itself to white men, for all its stories of the hunt and march and camp, for the calm observation brought to all these wide scenes and primitive personalities."—Atlantic

The Vagaries of a Journalist.—Domestic

Explosives; And other "Sixth Column Fancies," from the New York Times. By W. L. Alden.

One vol., crown 8vo, linen boards, $1.25.

"The humor is of that intellectual and literary order that appeals to the fancy and plays about the edges of the sense of the ludicous, and pleases more by its delicacy and illusiveness than the coarser pens which have been so much in vogue of late."

A delightful volume of humorous essays, of rare literary excellence, contributed to the columns of the N. V. Times.

"This book is the jolliest of the year. It is a whole mine of fan. Take a chapter fasting, another after breakfast, and others (to the number of six or seven) through the day and erening, and one can no more take on a fit of 'blues' than the Ethiopian can change his skin. It is a book far too pleasers to be critisiand. It sets a sneath the whole covered of ant to be criticised. It sets at naught the whole gospel of critical art; but it will be read and laughed over, and enjoyed by thousands of people—and none the less because so many have already read the chapters as they appeared originally in "This is a reprint of a book which belongs to an order of intrature that has always had a singular charm for a certain large class of readers. It is extremely amusing, and it embodies a vast amount of information about stock jobbing in Earland and elsewhere which is not generally known. The sources a vast amount of information about stock jobbing in Eagland and elsewhere which is not generally known. LEATHERETTE.

LEATHERETTE is an article now well known to the trade, and, without falsifying or exafferation, it is destined to be more extensively used for bookbinding than any other material. It certainly possesses—Beauty, as it is used extensively for silver cases, papeteries, passe-partouts, etc.; Flexibility, as it covers picture frames, boxes of all shapes, and embosses for wall paper: Durability, as it finds a market for the inner soles of shoes, desk and table tops, the bands of feather dusters, covering for whip handles, etc.; and it is certainly suitable for book-binding, as it is hard to distinguish it from leather, it imitates it so exactly, and it takes ink, lithographing, and gilding with fine effect.

Individuals or firms wishing a set of books covered with a binding both durable and waterproof, cannot do better than use LEATHERETTE, as for a few cents a yard more than book-cloth they can have grain of the seal, levant, or morocco, straight or pebbled, russia or skiver, and each crain in all desirable colors. BROWN'S

IMPROVED DOUBLE POINT BRASS PAPER FASTENER.

These Fasteners will be found to possess many advantages over any other in the market, among which are the following:

1st.—Sharpness of point, which enables them to pierce many thicknesses of the heaviest paper.
2d.—They hold the paper firm and in a parallel position, which Fasteners with one prong can never do.
3d.—No Press, Punck, Penknife, or Instrument of any kind required in their application, which cannot be said of any a Fastener in the market.

4th.—The Price is as Less as any other, and only one Fastener is required to perform the same duty as required by any Directions.—By standing the Fastener on its base, with the prongs upward, and pressing the paper down, a large number of sheets can be filed or fastened with the greatest ease and regularity. (See cut A.)

B. Front view after fastening. C. Rear view after fastening.

They are put up very convenient for retailing, being one hundred in a small box, and packed in cases containing ten boxes or one thousand.

PRICE LIST.—Per M., $2.50. Subject to discount for quantities.

The Patent Everlasting India Rubber Copying Sheets

Offer all the advantages claimed for the Star Copying Pads, and are preferable to them for the following reasons:

They can be used on both sides, therefore two will copy four sheets written on one side, and three, two sheets written on both sides.

They are pliable, do not warp, and will lie close to the paper, therefore require very little pressure to procure topies.

They are very thin, and therefore produce no strain on the copying paper, will not tear it, even if the whole hole though he interlegated.

k should be interleaved. They will last for a number of years, and can be furnished in any required size.

The Literary Rews.

A Monthly Journal of Current Literature.

PUBLISHED BY

(Space allotted for Dealer's Imprint.)

OCTOBER, 1877.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market will find the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its sixth year) will be issued, as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, entertaining bits from the books of the season, a select List, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH, and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month. It will be printed on tinted paper, of light texture, so that it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, invariably payable in advance.

100 Copi	es for three months,	-	•	•	$6 50	500	Copiestfor	three months,	•	•	•	$19 00

Special terms for larger quantities. The Illustrated Christmas number counts as a double number at the two months' rate.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following rates:

100 Copi	es for [ s	ny month exce	pt' December,	$2 50	500	Copies for a	ny mont	h except December,	$8 00

Orders must be received by the 30th of the month previous to which the subscription begins.

No orders filled without payment in advance, as the numerous small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor expense of sending bills or of repeated statements, and collecting. Remittances should be made either by Post-Office Order, Draft on New York, or Registered Letter.

All Orders should be addressed,

NEW EDITION.

DRAUGHTSMAN'S ALPHABET,

KEUFFEL & ESSER,

The above cut shows reduced specimens of our New Edition of the "Draughtsman's Alphabet," which has been entirely revised and much enlarged.

The book gives on 32 pages a larger variety of Alphabets, Numbers, Topographical Signs, etc., than any other book of the same dimensions, and will be found the most useful to any draughtsman. The selection of the contents of the book is made with great care, and is engraved with reference to practical use, so that each letter, number or sign may be imitated without difficulty, which is almost an impossibility with the fine copper and steel engraved books made only for the purpose of showing fine and elaborate engraving.

We trust that this work will be approved generally, as it has been by many artists of our city who have contributed to it, by giving suggestions how to make it perfect and indispensable to every one needing such a work.

LIGHT:

A Series of Simple, Entertaining, and Inexpensive Experimts in the Phenomena of Light. For the Use of Students of every Age. By ALFRED M. MAYER and CHARLES BAR-NARD. 12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.

Letter from Prof. O. N. ROOD, of Columbia College.

"This charming little work can hardly fail of a warm welcome in all quarters where there are bright, ambitious children, or intelligent teachers. Its aim is to instruct both child and teacher in the art of experimenting on light, and it is written in such a way that the enthusiastic author seems to stand in the midst of his little group of eager listeners, explaining and directing the various processes as they go on, and is ly drawing from them weightly conclusions. What is le ned in this way will never be forgotten, and it is fortunate to the public that a task like the present should have been us ertaken by such an accomplished physiciat as Mr. Mayer. I pupil is taught to construct very serviceable apparatus, of of odds and ends to be found in any house, and then is a wa how to use it, so as to demonstrate in an interesting at a some of the most important facts of optics. The experists as a service of the eye, and many of them are very beautiful; if y are often adapted for display before goodsized audiences. I should be a structure of the eye, of vision, of the interfere a and polarization of light. CHURCH OF THE APOSTLES.

of California. 12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.25.

In this little volume the writer has endeavored to give a picture of the Church of the Apostles in the days of its purity, in some cases following it down until its brightness was dimmed by the errors and superstitions of mediseval times. Taking the brief description of St. Luke, he has attempted to fall up the outline, so as to enable those now living to realize how the men of that day believed and acted. The four points brought forward, he thinks, will cover much of the ground necessary for ordinary readers to know with regard to the Primitive Church.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co. have already printed 23,000 copies of "My Mother-in-Law." Who says mothers-in-law are not popular?

TRADE-SALE visitors should not forget "the little store around the corner," which Mr. Worthington has crowded with choice and popular English books. The new Handy popular English books. The new manuy Volume Waverley, as pointed out last week, is likely to be a decided success at holiday time.

THE school-book houses are as busy as bees; the desire on the part of the schools not to purchase till the last moment has crowded the greater part of the business into this month. The travellers already out continue to send good orders back, but general trade in miscellaneous books awaits the results of the trade sale.

DODD & MEAD are printing a first edition of 15,000 of Rev. E. P. Roe's new novel, "A Knight of the Nineteenth Century," which will be ready within the fortnight. It will be the longest of his books, but at the usual price; if it takes longer to read, it is not expected to take longer to sell.

OF Mr. Crowell's "Standard British Poets," be completed in sixteen volumes, several, luding Byron, Hood, Scott, and Tennyson, already issued and the rest will follow at rate of one or two a month. The Tennyson, pages, is from the Osgood plates. At $1 un, $1.25 full gilt, these books, averaging er 500 16mo pages, are marvellously cheap.

THE series of bright and taking books comnced by the Putnams with "Other People's and continued with "His Grandothers," of which six editions have already en sold, is continued with Mr. F. B. Perkins'

"Devil Puzzlers," and other bright sketches,a most clever volume of short stories, to which is prefaced a chat about the writing of stories and the making of books that the trade will be glad to read for themselves.

THE whole of the first edition of Mr. Horace E. Scudder's new Bodley book, "The Bodleys Telling Stories," is exhausted in advance of publication. No wonder, for not only are its contents delightful for the children, but its cover is the most wonderful ever seen. The combination of black, gold, and light tints, in Japanesque style, is exceedingly striking, and the child who can resist the attractions of this doubly bright book must have fallen into pre-mature old age.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. publish this week Mr. Fields' pleasant collection of essays, which he calls "Underbrush;" the household edition of Holmes' Poems, which the poetic doctor has revised, rearranged, classified, even adding new pieces, making it one of the choicest of Osgood's Household poets; Harriet Martineau's Osgoda Shousehold poets, "Arther Martineau on "Household Education;" and, in the "Vest-Pocket Series," Scott's and Schiller's "Favorite Poems," and Macaulay's "Lays" in two volumes, one entitled "Horatius," the other "Lake Regillus and Ivry."

D. APPLETON & Co. are sending out this week a number of important books, of which the first volume of the "Experimental Science Series" is especially worthy of note, both for commendation to teachers and for individual sale. Bishop Kip's study of "The Church of the Apostles," setting forth its leading features as elicited from the writings of the fathers; Huxley's American Addresses; Dr. Wylie's Boylston prize essay on Hospitals, and Theophile Gautier's fantasy-novel of "Spirite," in the "Collection of Foreign Authors," are all prominent books of their kind, that should commend a good recession. mand a good reception.

"GOLDEN Songs of Great Poets" is a book that certainly shows pluck. Miss Sarah H. Leggatt, who invites the trade to inspect the book at her bookstore, 1184 Broadway, has obtained original poems from Holmes, "On the Threshold;" Bryant, "The Song Sparrow;" Longfellow, "The Poets;" Whittier, "June on the Merrimac;" Lowell, "The Fire-fly: a parable;" and Bayard Taylor, "The Lost Caryatid;" and for these she has secured from Daylor Morro, Hart, Fredericks, Smillip, and Darley, Moran, Hart, Fredericks, Smillie and McEntee a profusion of designs, many of them admirably engraved as well as excellently drawn. The book, to be a holiday volume at $5, decorated on the outside with the autographs of the contributing poets, is certainly well worth inspecting.

THE next volume in Estes & Lauriat's "Cobweb Series," which is having a fine sale, will be "Forbidden Fruit," translated from the German of F. W. Hackländer by Rosalie Kauf-

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co.'s second "Wayside Series" book will be "Harry Holbrooke of Holbrooke Hall," by Sir Randal Roberts; and the third a story of an Italian bandit, translated from the Danish.

PATENT NOTES.

S. W. Cox, New York, has patented a copying-press pad composed of bibulous material secured to a metallic book.

W. A. Anderson, La Crosse, Wis., has patented a copying book. It is a prescription copying book, having alternate leaves of thick and thin sized paper so combined that prescriptions may be written with ink or pencil on the thinner leaf and a copy taken on the thicker leaf by the carbonized paper interleaved, the thick sheets receiving the copy and operating as a backing to prevent the multiplication of copies and the marring of the sheets below

C. A. ATKINSON, New York, has patented a Fountain Pen, which consists of a combination with a hollow holder having a tongue and socket in the tube, or holder. The tube has an socket in the tube, or holder. orificed flannel bottom, while at the top of the tube is a channelled stopper, arranged so that dry ink can be used and liquefied as wanted.

STEPHEN M. BROUGHAM, Richmond Co., N. Y., has patented a Pen and Pencil Case arranged in such a manner that when both pen and pencil are within the case, by turning the handle in one direction it admits of the pencil being projected by slide. To project the pen the pencil must first be withdrawn, then, by turning the handle in the opposite direction, the pen can be projected for use.

PENNY WISE AND POUND FOOLISH!

One of the worst results of the recklessness induced by war times, aside from the temporary misery now prevalent, which, as an admonition is in one sense a blessing in disguise, is the reaction into which we are falling, of being "penny wise and pound foolish." While formerly speculation looked so far into the distance that clouds were hardly distinguishable from terra firma, we now look so low to the ground that we are apt to knock our heads against the wall.

Then money was no object. Now everything is sacrificed for cheapness,—and what expensive cheapness!

Agentleman in the auction business was saying the other day how cheaply he could buy sets of furniture; on an expression of surprise at the prices he quoted, "Oh," said he, "they are good enough to look at. They don't last; they're flimsily and cheaply made, but we must sell what people want; as long as a thing is cheap, it will sell." And so it is in all lines. Is not this waste? Is it not better to pay twice as much for an article of utility, and have it last three times as long? In one case, also, we have a sham, alie; in the other, a good honest article. And so for articles of adornment. If we wish to spend money for a beautiful object, it serves a good rurpose, it is money well spent. If, however, e spend money for the purpose of ornamentng our house or office, and get a thing which ot only is not beautiful but is ugly, it is a aste. It is throwing money away to spend fty cents to no purpose, while it is no waste spend two dollars if we get an honest equiv-

This is simply the question as it stands for l. For merchants there is yet another phase, hich we may especially commend to the sta- | hibitions, little as they attract the vulgar gaze, tionery trade. They have a reputation to gain or lose. After a few years, we shall again return to our senses, and the day of retribution will then come. Those who have pandered for immediate gain to the folly of foolish people will then be shunned as unreliable, if not as dishonest, for having given imitation in place of genuine, while those who have held their ground and done an honorable trade will reap the benefit. They will have maintained a liking and taste for first-class goods; and for every dollar they would have received had people known only poor articles, they will receive three for having given men a desire to buy the best and finest. The change must come, and it must come largely from dealers; if they offer only the poorest, only the poorest will be bought. The trade have it in their power to double their business, by gradually getting people to buy finer goods. If a man must have an article of use, the will buy no greater number, whether the article be cheap or fine. The dealer will, however, sell more in money's worth if he persuades his customer to buy the better article, not to speak of the satisfaction on both sides. In a word, the sooner we get out of this era of "cheapness" the better.

M. FOURET'S REPORT ON THE CENTENNIAL.

THE "Rapport sur l'Imprimerie et la Librairie, par M. René Fouret, membre du jury international. Exposition Internationale de Philadelphie, en 1876. Section Française," appears with the imprint of the Imprimerie Nationale, Paris, in a handsome quarto pamphlet of 48 pages, of the usual chaste French typography. The report shows great industry and is remarkably comprehensive in dealing with the book and printing exhibits of nearly every country represented in those departments at the Exhibition, and with most of the individual exhibitors by name. It presents also many suggestive general remarks by way of preface to these descriptions, but in one respect it is disappointing, viz., that it does not go much below the surface in its discussions, and that in its treatment of individual exhibits it takes claims for granted and presents mere "notices" in place of the critical comparative examinations which an outside expert might normally be expected to make and which we had hoped for from M. We should like to have "seen our-Fouret. selves as others see us," rather than as we told others we seemed to ourselves, and critical judgment in this wise, impossible, for instance, in our trade journals, might have been very effective in stimulating progress among us. Nevertheless we have to be grateful to M. Fouret, whose pamphlet reaches us by his personal courtesy, through Mr. Christern, for a very interesting report.

After pointing out the importance of a full exhibit of these departments at international exas at once indicating and stimulating the moral and intellectual progress of a people, M. Fouret expresses his regret that the excellent example set by France, America, Germany, and Holland was not more generally followed. He mentions as principal causes, "(1) the distance; (2) the absence of international laws giving protection in the United States to artistic and literary property; (3) the customs tariff."

The second he emphasizes as having a very especial influence, and he expresses his regret that the efforts of diplomacy to this end have so far been unfruitful. "It is the same with the customs tariff, whose high tax has a singular influence upon the price and upon the sale of books in the United States, and is consequently a serious obstacle to importation. This duty does not seem justified, at least so far as French books are concerned, by the necessity of protecting native industries. It is to be hoped that the eminently commercial and practical spirit of the Americans will not delay in recognizing the necessity of doing away with these duties. Without real profit to the State, they suffice to check the international exchange of works of knowledge, of those works which themselves exercise so notable an influence upon the prosperity of a great country

"The United States of America, after having been able to profit more than any other people from the intellectual conquests of the old world, seems to have undertaken to arrest, by its fiscal measures or by entrenching itself behind a system of protection, the introduction and popularization of art books and works of science. There is here a sort of anomaly in the legislation of a people among whom progress and liberty are the prime laws.

"The grand international display at which we have assisted, and of which the representatives of the typographical industries have taken advantage to obtain a hearing for their just claims, may have the result of provoking in the United States a necessary reform in the customs tariff and in the international legislation ruling printing and the book trade. There is no space to insist at length upon the advantages that would accrue to all from such reforms, but if these results should be brought about the printing and book-trade exhibitors will not regret the sacrifices which they have imposed on themselves in sending their productions to Philadelphia."

In regard to a question much mooted last summer, M. Fouret says: "Conformably to what had been already decided at Paris and at Vienna, the manufacturing publishers were admitted to competition on the same footing with the publishers having neither work-rooms nor directly employing the workmen. The same awards were decreed to one and to the other, and, in fact, without giving rise to serious objections on the part of the jury.

"It does not pertain to our work to reopen here this question so often dehated and which now seems definitively settled, as we have already said. The manufacturers* who exhibited at Philadelphia were themselves publishers, uniting in their establishments the direction of the printing properly speaking and the delicate task of publication: none of them were thus able to refuse a most important place to the work, properly speaking, of the publisher. It is the publisher who, once the issue of the book is resolved upon, determines the size, directs the printing, from the title to the index, chooses the paper, calls upon the pencil of the artist, the burin of the engraver on wood and of the etcher, the art of chromo-lithography; he directs the binder, and refuses the work if it does not bear that imprint of good taste which is, so to speak, the distinctive mark of his fabrication. Certain French and foreign works, which are counted among the chefs-d'œuvre, have been conceived and carried out by publishers who (though publishers only and not printers—ED.) have indeed had the greater part of their execution.

"The two merits thus actually exist and

"The two merits thus actually exist and ought to be recompensed; such was the idea that prevailed in the decisions of the jury."

M. Fouret rightfully speaks in terms of hearty appreciation of the fifty and more French exhibitors who, renouncing all individual recompense, were willing to group themselves together, as at Vienna, to represent France worthily and to receive only a single medal. "The international Jury at Philadelphia recognized the exceptional importance of this collective exposition. Clothing its judgment in the highest and most eulogistic terms, it declared that an award should be decreed to the Cercle de la librairie, as well for the excellence and merit of the works which it exhibited in the name of all, as in recognition of the services rendered by this institution to the typographical industries"—a verdict in which all American observers of the French exhibit most heartily join.

M. Fouret's connection with the firm of

M. Fouret's connection with the firm of Hachette et Cie. precludes his giving to the imposing and superb display of that house the individual attention he gives to others; we are glad to note that the Jury of group XXVIII. did his house the justice to enter on its minutes expression of its regret that it was thus precluded from considering the merits of the ex-

Passing to the American exhibit, M. Fouret notes the early indifference and tardy appreciation with which the project was met by American publishers, and the device by which, "with a vigor altogether American," the space originally accorded was doubled. Despite the lack of harmony in the disposition of the cases, "the ensemble was satisfactory, and creditable to the activity and good taste of the committee of organization." M. Fouret continues: "It is difficult to render an account of the extent of the commerce of the book trade in the United States. There exists no such formality as the "depôt pour des livres," no tax levied directly or indirectly upon the book trade; consequently it is almost impossible to make exact statistical calculations, and one is reduced almost entirely to conjectures. Nevertheless, whoever studies the question carefully remarks first the immense markets opened to the American book trade, and next the relatively small part which literature properly so called and original to the country takes in this grand movement. the first sight of a bookseller's catalogue or showcase, the number of books reprinted from the English or translated from the French or other languages strikes one with astonishment. It then becomes necessary to remember that the republic of the United States dates from within a century, and that the greater part of these hundred years have been occupied in conflict within and without, in sustaining a civil war, one of the longest and most bloody which are registered in the annals of history; in forming, so to speak, a population; in conquering foot by foot and clearing the soil. If one considers with impartial view the difficulties conquered in so little time, one comes to admire the rapidity of the progress made and to recognize the honorable part which belongs of right to the poets, historians, littérateurs of the 'young country,' as it is called by the Americans themselves.

"The educational book trade has a character of originality peculiarly its own; but indeed how vast a field is opened to its activity! In a country where education is one of the principal cares of those who govern, where they do not mind dispensing often extravagant sums for the schools, every publisher desires to issue his line of educational books, his series of five graduated Readers, a set of geographies, of grammars, of treatises on arithmetic. Let us add that the printing is in general very careful, the paper strong and solid; the illustrations are scattered in profusion through the book. Rarely does the sale stop below the expectations of the publisher; despite the competition, the very high price at which it is possible to sell these books (most commonly the Fifth Reader sells at six or seven francs of our money) permits him to cover his expenses if the sale is slow, or to realize his profits if the book circulates widely.

M. Fouret then explains the division of the American trade into publishers, jobbers and retailers, noting "the general tendency of American commerce" to combine in the same house the different branches of an industry. He says that "at this moment the American book trade is passing through a veritable crisis, arising from discounts in and outside of the trade, and notes that certain publishers are commencing to reduce their prices, "notably on juveniles, which are commonly sold at the enormous discount of sixty per cent."

He opens his notices of individual houses by a reference to the American News Com-pany, which, "managed with great shrewd-ness, and at the same time with pluck," "has the control of a considerable capital, which is greatly increased by the deposits made by the small booksellers or newsdealers scattered through all the smallest towns of the Union; these retailers must furnish by way of provision, for their accounts with the company, a sum sufficient to cover the current supplies which This society, indeed, are forwarded to them. constitutes a power which the publishers cannot overlook; but it is proper to add that it does not appear to abuse the situation." M. Fouret then speaks in turn of the Appleton, Harper, Lippincott, and other exhibits, and pleasantly acknowledges the courtesy with which he was received at the A. B. T. A. Convention.

In regard to the British display, or the lack of it, M. Fouret speaks in almost severe terms. He says that "this reluctance seems to have become a rule which the British publishers adopt systematically in international exhibi-tions." "Despite the lack of protection accorded to literary property and the grievous complications that sometimes result from it, and also in spite of the extravagant duties, the importation into the United States of books printed in England attains considerable proportions; every English publisher, before entering on an important publication, must reckon among his resources the returns from sales for the American market. It appeared, therefore, at first sight that the English book trade would have the greatest interest in being represented at Philadelphia, and there was reason to hope that it would depart from the line of conduct followed as to previous expositions." Most of the great houses, he adds, were conspicuous only by their absence.

His review of the German and Austrian exhibits opens with a little sketch of the rise of printing in Germany and a summary of the statistics and present features of the German trade, which is very interesting, and his cordial appreciation of the German display is the more to be admired because some of his countrymen have not of late years been equally catholic While complimenting the ensemble and just. of the exhibit, he expresses his regret that the close grouping did not permit of individual examination and judgment, particularly in the case of the large houses, although the exhibits were presented for individual and not for a collective award. "With some few exceptions, much to be regretted, the Leipzig collective exhibit presented an ensemble as complete as possible." "The printing in general was good "The printing in general was good, the merits and defects noted at previous ex-positions remaining as before. If we must reproach the German printers with having adopted the Roman characters only for works of science and with employing almost exclusively Gothic type, we must be thankful for the care given to the correctness and to the printing of the text. The German bindings have not the simplicity of good taste which distinguishes the English cloth bindings; but we must point out the remarkable results in their wood-engraving and color-printing.

Of the Netherlands collective exhibit he speaks as "presenting an ensemble the most interesting and the most complete of all; furthermore, it was disposed with a method which singularly facilitated study and research." There are brief notes also on exhibits from Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Sweden and Norway, Rus-sia, and Brazil and the Argentine Republic.

In conclusion, pointing out that at a site so far removed from the historic centres of bookproduction, and under conditions so unequal, it is not possible to make sweeping general conclusions. M. Fouret confines himself conclusions, M. Fouret confines "solely to two conclusions: the one particular, that the ancient superiority of France on many points remains as undeniable as ever, brilliant especially in the éditions de grand luxe, in works of architecture and of art applied to industry and to public works, which display new splendor and which fear no comparison; this superiority, we are able to say with some pride, affirms and reasserts itself in the full ensemble of taste and harmony presented in the exhibit of the Cercle de la librairie.

"The other conclusion, more general, and not less encouarging, is that if we continue to maintain our rank, our rivals will not slacken their efforts: the German trade, with its compact and imposing ensemble, especially in scientific publications; the English trade, with its profuseness of good quality; the American trade, with its variety, its richness, especially in the matter of primary education, and its boldness; the Dutch trade, with its persevering solidity; all present characteristic merits. Surely an industry which renews and perfects itself with an activity so unceasing is not in danger of decadence; the typographic art increases day by day, and the book trade understands and accepts more and more the great civilizing mission confided to it."

BOOK NOTICES.

COUNT FRONTENAC AND NEW FRANCE UNDER Louis XIV., by Francis Parkman. (Little, Brown & Co.) This work, belonging to Mr. series of historical narratives, Parkman's "France and England in North America." fol-lows "The Old Regime in Canada under Louis XIV.," and will be succeeded by a subject of scarcely less interest, "Montcalm and the Fall of New France." The events recounted in the present volume are grouped, or rather group themselves naturally, about a single figure, the Count Frontenac, "the most remarkable man," according to Mr. Parkman, "who ever represented the crown of France in the New World. From strangely unpromising be-ginnings he grew with every emergency, and rose equal to every crisis. His whole career was one of conflict, sometimes petty and per-sonal, sometimes of momentous consequence, involving the question of national ascendency on this continent." The study of French-American history has been a life-long work with Mr. Parkman, and he has brought to the task an untiring energy in examining and collecting documents, visiting Indian tribes, and hunting up localities. The chief authorities upon which this book rests are drawn from the manuscript collections in the archives of the French Government. The accumulation, however, of supplementary material in his possession has already become so formidable that it cannot be cited even within the limits of his work. Aside from the care bestowed upon all statements and deductions, there is a brilliancy in the style of the author foreign to almost all historians, and which gives to his pages the vivid interest of a romance. No one will dip into the book without desiring to finish it, even without any special leaning towards historical subjects. It is printed in unusually large, clear type, and is altogether noticeable for its handsome get-up. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

NICHOLAS MINTURN, by J. G. Holland. (Scribner, A. & Co.) The subject of this novel, the regeneration and rehabilitation of the " is not a very romantic or exciting "tramp, It is handled, however, with so much skill, and illustrated by so many happy incidents, that, far from wearying the reader, it holds his attention to the end of the volume. The hero is a rich young New Yorker, who, scarcely knowing what to do with his life, starts, by the advice of friends, on a voyage to Europe. On the steamer we are introduced to the principal characters of the story: Miss Larkin, a beautiful invalid, whom Nicholas of course loves; her guardian, Mr. Benson, a type of the hypocritical religious man, who prays in public, ill-treats his family in private, and finally perpetrates a great fraud; and Miss Jenny Coates, who pairs off, at the close, with Nicholas' best friend. The steamer meets with an accident, and never reaches its destination; no one is lost, however, Miss Larkin being saved through Minturn's heroic behavior. The whole party is carried back to New York, and Nicholas gives up his tour, determining to spend some part of his fortune and his time in trying to help the much-despised "tramp." Although the plot is an every-day one, there is a good deal of intense writing in the book, and many exciting events. The story has been a feature of Scribner's for many months past. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

THE NEW AMERICAN ARITHMETIC, PARTS I, 2, 3, and THE NEW AMERICAN PRACTICAL ARITHMETIC. (Butler & Co.) This new series of arithmetics, consisting of three different volumes, is designed for three stages of study. Part 1 contains only the principles of arithmetic, given in a simple and practical manner, oral and written exercises being presented on alternate pages. Part 2 contains fundamental rules, problems in United States money, common fractions, relations of numbers, bills and accounts, denominate numbers, and decimal fractions. Part 3 begins with a review of the closing topics of Part 2, and embraces percentage, ratio, proportion, partnership, equation of payments, analysis, involution, evolution, mensuration, a general review, and a brief insight into subjects generally treated in higher arithmetic. Oral exercises are used in all the parts for elucidating subjects. The volumes will be found very compact, with concise definitions, with few rules, and very clearly printed on good white paper. "The New American Practical Arithmetic" is a combination of Parts 2 and 3 of the foregoing series, and is issued for the convenience and assistance of teachers and schools.

UNDERBRUSH, by James T. Fields. (Osgood.) Neither the title of this charming little volume nor the Shakespearean quotation which adorns the title-page—"Plucked out of hedges, . . . pitched in the ground confusedly"—quite does justice to the papers which compose it. Whether it is from the long intellectual summer drought we have gone through, or whether owing to the modest merits of the work itself, we have not for many weeks spent pleasanter hours than those bestowed upon its contents. "My Friend's Library" is full of the anecdotes and reminiscences of literary people Mr. Fields tells so well. "A Peculiar Case" is an exceedingly humorous study of a young "Down East" lad, "Cyrus" by name, employed once by the author in his summer holidays; the essay is clever enough to be quoted entire. "Bothersome People," "Getting Home Again," "An Old-Time Scholar," "Diamonds and Pearls," and "The Author of 'Paul and Virginia," are made up of both facts and fancies, blended with the charming grace of style which make the mere nothings of a cultivated man delightful and acceptable. 18mo, cloth, $1.25.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF THE REV. WILLIAM ARNOT, AND MEMOIR BY HIS DAUGHTER, MRS. A. FLEMING. (Carter.) Rev. William Arnot was a much-loved and popular leader among the celebrated divines of the Scotch Free Church. He was also a writer, his works being well known even on this side of the Atlantic. His two brief visits to this country a few years ago will be recalled by church people who were fortunate enough to listen to his eloquent preaching, or by those who met him socially in any of our great cities. He contributed of late years frequently to the Illustrated Christian Weekly*, and was the editor of the Family Trassmy*. He died at Edinburgh, on the 6th of June, 1875, in his sixty-seventh year. His autobiography only occupies eighty pages, but is very characteristic and full of humor. Mrs. Fleming's memoir, made up chiefly from his letters and journals, ably supplements it and presents a striking picture of his entire life. A fine steel-plate engraving, said to be a fine likeness of the reverend subject of these pages, embellishes the volume. 12mo, cloth, $2.

ABRAHAM, THE FRIEND OF GOD, by J. Oswald Dykes. (Carter.) Monographs of biblical personages are marked features in recent religious There can be no doubt of their useliterature. fulness in bringing remote ages, with their unfamiliar manners and customs and their seeming mythical characters, vividly before readers and students. No pains have been spared, in consulting recent investigators into Eastern topography and manners, in this biography, to reproduce the local coloring and outward set-ting of the age of Abraham. The story of the patriarch is told in a realistic way, which places him before us in all his personal characteristics, his domestic affairs, his trials, migrations, and revelations. The author has been true to one plan throughout, of simply giving the narrative of Abraham's life, and his place in the unfolding of revelation, without going into any discussions or touching mooted questions. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Moore's Forge, a Tale, by the Author of the "Win and Wear Series." (Carter.) Moore's Forge, a mining settlement in the heart of the Adirondack Mountains, peopled with about three hundred miners, brutal, ignorant, and utterly unused to the restraints of law or rereligion, is the spot where the young heroine of this story, a bride only of a few days, is taken by her husband to spend their honeymoon. The husband, Edward Crehore, is "boss" of the mines, and has, before marrying, graphically described the state of affairs around him; but the young wife, a courageous Christian worker, decides to share his fortunes and to aid him in bringing about a moral reformation. Their first attempts at establishing a Sunday-school and stopping the sale of liquor meet with disheartening opposition, but time and perseverance finally reward all their endeavors. A well-written and instructive little work. Square 16mo, cloth, red edges, $1.25.

AUNT ETHEL'S PICTURE GALLERY; AUNT CALLIE'S SUNSET STORIES; CLOVER-TOP STORY I OK. (T. Y. Crowell.) For the three books intioned above one set of plates has been ted. The first one combines all that is to be fund in the second and third, and the second a d third are equal parts of the first. It may be a twenient to booksellers to know this in ording, as in either of the latter volumes one they obtain a very attractive work at a much is sprice than the larger one. They all continuous short stories and poems by "Uncle ed," "Aunt Callie," "Olive Thorn," and thers, printed in large, clear type, are richly ustrated with numerous full-page pictures, and are handsomely bound, with brightly-colored chromos on front cover. Quarto, $1.50 and $1.

AN INDEX OF DISEASES AND THEIR TREATMENT, by Thomas Hawkes Tanner, M.D. (Lindsay & B.) Dr. W. H. Broadbent, of the Royal College of Physicians, prepared this new edition of the Index, which has been urgently demanded for some time. In its preparation, the plan and objects of the author have been constantly borne in mind, and while every section has been carefully revised and considerable alterations made, these have only been such as were required in order to incorporate new knowledge, or to render diagnosis more definite. There has thus been no change either in principles or in method, and it is hoped that the volume will continue to serve effectually the purpose for which it was originally designed. 8vo, cloth, $3.

TRAPS BAITED WITH ORPHANS; OR, WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH LIFE INSURANCE? by Elizur Wright. (Osgood.) Mr. Elizur Wright tells in this little volume, through a series of papers, why the system of insurance has fallen into disrepute. The papers are named "On the Surface and Under," "The Excuse," "A Little Arithmetie," "Commutation and its Effect," "How Things are Mixed," "How we Blundered," "Not too Late to Mend," "Gambling on Persistence," "The Trap Judicially Considered." 16mo, cloth, red edges, 75 cents.

ONE of the most attractive novelties out is "Crandall's District School," a jolly combination of good scholars, sober teacher, nice books, roguish boys, bird dance, and happy lamb, which will make old as well as young eyes sparkle with delight.

The accompanying cut represents the school in session. The figures are made to fit in blocks forming the base so that they can be arranged to suit the taste of the one using them. THE Companion Autograph Album is a new, novel, and attractive album, and contains fac-simile autographs of Whittier, Longfellow, Bryant, and other persons of prominence, together with many sentiments expressed by them, numbering in all thirty-two. These sentiments are distributed through the album, leaving a number of blank pages between for the collection of other autographs. It is an entirely original feature, and is meeting with great demand. Perry, Mason & Co., Boston, Mass., are the manufacturers.

NICHOLAS MULLER'S SONS, 8 Cortlandt St., N. Y., have many new and attractive styles of fine bronze inkstands and paper weights, which we will notice in our novelty columns from time to time as space permits. The cuts herewith show No. 646 with top open and shut. At the four corners of the inks are dragons, with heads projecting outwards, forming a pen-rack, and also a base for the polished part of the inkstand, which is made in two styles, one having the middle and lower portion in Japanese bronze, the other being polished and verd, with the middle portion in steel bronze, in imitation of oxidized silver. The covers are of bright polished metal. These inkstands have a porcelain ink-well, which can be removed and cleaned when desired.

KAUFMAN & Co., 83 and 85 Duane St., New York, have just received a new line of Reward-of-Merit cards composed of lithographed pictures highly colored. They comprise comic, flower, and other devices, with open spaces on their faces, in which the name can be written or engraved. They have also a fine assortment of business cards on the upper part of which are printed busts of prominent individuals, etc.

DREYFUSS & SACHS, New York, have on hand a beautiful new line of Sunday and day school reward cards. The Scripture texts are in twenty-four styles and titles. The texts are gotten up elaborately with bouquets of lilies.

pinks, verbenas, hyacinths, and other handsome flowers painted upon black and silver-gray groundwork. They have six different sets of Scripture texts, entirely new, and all variously illuminated

Adams & Co., 3½ Beacon St., Boston, Mass., announce to the trade the following new games: "The Game of Charlie Ross," representing the flight and escape of his abductors, and the exciting adventures of the officers in pursuit, intended for two, three, or four players; "Auction," a game requiring skill and tact, suitable for any number of players, and differing entirely from any other game; "Giggling Drops," a game of fun and frolic, for any number of players; "The Letter Box," containing 252 cards, forming ten new games, said to be amusing and instructive, easily learned, and adapted for any number of players; "The Alphabet Game" is a puzzling pastime for the young folks.

ANDERSON & CAMERON, 115 Fulton St., New York, have a complete assortment of card-board manufactured by the Hudson River Card-Board Co, for which they are sole agents. They say that they have more orders than they can possibly attend to promptly.

Brower Bros., 295 Broadway, New York, display a fine line of inkstands in bronze, nickel, verd, and verd antique, comprising many new designs; also a fine assortment of paper weights and office stationery.

THE CAMBRIDGE DIARY Co., Boston, Mass., have a large and varied list of diaries ready for 1878. Their list is one of the largest offered to the trade, and comprises many new and desirable styles.

KIGGINS, TOOKER & Co.'s new list of diaries for 1878 is very complete, and contains many new styles of binding. Among the latest are their seven-day diaries, in all styles of binding, which is as complete and handy an article in this line as we have yet seen.

It is stated that Mr. Atkinson, Miss Martineau's atheistic friend, has a thousand of her letters, which it is hoped may be printed, as her prohibition in regard to her letters did not extend to those in his possession.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Mr. F. W. Christern is now receiving the fascicules of the Supplement to Littre's great Dictionary of the French Language. This magnificent work was already the greatest triumph of lexicography in any language, but the supplement will add much to its value. will include a great number of terms of art, science, agriculture, etc., before overlooked, and of neologisms of all sorts illustrated by examples; it will contain also rectifications of some of the definitions of the Dictionary, additions of new meanings and of new historical examples, and finally corrections of some of the etymologies, and indication of the previously unknown etymologies of certain works. The supplement, already completed in manuscript, will appear regularly, in about twelve quarto livraisons, at one franc each. The supplement will be followed by an etymological dic-tionary of all words of oriental origin, by Marcel Devic. Hachette et Cie. are the publishers.

TWENTY years ago theology embraced a fourth part of German literature; at present only a tenth part belongs to it. Between the years 1871 and 1876, the numbers of books published in the different branches are as follows: Theology, 1871, publications, 1362; in 1876, 1146. History and geography, 1871, 1139; in 1876, 983. Educational, including school-books, 1871, 1059; in 1876, 1626. Belle-lettres and the arts, 1871, 1335; in 1876, 1636. Jurisprudence and politics, 1871, 1052; in 1876, 1329. Natural science, 1871, 579; in 1876, 1818. Medicine, 1871, 459; 1876, 703. Mathematics and astronomy, 1871, 144; in 1876, 190. Military science, 1871, 453; in 1876, 531. Technology, 1871, 206; in 1876, 386. Works connected with land and forest, 1871, 339; in 1876, 443. From these statistics it appears that there has been an increase in all branches, except in theology, geography, and, perhaps, history.

PRESIDENT J. W. HURST, D.D., has well advanced toward completion a select classed bibliography of theological books in English, for the use of clergymen and students. It is proposed to include about four thousand full titles—prices not given—with notes. The main divisions will be "Introductory," including ecclesiastical bibliography, the study of theology, etc., "Scriptural Exegesis," "Historical Theology," "Systematic Theology," "Practical Theology," "Systematic Theology," "Practical Theology." The leading lectures, Bampton, Hulsean, etc., will be entered by series complete. There will be an alphabetical index by authors, referring to page number. Dr. Hurst would be obliged to bibliographers, to whom his bibliographical appendix to his History of Rationalism has "ready made him known, for information of 1y theological bibliographies which from their nity he is likely to have overlooked.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION has deed to its catalogue three new and very intesting juveniles—namely, "The Story of a essian," by Lucy Ellen Guernsey, a tale of the evolution in New Jersey; "Jasper the Carr, and Aunt Gracie's Trust," two short stoes full of good moral advice, and written to nuse either boys or girls; and "What Will ome of It?" by E. W. B., a little book which ells the history of a poor woman and her little by who are reduced almost to starvation.

SEEMAN, of Leipzig, is publishing an excellent series of penny sheets illustrating arthistory, for use in schools. The wood-cuts are from art-works published by him, so that original outlay is avoided and much can be given for the money. The first collection, fifteen sheets, deals with classic architecture; the second with Greek plastic art; another illustrates Gothic architecture. Brief descriptions are given underneath each cut.

THE authors of "Ready Money Mortiboy" and "The Golden Butterfly" are sufficiently busy people. They are engaged upon a novel, entitled "By Celia's Arbour," to be published in The London Graphic, and a second, "The Monks of Thelema," for The London World. The Christmas number of All the Year Round will also be from their pen.

DEAN CHRISTIE, a Scotch clergyman, has recently published a volume of the "Traditional Ballad Airs" of Scotland, with the view of accommodating the ballads to present use by expunging objectionable passages and "epitomizing" those long drawn out.

MR. EDWARD JENKINS' West Indian novel of "Sutchunee and Dilloo"—that is how it reads last—is to be given to the public this fall. We remember having made this announcement for several years.

MISS DORA GREENWELL, the English poetess, has just published a volume called "A Basket of Summer Fruit," dedicated to the American evangelists who lately visited England.

Mr. Ruskin doesn't want to be bothered with letters, "having, I find, nine books in the press, besides various other business." It is a blessing to the trade that he is his own publisher.

THE newspapers have it that "That Husband of Mine" is from the pen of Mrs. Denison, the wife of a chaplain at the Washington navy vard.

LINDSAY & BLAKISTON have issued a new edition. the seventh thousand, of that very clever and useful little book, "Headaches, their Causes and their Cure," by Henry G. Wright.

SHAKESPEARIAN literature is not on the decline. A recent Academy notices twelve recent books in Shakespeariana, including the translations into modern Greek.

WILLIAM BLACK, in his new story, will, it is said, take his readers back to the West Highlands, and picture the old style of life there; thence the scene shifts to London.

It is just as bad in England. A leading publisher who occupies a page of the Athenaum uses one half for his books, and the other for a patent bedstead of his invention!

Prof. Simon Newcomb is hereafter to superintend the Nautical Almanac, Prof. J. H. C. Coffin having retired.

PHILIP JAMES BATLEY'S tragedy of "Festus" has been revived in London by the issue of a "tenth edition."

SIR J. TOLLEMACHE SINCLAIR, M.P., an English Slavophile, has in press a work on Russia.

MR. SWINBURNE will publish immediately "A Note on Charlotte Bronte," filling an octavo volume.

WRITINGS OF J. C. SHAIRP.

Mr. J. C. SHAIRP, late Principal of the United College of St. Salvador and St. Leonard, St. Andrews, Scotland, and recently appointed Professor of Poetry at Oxford, has won a substantial reputation as the author of essays singularly adapted to help students in the formation of opinion upon leading subjects of religion and literature. He is a manly writer, and his books have attracted a large audience both in Great Britain and America. The latest of his works is now just published.

POETIC INTERPRETATION OF NATURE.

In one volume, 16mo, red cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

This new book, addressed in the first instance to young men, will receive special attention from the admirable manner in which questions of science and poetry are considered.

CULTURE AND RELIGION IN SOME OF THEIR RELATIONS.

In one volume, 16mo, red cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

"This little volume, containing five lectures delivered before college students at St. Andrews in Scotland, is one which we commend especially to young persons for its scholarly tone and character, for its Christian spirit, for the marks of liberal and Christian culture which it bears, and for the weighty suggestions and counsels which it conveys."—Monthly Religious Magazine.

"As an antidote to the doubt which disturbs the minds of many Christian scholars, we know of nothing so wholesome and comforting as this little book. The spirit of the book is one of the utmost reverence, yet of unflinching courage."—The Independent.

STUDIES IN POETRY AND PHILOSOPHY.

In one volume, 16mo, red cloth, gilt top, $1.50. Striking essays upon Coleridge, Keble, and Wordsworth.

"We could wish that this work might achieve a very wide popularity, for it is calculated to exert an influence wholly salutary, and peculiarly desirable at the present time. The amount of practical information which it contains, upon themes which have assumed an important place in literary history, is by no means alight, and it is still more rich in moral reflections especially pertinent to our own time."—Church and State.

LEATHERETTE.

LEATHERETTE is an article now well known to the trade, and, without falsifying or exaggeration, it is destined to be more extensively used for bookbinding than any other material. It certainly possesses—Beauty, as it is used extensively for silver cases, papeteries, passe-partouts, etc.; Flexibility, as it covers picture frames, boxes of all shapes, and embosses for wall paper; Durability, as it finds a market for the inner soles of shoes, desk and table tops, the bands of feather dusters, covering for whip handles, etc.; and it is certainly suitable for book-binding, as it is hard to distinguish it from leather, it imitates it so exactly, and it takes ink, lithographing, and gilding with fine effect.

Individuals or firms wishing a set of books covered with a binding both urable and waterproof, cannot do better than use LEATHERETTE, as for a ew cents a yard more than book-cloth they can have grain of the seal, want, or morocco, straight or pebbled, russia or skiver, and each grain in all desirable colors. Samples will be sent free on application to

History of European Morals,

FROM AUGUSTUS TO CHARLEMAGNE.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY, M.A.

THIRD EDITION, REVISED.

Two Volumes, 12mo, ..

Cloth, Three Dollars.

"It has been subjected to such critical attack, and sustained by such able defence, that its worth is universally known. It is a mine of information in a restricted but important province, and will long be quoted for its thoroughness in opening a study which, though touched by other writers, never before had such exhaustive consideration. Those who have not read it will find their study richly rewarded."—Albany Evening Times.

"In his methods, Mr. Lecky is a model of clearness and force. Holding firmly the doctrine of evolution in morals, he finds the origin of typical vices and virtues in the ideal standards of the people, tracing the specific virtues and vices of each epoch considered to the special characteristics of a preceding epoch, which have been handed down as ideals. That his cool clusions do not command universal acceptant: is undoubtedly true, but they do command to seet wherever honest thought and faithful labe in search after truth, are appreciated."—

Differe Press.

There is a vast fund of information in the concerns k, which the student of the broad theme that Augustus it cats will find of great interest, and one to Journal.

which he may refer, as occasion requires, with a certainty of finding something to the point. The volumes are arranged with foot-notes, giving authorities, references, and quotations."—Evening Wisconsin.

"The controversial part of the first chapter having given rise to a good deal of discussion, and to some little acrimony of feeling, perhaps, the author has softened it by the omission of a few lines, and strengthened his position by the insertion of some brief passages, explaining the meaning, or enforcing it."—New York Evening Post.

"The excellence of this work is already attested, and it has long ago been considered a standard. The controversial portion of the work is clear in its statements, and so masterly in its handling of the salient points that none but an exceedingly obtuse person could fail to catch the full force of the argument presented. The author's object is to trace the changes that have taken place in the moral standard and moral type through the different ages, and he concerns himself mostly with the period between Augustus and Charlemagne." — Indianapolis Journal.

NOTES IN SEASON.

"DR. Tom" is the taking title of a physician who prescribes himself as the best cure for the effects of "bad literature published during the summer season"—which is no reflection, we hope, on the family. Edward Payson is the author, and Dresser, McLellan & Co., Portland, will publish it immediately. An addition to "The Forest City Series" is promised by them

LEE & SHEPARD have in press "That Wife of Mine," and will issue it as soon as possible, early in October at the latest. The "Wife" must have a deal of "faculty" to be a suitable companion for the "Husband." "Adrift in the Ice-Fields," Capt. Charles W. Hall's exciting story of sporting adventure in the Arctic re-gions, is also nearly ready at Lee & Shepard's. The boys will be likely to devour this book at one sitting.

This week's books from J. R. Osgood & Co. are Starr King's royal sermons on "Christianity and Humanity," which the eminent essayist E. P. Whipple has selected and edited, and to which he prefixes a delightful memoir 80 pages long; "One Year Abroad," a volume of travel, sketches, and impressions, by the author of "One Summer," which everybody has read and enjoyed; and four additional "Vest-Pocket" b)ks—"Favorite Poems," and "The Cathed 1," by James Russell Lowell; and Fouqué's to charming stories, "Undine" and "Sin-

3. P. PUTNAM'S Sons have just ready a numb of bright juveniles which are pretty sure to e. The clever author of "The House with S ectacles" has a new book, "Patsy," which, h "Six Sinners" (who do not after all belong the family), by Wheaton Campbell, makes up a Spectacles Series." Mr. Cornelius Matthews' ipilation of Indian Stories, "The Enchanted casins," and a pleasant volume of stories from the French, "The Wings of Courage," with illustrations by Lucy G. Morse, are also on the September list.

Scribner, Welford & Armstrong are now placing before the trade the new edition of Jacquemart's "History of the Ceramic Art," the finest work of the kind in the market, offered at the reduced price of $10.50 retail (instead of $18.) Besides the 12 exquisite etchings by Jules Jacquemart, in clear, fine impressions, there are 200 fine wood-cuts of rare and characteristic examples which fully illustrate the text and exhibit the development and progress of ceramic art in its historical, philosophical, and industrial aspects, while a thousand marks and monograms offer valuable aid to the collector, and render the work one of standard reference.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. are about to bring out, under the title of "Surly Tim, and Other Stories," an authorized volume of the recent stories by the author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's." It will include seven or eight of Mrs. Burnett's shorter stories, which have appeared chiefly in Scribner's Monthly, and which have been among the most popular tales lately written. "Surly Tim" (told in Lancashire dialect) is perhaps better known than any short story yet published in Scribner's. The present collection will include also "Esmeralda," "Lodusky," "Le Monsieur de la Petite Dame," etc., and show a literary power as varied in scene as it is remarkable in quality.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS, will soon have ready volume ten of the "Dollar Series," which will be Colly Cibber's "Life of Edwin Forrest." This will be especially timely, as the interest awakened concerning Forrest by Alger's Life has not yet died out. It is written in the form of personal recollections and reminiscences, and will contain also a steel-plate, life-like portrait, with his autograph. "Mother-in-Law," by Mrs. Southworth, soon be on hand, and as she brings with her some very good company, all will be glad to see her, which, we are sorry to say, is not always the case. Her company will comprise "That Lover of Mine," together with "That Girl of Mine" and, last but not least, "Bessie's Six Lovers," "Theo," by Mrs. Fanny Hodgson Burnett, the most popular of the new authors, is also just ready.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have just ready the fifth and last volume of Landor's unequalled "Imaginary Conversations," with a very full index to the entire series. These five admirable volumes, which embrace so much good statesmanship, philosophy, criticism, history, and literary charm, will be put in fine binding, and the set will make a noble gift. A bijou volume of Selections from Epictetus is ready for the "Wisdom Series." P. Thorne's "Jolly Good Times," which is chock-full of entertainment for young and old, and of good tertainment for young and old, and of good sense too, has been put in paper covers for 50 cents. Whoever buys it, gets as good a 50 cents' worth as has been offered to the public for many a day. "The Lord's Supper, and its Observance," an excellent and helpful religious book, by Lucretia P. Hale, with a prefere by her prother Rey E. F. Hale will be face by her brother, Rev. E. E. Hale, will be issued in a new edition immediately by Roberts . Brothers.

A WORD TO OUR PATRONS.

WE shall present, in our next issue, a new scale of advertising rates, reduced and equalized, to which we desire in advance to call the especial attention of the trade. The basis of these rates will be the reduced price of $18 per single page, and in place of discounts, which are apt to prove in practice so variable as to be just neither to one side nor to the other, we shall present a tabulated scheme for single pages, fractions, and lines, giving liberal reductions according to the actual number of insertions contracted for. On this scale we shall make single pages for 52 insertions, i.e., through the year, as low as $12 per insertion, with halves and quarters in proportion, and from this there will be a further reduction of $4 per page for standing matter each time any page is reinserted. In other words, we shall give to the contract advertiser the benefit of the saving in type-setting on re-insertions, as a further inducement for liberal patronage. These rates touch the bottom prices at which advertising can be afforded in a journal of the character and circulation of the WEEKLY, and, with the good grace of the trade, we propose to make no variations from them. The only exception, which may be frankly stated, is in the case of three houses who have never missed representation in the WEEKLY since its first number, and who retain the exceptionally advantageous terms offered generally as an inducement at the start.

This reduction and change of base is not made because the WEEKLY has paid such a profit that it is enabled to make a dividend, after this fashion, with its advertisers, for, as a matter of fact, we yet look to the future for the remuneration which shall fairly cover the necessary outlay on this journal. But the spirit of the houses, in which other houses were under-times demands reduction, in prices as well as in wages, and we have the hope that, in making this change, our patrons will find it so to their advantage as to enable them to be more liberal of their favors. The discount business has fallen into such demoralization that advertisers. as well as other purchasers, are apt to judge of prices less by the actual value of what they receive than by the discount they get off what they suppose other people pay. The schedule system has already been put in practice by one prominent journal, and we believe with satisfaction to all sides. In this, as in all things, we are of course dependent entirely on the goodwill of the trade, as expressing their self-interest in supporting an independent trade journal, but we look to that good-will to support us in the present change, which we believe to be to the advantage of the trade.

In making this announcement, it is but fair to take this opportunity to say that the WEEKLY has never yet approached the ideal of what we desire to give to the trade. We have tried to do as well as we could with the resources put at our command by our patronage. The bibliographical department,-which is, after all, our chief work, the alphabet of the bookseller,systematized as it is into the shape found most useful to the trade, in weekly, order, monthly, and annual lists, requires an outlay peculiar to this journal—the fair equivalent in fact of the full service of more than one experienced and capable person-and, imperfect as it so far is, this takes so much from the possibility of expenditure in space for reading matter. The WEEKLY, we confess, has not always been so readable as it might be, chiefly because we were obliged as a question of economy to omit all matter not important for practical trade purposes. As its patronage approaches that accorded to foreign book-trade journals, we promise that the trade shall have no reason to complain either of the fulness or readableness of our matter. And so we bespeak for the WEEKLY the continued favor of the American book trade, which it will endeavor more and more worthily to represent.

THE trade sale opened on Wednesday, with the best attendance of any sale for years, all the leading houses being represented. The bidding was good, though wary, and very fair trade-sale prices were obtained on the desirable books. We defer our report, although partly in hand, to our next issue, in order to give it compactly for reference. Of the preceding sale of plates and Catholic books, we give a full report in this number: at this the prices were very low.

At the desire of the Putnam and Appleton stood to coincide, Messrs. Leavitt requested the daily press not to report prices, a sensible action, as the sale is peculiarly a trade matter, and the public is apt to be practically misled by the prices reported. At the same time, it must be said that this will not cover the difficulty, because the purchasers themselves at once advertise "trade-sale slaughters," and you can't check a disease by repressing the symptoms. An interesting question came up in the course of the bidding, as to whether lots of a thousand Favorite Tennyson (a wonderfully cheap and beautiful book, by the way) might be offered at fresh bidding, after the disposal of the 5000 catalogued. It seems at first sight that Mr. Foster was right in the position he took from the floor, and that there was nothing legally in the way, the question being essentially the same as that of duplicating. On the other hand, such a practice would tend to demoralize bidding for big lots on the regular lines, and Mr. Ticknor showed tact and was practically wise in declining to offer extra lots so long as objection was made.

THE TRADE SALES: PRELIMINARY DAY.

On Tuesday, Sept. 18th, the Fall trade sales were opened by Geo. A. Leavitt & Co. with a preliminary catalogue of stereotype and electrotype plates, with copyrights and remainders, and several invoices of Catholic publications. The book-plates offered, comprising over a hundred sets, were of works many of which rank higher than the usual run of plates thus transferred, but the prices ran lower than usual, many bringing but metal prices; some works of note of a few years back were, in fact, The bought by stereotypers for the material. morning's sale embraced the plates of a large portion of the publications of J. B. Ford & Co., including most of the works of H. W. Beecher, those of the publications of the late W. B. Evans, of Philadelphia, and the late William J. Hammersley, of Hartford, sold in liquidation of their estates, and those of about forty Catholic works published by M. A. Walsh, of Cincinnati. The Beecher books were all taken on account of the author by a Mr. Sykes. The plates belonging to the Evans estate were all knocked down to Mr. Howard Challen, of Philadelphia. Messrs. Lippincott and the Central Book Concern, of Oskaloosa, Ia., were the largest buyers in the morning's sale, besides W. Shoppell, of New York, a jobber in ctrotype plates and cuts, and "Lovejoy," teynolds," "J," and "M," all which are unstood to represent the melting-pot. Mr. ymond's novel of "Brave Hearts" was bought by the author, and Mr. Eggleston's "Circuit der" was also purchased in his interest. The Booth's History of New York received no offer, and was passed. The late G. W. Matsell's "Vocabulum, or Rogue's Lexicon," was knocked down at $5 to Shoppell. A long list of steel plates for engravings, 593 in number, sent by L. A. Godey, drew no bid, and their sale was postponed till Thursday.

The afternoon's sale commenced with about forty sets of book-plates, sent by M. A. Walsh, of Cincinnati, for a few of which there was lively competition, but the greater number seemed from the offers scarce worth reissuing. The largest buyers were Kehoe and Benziger Brothers, of New York, and Murphy & Co., of Baltimore. The list of books and prices was as follows:

The large invoices of Kelly, Piet & Co., of Baltimore, Eugene Cummiskey, of Philadelphia, and J. A. Magee and P. O'Shea, of New York, ran very low. The bidding was so feeble on devotional books, especially on handsomely made prayer-books and the like, that very many lots were not forced to a sale, one whole invoice indeed being withdrawn. The Catholic novels and Irish books made the fairest average, selling usually at 20 to 30 per cent of list prices.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

R. S. MERRILL, Boston, Mass., has patented a picture-book composed of sheet metal, made in the form of a double book, from a single sheet of metal, broad at the moulding, or rail-hook end, and narrow at the opposite end.

JOSEPH SALTER, Brooklyn, N. Y., has patented an envelope-opener made of soft metal. It is of round shape, with a combination movable hinged blade at the top, the largest part of the circle forming the handle.

E. CASPER, London, Eng., assignor to F. C. De Lousada, also of London, and W. D. S. Moncrieff, Glasgow, Scotland, has patented in the United States a temporary binder for filing letters. It is a combination of right-angled parts, with adjustable clip fixed with a clamping screw, on which are attached boards or flaps.

MR. CHARLES BAINBRIDGE, of Porter & Bainbridge, of New York, has a new card-writer's pencil for writing on enamelled cards. It is nicely finished, and equal to anything put on the market of its kind. They also have a fine line of enamelled card-board in white and two delicate tints.

outer barrel, and an inner barrel fitted in the other, which is so shaped as yield to and accommodate pens having different sized and shaped shanks.

G. A. McLane, Chicago, Ill., has patented a pencil sharpener consisting of two spring depressed converging cutters, whose edges are directed toward the pencil point, and a tubular guide for the pencil, of sufficient length to cause the pencil to move in parallel longitudinal lines, and so placed relative to the cutters as to direct the pencil centrally between the latter.

C. C SHEPHERD has in course of manufacture a combined writing and slate desk, which promises to be quite a novelty, and a useful article for school-children as well as an instructive toy. The success his desk slate has met with in the trade and among the little ones is an assurance that this last article will eclipse all other articles of similar construction. Samples will be sent to all responsible houses by J. G. Kent, 145 Nassau street, New York.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A NEW and thoroughly revised edition of Bryan's "Dictionary of Painters and Engravers" is in course of preparation in England.

JOHN MURPHY & Co. have just published the third edition of Dr. Samuel Tyler's "Discourse of the Baconian Philosophy."

HENRY A. YOUNG & Co., Boston, will publish, about the middle of October, "The Wooden Spoon," by Park Ludlow, an illustrated story, forming the third volume of the "Red Shanty Series."

"Out of Doors at Long Look," the second volume in the "Long Look Series," by Rev. Edward Abbott,—an excellent series of stories by an excellent writer,—will be published soon by Noyes, Snow & Co., of Boston.

THE fourth volume from "Aunt Jo's Scrap-Bag," by Miss Alcott, is coming in October or November. It will be about "My Girls," as a complement to the previous book on "My Boys," and hosts of girls and boys will wait for it with eager impatience.

Moses H. Sargent & Sons, Boston, have now ready a pamphlet by Rev. Dorus Clarke, D.D., answering the question "What is the True Idea of the Tri-Unity of God?" It was originally read before the Congregational Ministers' Meeting, and was liked so well that a formal request was made for its publication.

THE next number of the "No Name Series" is "Will Denbigh, Nobleman," and will be published on or before the middle of October. The title recalls Miss Mulock's most famous 5 rry, and its English name suggests the query which it was said Mr. Hamerton was to furnish. It lenbigh is understood to be one of ture's noblemen

I. H. BUTLER & Co. have just published a by the different characters both in prose and verse, and both of a serious and instructive nature, as well as merely humorous and amusing. In the fifteen thousand since last June, and tat, too, in the dullest months of the year. The handy little volume of the "Ten Times Ten ries" known as "Butler's Selections," volume second, has made its appearance. J. P.

McCaskey is the editor. They are bound both in paper and cloth.

THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD, have now ready the work of the Rev. Thomas Murphy, D.D., "Pastoral Theology." This work is based on the lectures delivered by Dr. Archibald Alexander, who was one of the leading professors at Princeton in his day, and one of the greatest lights of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Murphy attended his lectures when a young man, and took notes which he has now elaborated, and to which he has added the result of his own experience of many years.

HERETOFORE A. & B. Conybeare and Howson's "Life of St. Paul" has been too expensive for general use. But the new edition just published by William Sychlemore, of Philadelphia, is so extremely cheap that every one can possess a copy. Of course, it has not all the advantages of the finer edition. There are but few notes and no maps, but the latter deficiency can readily be made up. It is a 12mo of some seven hundred pages, and is nicely printed and bound, for $1.50.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. have just issued in their "Household Edition" the "Poetical Works" of Oliver Wendell Holmes, and in the "Vest-Pocket Series" "The Farmer's Boy," by Robert Bloomfield; "Favorite Poems," by George Herbert; "A Midnight Fantasy," by T. B. Aldrich; and "ATrue Story," by Mark Twain; "Horatius and Virginia," by Lord Macaulay; "Lake Regillus, Ivry, and other Lays," by Lord Macaulay; "Favorite Poems," by Schiller, translated by Bulwer; and "Favorite Poems," by Sir Walter Scott.

Dr. Schliemann's long-looked-for work on "Discoveries at Ancient Mycenæ" will be published late in the fall in an American copyright edition (Dr. Schliemann being an American citizen), by Messrs. Scribner, Armstrong & Co., in one large handsome volume, with many hundred illustrations. It will appear simultaneously with the English edition from the press of the London publishing house of John Murray. The work is being translated into both French and German, and will be published at the same time in Paris by MM. Hachette et Cie., and in Leipzig by Messrs. Brockhaus.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE BODLEYS TELLING STORIES. (Hurd & H.) "Doings of the Bodley Family in Town and Country," by the same author, will be remembered as one of the most charming juveniles, both in reading matter and in illustrations, of a past season. The above volume, in which the same little characters appear again, the wise Nathan, the saucy Phippy, Lucy, with Martin the coachman, cousin Ned, and Mr. and Mrs. Bodley, is made up in almost a similar style, the contents, however, being fresh and new, and exceedingly interesting and entertaining. There is a succession of stories told by the different characters both in prose and verse, and both of a serious and instructive nature, as well as merely humorous and amusing. The illustrations are scattered all through the text, in the form of most exquisite little vignettes and full and half-page pictures. The illustrations are among the very finest of the work. The greatest novelty is the binding, which is a new departure altogether, nothing like it having hitherto been attempted. It is fancy boards, Japanese in character, but so eccentric in design that it is almost impossible to describe it. On the outside of the two covers the design extends diagonally across the back from the upper right-hand corner to the lower left, one half being a pale gray ground with light blue figures upon it, with the firm's monogram in gold, red, black, and blue on the front cover; the other half, a dead black, bears the title in front, in odd-looking red lettering, while the back cover is adorned with gold stars, a young moon, and some striking red lines which might be forked lightning. The linings are even more elaborate than the exterior. Light blue is the dominant color here, the illuminations being in scarlet, gold, and black, the design extending across the lining of the cover and its accompanying leaf. Nothing so novel, pretty, and attractive, and so elaborate and artistic, has been shown before in the binding line. All the mechanical parts of the book are of the finest workmanship. The book is nevertheless issued at the very low price of $1.50. Sq. 8vo.

THE POETIC INTERPRETATION OF NATURE, by J. C. Shairp. (Hurd & H.) Some general views as to the sources of poetry, the poetic feeling awakened by the world of nature, the mystical side of nature, are given in the opening chapters, followed by special illustrations pointing to the several methods which the poets have actually followed in delineating nature and her numerous aspects. The book is the result of some lectures given by the author to a large popular audience about a year ago. The object of the lectures was to add a kind of literary supplement to a course of lectures on physical subjects delivered by Prof. Shairp's colleagues at about the same time, the author believing that some good might be done if he could succeed in bringing before his hearers the truth that while the several physical sciences explain each some portion of nature's mysteries, yet, after all the physical sciences have had their say, there remains a further truth regarding nature with which, real and interesting though it is, science does not intermeddle. It is this relation which exists between nature and the imaginative soul of man which he would demonstrate, and which he uses poetry and the poets to interpret. The lectures were designed at first mainly for the young, but will please all cultivated readers. 12mo, $1.25.

BURGOYNE'S CAMPAIGN AND ST. LEGER'S ExPEDITION, by William L. Stone. (Munsell.)
The story of the Battle of Saratoga or Bemis Heights has only within a recent period been written with clearness and accuracy. The historian depended hitherto upon loose and hurried reports of prisoners taken at the time, and the biassed testimony of interested parties, for a narration of the strategic movements of the English and German troops. The story was naturally one-sided, and covered up deficiencies and errors in our own generals which only the plain truth on both sides could dissipate. This the reader will find here, the contents of the volume being largely based upon two important works lately published in Germany, consisting of some sixty manuscript journals

Ahn's Second German Reader, with Footnotes and Vocabulary by Dr. P. Henn. and AHN'S SECOND GERMAN READER, with Notes and Vocabulary by Dr. P. Henn. (Steiger.) As may be seen from the above titles, this work is issued in two editions: the first has the notes on each page under the text; the second, the notes will be found immediately at the end of the text. The matter in both editions is exactly similar, the different arrangements being made to meet the different views of teachers. Care should be taken in ordering to give the title in full, to avoid mistakes. The Reader is for advanced classes, is carefully graded, the selections being chiefly stories, lively conversations, and bright descriptions. A novel feature is the introduction of newspaper paragraph and business forms, designed to show the best present usage in regard to these subjects. A separate Key to the Reader is published for the convenience of teachers and private learners. Readers, 12mo, bds., $1; half roan, $1.20. Key, 50 cents.

CÆSAR'S COMMENTARIES ON THE GAILLIC WAR, with notes, vocabulary, and maps, by G. K. Bartholomew. (Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co.) The text of this edition is chiefly based on the readings of Dinter and Krauer. The notes on readings of Dinter and Krauer. the first four commentaries have been prepared by a careful study of the text, word for word, the critical annotations of Herzog, Schneider, Freund, Krauer, Doberenz, Heller, Ritter, and Hinzpeter having been freely used. notes are designed to serve both pupil and teacher in stimulating investigation; hence constant references are made to Bartholomew's Grammar and to other sources of help, while many suggestive questions are left unanswered. The text of the remaining three commentaries is presented without notes, as few students read more than four books of the Gallic War. Great care has been taken to make the vocabulary accurate and serviceable. The typographical excellence of the volume is noticeable. 12mo, cloth, 90 c.

Household Education, by Harriet Martineau. (Osgood.) Harriet Martineau's statements in her autobiography about her own unhappy childhood, and the evident sympathy she betrays all through her work for the unconscious, cruel, and unwise treatment often extended by cultured people to their little ones, has awakened a new interest in her views on household education, fully expressed in this volume, originally issued as far back as 1848. It is probably one of the most helpful and useful books Miss Martineau ever wrote, and is full of the wisest suggestions to parents for the physical, intellectual, moral, and social training of their children, all of a practical character, and based on the soundest philosophical principles. Its reissue in a new and handsome dress will be cordially welcomed by Miss Mar-tineau's numerous readers and admirers. "Little Classic" style, $1.25.

EPOCHS OF MODERN HISTORY: THE AGE OF ANNE, by Edward E. Morris. (Scribner, A. & Co.) These epochs of history have done such efficient aid in the school-room, and are so thoroughly appreciated by teachers as the best method of impressing all the various details of a certain period upon the mind of a pupil, with all their surrounding causes, that further notice is scarcely necessary in citing the fact of a new volume being out. Mr. Morris, a teacher himself, is specially happy in the manner in which he puts his facts before the student, and in his method of relating them. His pages are never dull, and though he disclaims any originality or new information—his work, he admits, being a clever compilation from the writings of both French and English historians—it needs a special gift to select the best and weave it into so perfect a whole as the little book before us. It contains maps and plans, and is issued uniform with the other volumes of the series. 16mo, cloth, $1.

THE NATURALISTS' GUIDE, by C. J. Maynard, with illustrations by E. L. Weeks. (Naturalists' Agency, Salem, Mass.) This is a new and revised edition of a work formerly on the Osgoods' list. It is intended to meet the wants of young naturalists in collecting and preserving objects of natural history. The late Prof. L. Agassiz says of it: "I have carefully examined Mr. Maynard's work on Taxidermy. It is a well-digested, thoroughly practical treatise of the subject. Nothing of the kind has yet been published in the United States, and, with the growing taste for natural history among our young people, I should expect an extensive demand for such a book. Moreover, the second part, in which the birds of Eastern Massachusetts are enumerated, contains many valuable notices upon the habits and distribution of our birds, interesting even to the advanced students of natural history." 12mo, cloth, $3.

BLACKBERRY JAM, by Joanna H. Mathews. (Carter.) This is another addition to the "Haps and Mishaps" series, which begins with the "Little Friends at Glenwood," recounting their adventures throughout. A poor Irishman, with a big family of children, is the real hero of this story. Master Gerald Prime plays a trick upon him which prevents him working, and brings great distress upon his family. In order to remedy their great wrong, the little Glenwood children determine to raise, by their own efforts, enough money to aid him till he is able to go to work again. They hit upon the plan of making "blackberry jam" and selling it to their parents. The account of their blackberrying, their learning to make the jam, etc., is very amusing and instructive for the young folks. The story teaches industry and self-sacrifice. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE RELIGIOUS FEELING, by Newman Smyth. (Scribner, A. & Co.) That the religious feeling s innate in every one, even the untutored savge that missionaries have never reached, is the theme under discussion in this volume, and which Mr. Smyth brings forth considerable vidence to attest and prove. He claims that the same line of reasoning has never been thoroughly brought out in any other book in the English language, though developed to some extent in German philosophical writings. He has arrived at his deductions through what he calls "a process of natural selection in an American mind, from the German idealism and the English positivism." The work appeals to thinking and cultured minds, is freshly written, and presents new evidences of faith which even the most sceptical will pause to ponder over. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

My Mother-In-Law. (Lockwood, B. & Co.) This is another of the realistic domestic biographies introduced by "That Husband of Mine" and "His Grandmothers." Its story is a very familiar one to all who have had mothers-in-law. This one is after the stereotyped pattern; she is jealous, exacting, and generally disagreeable, but is fortunately carried off, in the end, by an elderly admirer, who is the unconscious instrument in carrying out Punch's advice to many who desire to make home happy. "Leave it," he says, and Mrs. Pinkerton does, in a carriage and pair and a blaze of glory. There is little plot and but few characters, the whole story being related in a quiet, simple fashion, entirely devoid of coarseness. Sq. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

RAY'S NEW PRIMARY, NEW INTELLECTUAL, and NEW PRACTICAL ARITHMETICS. (Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co.) This series of arithmetics is an old favorite with teachers, and is well known to the trade. We only call attention to it now in an entirely new dress and in a revised form. The objects of the revision have been to present the books in improved type, with better arrangement and a more pleasing outward appearance, and to introduce such new features as will adapt the series more perfectly to the present methods of instruction. As the old edition is still continued in publication, care should be taken in ordering to specify the new edition, or "Ray's New Arithmetics." 12mo, bds., 18 cents, 28 cents, and 55 cents.

Lectures on Preaching, by the Rev. Phillips Brooks. (Dutton.) These lectures, delivered before the Divinity School of Yale College, in January and February, 1877, are eight in number, and entitled "The Two Elements in Preaching," "The Preacher Himself," "The Preacher in his Work," "The Idea of the Sermon," "The Congregation," "The Ministry for our Age," "The Value of the Human Soul." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

LOTOS LAND, AND OTHER POEMS, by G. S. Ladson. (P. G. Thomson, Cincinnati.) As a first effort in the publishing line, this is a very creditable specimen of book-making, paper, print, and binding being everything that could be desired; the binding is specially neat and attractive. The poems, without any great claims to originality, are musical and pleasing. Square 16mo, cloth.

VITAL MAGNETISM:

Its Power Over Disease.

By FREDERICK T. PARSON (Magnetic Physician).

The Nature, Uses, and Range of Action of the principle known under the terms "Animal Magnetism," "Mesmerism," "Hypnotism," etc., are here set forth in a series of chapters of marvellous interest. Discarding utterly and wholly all association of this principle with "supernatural manifestations," "spiritism," mediums," etc., the author relegates it, where it belongs, to the domain of Natural Law; and with fact upon fact, case upon case, evidence upon evidence of eminent practitioners, proves the INESTIMABLE VALUE "Vital Magnetism in its power over disease and its beneficence in the relief of human suffering.

The volume is stuffed with facts, giving to theory and speculation upon the nature of the principle and phenomena but one chapter—the object being to present the subject in its practical, efficient, and Dresser, McLellan & Co.'s New Books.

Ready October 10,

Dr. Tom,

By Edward Payson, is coming to cure you of the effects of "bad literature published during the summer season."

The Boston Post says of it: "'DOCTOR TOM.'—Such is the taking title of a taking story takingly written by a talented son of one of New England's most eminent divines, an advance copy of which the publishers, Dresser, McLellan & Co., have laid on our table."

Also, Ready October 1, the Second Volume of "The Forest City Series," entitled

Phil, Bob, and Louis;

OR.

Haps and Mishaps of Three Average Boys.

By MARY S. DEERING,

Author of "An Average Boy's Vacation." Uniform with and a companion to the "Average Boy's Vacation."

"Sophie May," author of the popular "Prudy" books for children, says of the work: "It seems to me a very pure, sweet, natural story, and I heartily wish it success."

The Boston Traveller (December 22, 1876) says: "'An Average Boy's Vacation,' by Mary S. Deering, a little book which bears the imprint of a Portland firm, is the first of a series to be known as the 'Forest City Series.' Though an average boy is the hero, it is a little above the average as a story. It is bright, witty, and interesting. The sports of boyhood and the fun of home are mingled here with lots of boy philosophy like this: 'I shall never keep a store,' said Phil. 'You can't tell whether you will make any thing. And I shan't be a lawyer; it takes too long to get started in business; nobody is obliged to carry a case to a lawyer. But if I should be a doctor, and there was a baby within two doors sick with croup, nobody would wait to think how old I was. They'd just run and get me, and I should save the baby. Then I'm all right.' It is a capital book, and prettily gotten up."

A Master Key to the Mysteries of Ancient and Modern Science and Theology.

By H. P. BLAVATSKY, Corresponding Secretary of the Theosophical Society. 2 vols., large royal 8vo, of about 1400 pages, cloth extra, $7.50.

It is with unfeigned pleasure that Mr. Bouton announces a work which may serve as a key to the immense storehouses of Oriental learning.

The recent revival of interest in Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology, resulting from the labors of Bundle Philology and Archæology and sen, Layard, Higgins, Müller, Dr. Schliemann, and others, has created a great demand for works upon Eastern topics.

The author enters the field well equipped. A native of Asia—her childhood passed among the Calmuck's, Tartars, Persians, and other Eastern peoples; her maturity among Hindus, Cingalese, Thibetans, and Egyptians—Oriental traditions, languages, literature, and mythology have long been her chief study and occupation. The immense fund of information stored up during years of thoughtful study and observant travel in all lands, enables her to throw more light upon the esoteric philosophy of Eastern nations than perhaps any other writer who has contributed to the esoteric philosophy of Eastern nations than perhaps any other writer who has contributed to the literature of this important subject.

The work is divided into two volumes: one devoted to Science, one to Religion.

The author is most careful in stating facts and opinions, always presenting quotations of undeniable authenticity. Numerous translated extracts from the Kabala, the Hermes, the Vedas, etc., are interspersed through the work, bearing at times upon themes treated by high authorities, whom she is often obliged to criticise. Among the subjects dilated upon, the review of Platonism, the discussion of the Genesis of Humanity, the submerged Continents, the conflicting theories upon the Emigrations of Peoples, the relation of Myths of India, Persia, Scandinavia, Mexico, Peru, and other nations to modern science and dogma, may be mentioned to give a faint idea of the scope of the work. Startling revelations respecting many physical and psychological phenomena, heretofore wrapped in mystery and doubt, frequently occur, at once instructing and amusing the reader. ing the reader.

To the scholar and the specialist, to the philologist and the archæologist, this work will be a most valuable acquisition, aiding them in their labors and giving to them the only clue to the labyrinth of confusion in which they are involved. To the general reader it will be especially attractive because of its fascinating style and pleasing arrangement, presenting a constant variety of racy anecdote, pithy thought, sound scholarship, and vivid description.

The Biography of Alfred De Musset.

Translated from the French of Paul De Musset by HARRIET W. PRESTON. Square 12mo.

"A poet whose popularity and influence can be compared only to Byron's. While Byron is out of fashion in his own country, the rage for Musset, which for a long time made him appear not so much the favorite modern poet of France as the only one, has subsided into a steady admiration and affection, a permanent preference. New editions of his works are being constantly issued, his verses are on every one's lips, his tomb is heaped with flowers on All Souls' Day."—Extract from a long review of Alfred De Musset, by Mrs. Sarah B. Wister, in Lippincott's Magazine (October).

THE OUTLOOK FROM THE TRADE SALE.

THE fall trade sale of 1877 has held over to the end of the week, and we are not able, therefore, even after delaying the issue for the purpose, to give our full report in this number. There can be no doubt that the present sale has been one of the most successful for many years, both in attendance and in prices obtained. The regular houses from nearly all the large centres were represented and bought liberally, and our friends the irregulars were always ready for "balance!" Even the most conservative, like Mr. Randolph, who have no two opinions as to the demoralization of the trade sales, had come to the conclusion that so long as good stock was being auctioned off, it was not worth while that undersellers should have all the bargains and that steady purchasers should pay ten per cent more for goods, -- and this class was again to be found on the floor. The prices on good stock ran, as a rule, within ten per cent of regular discounts, and of course on dead or demoralized stock only a slaughter can be expected. There was much duplicating, and sellers generally were well satisfied. Many indeed quote the sale as knock-down evidence that the "reform" and the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY were all wrong in their opposition to the tradeale system. We do not think that an analysis f where and how the books were sold even at his successful sale gives reason to alter the pinion we have hitherto held as to the merits of he general system, but we do not propose at his time to repeat our usual post-mortem reflections on this lively corpse, nor to indulge in our usual friendly "wrastle" with the subject.

Taking it by itself, the fall trade sale of 1877 has had the excellent result of confirming the opeful feeling of the trade in regard to the business of the coming season. The fact of these buyers coming together personally, when feeling and prices are encouraging and not discouraging, is a useful feature of the trade sales to which no one can take exception; and this coming together has had happy effect this year. The dealers here feel that "things are picking up," and those who have come here go home with their impression strengthened. The fact that very many contributors, especially such conservative houses as the Harpers, were willing to duplicate, sufficiently showed that they were pleased with the prices obtained, and served to heighten the feeling of hopefulness for the fall.

The outlook for fall, it may be said, is growing brighter every day, and the trade should be ready to make the most of the advantages before them. Of course the old and somewhat delusive prosperity of after-war days cannot be expected to repeat itself, nor would we have it again if we could. But, within moderate limits, we may expect "good times" once more, and with good times and the relief of the financial pressure which every business man has felt so far through the seventies, we may hope also for the removal of many trade complications which have brought about diasters and difficulties and unwise methods of business that have worked unfortunately throughout all the trade.

WE owe an apology to our readers for many errors that have escaped notice in the Publishers' Weekly during the press and hurry of work for the past month. Our friend Mr. Crumrine, for instance, was unrighteously deprived of the name that properly belongs to him, and made to masquerade as Mr. Crunnim, and in our lists and elsewhere equally provoking errors have doubtless been noted by our good-natured readers. We beg to remind the victims that "such is life,"—but it shan't happen more often than we can help.

MESSRS. J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have ready this week a new work that will be of great value to the medical profession at large. Dr. H. C. Wood, the author of a Treatise on Therapeutics, Materia Medica, etc., has edited "The Physician's Visiting List and Vade-Mecum," for which many advantages over other works of the kind are claimed, especially in the Vade-Mecum, which will contain a great deal of information condensed into the smallest possible space. Attention is called to the accounts rendered, which are believed to be so complete that, except in cases of very large practice, the volume will serve for the record of the whole year. It will be bound in full Russia, pocket-book form. "Pegasus Resaddled," by the author of "Puck on Pegassus," will be ready about the same time, as will, also, Smith's "Elements of the Laws."

THE FALL TRADE SALE.

THE Fall Trade Sale opened with the regular catalogue, of 526 pages and including all told 97 invoices, on Wednesday morning, after the prefatory sale devoted to plates and Catholic books reported in our last issue. The Messrs. Leavitt are to be congratulated on one of the best catalogues, the best attendance, and as good prices as at any sale for several years. Among those represented as buyers were: from New York, D. Appleton & Co. (Mr. Pritchard), the American News Co. (Mr. Collins), Baker & Pratt (Mr. Baker), A. D. F. Randolph & Co. (Mr. Randolph), G. P. Putnam's Sons (Irving Putnam), E. P. Dutton & Co. (Mr. Clapp), the Orange Judd Co., T. Whittaker, Leggatt Brothers, Henry Miller, James Miller, J. Sabin & Sons, N. Tibbals & Son, W. R. Jenkins; from Boston and Philadelphia, Lee & Shepard, Lockwood, Brooks & Co. (Mr. Lock-Among those represented as buyers were: from Shepard, Lockwood, Brooks & Co. (Mr. Lockwood), Estes & Lauriat (Mr. Lauriat), A. W. Lovering, J. B. Lippincott & Co. (Mr. Kimball), Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, and other large houses; and from other places, Jansen, McClurg & Co., of Chicago; Maxwell & Co., of Bloomington, Ill.; Burrows Bros., and Ingraham, Bragg & Co., of Cleveland; Wheeler Bros. and D. W. Niglan, of Nashville; Martin Taylor, of Buffalo; Wynkoop & Co., of Syracuse; T. J. Brown, of Toledo; J. M. Dickey, of Newburg; S. E. Nichols, of Pittsfield; and several others from various parts of the West several others from various parts of the West. The buyers evidently meant business and were not afraid of taking large lots, but were close and wary in their bids and showed a disposition through most of the sale to lie low for bargains. Many lines were doubled up four or five times be-fore they were disposed of, but lines not infre-quently rose in price at the last calls. Among the standards, however, towards the end of the first day's sale, the buying was brisker and whole lines were taken at the first knock-down. New publications and standard lines, as a rule, sold well, but there was the usual occasional slaughtering, especially in the minor invoices and on juveniles.

FIRST DAY.

The large invoice of James R. Osgood & Co., reaching over $130,000 at retail prices, occupied the whole of the first day. Mr. Ben Ticknor represented the house with his usual indefatigable tact, and his universal popularity in the trade was pleasantly evidenced as he made his appearance on the stand. "Jo" Foster, who was cordially greeted, opened the sale by reading off the terms, and the hammer was first taken by Mr. J. K. Pratt, with whom Mr. Kelly alternated. The new books and leading series were offered mostly in lines of 100, 200, and 500. Mr. Pritchard, of Appletons, started off the sale with a first bid of 75 cents on Cook's "Biology," and this, "One Year Abroad," Field's "Underbrush," Howells' Autobiographies, and other quite new books were readily taken at 30 and 10 and 40 off; 500 Household Holmes ($2) went on four biddings at $1.25-$1.16. The Philosophical Library ($3.50) brought $1.80 per vol.; Waring's Village Improvements (75 cents) 45-44. Much interest was taken in the offering of 5000 copies of the new Favorite edition of Tennyson, illustrated, 12mo, full gilt binding ($1.50), which

($1.05-95-85-76-70-60-62\frac{1}{2}); lots of 1000 were taken by Lippincott and the American News Company, and 500 by Baker & Pratt, Maxwell, and others; the demand was so eager that Mr. Ticknor offered to run a duplicate thousand lot, but objections were raised to selling more than the catalogue called for. at a new price, and therefore the bids were not taken. The little books on the Eastern War, 7 vols. (50 cents, paper 25 cents), were slowly sold at 60 to 80 per cent off for the cloth (20-16-11), while the paper copies (500 each) brought only 5, 3, and 2 cents. 500 Aldrich's "Tom Bailey's Adventures" (50 cents), of which Mr. Ticknor stated that 5000 copies had which Mr. Ticknor stated that 5000 copies had been sold this summer in the new form, brought 27\frac{1}{26}; 250 "Deephaven," by Sarah O. Jewett (\$1.25), 69; "Out of the Question," by Howells (\$1.25), 75-70; James' "The American" (\$2), \$1.20-\$1.18; Lewes' "Physical Basis of Mind" (\$3) was quickly bought up at \$1.50-\$1.60; Wilson's "Slave Power in America," the third and last volume (\$5), was all taken at \$7.6c; Harriet Martineau's Auto. all taken at $1.65; Harriet Martineau's Autobiography ($3). $1.80-$1.774-$1.67½ per vol. Bret Harte's books, "Thankful Blossom" and "Two Men of Sandy Bar," 18mo, ran dull and averaged less than ½ retail price (40-37½-32½;-25-22½-17½). Wood's expensive work on Ephesus and Talbert's on furniture and decorations brought over 60 per cent of retail price. The Library edition of the poets ($5) sold The Library edition of the poets ($5) solar variously at from over $\frac{1}{2}$ to less than $\frac{1}{2}$ price. The new volumes of the edition of Hawthorne, "Fanshawe" and "The Dolliver Romance," averaged less than $\frac{1}{2}$ price; the last volumes of Emerson's complete works in the "Little Classic" edition ($1.50) sold better, at 85 cents. The heliotype art-books ($10 each) were offered in lines of 100, and taken at an average of less than 1 price; Blake's Book of Job and Elliott's "American Interiors" fared no better than the Galleries, but Mrs. Shedd's "Painters and Paintings" and the "Gallery of Great Composers" were somewhat better received. 100 sets of "Little Classic" Hawthorne ($1.25) went at 70-69-68

-65. The Household Poets ($2), 500 in little at the last. Tennyson's single poems all fell flat. The Diamond Poets brought about, for Longfellow, Tennyson, Whittier, Lucille, 1000 of each, 60-57\(\frac{1}{2}\)-54-53, and for Burns, Harte, Lowell, Saxe, Procter, sold together, lines of 500, 571-54-45-44; the Red Line editions ($3.50), lines of 200 and 100, brought about 56 per cent off for the ones and 66 per cent off for the others. Of the new "Vest Pocket Series" of 100 vols. (50 cents), 85 of which are already out, 500 sets were sold: they went down on doubling up from over 1 to less than 1 price (26-21-18-15-141-121 -111). The Fireside Longfellow and Whit--113). The Friesder Longierlow and white ther ($2.50) went at 70 per cent off in the largest lots. Ticknor's Life, 3 vols. 8vo ($3), was. sold, in a line of 100, at from 42 to 47 per cent off. The fine illustrated works on architecture went at less than \(\frac{1}{2} \) price. Aldrich's stories went at about a off; Mrs. Diaz's books, 50 to 57 per cent off; Eastlake's "Household Taste," 40 per cent off; Field's "Yesterdays with Authors." 42 per cent off; Bret Harte's works, 16mo, ($1.50), went at 70 cents; Hawthorne, Library sold down to about 58 off at the last call edition, illustrated, 12mo, ($2), and Hawthorne's juveniles, over ½ price. Dr. Holmes' works went at 50 to 55 per cent off, except "Elsie Venner" and "Guardian Angel," which reached only \(\frac{1}{2}\) price. 100 Howells' works, new edition. 12mo (\(\frac{1}{2}\)2), brought \(\frac{1}{2}\)1.10-75 cents; 500 sets of "Little Classics," 16 vols. (\(\frac{1}{2}\)1, ran at 55-46-42\(\frac{1}{2}\)-40-36-30-35; Longfellow, Blue and Gold and Cabinet editions, about 60 per cent off. The Blue and Gold editions, sold unusually wall all through the calculations. tions sold unusually well all through the sale. Lowell brought about the same as Longfellow; Parton's biographies \ off; Miss Phelps' works a little better; Procter, Blue and Gold, 40 per cent off. Saxe sold well. Mrs. Stowe's novels, 6 vols., went at about ½ off; "Uncle Tom's Cabin," 12mo ($2), 40 per cent off, and a duplicate hundred taken at the same price. Thoreau's works went at less than 1 price. Warner's "Summer in a Garden" and "Baddsell" did better than his other books. Mrs. Whitney's books ($1.50) 100 line, were all taken at first price (80 cents). Whittier brought, Merrimack (1 vol.), $1.50; Blue and Gold. 37 cents; Cabinet, 75 and 50 cents.

SECOND DAY.

The second day opened with the invoice of J. B. Lippincott & Co., of which the more salable books went off well, at 40 to 50 off, frequently touching close to usual trade rates. The lines were small, according to the custom of this house, but the house was willing to duplicate them in many cases when the bids were within about 10 per cent of the usual trade Worcester's quarto dictionary was taken at 1 off; the abridgments brought better than 40. Uncle Herbert's primers were duplithan 40. Uncle Herbert's primers were duplicated in large lots at 45 to 50 per cent discount; the "My Books" and "Prattler" brought more than \(\frac{1}{2} \) price. Allibone's Quotations (\(\frac{8}{2} \)) were duplicated at \(\frac{8}{2} \). Bulwer—Lytton ed. brought 40 off, Globe \(\frac{1}{2} \) off; Dickens—Dickens ed., profusely illustrated, at only 55 cents per vol., Globe ed. \(\frac{1}{2} \) price, Standard ed. a shade over half off; Thackeray—Kensington ed., 40 off; Chambers' Encyclopædia, 40 off. The ed., 40 off; Chambers Encyclopæula, 40 off.

Gazetteer was taken at 40 per cent discount.

Mayhew on the Horse dragged at $\frac{1}{2}$ price.

The "Health for Households Series" ($1.75 per vol.) went at 90 cents. Hoyle's "Games was duplicated, in lots of 25, at 45 per cent off. Smiles' "Self-Help Series" ($1.25) brought 55 and 60 cents. Bigelow's Life of Franklin went at 40 off; Hazlitt's Napoleon ($1.50) was duplicated at 85 cents.

The Dictionary of Biography ($15) fetched
$9. Gibbon, Hume, and Macaulay brought the regular price. Knight's England (English sheets) was duplicated at 44 per cent off. Prescott went for half price, and in Kirk's new edition at 44 per cent off. Cruden's Concordance was duplicated at 40 off. The Von Hillern novels were sold at 40 per cent; those of Ouida, Marlitt, and the Misses Warner at 44 per cent discount, and all the rest at much lower figures. The 8vo poets brought $1.55 and $1.50. The Popular libraries in 12mo went at 50 to 60 per cent off; the juveniles brought about the same figures.

Clark & Maynard's Masonic manuals went cine was duplicated, as also Jefferson's Manual

($1), in many large lots, at 57% cents.
Little, Brown & Co.'s solid books, held at close discounts, naturally brought good prices and were gladly taken. Mr. Little would duplicate only at the regular trade rates. A num-ber of English-made books did not bring as good prices as their own publications. The new edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica was knocked down at $7.121 per vol. Kugler's art hand-books, and Smith's Christian and Bible Dictionaries, however, were exceptions, reaching \(\frac{1}{2}\) discount. Bancroft sold, regular edition (\$2.50) at \$1.40-\$1.20, Centenary edition (\$2.25) at \$1.45-\$1.35. Of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" a line of 50 was soon exhausted at $1.80-$1.821, and the book was duplicated in 10's and 5's at $1.90. Mary Cowden Clarke's Shakespearian Concordance was duplicated at 1 off. Clough's Plutarch was in demand at better than 40 off. Soule's Synonyms went of well at 40. Bacon's Essays did not fall below 40. Black's Atlas ($22.50) was duplicated for $16.88. Parkman's books ($2.50) were taken together at $1.55, and the "Count Fronténac" was duplicated at $1.60.

Andrew F. Graves' juveniles, in lines of 10 sets, went pretty evenly for something above tretail price; in the invoice of H. A. Young & Co., of Boston, the Portable Commentary ($3) sold at $1.60, while the juveniles brought about the same as above.

In James Miller's invoice the prices ruled very low. The Red-Line poets did not reach within 15 or 20 per cent of his lowest trade price. Many of his publications which once sold well were hard to place; some of the latest publications fell flat. Col. Dodge's "Black Hills" ($2), on which there is a copyright of 35 cents, was knocked down at 45 cents. His juveniles brought the usual price for that class of book, about 60 per cent off. Mr. Miller at one time suggested that in justice to himself and his creditors he should be permitted to withdraw the invoice.

THIRD DAY.

G. P. Putnam's Sons' invoice came up the third day, and the fresh books were bought eagerly at good prices, and were largely duplicated. BOOK NOTICES.

THE LEOPOLD SHAKSPERE. (Cassell Petter, & G.) This, the latest edition of Shakespeare's works, is named by permission after Queen Victoria's youngest son, Prince Leopold. The plays and sonnets are arranged in a conjectural chronological order, by Prof. Delius, of Bonn, who has been a student and critic of Shakespeare since 1841, and who also is the authority for the text. Besides the authenticated plays, The Two Noble Kinsmen and Edward III. have been embraced, as the volume claims to be the most complete edition of Shakespeare now before the public. The text will be found to differ from all other wellknown readings, and is the result of the most careful study and comparison. Mr. F. J. Furnival, Director of the "New Shakespeare Society," London, furnishes an introduction, in which he discusses with great enthusiasm the author's life and the characteristics of his plays and sonnets. The introduction would form a small volume in itself, and is unusually rich in new thoughts and suggestions relative to the greatest dramatist of the English lan-It is interesting to note the manner in which Mr. Furnival divides the great writer's works, differing somewhat in his order from Prof. Delius. He separates them into four periods, with subdivisions of "links" and "groups," in which he traces the growth of the writer's genius and the variations in his thoughts and character. Nothing more valuable and interesting to the Shakespearian student than this volume has ever before appeared. It shows the combined results of the researches of English and German scholars for the past thirty years, and gives the first authenticated clue, through the recent studies of the "New Shakespeare Society," to the real order in which Shakespeare gave his work to the world. The volume in its mechanical parts is exceedingly fine, indeed remarkably so for the price. It is printed upon fine tinted paper, the text being interspersed by 400 very charming woodcuts. Small 4to, cloth, $4.50; half calf or morocco, $7; full morocco, $10.

THE BARONESS OF New YORK, by Joaquin Miller. (Carleton.) The heroine of this remarkable poem is the daughter of a Spanish pirate and an Indian woman, and is named Adora. We first make her acquaintance in a "boundless black forest, unnamed and unknown," in an island of the South Pacific. The Indians who slew her father and hid his gold have in their turn been killed, and Adora, with the exception of an old Indian prophetess, who knows the secret of the hidden treasure, is the only woman on the island. A strange old priest, who can charm the "black beasts" of "he forest with a fairy-like power, is her guide in distructor. How he or the other wild habitants of this island were ever brought gether the author declines to tell us, whether "From sulky north or sultry south, Or spewed from some sick city's mouth," ferring us to "the wind-born grasshopper" r definite information. One day a vessel mes to this isle, bringing a bold buccaneer, aptain Doughal, an escaped Fenian, with hom, of course, the beautiful Adora inmeditely falls in love. After a few months, he ould desert her and sail away in his vessel, when the old priest sets the forest on fire, and the beasts and the birds come forth, and a weird and fearful scene is pictured. The captain sails away, however, and Adora is saved by the old crone, who takes her to another island and gives her her father's gold. We next find her "on Fifth Avenue," astonishing New York with her beauty, her gold, and her title. Another long complication of affairs ensues, too long for our space to describe: the bold Doughal figuring in the scene again in a dual character—a society man, and a tranp who relieves horsemen of their purses in dark caves in Central Park. There is a wonderful wealth of imagination displayed in the poem, and a great prodigality of words. It is the longest and most ambitious work we have had from Joaquin Miller, and is in style and measure similar to "Nicaragua" and his "Songs of the Sierras." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

OYAGE OF THE "STEADFAST," by W. H. Kingston. (Lothrop.) The Steadfast, a G. Kingston. South Sea whaler, under the command of Captain Graybrook, carries the captain's son Harry, and, as mate, a young man, Leonard Champion, who loves the captain's daughter. Mrs. Graybrook and her daughter have seen the ship sail with many misgivings, knowing the lack of religious principles in those they love. the ship has been out for some time, Old Tom, one of the crew, tries to turn the attention of Harry and some of the other merry boys aboard to serious things, and talks to them of death and the other world. At first they scoff at him, but an accident which carries off one of them, and another which almost causes the young mate to lose his life, awakens a new spirit in several, and prepares them for a long and sharp encounter with misfortune. While pursuing a whale in a small boat, they, Harry among them, are cast upon a desert island, come near to starvation, are chased by the natives, and only succeed in reaching a haven of safety after many of their number have been killed or died from exposure and want of food. The story is full of adventure and excitement, and also points a moral. 12mo,

WE THREE, by Kate W. Hamilton. (Presbyterian Bd. of Pub.) Phil, Rob, and Win Howland, the three boys whose story is here related, are left by the death of their uncle not only unprovided for, but with a sister and grandmother to care and work for. Eager to do what they can, they do not shrink from the smallest beginnings, and from a few dollars a week, which they first earn, they rise in a few years, by perseverance and industry, to be quite well-to-do men, with responsible and important positions. There is a religious vein all through the story, no opportunity being lost, where any of the incidents offer a chance, for teaching or moralizing. Still the work is not exactly a Sunday-school book, having sufficient spirit and reality about it, with an exceedingly natural and well-related story, to interest any intelligent boy who may pick it up. The style of the writer is easy and graceful, and the language far above the average juvenile story-book, Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.10

THEY ALL DO IT, by J. M. Bailey. (Lee & Shepard) A new book by the "Danbury News Man" is indeed an event to be chronicled far and near, for the benefit of all those in search of a good, hearty laugh. There is no disappointment in this volume. After enjoying it ourselves hugely, we tried it on a friend, and watched him sympathetically as he chuckled and grinned over page after page, pausing every now and then for an uproarious laugh. It is useless to try to describe it. Who that reads the newspapers is not familiar with the "Danbury News Man's" paragraphs? Who has not heard of the "Miggses" and their neighbors? of the house-cleaning, of the stove-moving, the carpet-shaking? It is all in here, with a hundred other sketches of every-day life, irresistibly funny and mirth-provoking. Let every one buy the book who wants "a joy forever" in his house. 12mo, cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

MARJORIE BRUCE'S LOVERS, by Mary Patrick. (Harper.) Marjorie Bruce is a bonny young Scotch girl, fresh from a French school, full of animal spirits, and a coquette to the backbone. An over-indulgent old father has spoiled her somewhat, to the great regret of her prudent, sensible mother, who in vain attempts to curb her excessive vivacity. Her three lovers give her a great deal of trouble, her flirting propensities almost causing her to lose them all. She comes out "true blue," however, in the denoument, sacrificing an earl for a plain young farmer she really loves and respects. The author writes with much ease and vivacity, cleverly describing characters, and keeping up the interest in her story all through. 8vo, paper, 25 cents.

WOMANHOOD, by Charlotte Mary Yonge. (Macmillan.) The author of "The Heir of Redclyffe" discourses wisely and fluently, under the above title, upon the attributes and the duties of the true woman. From the time the girl goes into the nursery till old age comes on apace, her advice is proffered relative to the best early religious training for her, her duties to her governess, lessons, general culture, dress, amusements, friendship, courtship, her position as a wife, the relation between mistress and servant. She also writes about money-making, strong-minded women, health, home, the world, and so on, with the delicacy and refinement of a cultured and old-time gentlewoman. present generation of young-ladyhood may learn much from her pages, and mothers will do well to place her work in their daughter's hands. 12mo, cloth.

EGYPT As IT Is, by J. C. McCoan. (Holt.) Modern works of travel are so numerous as to be almost exhaustive in their descriptions of Egyptian antiquities and Nile wonders, but Egypt as it is to-day, in its material and administrative condition, has been almost neglected, by English writers at least. Mr. McCoan found what he calls "almost a virgin corner" in the wide field of book-making on Egypt, and availed himself of it to send forth the present volume. He claims an intimate acquaintance with Egypt, acquired during a long residence in the Levant and several lengthened visits to the country, made especially within the past three years, to collect statistical and other information on the spot. The headings to the chapters will give some idea of the ground gone over: "Territory," "Population," "Cities and Towns," "Egypt and the Porte," "Administration," "Finances," "The Datras," "Commerce," "Agriculture," "Public Instruction," "Public Works," "The Suez Canal," "Judicial Reforms," "Manufacturing and Other Industries," "Slavery," "Fauna and Flora," "Climate," "The Soudan." The work is systematically done, no pains having been spared to test the accuracy of all information received in the way of statistics or otherwise. A map taken from the most recent survey accompanies the volume, which is issued in uniform style with Wallace's "Russia" and Baker's "Turkey." 8vo, cloth, $3.75.

JACK O'LANTERN. (Carter.) A pretty little story for very little children, all about children's plays in the country, Fourth of July, and so on. Jack O'Lantern is a naughty little ignorant boy, who is caught stealing in the Merediths' barn, and who is reclaimed through the goodness of Mrs. Meredith, the mother of Daisy and Archie, the little heroine and hero of the story. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

PASTORAL THEOLOGY. The Pastor in the Various Duties of his Office, by Thomas Murphy. (Presbyterian Bd. of Pub.) The many changes which have of late occurred in the modes of carrying on the work of the church have made an additional book on the subject of pastoral theology a necessity. The author's long experience as a pastor has afforded him peculiar facilities for becoming acquainted with the duties of the pastor in their full variety. His object in this work has been a very simple one. discusses no questions of doctrine or order, nor does he merely theorize about subjects of any kind, his single aim being to present the duties of the pastor with as much fulness as possible, and to furnish such suggestions as may help towards their most successful performance. The pastor in his closet, in the study, in the pulpit, in his personal parochial formance. work, in the activities of the church, in the progress of the church, etc., etc., are some of the divisions of the work, 8vo, cloth, $3.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. WILLIAM SPOTTISWOODE, LL.D., F.R.S., is spoken of as the successor of Dr. Thomson as President of the British Association at its meeting next year in Dublin. Mr. Spottiswoode is a member of the firm of Eyre & Spottiswoode, the Queen's printers, and has frequently contributed papers to the British Association, the Royal Society, and other learned bodies.

THE death is announced of Mrs. Bagster, the widow of Mr. Samuel Bagster, the originator of the well-known house of Samuel Bagster & Sons, London, publishers of the Polyglot Bible and many important books in Hebrew, Greek, Chaldee, and other languages. The deceased lady had attained the age of one hundred years all but a day. Mrs. Bagster, until a very recent period, retained an interest in the firm of Samuel Bagster & Sons, which is now composed of two of her grandsons.

MR. AUGUST BRENTANO'S success, sufficient to enable him now to retire on a competency, is the fair result of great pluck and perseverance. He came to this country from the Tyrol twenty-four years ago, as he expresses it, "a thorough pauper, having only five dollars in the world." Hiram Cranston, then proprietor of the New York Hotel, listened to his plans and offered him a small space in front of his hotel to carry them out. There are many of his friends who remember his first modest establishment, and in his removal, when his business had become somewhat large, to a place near Bleecker street. His next step was to open a literary and musical bureau at No. 708 Broadway, which has since been transferred to the present location, No. 39 Union Square. Mr. Brentano intends to spend the coming winter in the South, and hopes to visit Europe next summer. He will be at his old place whenever he is in the city.

MRS. DENNISON, the author of "That Husband of Mine," was for several years a resident of Oswego, New York. Her husband, the Rev. C. W. Dennison, was employed as Bethel chaplain, and labored amond the seamen. He is now chaplain at the Washington Navy Yard.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

THE Acme Corkscrew is made of steel wire, with a rosewood handle, which, for durability and strength, is unequalled. It is made in tinned at $24, and in nickel at $36 per gross, subject to regular trade discount. R. G. Hutchinson, 44 Maiden Lane, N. Y., is the manu-acturer, and controls the articles, which have seen greatly reduced, but are subject to the egular trade discount. This house has a fine ew line of inkstands, mounted on marble and nyx bases in various shapes and styles, with ronze and nickel-plated trimmings. They will ange in price from $13 to $63 each.

E. E. BLISS, 133 William street, N. Y., has just issued an illustrated catalogue and pricellst of stationers' hardware, glass inkstands, and fancy goods of his own manufacture, which includes many novelties in those lines. It will be sent to the trade on application.

NICHOLAS MULLERS' Sons have lately sent out a new illustrated catalogue of their fine bronze (composition bronze, not iron) stationery ware. It is admirably gotten up, and contains many well-executed cuts of novelties brought out during the spring and summer.

THE "Douglass" Reference File (patented) is a very neat article, and a decided improvement on the ordinary reference file. It is made of one piece of cloth, and, instead of having the top and bottom separated, as is generally the case in reference files, is connected so that a back is formed which will admit of an accumulation of letters to the thickness of 2½ inches, and prevents their slipping out at the end when occasion may require that one or more be taken out. Instead of ordinary elastic bands, this file has a silk elastic cord attached to the bottom which, sliding through a ring in one end of the top, is drawn down to the other end and attached to a button, thus holding the letters between firmly.

THE NEW WIRE SEWING.

The accompanying cuts give views of a book sewed by wire, a recently patented method for which great simplicity and economy is claimed, and which, if it stands the test of time, will certainly mark a great advance in book-binding. The method consists of sewing each section with wire upon tape, which gives the book great flexibility and makes it very durable, because the wire used is impervious to rust and doubly as strong The maas thread. chines which do the sewing are adapted to all kinds of work, from a 32mo upwards, and all thicknesses of paper, and can do work much more speedily and with less material than when done in the ordinary way. Altemus & Co., of Philadelphia, will manufacture to order or supply blank-books which have been sewed by this process. We understand that samples will be furnished to the trade of wire-bound books without charge.

GLEANINGS FROM THE PRESS.

THE question of selling to consumers at wholesale prices again comes up in a communication from a correspondent—this time in the school-book publishing trade. A leading school-book publisher assures us that the charge is unfounded, and that if the discounts are examined the teachers and scholars will find that they can buy equally as cheaply from the retailer. We think that this does not hold good, however, in all cases. It must be understood that the best part of the wholesale schoolbook trade is looked for with the consumer. The publisher referred to says that the retail book trade is of very little moment, and that it is no object to consult its interests. Whether this is the fault of the retail dealers or due to a system which has fastened upon the schoolbook business we can hardly say. If the retail trade are driven completely out of the field, it may happen that the publishers will find out that an error has been committed. This has been an ever-recurring source of complaint, and must, we suppose, be endured, since it cannot be cured. - The American Stationer.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have issued a new edition, in paper covers, of a favorite child's book of last year, "Jolly Good Times; or, Child-Life on a Farm," by P. Thorne.

"Our of the Depths, The Story of a Woman's Life," has been added to "Peterson's Dollar Series of Good Novels," making the ninth volume. This series is published by T. B. Peterson & Bros.

We are glad to note that the Tribune, through its London agent, Mr. Smalley, pays to Prof. Huxley a royalty of ten per cent. on sales of his American lectures in extra form.

THE NEW YORK PLATE PRINTING AND ENGRAVING COMPANY, with which Mr. Walter Appleton is now connected, has just published a fine full-length portrait of President Hayes, so good and so cheap that it should sell by the hundred thousand. It is sold, neatly framed in ash, at but $1.50 per copy, or in larger parsepartout frame at $3 per copy. The office of the company is at 120 Broadway (Room 9, 7th floor), with Messrs. Charles E. Pease and George A. Savory in charge of the subscription department. Agents are desired for the engraving.

WE second the assertion that "it is rare to find four works of such importance follow each other in such rapid succession" in one department as are announced in the Scribner fall list in Prof. Bowen's "Modern Philosophy," just ready, Rev. Dr. Henry B. Smith's "Faith and Philosophy," Rev. Prof. Fisher's "Beginnings of Christianity," and Prof. Shields' "The Final Philosophy." It is curious that Harvard, Yale, and Princeton are respectively represented in this list.

SETH WILBUR PAYNE, of New York, is collecting material for "The Lives of American Journalists," which is to be a sort of biographical encyclopedia of the editors and editorial writers in the United States.

D. G. Brinton will have ready in November a fifth edition of "Naphey's Therapeutics," which has been thoroughly revised and somewhat enlarged. The work will be divided into two volumes, of which "Medical Therapeutics" will form the first and "Surgical Therapeutics" the second.

MESSRS. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have faith in the proverb that "It's an ill wind that blows no one any good." The recent strike, at least that which took place in the office of the New York Tribune, has not been disagreeable to them. As soon as it was over, the Tribune adopted "Worcester's Dictionary" as its authority in spelling, to gratify most of the staff, which includes such gentlemen as Mr. Bayard Taylor, Mr. Geo. W. Smalley, and Mr. John R. G. Hassard.

WE are requested to note that, deposited in the Astor Library, may be found a "Catalogue of Works in Refutation of Methodism, from its origin in 1729 to the present time; of those by Methodist authors, on Lay Representation, Methodist Episcopacy, etc., etc., and of the political pamphlets relating to Wesley's 'Calm Address to our American Colonies.' Compiled by H. C. Decanver, 2d ed., 8vo, pp. 56, New York, 1868," in a copy expressly prepared or the Astor Library, largely expanded by manuscript additions, the whole number of titles being over seven hundred.

MACMILLAN & Co. have reduced their price on their beautiful 12mo editions of Tom Brown to $1 for the School-Days, and $1.50 for the Oxford volume, at which price they are exceptionally cheap.

SHELDON & Co. are soon to put in press a new edition of Muller's "Life of Trust," brought down five years later, including an account of his two years' work on the Continent, and his visit in America, prepared by Prof. E. P. Thwing, of Brooklyn. This book will be of especial interest at the present time, as Mr. Muller is to spend several months in this country travelling about and preaching.

THE collection of stories by Mrs. Fanny Hodgson Burnett, about to be published by Messrs. Porter & Coates, has undergone a change of name. Instead of being known as "Dolly," the heroine will in the future bear the name of "Dorothea." This is owing to the fact that some one else already possesses the other name.

THE New York office of John Church & Co., located at 805 Broadway, now supplies to the trade the various editions of the Moody and Sankey book, viz., "Gospel Hymns" Nos. 1 and 2. The trade may not be aware that the two books are bound together and sold at 60 cents per copy in boards, thus making an extra style for assorting quantities.

WARREN F. DRAPER will have ready early next month a translation from the German, by Albert H. Newman, of Dr. Immer's "Hermeneutics of the New Testament."

THE new "Artists' Biographies" to be published by Jas. R. Osgood & Co., and of which the volumes devoted to Raphael and Titian are just ready, will form a series of handy books on the great artists, portraying their lives and times, the influences and circumstances which suggested or modified their artistic efforts, and the works they produced. The projected series will afford just the personal, historical, and art knowledge destred by persons of general intelligence, and will be prepared by a gentleman every way competent, who has visited and studied the art-galleries of the Old World, and has the literary skill to make these little books clear and full of precisely the facts and suggestions the public desizes.

EDWARD EGGLESTON'S new novel, "Roxy," shortly to be begun in Scribner's, treats of higher social grades of Indiana life than his previous books. "It will be illustrated," says the Springfield Republican, "from drawings by Walter Shirlaw, one of the able young artists whom our national academy did not think worthy of election as an associate, notwithstanding that his 'Bavarian Sheep Shearing' was one of the notable works at the last exhibition"

Among the excellent features of Van Nostrand's little Monthly Record of Scientific Literature are its bibliographies of scientific specialties, of which that on "Explosives and Explosive Compounds" (magazine articles included), now current, has reached title number 338. A volume of the magazine essays on French poets and novelists, by Mr. Henry James, Jr., is forthcoming.

J. WILKINSON will have ready in a few days days a cheap paper edition, at 50 cents, of Hope's "Sorrento and Inlaid Work."

Benziger Bros. have in press "Sister Natalie Narischkin," by Madame Craven, the distinguished author of "A Sister's Story."

G. W. CARLETON announces another book by the author of "That Horrid Girl," entitled "Margaret's Engagement."

In our notice last week of Maynard's "Naturalist's Guide," we misquoted the price, which should be $2.

L. PRANG & Co.'s large chromo establishment in Highland district, Boston, filled with valuable plates and chromos, burned down on the morning of the 27th inst. The stock of manufactured goods was very large and valuable. The loss on the building is $10,000; the total loss $100,000. The establishment was working on full time to meet large orders.

NEITHER Sweet Sixteen nor Grim Thirty-two can sing the old songs more than three months; each must sing on the next page; each must have new music. This elementary fact in woman's nature explains how it happens that the music-lists of Ditson & Co. have thousands and thousands of titles. Neither the young ladies who play the piano nor the old gentlemen who pay the music bills know that a single enterprising firm owns over two thirds of all the music-plates in America. As the great set of the set of the world, it business has assumed such proportions that it ive-story granite building has recently been ected in Boston for its use. The new pianote and music warerooms were formally ened one day last week, concerts being given ernoon and evening.

THE first volume of the new "New Testaent Commentary," edited by the Bishop of loucester, is approaching publication by Casll, Petter & Galpin. The first three gospels Il be treated by the Rev. E. H. Plumptre, D.

M. OTTO LORENZ continues in Paris his publication of the "Catalogue Général de la Librairie Française depuis 1840." The last fascicule, just issued, comprehends the works published from 1866 to 1875, beginning with the letter "I" down to the syllable "NA." It contains no less than 320 pages gr. 8vo in double columns. Many of the pseudonyms not included in the "Supercheries Littéraires" of Quérard are there revealed.

M. Ernest Renan is preparing a translation of Ecclesiastes to appear next winter. The work will form a companion-volume to the author's translations of Job and the Song of Songs, and, like them, will probably be prefaced by an introductory essay.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, London, announces a new work by Canon Rawlinson, on the "Origin of Nations," discussing the descent of mankind from the sons of Noah and the history of early civilization.

GRIFFITH & FARRAN, London, will publish two new contributions to college literature, in "Talent in Tatters; or, Some Vicissitudes in the Life of an English boy." by Hope Wraythe—another contribution to Eton literature; and "Wilton of Cuthbert's," a story of undergraduate life at Oxford a generation ago, by the Rev. H. C. Adams.

THE custom reports show an exportation from France for the first six months of the past three years as follows: books in French, 1875, 7,896,168 francs; 1876, 6,582,550 francs; 1877, 7,916,456 francs; books in dead or foreign languages, 1875, 995,188 francs; 1876, 919,217 francs; 1877, 1,199,802 francs. The exports of paper, music, engravings, etc., have, on the contrary, generally fallen off.

DR. GEORG EBERS, the well-known Egyptologist, who has drawn upon his old-world lore for the subject-matter of more than one good novel, is now at work on another story of the same kind. His last, "Uarda," is already approaching a fifth edition abroad.

SMITH, ELDER & Co., London, have in hand the first volume of an extensive "History of the Church of England, from the Abolition of the Roman Jurisdiction," by the Rev. Canon Dixon, of Carlisle.

VIRTUE & Co., London (Virtue & Yorston, New York), announce, among their new fine art publications for 1878, "The Works of J. M. W. Turner, R.A.," with a biographical sketch, etc., by James Dafforne; "Studies by Sir Edwin Landseer, R.A.," with a history of his art life, and a "New Series of Pictures by Sir Edwin Landseer," by W. Cosmo Monkhouse, "The Albert Memorial: its History and Description," by James Dafforne; "St. John and the Seven Churches," by the Rev. Robert Vaughan; and "The History of Ceramic Art in Great Britain, from the Earliest Period to the Present Day," by Llewellynn Jewitt, in two volumes, with nearly 2000 engravings.

DAWSON BROS., Montreal, have published a "Short Sunday Service" for travelling parties, consisting of a simple devotional form of prayer and praise for the use of Christians who may be deprived of regular church services. The "Service" is catholic in its character, being compiled by Presbyterian, Roman, and Anglican clergymen.

OCTOBER, 1877.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market will find the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its sixth year) will be issued, as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, entertaining bits from the books of the season, a select List, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH, and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month. It will be printed on tinted paper, of light texture, so that it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following rates:

Orders must be received by the 30th of the month previous to which the subscription begins.

No orders filled without payment in advance, as the numerous small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor expense of sending bills or of repeated statements, and collecting. Remittances should be made either by Post-Office Order, Draft on New York, or Registered Letter.

A NEW BOOK BY THE AUTHOR OF "THAT LASS O' LOWRIE'S."

Surly Tim, and other Stories.

By Mrs. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT, Author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's."

One volume, small 12mo. Cloth, extra, $1.25.

The readers of "That Lass o' Lowrie's" will be glad to learn that a volume by the same author is to be brought out at once by her publishers. The volume includes eight of Mrs. Burnett's shorter stories which have appeared in the magazines during the last few years.

It is needless to say that these have been among the most popular tales that have lately been written. Surly Tim (told in Lancashire dialect), which gives the title to the book, is perhaps better known than any short story yet published in SCRIBNER'S. The present collection, including Esmeralda, Lodusky, Le Monsieur de la Petite Dame, etc., shows that the author can be successful in other scenes than those the treatment of which has gained her so much critical praise and such wide popularity.

From Dr. Samuel Willard, Professor of History in the Chicago High School.

"Whosoever buys this little book will probably be curiously disappointed. He will think it too cheap to be worth much; whereas, he will find he has in hand more real information about Turkey and its history than he can get in any other ten volumes; and he must know well where to look if he can find all that is here given in any twenty volumes. But here it is! Maps, geography, genealogy, legend, history, statistics, criticism—all] in fifteen chapters, reminding one how the value of many coppers is condensed in one silver coin."

NOTES IN SEASON.

"THAT Wife of Mine" is after "That Husband of Mine," and may be expected to start on her travels about Oct. 20th. It will take a good many of her to catch up, as there are now 120,000 of him scattered through the country. However, Lee & Shepard will do the best they

E. B. SMITH & Co. have about ready "Songs for Gold Locks," by Clara Doty Bates, a most charming writer for the young, illustrated by Charlotte Doty Finley, whose capital sketches in "Classics of Baby Land" have already made her quite a favorite. From specimen pages, we judge that this will be one of the books for the holidays.

A very beautiful gift-book will be the volume of "English Pictures: drawn with pen ind pencil," by Rev. Samuel Manning, D.D., hose "American Pictures," issued late last ason, should also be kept in mind by the ade as holiday-time approaches. The new ook will be of very large octavo size, with early two hundred fine illustrations on wood English scenery and architecture, and a slored frontispiece representing Stoke Pogis hurch, richly bound, with a stamp of Stratford-1-Avon in full gilt on cover. It is exceedingly itertaining. It will be ready, price $3.50 reil, at Thos. Nelson & Sons', and Scribner, elford & Armstrong's, about the middle of e month.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish at once a very valuable religious book, the last series of "Christian Aspects of Faith and Duty," by John James Tayler, the eminent Unitarian divine of London, whose creed may have been narrow but whose religious thought and sentiment were remarkably broad, deep, and sound; Paul de Musset's engaging "Life of Alfred de Musset," his famous poet-brother, translated with admirable literary skill by Miss Harriet W. Preston; and "Jack Granger's Cousin," the attractive juvenile referred to in this column last week.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. publish to-day "Notes and Sketches of an Architect, taken during a Journey in the North-west of Europe, by Felix Narjoux, containing 214 illustrations. Narjoux is a disciple of Viollet-le-Duc, and the book is uniform with the works of the famous French architect. Its interest is not at all restricted to professional architects, but it is pronounced by the London Academy "one of the pleasantest books of light reading which we have met with for some time." The two first volumes of Mr. Howells' "Little Classic" edition of choice autobiographies will appear at the same time, containing the "Memoirs of Frederica Wilhelmina," sister of Frederick the Great, with a full prefatory essay in Mr. How-ells' best style. The "Vest-Pocket" books for the week are Favorite Poems of Pope and of Wordsworth, and two notable essays by Carlyle on "Schiller" and "Characteristics."

"SURLY TIM, and Other Stories," containing eight of the recent short stories of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "That Lass o' Low-rie's," a collection authorized by her, will be published by Scribner, Armstrong & Co. some time during the month. The Tribune speaks of her as "the latest prize of the publishers, who are unanimously willing, 'even anxious,' in her case, to give up their usual prejudice against collections of short stories." It adds, of the Scribner stories: "Surly Tim's Trouble" was the first of these, and great was the joy in the Scribner office when this manuscript, betokening the advent of a new writer of rare promise, quietly made its appearance. The would-be quietly made its appearance. writers who entertain the abiding superstition that magazine editors are deaf to the appeals of all but famous authors, would have been seriously disconcerted by the warmth of the reception accorded in the privacy of the sanctum to this unknown pen, of which all they knew was that it belonged 'to a little girl down in Tennessee or Kentucky.' This story will head the Scribner volume, and with it will be issued 'Esmeralda,' 'Lodusky,' 'Le Monsieur de la Petite Dame,' and others of her powerful and pathetic stories." "That Lass o'Lowrie's" is in its tenth edition.

"Isis Unveiled," by Mme. Blavatsky, has at last burst upon a wondering world, and Mr. Bouton has already orders for the better part of the first edition, sent from all corners of the globe. It contains something about everything in, under, and above the earth, and is certainly a curiosity in literature.

THE CHEAP LIBRARIES.

We published in our last issue, because as a product of one corner of the publishing field they seemed to demand record, a list of the cheap libraries, chiefly of novels, that have lately sprung up in such profusion. Our list already includes fourteen "libraries" or series of these broadsheets, of which one outreaches a hundred numbers, while another is increasing just now at a regular rate of eight per week. They include many of the best-selling and many of the best novels, largely from the list of Harpers' Select Library, but also from those of the Lippincott, Holt, and Appleton series. Their current sale is large, rather through the newsdealers and smaller booksellers, however, than through the important regular trade, as the profit of three cents a copy is not sufficient to induce most booksellers to offer them in possible competition with the more profitable editions on their shelves. Nevertheless they are called for to some extent from the bookstores, and are perhaps more and more kept by them. That they are, for the present, returnable, takes away any risk. Of one line over a million copies have been sold, and "Daniel Deronda" in the "Lakeside Library," is said to have reached a sale of about 60,000 copies. These are the facts of the matter, as through several channels we have endeavored to gather them.

It becomes a very interesting question as to how far these broadsheet publications have affected or will affect the regular trade. Some publishers have had the impression, in a vague way, that they are seriously cutting into the regular paper novels, but, after considerable investigation, we are not able to find that such is the fact to any appreciable extent. It is very difficult, to be sure, especially in the face of general business depression and the decrease of sales necessarily consequent, to trace satisfactorily the several factors which enter into the success or want of success, the increase or decrease of sales, in any novel or series of novels. There has perhaps been a general decrease in current sales of specific series, but this is partly due to the introduction of new lines, like the new "No Name," well advertised, cheap, attractive, and popular, and the large sales of a few individual light books, both of which have tended to divert the normal market from existing series. On the contrary, Harpers' Select Library, under the stimulus of reduced prices, has increased in sales despite the direct competition of several of the cheap libraries, of which it is peculiarly the object of attack. We have nowhere been able to find any case in which a difference of ten per cent in sales could be traced or fairly attributed to these new rivals.

On the other hand, these publications, certainly of no immediate profit to the regular publishing trade, may ultimately prove to be of use in educating a large numerical but low intellectual body of readers into a higher class of reading than they have hitherto reached, and leading to the consequent increase, some day, of the market for good books. It is difficult to generalize as to what classes of readers buy these broadsheets, but we are inclined to believe, from what we can learn, that they are very largely the clientèle of the weekly story-papers. have not been pushed of late years as they used to be, and their readers perhaps are ready for something new. The new libraries are also said to have pretty nearly disposed of what little remained of the dime-novel business. their constituents can be brought up to the standard of the regular publishers, the book market will be all the better for them in the end. There are also considerable sales for these broadsheets among regular novel-readers, who spend half a dollar for a handful, but the poor paper, small type, hurried proof-reading (of which there has already been definite complaint), and inconvenient shape are likely to drive them back again to a decent book.

There is one influence on trade relations, however, which is more evident and pressing: when the rivalry reaches, as it will reach, new books, it will have two curious results. In the first place, the broadsheet publishers will have to take the usual risk of success, which hitherto they have evaded by publishing only standards of tried popularity. Competition and risk combined will then soon begin to weed out these libraries, which will have their day, as the storypapers of a generation ago at the time of the start of the Harper Select Library were weeded out, according to the predictions of the Herald recorded in Hudson's "Journalism." But, in the second place, the value of advance sheets to regular publishers must nécessarily be much reduced. The Harpers would scarcely be willing to pay another £1700 to Mrs. Lewes, as for "Daniel Deronda," if they knew their practically exclusive rights, "by courtesy of the trade," would not last more than forty-eight hours against the rivalry of publishers outside trade lines who do not recognize "trade courtesy." This very book, indeed, has not only sold its 60,000 copies in the Harper editions, outreaching "Middlemarch," but is still selling, although as many more have been sold in the Lakeside Library, and a second rival edition has just appeared in the Seaside—for it is a curious thing that the issue of novels in cheap shapes often has a wholesome influence on the -sale of more costly editions, perhaps partly by the enterprise and comparative cheapening called forth by the competition. But when the approximate certainty of possession which an American publisher has had through the purchase of advance sheets is interfered with, he feels scarcely justified in paying what he has paid heretofore.

The final outcome of these enterprises is likely to be felt in one of two directions—either the hoisting of the "black flag" again or the nearer approach of international copyright. But this last greatly to be desired end cannot justly be reached except on some compromise which is not wholly satisfactory to any one side, so long as our tariff discriminates against American manufactures by its taxes on the raw materials of book-making. If this difficulty could be obviated, the present complication might have the result of inducing all leading publishers to join for international copyright as a measure of self-protection. The other alternative, if anything is to be done, is the ignoring of foreign rights by regular publishers and the issue of broadsheets by them. This is certrinly not desirable, nor does it seem necessary, for the little harm these publications may temporarily be doing will be fully balanced in the long run, nor can the business thrive permanently in any such proportions as at present. I robably 2,500,000 broadsheets have already ten sold, and the market must soon be pretty vell supplied. We believe, in short, that this is a matter which can be left to take care of itself, and that no regular publisher need be alarmed () the subject. . . .

THE government has hold of a difficult problem in this question of the importation of single copies of books through the mails, as to which the legal data are given elsewhere. While there is no desire to prohibit our citizens from the use of this convenience within reasonable limits, it has grown into proportions which are not reasonable and which occasion serious injustice to importers and individual buyers who get their books in the usual way, duty paid. The case of the importation of Bagster's Bibles is a flagrant instance in point. The impotters who paid two or three dollars a copy duty to the government found their sales decreasing in mysterious and disagreeable fashion, and it was some time before the real cause was discovered in the practice of clergymen and others of importing copy by copy, and supplying purchasers at a price much below that at which the goods could be furnished by honest importers. On the other hand, it would be a remedy almost worse than the disease to prohibit books being sent by mail, as it would not only interfere with legitimate private purchases but with the sending of samples. The present method-of charging duty on delivery at the post-office-fairly meets the case, provided it can be thoroughly carried out, and it is to be hoped that some way may be devised to obviate the difficulty involved in the Postal Union agreement.

A CORRESPONDENT from the South takes "the other side" in a vigorous, straightforward letter which has a good deal of solid sense in it. Every trade must indeed obey the laws of political economy, of supply and demand, and yet within these laws there is a considerable margin for both discretion and enterprise. And we are not ready to believe that the interests of the book trade or of the public, in the long run, will be promoted by abolishing the retail price on miscellaneous books. As to our correspondent's views on the revival of trade, we both protest and agree. There is good promise of increasing business, while he is right in arguing that over-sanguine hopes should not lead to results which all trades have too often lately had occasion to deplore.

Moses Warren, Chicago, has just ready a second edition of J. D. O'Connor's "History of Turkey," comprising the Geography, Chronology, and Statistics of the Empire; the Ethnology, Primitive Traditions and Sociology of the Turks; the Genealogy of the Osmanli Dynasty, and the Causes of the eleventh Russian War—1877. Three maps and a genealogical chart of the Osmanli accompany the work, which is issued in four editions, at prices ranging from 25 cents to $1. The same publisher has also in preparation a History of Russia, uniform with this volume.

THE FALL TRADE SALE.—II.

By Tuesday the selling began to get behind the catalogue, too much having been crowded into the distribution for the later days. The difficulty got worse from day to day, so that it was not till after noon on Saturday that "Thursday" was finished up. We continue our divisions according to the catalogue.

SIXTH DAY'S CATALOGUE.

The Merriam invoice of Webster's Unabridged opened the sale Tuesday morning, and the goods sold of course close on regular rates, the $12 sheep bringing $8.50. The Ivison offering of the smaller Webster's came less close to usual discounts, reaching within twenty per cent, however, of wholesale rates. 1000 Primary (48 net) brought 40 cents; 500 Common School (72 net) 61 cents.

Porter & Coates' considerable invoice found purchasers without difficulty at \(\frac{1}{2} \) to \(\frac{1}{2} \) of the retail prices. The Household Waverley, 23 vols. The schoolbooks were readily bought at not far from 40 per cent discount: Blair's Rhetoric ($2.75), per cent cliscount. Dian's Kinton. ($1.50), 70 cents; Sypher's Speakers (75 cents and $1.25), 40 and 55 cents. Coates' Speaker ($1.50) duplicated at 80 cents; Elderhorst's Blowpipe duplicated at 80 cents; Endemons.

- ac\ mere all taken at 65 cents. Other juveniles and series sold at reasonable prices.

Scribner, Welford & Armstrong's invoice of imported books averaged about one third of the retail prices of their catalogue. The more costly stock did not bring anything near the prices desired, but the solid books of all classes found a ready market at very fair rates. The new "History of the Ceramic Art," by Jacquemart ($10.50), went for $6.62\frac{1}{6}.62$, and Blanc's "Art in Ornament and Dress" ($3.75) for $1.20 "Italy," fol. illus. ($35), went for $11.50 in the larger lots. Rousselet's "India," in French, and Davellier's "L'Espagne" ($35 each) sold at $13.50 and $10, the final bids; 10 of the latter work in English, bound in Persian morocco ($25), went for $7.75. Other illustrated books were: "Painters of the Georgian Era" and "Memoir of David Cox," with photographic illustrations ($9 and $18), prices obtained $2.22\frac{1}{2} ralist was duplicated at $1.25, \frac{1}{2} price. Consul Jones' "Historical Sketches" ($3.75) could but just find purchasers at 75 cents, and Hepworth Dixon's "White Conquest," 2 vols. ($4.50), at 40 and 30 cents. Guizot's History in French, 5 vols. 4to, illus. ($12 per vol.), was bought at $4. "The Rump," 2 vols. was bought at $4. "The Rump," 2 vols. ($4.50), went for 60 cents. Newman's works averaged little over a third of their retail price. The Oxford translations of the Fathers ($3.50 per vol.) brought $1.25 to $1.50. Gervinus' Shakespeare's Commentaries ($5.25) brought over 1 price, $2.75.
Scribner, Armstrong & Co. had one of the cleanest invoices in the catalogue; nearly all the lines were of fresh and salable goods, and the prices therefore averaged better than in al-most any other invoice. The lines were not large, and duplications were frequent, usually at the knock-down prices, which were uniformly not far below trade rates, 100 "That Lass o' Lowrie's" ($1.50) were taken at 87\(\frac{1}{2}\) cents; 50 Ch. Bernard Quaritch, of London, the famous antiquarian bookseller, contributed a consignment the most valuable single shipments of books ever sent to this country, and as such formed a novel feature in the trade sales. The books were altogether too costly to be handled in the miscellaneous book trade in this market; as a natural consequence their sale was a sacrifice. The prices obtained averaged little over a dollar to the pound sterling retail price. The purchasers seemed to regret the slaughter as much as anybody, and there seemed to be a disposi tion among them to offer as much as they could safely venture, and some of them made remarks to the effect that they did not wish to buy the books in cheap to make money out of them, and that it was a pity more marketable books had not been sent. The choicest book in the list, Kingsborough's great work on Mexico, in 9 vols., with colored plates, whose market value is over $900, and which has brought as much as that in a library sale in the same auction room, was not sold, no one being disposed to offer more than $20 a volume for it. Holbein's Portraits of the Court of Henry VIII. [1792-1800], proof engravings by Bartolozzi (English selling price £52 10s.), was bid in for $59. Hogarth's works, from the original plates recently retouched (£50), brought only $37.50. The Dresden Gallery [Dresden, 1780-1784], engravings by Canale, Kilian, Houbraken, and others (price £28, importing price $112 net), brought $79.50. Gilray, with text and the suppressed plates [1849], half bound in red morocco, in 2 vols. (£50), brought only $12 2 volume.

EIGHTH DAY'S CATALOGUE.

On Friday the catalogue of the eighth day. including Harper's invoice, was at last reached. Of the World Publishing Company's invoice, "Chatterbox, Junior" ($1) was in demand at 45 cents. Buyers were eager to get at the Harper books, in which invoice, because of the stiff discounts usually held by this house, the sale had, in fact, little of the character of a trade sale about it. There was no holding back for bargains or bearing prices, but almost every line was taken, after a couple of bids for form's sake, within a few cents of the regular discount rates of the house. The standard and light literature most frequently went at 40 off. Among the books which sold at 40 off, or a few cents under, were their editions of Motley. Macaulay, Hallam, Mosheim, Grote, Carlyle, and other standard historians, well known for their inexpensiveness and the solidity of their manufacture; the collected novels of Dickens, George Eliot, Reade, Hughes, Thackeray, Collins, Miss Mulock, Kingsley, Curtis, Mrs. Sherwood; Addison and Burke (each 3 vols., at $2), Plutarch's Lives, etc. De Mille's novels, 5 vols. ($1.50), went at 67½ cents; Charlotte Brontë's, 6 vols. ($1.50), 62½-60 cents; W. Black's ($1.50), 85 cents; Livingstone's books of travel brought a trifle under 40 off; the cheap edition of the "Last Journals" ($2.50) just 40 off; Atkinson's "Amoor Regions" and "Siberia" ($3.50), $2.05; Speke's "Africa" ($4), $2.25; Spry's "Voyage of the Challenger" ($2), $1.10; Burnaby's Ride to Khiva ($2) and Bush's Siberian Journey ($2) just 40 off: Bush's Siberian Journey ($3), just 40 off; Long's "Central Africa" ($2), $1.40; Du Chail-lu's works, just 40 off; Thomson's "Land and the Book" ($2.50) duplicated at $1.50; "Life of a Scotch Naturalist" ($1.50) and Biart's "Ad-ventures of a Young Naturalist" ($1.75), just 49 which included some of the most magnificent ventures of a Young Naturalist" ($1.75) just 40 books published in England. It was one of off; Jacob Abbott's juveniles and J. S. C. Ab-bot's works, almost 40 off; Dr. Draper's "Civil war" (3 vols., at $3.50) and "Intellectual Development of Europe" ($3), 40 off, the latter duplicated. Griffis' Mikado's Empire ($4), 40 off; Nordhoff's two books on California ($2.50), $1.47\frac{1}{2}. 75 extra were sold of Trevelyan's Life of Macaulay, in the Popular edition ($1.75), at $1.05. The low-priced 12mo editions of Macaulay, Hume, and Gibbon (80 cents) brought 50 cents, and were run in 5's at 48 cents. The Classical Library, 25 vols. 12mo ($1.50), brought an even 40 off; the Students' Series, 15 vols., in a line of 20, were readily taken at $1, and as many more in duplicates of the single volumes; the abridgments of the same went likewise at off. Their text-books and dictionaries, which are all standards, were generally duplicated at a little below the regular rates. Several hundred extra were sold of Swinton's grammars at ‡ off "trade-list price," Willson's readers brought the same; Liddell & Scott's lexicon and Anthon's Latin and Classical Dictionaries brought off; Andrew's Latin dictionary sold still higher; Butler's "Analogy" ($1) brought 77½ cents; Mill's Logic ($1.75), $1.40; Crabb's "Synonyms" ($2), $1.25, duplicated in 5's at $1.20. Of Mrs. Henderson's cook-book ($1.50), about 200 were sold at 40 off. Haswell's "Engineers' Pocket Book" ($3) was duplicated at $1.80; Green's "Short History" ($1.75) brought $1.05, and 4 lots of 25 were taken at $1.04. Coleridge's works, 7 vols. ($1.50), brought 90 cents; the elegant "Ancient Mariner," with Dore's illustrations ($10), was in great request, over 100 extra being taken at $6. There was an eager demand for Will Carleton's "Farm Ballads" and "Farm Legends" ($2), a couple of hundred of the first and nearly as many of the second being called for at even 40 off.

The conclusion of this invoice took away most of the interest of the sale, the other invoices being, with few exceptions, minor ones.

In J. B. Ford's invoice the works of Mrs. Beecher Stowe and H. W. Beecher went very low, bringing less than $\frac{1}{2}$ price in cloth bindings, and but little more full-bound and gilt Edw. Eggleston's novels went better, but under $\frac{1}{2}$ price. At the close of the list, several hundred of the "Star Papers" ($1.75) were put up, and the price sank to 20 cents. The other books in this invoice sold equally low. An invoice of rich imported Bibles, with colored pictures, and other books of this class were not wanted, and, after the sacrifice of a few volumes, the invoice was passed. On Saturday the sale closed, and the tired buyers who had sat through, not seven but nearly ten, days all told, were glad enough to get away. The sale footed up, we understand, over $240,000, surpassing all expectations. This is one of the best sales for years, and Messrs. Leavitt have full reason to congretulate themselves on their success.

lengy Cary Baird & Co. will publish at once a comprehensive Treatise on Perfumingly, by A. S. Christiani, containing a history of perfumes, a complete detailed description of the raw materials and apparatus used in the pe fumer's art; with thorough practical instructic is, careful formulæ, and advice as to the fal cication of all the best preparations of the da. A work of this character is said to be net ded, as the old works on the subject are la 'ely out of print and out of date.

THE GOSHORN LIBRARY.

THE testimonial library presented to the Hon. A. T. Goshorn by the citizens of Philadelphia in acknowledgment of his valuable services as Director-General of the Centennial Exhibition, and for which a large amount was subscribed, has recently been completed, and it will at once be shipped to Mr. Goshorn's home by Messrs. Porter & Coates, from whose fine stock the library has been selected. The collection comprises rare and elegant editions, in superb bindings, of all the choice works of noted authors. Each book has inserted in it a book-plate, engraved on steel by Dreka and having, besides the arms of Philadelphia, the following legend:

Presented to the Hon. Alfred T. Goshorn, at Independence Hall,
May 11th, 1877, by the Citizens of Philadelphia, in grateful remembrance of his faithful, courteous, and efficient services
AS DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.
1876.

This large and valuable library of several thousand volumes of the choicest literature forms a most appropriate testimonial of the appreciation of Mr. Goshorn's services in connection with the great event of the centennial year, and the precedent set in the selection of a library in place of cumbersome plate or other more usual gifts is one which we hope to see followed on future similar occasions.

IMPORTATIONS THROUGH THE MAILS.

THE following Associated Press dispatch from Washington is of interest to the trade:

Collectors of Customs at the different ports of the United States are required, by the regulations of the Treasury Department, to seize and confiscate all dutiable articles from foreign countries received through the mails. regulations have been applied in the case of books mailed by foreign correspondents to their friends in this country. Complaints of the seizures having been made to foreign postal authorities, letters were addressed by them to our Post Office Department, calling attention to the fact that this practice was at variance with that adopted with every other country now in the International Postal Union. While duties are levied upon books in many European countries when they are imported in the usual way, in none of them are books seized, nor is any attempt made to collect duties upon them when passing through the mails; but if the laws of the United States and the regulations of the Treasury Department require duties to be collected on all books coming through the mails or otherwise, the International Postal Bureau holds that the proper course for the government to pursue is not to seize such articles and confiscate them, but to return them to the country from which they came as unmailable matter. This is the disposition which the International Postal Treaty provides shall be made of all unmailable matter received in one country from another belonging to the Postal Union. Mr. Blackfan, Superintendent of Foreign Mails, and the Postmaster-General, having given this subject full consideration, the latter will address a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury, inclosing copies of the correspondence with foreign postal authorities, saying that he believes that the interpretation of the treaty given by the International Postal Bureau is the correct one, and that books subject to duties received through the mails, instead of being seized, ought to be returned to the countries from which they came. At the same time, he will suggest that, if possible, the Government of the United States adopt the same policy as that pursued by European governments, and interpret the law liberally, and allow books of small value to be received from foreign countries through the mails under such restrictions as will guard against frauds upon the revenue.

COMMUNICATIONS.

REGULATING PRICES: ANOTHER VIEW.

SEPTEMBER 26, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

I have been an attentive reader of the correspondence and editorial remarks that have appeared in your journal and others belonging to the book and stationery trades, for several years past, regarding the conflict of interests between the various branches of the trade, especially the manufacturers, the jobbers, and the retailers. The various efforts, through the Boards of Trade, to harmonize these interests were looked to with great hopes by thousands. They all failed, as they ought to, and as any of us having any knowledge of trade and of human nature ought to have foreseen they would, Regulating prices for large numbers of people was of the nature of sumptuary laws. absolute monarchies could not enforce them. It was contrary to the whole genius of America. The attempt in the insurance business has proved equally a failure. It will prove a failure in all branches of business where there are more than two persons interested.

Retail prices in the school-book business have been practically abandoned. We now buy our school-books as we do our letter-paper, put a profit on the cost, and each man fixes his own prices. This should be done likewise in the miscellaneous book business. And the trade must depend for its success upon something more stable than fancy prices from which there are half a dozen discounts.

Not every small village or even large village will support a bookstore. It is idle for a booksmerchant to attempt to carry on a business when there is not demand enough for his goods to keep his stock moving. It is not true that it is for the interest of the publisher to bolster up such establishments. It is not true that it is for the interest of the manufacturer or the consumer to foster a trade that has not bottom enough to sustain itself. It is not true that the wholesale dealer owes his retail customer any consideration further than the courtesies of business require. The wrecks that have strewn the country for the past few years prove this, and have taught both jobbers and manufacturers the lesson; and if they keep it in sight for the future, it will be well for them.

All trade should be based upon the law of supply and demand. The retailer must have his profit or go out of business. Let him claim it. Let it or reasonable, and he will be sustained. The under-cutter will follow the rule of all history. He will be the first to succumb. Let the jobber demand his reasonable profit. If there is a trade to support him, he will get it. If he is so situated that he knows the trade better than any one else, especially the more distant manufacturers, let him look with complacency on all endeavors of the drummer to take his trade. For each good man that he loses he will find another just beyond ready to step in. There are limits to the possibilities of drumming trade, and beyond these limits the provincial jobber may reach out. Manufacturers have learned to their cost that drumming in attenuated channels is not profitable.

There is another thing I wish to say, and that is, the hard times are not over yet; and when they are over, the recovery will be very gradual. The spirit of trade now causing so much cheerfulness in New York is not an avalanche nor has it body enough to carry business to New Year's. I do not observe that old and substantial houses are placing any faith in it. I do not see new books of any value announced by them. I do not see any energy in manufacturing, and I do not regard the effort to make appearances appear any better than they are as wise or to be commended.

Pardon me for trespassing so far on your space. South.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL.

This ponderous volume is an acceptable one to us, as it is to all who are related to the book trade. Since the beginning of the series, five years ago, much progress has been made in the arrangement of the publishers' lists, which comprise its contents in the main; and other features of peculiar interest have been added in the issues of the past two or three years, which have enhanced the Annual's value.

In this edition the general lists are not only more complete, but a fresh element has been introduced, which will be appreciated by all booksellers and book-buyers, viz., the Reference List, or American Catalogue.

The sketch of the Harper Brothers is a fitting testimonial to a great business firm and brother-hood, and finely illustrated by the superb steel portraits.—Phrenological Journal for Oct.

A WEIGHTY and extremely useful volume entitled The Publishers' Trade-list Annual, 1877, just issued from the office of the Publishers' Weekly, New York, is literally a book of books. It is edited, as the four preceding volumes were, by Mr. F. Leypoldt, and contains the catalogues of nearly all the American publishers (J. B. Lippincott's is the only one we miss), with an analytic reference list of all books produced in this country in the year ending on June 30th, 1877. Prefixed to it is a highly interesting sketch of the Harper Brothers, New York, with portraits, engraved on steel by F. Halpin, of the four energetic, able, genial, and straightforward gentlemen who formed that firm. Mr. Leypoldt must be credited with the original idea of this work, now indispensable to all dealers in, and a large class of readers of, books.—Philadelphia Press.

BOOK NOTICES.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT, from the German of F. W. Hacklander, by Rosalie Kaufman. (Estes & L.) All the events of this romance take place within a few days. A young German officer, Eugene von Warring, has been left an income of ten thousand dollars on condition that he marries before his twenty-fifth year. But a couple of months intervene between his birthday when the story opens. He is on a visit to his sister, who determines to take the matter in hand and get him a wife. Thinking it the nature of man to ardently desire just what be cannot have, she pretends that a charming young girl she wants him to marry is affianced to another, or in other words is "forbidden fruit." However, the bait does not take except for a short time, the count suddenly falling in love with a young art student, who turns out to be a great lady. Hackländer paints German domestic life with a wonderful skill and freshness, giving to these simple incidents an unusual attractiveness. "Cobweb Series of Choice Fiction." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

VOCABULARY OF THE PHILOSOPHICAL SCIENCES, by Charles P. Krauth and William Fleming (Sheldon.) Under this title are included Fleming's vocabulary from the second edition of 1860 and the third edition of 1876, with the definitions of Dr. Calderwood, and Dr. Krauth's vocabulary, which is supplemental to Fleming and to the American editor's edition of Fleming. Dr. Krauth's contains additions to the chronology, bringing it down to June, 1877; the synthetical table is greatly enlarged, so as to cover completely the philosophical sciences in their classification, terminology, and history. Other additions have been brought into their proper place, so that the arrangement of the new volume, even after its great enlargement, is more simple and convenient than that of the old. It will be found an indispensible aid to the learner and a great convenience to the scholar. 12mo, cloth, $3.50.

LECTURES ON PRACTICAL SURGERY, by H. H. Toland, M.D. (Lindsay & B.) These These lectures, some fifty in number, relate to almost every kind of surgical operation. They were delivered before, the students of the Toland College, previous to its incorporation with the University of California. The professor had been requested by the students to write a textbook, but his engagements were so numerous that he had to decline, but offered instead to talk a book that would contain the principles of surgery, with illustrations from his own experience. The result will be found in this volume, a stenographer having made notes of the oral They have all the freshness and vigor of extemporaneous remarks and the directness The work is very handsomely got-vith numerous illustrations. 8vo, o' " talks.' to up, with numerous illustrations. c th, $4.50; leather, $5.

FORENSIC MEDICINE AND TOXICOLOGY, by W. I thurst Woodman, M.D., and Charles Meyn at Tidy, M.B. F.C.S. (Lindsay & B.) This a mual claims to be simply a comprehensive bedico-legal Handy-book. Although its subject is legal medicine, it deals with the medical rather an with the legal. The authors have felt that be vers know the legal aspect of the subject be ter than physicians, whilst physicians know the medical better than lawyers. Recognizing, however, the existence of a part of the subject belonging to both lawyer and physician but special to neither, they have ventured on this mid-territory, trusting that their medical view of the land in question may be found of service to those whose profession leads them to regard it primarily from a different point of view. The London Lancet, in reviewing it, says, "The fact that the present volume is written by two authors, both of whom are most favorably known for the high quality of the work which they have already given to the world of science, would be strong prima-facie evidence that this joint production would be something out of the common. The readers of the book will not be dis-It is 'as full of meat as an egg,' the appointed. information is sound, and the arrangement is good. Not only is the knowledge displayed of a high order, but the references to other works, which are thickly scattered throughout the volume, very greatly enhance its value. Nearly half the volume is assigned to Texicology, and this is probably the most thorough treatise on the subject in this or any other language."

It is a very handsome work of over 1000 pages, containing 8 full-page chromo-lithographic plates and 115 other illustrations, and is of importance to dealers in both law and medical books. 8vo, cloth, $7.50; leather, medical or law style, $8.50.

FIRST LESSONS IN LATIN, by Elisha Jones. (Griggs & Co.) These lessons are intended as a practical drill-book for the beginner in Latin. They aim to make him familiar with the ordinary Latin inflections and the simpler principles of Latin syntax; to teach him as many words and expressions from Cæsar's Commentaries as he can learn with profit, and thus prepare him for the successful study of that book. The work is adapted to the Latin grammars of Allen & Greenough, Andrews & Stoddard, Bartholomew, Bullions & Morris, Gildersleeve, and Harkness, with any of which it can be used. The publishers claim that it is the "handsomest Latin book America has yet produced, and that the author's work merits the dress." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

CARITÀ, by Mrs. Oliphant. (Harper.) This novel opens in very dramatic style. Mr. and Mrs. Berestord are a rich and loving couple with one child, Carità. Their lives have scarcely known a cloud when they first come upon the scene, and they have been married for more than a dozen years. All at once Mrs. Beresford seems to lose her strength in some mysterious way, and it is finally discovered that she is suffering from a loathsome and incurable disease. Her despair and agony are powerfully depicted, and her plea to her husband to give her something to put an end to her misery quite new in fiction. But her husband refuses, rushing from the room only to leave his wife to commit suicide by taking laudanum. little daughter is the witness of the whole scene, hidden behind the curtain of the bed, and is the means, years afterwards, of clearing her father of the suspicion which clings to him, of having murdered his wife. Carità's love affairs form a most interesting portion of the nar-rative. The book is strongly written and more than readable. 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

THEO, by Mrs. F. H. Burnett. (Peterson.) Theo herself absorbs the entire interest in this story. It is her love story that is told and her adventures which fill the volume. It takes one into a different strata of life from "That Lass o' Lowrie's," but is imbued with the same ireshness, tenderness, and power which characterized that novel. Theo is a young English girl of poor but highly connected parents, who receives an invitation from her aunt, Lady Throckmorton, to visit her in London. There Throckmorton, to visit her in London. she meets her fate, and loves and is loved in return by a struggling literary man, who has been engaged for almost five years to a high-minded, intellectual, but cold and impassive The usual struggle occurs, young woman. everybody behaving at their best, but Theo wins in the end, after much torture and agonizing suspense. The characters are all wonderfully lifelike, and are admirably pictured. The story bids fair to have a large sale, as it has every element of popularity. 12mo, cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

THE NEW SCHOOL MA'AM. (Loring.) Miss Mabel Frost, a fashionable New York girl, wearying of her useless life, obtains a situation to teach in the country for a summer at New Sparta, hoping to become happier under the new sensation of being of some use in the world. She conceals her real name and her wealth, and goes to work as much in earnest as if gaining her daily bread. Her experiences are very amusing, as are also the descriptions of the scenes in which she takes part, such as the examination, the donation party, etc. She finds a lover who, thinking her a poor girl, loves her for herself alone, and to whom she plays the good fairy of the children's books. Altogether a bright, wholesome, and very pretty story. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

DEVIL-PUZZLERS AND OTHER STUDIES, by F. B. Perkins. (Putnam.) The first study, "Devil-Puzzlers," is the story of a gentleman who for certain immunities agrees to sell himself to His Satanic Majesty. After a lapse of years the devil is to claim him for good and all, unless the party selling (Dr. Hicok) can give him three questions, one of which he (the devil) finds unanswerable. One day Mr. "Appolyon" walks in, and the doctor gets ready his questions. The devil answers the first and the second without any hesitation, and the doctor is in a great state of mind about the the third, when his wife walks in with her new spring bonnet perched upon her finger. She is made acquainted with the condition of affairs and begs to give the final conundrum, which is, "Which is the front side of this?" pointing to her bonnet, which she twirls around. Of course Mephistopheles is nonplussed and wanquished, as any poor human creature of the male gender would have been under the same circumstances. The other studies are just as quaint, clever, and full of original ideas and bright writing, and a "prefatory chat," on writing and publishing, will be found of peculiar interest to all directly concerned with books. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

SILVER WINGS AND GOLDEN SCALES; STORIES OF GIRLHOOD, by Mrs. Doudney; JUNGLE, PEAK, AND PLAIN, by Gordon Stables. (Cassell, Petter & G.) These three volumes are somewhat similar in get-up, all being profusely illustrated by very attractive wood-cuts and having bright bindings, with showy designs on the front cover. The first consists of stories of insects, told through the medium of conversation, and designed for the understanding of very young children. It is the handsomest book of the three, the illustrations being very fine and on almost every page. The title of the second describes the volume; it is a collection of stories of girlhood, for young girls' reading. The third is a boy's book of adventures in the "Icy North" and in Africa. 4to, cloth, $2.25, $1.50, $1.50.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in ow columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

A. HOPFENSACK, New York, has patented a handle fastening for pocket-books, travelling-bags, satchels, and other articles of a similar nature, composed of a strip of metal provided with a crook and rivet-holes, and bent to form two jaws.

E. MORGAN, Springfield, Mass., has patented a wall-pocket for holding stationery, in the shape of a box hinged at the bottom and attached to a board conveniently arranged to hang upon the wall. On both box and drop is a band running across the centre to prevent the paper and envelopes from falling out. There is a cord and tassel attached to the back and flap, preventing the latter from opening too wide. He has also patented a similar wall-pocket with bellows-gusset.

CHAMBERLIN, WHITMORE & Co. are making a new line of artistic novelties in silk, satin, and canvas goods, with ornamental painting by hand. They have also a new line of creamwhite ivory wedding goods, in extra thick papers. They are now making the new mossgreen tint in rough finish, which is very handsome; also a fine line of laundry lists in ladies, gentlemen's, and family styles, which are neat and useful. They have in preparation a fine line of novelties in papeteries for the holiday trade, which they hope soon to place on the market.

A. DOUGHERTY, New York, has just completed a very handsome lithographed show-card, 16 by 20 inches, showing the suite and cour cards in a very tasty manner. They will be distributed with goods when ordered, or will be sent to parties keeping Dougherty's goods in stock. This house is also getting out some very handsome new designs for backs, among which the Dragon and Thistle are noticeable as unique.

WE are indebted to the Harrison Ink Co., 9 Murray Street, New York, for sample bottles of their writing fluid and unchangeable carmine ink, which seem to possess all the merits of first-quality inks. Their inks have been in use since 1848. Their list contains many kinds and styles suitable for the trade.

PORTER & BAINBRIDGE, 33 Beekman Street. New York, have gotten out a new line of pape teries in handsome wood boxes, covered neatly and lined with puffed satin, containing one quire of extra superfine paper and envelopes to match, in royal note, royal letter, and the Kensizes. They will undoubtedly meet with a good demand from the trade.

OBITUARY.

TCHN DISTURNELL.

One of the old, familiar faces of the trade will be seen no more. Pleasant old John Disturnell, one of the walking curiosities of literature, died at the New York Hospital on Monday, October 1st, of congestion of the lungs. How many guide books and omnium gatherums he had edited, and published, probably no one but himself, if he, ever knew.

He was horn at Lansingburg, Rensselaer County, N. Y., on October 6th, 1801. He began life as a printer in Albany, but soon removed to this city, and opened a bookstore at No. 124 Broadway, and has ever since been more or less in business in New York. For some time, we believe, he was connected with the Evening Post. Mr. Disturnell was the compiler of the first railroad guide published in this country—"The Traveller's Railroad Guide," printed by himself in 1840. For twenty years, or more, he published the "United States Register, or Blue Book." Up to the time of his death he was active and talkative, full of reminiscence, and full of ideas for publishing. The "Association for the Advancement of Science and Art" recognized his ardent devotion to general progress by making him one of its Vice-Presidents. Mr. Disturnell was buried on Wednesday last.

PERSONAL NOTES.

PROF. R. B. ANDERSON, author of "Norse Mythology," will give a course of four lectures in the Peabody Institute, Baltimore, during the latter part of January and first part of February, 1878.

MR. JAMES T. FIELDS, says the Independent, is "almost the only American publisher who has ever devoted himself to the writing as well as the printing of polite literature. The only other publishers who have ever written at all, so far as we now remember, are Henry C. Carey and Henry C. Lea, of Philadelphia; Anson D. F. Randolph, of this city, whose volume of poems was issued by another house; John Bartlett, of Little, Brown & Co., the editor of "Familiar Quotations;" Dr. T. M. Brewer, of Brewer & Tileston, the ornithologist; George W. Carleton, of this city, who has produced humorous picture-books; and the late G. P. Putnam, who was a judicious editor. Mr. Fields' retirement from business has given him a chance to work in what seems to be his chosen field as lecturer and miscellaneous Years ago, in common with so many natives of Portsmouth, Mr. Fields wrote poetry, in which he produced at least one very successful piece of humor and one equally good bit of pathos. Latterly he has confined himself to prose, in the form of lectures and essays. Probably no living American, not even Longfellow or Lowell, has had so wide an acquaintance with the literary men of England, and Mr. Fields has preserved every scrap of interesting information or reminiscence that ever came under his eye. As a result, he is a most entertaining writer and one who has made a place for himself in our literature." The first paper in Mr. Fields' new book, "Ununder the title of "My Friend's derbrush," under the title of "My Friend's Library," describes Mr. Fields' own collection.

LITERARY ANC TRADE NOTES.

Prof. Francis Bowen's recent work on "Modern Philosophy" (Scribner) has been introduced into Harvard as a text-book.

GAUTIER'S "Winter in Russia" and "Constantinople" have both been reduced by Henry Holt & Co. to $1.75. The old price was $2.

"THE CAPEL GIRLS" is the title of the new book by Edward Garrett, which Dodd, Mead & Co. will publish here.

A VOLUME on "Money," by Gen. F. A. Walker, is to be published by Henry Holt & Co. His "Wages and the Wages Question" has had a successful sale.

THE trade will at any time do well to keep an eye on the "Home Cook Book," of which already 21,000 copies have been sold. Few books of its kind have had so steady a sale.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in rapid preparation a work on the practice of medicine, by Dr. R. Bartholow, whose "Materia Medica and Therapeutics" took the profession by storm last year and is now passing into a third edition.

PRES. JOHN BASCOM'S book this year will be on "Comparative Psychology, or the growth and grades of intelligence." His later books are issued by G. P. Putnam's Sons, who find a steady sale for nearly all.

Or May Agnes Fleming's works, G. W. Carleton & Co. state that they have sold nearly 100,000 volumes, and her new novel, "Silent and True," is said to start off nearly as well as if there had been no "hard times" for booksellers to talk about.

PROBABLY, all things considered, says the Publishers' Circular, London, the Athenæum's list of new books for the week ending September 8 was the shortest ever made public, considering the increase of readers, buyers, and the population.

HOLLINGSWORTH'S Book-Collector's Guide, which was called into life last year, has just made its second appearance. It contains a small list of important works which are offered to librarians and others at a very liberal price, and at a discount to the trade.

SEVEN thousand copies of Dr. Henry G. Wright's work on Headaches has been issued. In a small amount of space he has condensed much information regarding a subject which is unfortunately of great interest to everybody. Messrs. Lindsay & Blakiston publish it.

THE late Melancthon W. Jacobus, D.D., was one of the most distinguished leaders of the Presbyterian Church, and the promised publication, by Robert Carter & Bros., of a memorial volume, "The Christian's Heritage; and Other Sermons," will be a gratification to very many. It will contain an excellent portrait.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. call especial attention to their medical department, in which they have just added Dr. Geo. E. Walton's "Physician's Pocket Case Record and Prescription Blank-Book, with Visiting List," and "Physican's Case Record Ledger." They will send their catalogue on application.

N. TIBBALS & Sons call our attention to the fact that they and not the Central Book Concern, as was reported in our columns of September 22d, were the purchasers of the plates of Sigourney's "Whisper to a Bride." They intend to issue the work in two neat editions, with a marriage certificate inclosed in each.

Contributions for Messrs. Bangs & Co.'s regular fall parcel sale should be invoiced to them not later than the end of next week, as the sale commences Nov. 13th. The success of the recent trade sale is likely to make publishers and manufacturers more ready to contribute to this.

SCRIBNER, WELFORD & ARMSTRONG are now getting in a varied assortment of English juveniles in preparation for the holiday trade. Their stock is exceedingly full in Warne's picture-books, of which there are many fresh issues, and in filling out juvenile counters, in view of the fact that "Christmas is coming," the retailing trade should "make a note on't."

MESSRS. PORTER & COATES are doing well with their new venture, "Happy Days;" already the issue has reached the large number of ten thousand copies. The new work of Dr. Joseph H. Seiss, D.D., is now ready and for sale. The subject is one of great interest, as it treats of one of the wonders of the world, "A Miracle in Stone, or the Great Pyramid of HURD & HOUGHTON will have ready shortly a fine illustrated volume entitled "Californian Pictures in Prose and Verse," by the late Benjamin Parke Avery, for some time editor of the Overland Monthly. The illustrations have been drawn by Thomas Moran and others, after sketches by some of the best artists on the Pacific coast, and the volume promises to make an attractive holiday-book.

MISS WARNER'S new novel, "Diana," is on the list for early publication at G. P. Putnam's Sons'. It is the story of the life of a country minister's wife, told in Miss Warner's delightful style, and with nearer approach to the charming naïvett of the "Wide, Wide World" than almost any of the recent books. Several of the capital juveniles already spoken of will be issued simultaneously with this book.

THE works of Coleridge and Keats, in two volumes, form the second monthly issue in Hurd & Houghton's new Riverside Edition of the British Poets, and are just ready. Burns, in one volume, and Byron, in five volumes, will follow successively in November and December. Wordsworth's works, first issued, are meeting with a rapid sale, and the elegant library dress in which the volumes appear is much appreciated by book-buyers.

THOS. NELSON & SONS are issuing this fall several new books and new editions of popular old books by W. H. G. Kingston—as everybody knows, one of the most stirring of English writers of tales of adventure. "Twice Lost," "The Young Llanero," a tale of wild life in Venezuela, and other stories of all parts of the world, are enough to set any boy wild with delight.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co. are pushing forward two very interesting volumes: "Monday Chats, by Sainte-Beuve, which have been selected and translated from the "Causeries du Lundi" by Dr. William Mathews, who has also prepared for the work an introductory essay on the life and writings of the eminent French critic; and "Echoes from Mistland," by Auber Forestier, which treats of the Nibelungen Lay, and makes | stand.

a creditable addition to the literature of Norse-Land, so popular in the West.

MRS. CLARA ERSKINE CLEMENT, whose excellent "Handbook of Legendary and Mytho-logical Art" and "Painters, Sculptors, Archi-tects, Engravers, and their Works" have met with such cordial recognition from the artloving public, is preparing, in association with Mr. Laurence Hutton, a new work entitled "Artists of the Nineteenth Century," which will be published by Hurd & Houghton as a companion-volume to the above-named books.

A NEW volume from that veteran engineer, Mr. John W. Nystrom, of Philadelphia, ought to be well received by a trade which has been selling his manuals on mechanics for the best part of a generation. A "New Treatise on Steam-Engineering," dealing with the physical properties of permanent gases and of different kinds of vapor, is in press by G. P. Putnam's Sons. They will add to their medical list a treatise by Dr. John Althaus, on "Diseases of the Nervous System: their Prevalence and Pathology.

DODD, MEAD & Co. mean to make Lubke's great "History of Art," as revised from the existing translation and extended by Clarence Cook, the finest book on their list, and one of the finest books on any American list. Mr. Cook has discovered, it is stated, many blunders in the English translation, some of which absolutely falsify the author's meaning; he has obtained new material from the recent (seventh) German edition of the work; and he has himself added a new chapter of peculiar interest, on the Castellani collection. This will be freshly illustrated, and many other new cuts are added, making several hundred in all. The book should be one of the great successes of the holiday season, and thereafter remain the standard edition of a standard work.

THE announcement by Robert Carter & Bros. of a book by the veteran American missionary, Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, D.D., giving his experiences "Among the Turks," and the knowledge he has acquired of them during his long residence in their midst, should be welcome to a large class of readers. His book will deal with the origin, progress, laws, religion, military power, educational institutions, and other peculiarities of this interesting people now brought with unusual prominence before the public, while interweaving an interesting personal narrative. It will be ready about Novem-At the same time will be issued Dr. ber 1st. J. R. Macduff's promised life of Christ for children, which will bear the title of "Brighter than the Sun; or, Christ the Light of the World," and will have sixteen full-page illustrations, by Rowan.

"SHADE IT A LITTLE!"

MILFORD, MASS., October 3, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publishers Weekly:

"Can't you shade it a little?" The way the book trade is now conducted was strikingly illustrated to me the other day at the undertaker's.

A man was buying a coffin for his son, and, after pricing several cheap styles, said, "Can't you shade it a little from that?"

It seems to me that this call of "Can't you shade it?" is putting trade in its coffin, destroying confidence, making it impossible for a man to establish a reputation for honest dealing, and making Jews of both buyer and seller.

We have shaded it until there is no price, and the answer is "I can do better," and we are counted extortioners.

Shade as we will and Mr. Butcher, with a stock of "old plugs," steps into his neighbor's with a dollar and buys a new book, when called for, and sells for a dollar five or what he pleases.

Shade him up to retail price in such cases and see how it works.

If we poor little fellows are of no account, tell us so, and we will retire to the shades of the Western prairie and grow potatoe-bugs and grasshoppers and shade the price a little.

Truly yours, IRA A. SMITH.

THE "LEISURE HOUR" SERIES.

It will be good news to novel-readers who like the best novels, and have nevertheless to consider the length of their purses, that Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. have determined to fall in with the times and make the now famous "Leisure Hour" series "as cheap as the cheapest." From this date, the retail price of the "linen dusters" will be reduced from $1.25 to $1 per volume throughout the series, which with the new volume. "Pauline," reaches number ninety-two and is likely by the end of the year, or soon after, to count up its full hundred volumes. How very cheap this is the readers of these pleasantly familiar books, now found on everybody's table, may reckon for themselves: anybody who wants more for his money simply can't get it. The books run as high as 500 close pages, "Clarissa Harlowe," for instance, reaching 515, while the average number of pages is about 340-to put it economically, three pages for a cent and the covers thrown in! It is a curious fact, perhaps not pleasing to the manufacturers, that some of the largest volumes sell the best, as Mrs. Alexander's "Wooing o't," which has 483 large, close bourgeois pages. Such a "Leisure Hour" book as this at $1 is safely to be set down as, in both quantity and quality, ne plus ultra. Of the clever dress and handy shape of these books it is late in the day to speak.

The literary excellence of these books is not less notable, and the publishers have reason to claim that "the standard of excellence has never been departed from." The series has been the means of introducing to the American public Mrs. Alexander, Thomas Hardy,—two of the most popular of the new authors Calverley, the wittiest of present writers of verse; Miss Poynter, Miss Fraser-Tytler, L. B. Walford, and, in translation, Victor Cherbuliez. In addition, the writings of many of the most popular and brilliant authors, living and dead, of England, Germany, France, Russia, and Scandinavia, are to be found on the list,-About, Auerbach, Bjornsen, Mme. Craven, Droz, Freytag, Goethe, Heine, Mrs. Jenkin, Mrs. Oliphant, Richardson, Richter, Spielhagen, Thackeray, Turgenieff, Winthrop,—and the translations, always exceptionally good, have in many cases been adopted from this series for the English publication of such books as those of Auerbach and Turgenieff. In nearly all of these volumes, where the authors are living, the publication has been by arrangement with them, and in the case of Mrs. Alexander, for instance, the payments from Henry Holt & Co. have reached, we understand, into the thousands of pounds. It may fairly be claimed for the "Leisure Hour" books that the same amount of literary merit is to be found concentrated in no other current series of fictional writings of its extent, published in a shape suited to library shelves, and the lovers of good literature may fairly hope for them a continuation, under the new arrangements, of the success they have attained in the past five vears.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Phrenological Journal announces a new departure for 1878, reducing its price but preserving its quality.

THE October number of the Magazine of American History (Barnes) has for its leading article an account of the location of the National Capital at Washington. The biographical sketch, from the pen of the editor, is of Colonel Ebenezer Stevens, of the Continental Army.

E. L. Kellogg & Co. have begun to publish The Scholar's Companion. of which we have received the first number. It is a lively eightpage paper, which, if kept up in this manner, should be sure of success.

THE Portland magazine, Once a Month, is already dead. It didn't even get so far as the composing-room.

MRS. ANNIE THACKERAY RITCHIE will furnish the next serial in Harper's Magazine, beginning with December.

THE London Academy announces a new musical paper, to be entitled The London and Provincial Music Trade Review. "The name," it adds, "we should imagine to be certainly, and the idea probably, suggested by the very successful New York Music Trade Review. We trust that the paper may be as well conducted and as well supported as its transatlantic contemporary."

THE Atlantic Monthly's portrait-gallery of distinguished poets and authors will be enriched this fall by the addition of a fine life-size portrait of Whittier, similar in size and style and a companion to the admirable portraits of Longfellow and Bryant already published.

THE Literary World has occasion to beg the indulgence of its readers, because "a sudden irruption of clamorous advertisements, just as the paper was ready for the press, necessitated a slight abridgment of reading-matter proper." We trust it will continue to be bothered in this way, for it is an excellent and useful paper, which publishers have reason to favor.

BOOK NOTICES. -

MODERN PHILOSOPHY, by Francis Bowen. (Scribner, A. & Co.) The declaration of faith which Prof. Bowen makes in his preface shows the standpoint from which he views the theories of modern philosophy. He says: "I accept with unhesitating conviction and belief the doctrine of the being of one Personal God, the Creator and Governor of the world, and of one Lord Jesus Christ, in whom 'dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily, and I have found nothing whatever in the literature of modern infidelity which, to my mind, casts even the slightest doubt upon that belief." He has not allowed his creed, however, to bias his judgment untairly, kindliness and toleration being the key-note of his work. His opening chapter is devoted to an outline of the philosophy of the seventeenth century and the relations of philosophy to psychology and logic. After this follow studies of Descartes, Spinoca, Malebranche, Pascal, Leibnitz, several chapters on Kant and his "Critique of Pure Reason," and discussions of the philosophies of Schopenhauer, Fichte, Schelling, Hegel, and Hartmann. As this work has been long looked for and long promised, it cannot fail to excite attention among cultivated readers. They will find that Prof. Bowen has produced a volume of great value and attractiveness. 8vo, cloth.

THE SCIENCE OF RHETORIC, by D. J. Hill, A.M. (Sheldon.) This book is not designed as an introduction to English composition, but rather as a systematic presentation of the laws of discourse for advanced classes. It presents the whole subject in an original and philosophical manner, combining the best results of earlier writers with the doctrines of recent scholars. Some of the merits of the book as enumerated are: the sphere of rhetoric is properly marked; the relations of rhetoric to other sciences are distinctly shown; the best views of other writers, ancient and modern, have been embodied; all the laws of discourse are referred to the established laws of mind and of language; the arrangement adapts the book to the topical method of recitation; there are abundant materials for exercises in criticism and construction; the typography shows the relations of the different divisions. 12mo, cloth, Boston Monday Lectures. Biology, with Preludes on Current Events, by Joseph Cook. (Osgood.) The object of these lectures is to present the results of the freshest German, English, and American scholarship on the more important and difficult topics concerning the relation of religion and science. They oppose the materialistic, and not the theistic, theory of evolution. They are entitled "Huxley and Tyndall on Evolution," "The Concessions of Evolutionists," "The Microscope and Materialism," "Lotze, Beale, and Huxley on Living Tissues," "Life or Mechanism—Which?" "Does Death End All?—Involution and Evolution," "The Nerves and the Soul," "Is Instinct Immortal?" "Bain's Materialism," "Automatic and Influential Nerves," "Emerson's Views on Immortality," "Ulrici on the Spiritual Body." They were delivered during the winter of 1876-77, at Tremont Temple, Boston, and were listened to by large and enthusistic audiences, containing numbers of ministers, teachers, and other educated men. The volume contains three colored plates after Beale and Frey. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A COURSE IN SCIENTIFIC GERMAN, prepared by Harry Blake Hodges. (Ginn & H.) The purpose of this book is to supply, as far as possible, the want, long felt by English and American students of science, of some aid in the acquirement of a knowledge of the German language of a sufficiently practical nature to enable them to read with ease the scientific literature of Germany. It begins with exercises in German and in English, the sentences being carefully selected and arranged from text books on Physics, Chemistry, Mineralogy, and Botany, each subject being treated by itself, and as completely as possible, the whole being divided into twenty-one lessons, each lesson ending with a series of questions in German on the The second part consists of a collection of articles on scientific subjects of general interest, adapted from the writings of the first scientific men of Germany. The whole is followed by a complete vocabulary of purely scientific terms. Prof. Hodges is the instructor in chemistry and scientific German in Harvard University. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

CHINA PAINTING, by M. Louise McLaughlin. (Robert Clarke & Co.) Miss McLaughlin has a wide reputation as an artist. Specimens of her china painting were among the chief attractions of the exhibit of the "Cincinnati School of Design" in the Women's Department of the Centennial Exhibition. This little manual, pre-pared with great care and good judgment, is mainly a record of her own experience in decorating hard porcelain during the past three years. She explains every detail of the process in such a manner that any amateur may gain in a very short time a practical knowledge of a very delicate and beautiful art. book is quite a typographical gem, both inside and out, the ornamentations on the cover and the vignettes at the end of each chapter being from the author's own designs, etched by her in wax, and reproduced by the electrotype process. The design of the cover is unique. The ground is the favorite gray-blue, with diagonal lines in chocolate color and black extending across the back, from the top of one cover to the bottom of the other. The title is on the chocolate ground in black letters, while some grasses and field flowers, a butterfly, and a spider's web embellish the remainder of the blue 12mo, bds., 75 cents.

CHOICE AUTOBIOGRAPHIES, edited by W. D. Howells. Memoir of Frederica Wilhelmina, MARGRAVINE OF BAIREUTH. (Osgood.) This is the first work of a series of the best biographies, prepared especially for family reading by Mr. Howells, and to be issued regularly. memoir is prefaced by a critical and biographical essay by Mr. Howells, in which the sequel of the princess' life is given, with some other collateral matter. The editor will supplement each volume in this way, and will in many cases reject unimportant and uninteresting matter, reducing the work in bulk and increasing it in value. It is designed to include in the series famous autobiographies from all languages, and to offer in a compact and desirable edition all that is best in this most charming of all liter-tures. The memoir of the Princess Wilhelmina, the favorite sister of Frederick the Great, and by marriage Margravine of Baireuth, the little principality made famous recently as the spot chosen for the representation of Wagner's music-drama, cannot but fascinate the most indifferent reader. Written in her twenty-fifth year, fresh from the tyranny of her father's court, it relates with a striking fidelity the brutality to which she and her brother were subjected, and the utter misery which surrounded their young days. It reads like an impossible romance, but history does not deny any of its wonderful statements. Since its first issue in 1810 it has been one of the famous biographies of the world. In two volumes. "Little Classic" style. $1.25 per vol.

IMAGINARY CONVERSATIONS, by Walter Savage Landor. (Roberts.) This, the fifth and last volume of the series, contains the remainder of the miscellaneous dialogues. Such names as Thlers and Lamartine, Louis Philippe and Guizot, Béranger and La Roche-Jaquelin, Garibaldi and Mazzini, Pope Pio Nono and Cardinal Antonelli, Louis Bonaparte and Count Molé, Talleyrand and Archbishop of Paris, Eldon and Encombe, Blücher and Sandt, Sandt and Kotzebue, are among the imaginary talkers. This series forms a perfect treasure-house of wit, humor, and wisdom; the dialogues touch upon almost every topic with a versatility of imagination that is really wonderful. No imagination that is really wonderful. library, private or public, can be considered complete without the volumes, and as now offered they are fortunately within the means of every book-lover. The present volume is especially valuable, as it contains an index to the whole series. The index is very complete, and a very useful adjunct. 12mo, cloth.

OBITUARY.

J. SIDNEY ADAMS.

On the 28th of September, J. Sidney Adams, one of the oldest and most esteemed residents of Amherst, and a veteran in the trade, died at the age of seventy-four. Mr. Adams, a native of Middletown, Mass., and son of Rev. Solo-mon Adams, was educated at the North Andover Academy, and served a full apprenticeship in the printing-office of Flagg & Gould at the last-named place. In that office he set up Hebrew for about three years, doing most of the composition work on Gibbs' Hebrew Lexi-con, the first Hebrew lexicon published in this country, and on Stewart's Hebrew Gram-A little longer than fifty years ago, he settled at Amherst, and established there the first printing-office and bookstore, with S. C. Carter, the present town clerk and treasurer of Amherst, as a partner. The first book published by them was a volume of sermons by Rev. Daniel A. Clark. For six months they published the Chemical Journal. In 1826 they established the New England Enquirer, the first paper printed in Amherst, and which, under different names, has been continued most of the time until now. A few years after the founding of this paper, Mr. Adams took his brother Charles into business with him, Mr. Carter retiring, and the firm continued nearly fifty years —waitl the death of Mr. Adams. Shortly after the formation of the partnership between the brothers, they purchased the right to publish Weah Webster's dictionary, which they never made use of, we believe, leaving that and the making of a fortune to the Merriams, who bought the right from them. Mr. Adams, who up to his decease was very active, taking interest in everything that went on about him, had held various offices of trust and responsibility in the town government and the church.

MARION HUTCHINSON.

MARION HUTCHINSON, connected for many years with D. Appleton & Co., died suddenly on September 26th. Mr. Hutchinson who entered the employ of Appletons' when a boy, worked his way up by degrees until he became the head salesman of the establishment, and had charge of the imported books. After leaving that house, Longman & Co. made him their agent in this country, which position he filled to their entire satisfaction. Mr. Hutchinson was an active, trustworthy, and reliable man, and will be missed by all who have ever had business connections with him.

BUSINESS NOTES.

APPLETON, WIS.—John Koffend, book-dealer, has gone out of business.

AUBURN, IND.—C. P. Houser & Co., book-sellers, have suspended business.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.—Graves & Ross, booksellers, have dissolved their partnership. Graves continues the business.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Whitefield & Thompson, publishers, have dissolved partnership, CHARLOTTE, MICH.—P. M. Higby & Co., book dealers and stationers, have given up business.

NEW YORK CITY.—Alfred & Hough, stationers, have been bought out by Ph. Hake. Mr. Alfred has formed a connection with May, Hard & Co.

THE creditors of Frank Leslie met on September 29th to hear the report of the committee appointed to ascertain the condition of Mr. Leslie's affairs. Of debts amounting to $320,-000, the amount represented was $280,000. The committee's report showed that Mr. Leslie's books were in a bad condition, and that Mr. Leslie had overdrawn his account for the last three or four years, although the profits were large. The committee recommended that the creditors place their interests in the hands of five trustees, who should have full control in carrying on the business for three years, Mr. Leslie to receive 20 per cent of the profits, and the creditors to be paid quarterly dividends. The business would be restored to Mr. Leslie if the creditors were fully paid in less than three years. On no account was Mr. Leslie to be deprived of the full profits longer than three years from the time the resolution was signed by the credi-The recommendations of the committee were adopted, and the members of the committee were made the Board of Trustees. They are Governor Rice, J. H. Hall, E. Goodwin, Jr., W. B. Wilson, and W. H. Parsons.

YOKOHAMA, Japan.—The stationery business heretofore carried on under the firm Lee, Shing & Co. will be carried on in the future by Wing Hing and Ah Kock, under the name of Wing Lee Shing & Co.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information.

Luckily but few models pertaining to stationery were destroyed in the recent Patent Office fire. A number of presses were lost, but none of them printing, which latter, being kept in another part of the build-The ing, escaped injury. acting Commissioner of Patents, W. H. Doolittle, will give his attention to any letters of inquiry concern-ing any particular case. VICTOR E. MAUGER & PETRIE, 106, 108, and 110 Reade Street New York, have recently issued a pricelist of playing cards containing a number of new styles, among which we note the following: quadrantal steamboats, rounded corners, with French calico backs, at $27 per gross, list; quadrantal Highlanders, rounded corners, at $33; and quad-ruplicate Moguls, rounded corners, Chaumette pointers, double enamel, at $60. Stationers will do well to consult this list.

THE accompanying cuts illustrate more fully the patent recently obtained by Mabie, Todd & Bard, 180 Broadway, New York, for a new penholder, to which we merely referred at the time. The large cut represents the general appearance of the holder, while the other shows how the pen, with the points well protected, can be reversed and carried in the pocket, thereby making it a most con-venient and desirable article for those who are compelled to carry a pen in that way. Inside of the barrel is a four-slotted spring which is so arranged that it can be used to fit several sizes of pens of the smaller numbers. Mabie, Todd & Bard have only this one size at present, which sells at $4.50 per gross, but intend making several sizes smaller and larger as early as possible, which they will get up as cheap in proportion as the one they now have in the market.

MESSRS. PERRY & Co., Limited, announce that their New York branch will, after October 1st, be conducted under the management of

Mr. R. R. Harrison, in place of Mr. Swain, whose connection with the firm ceases at the same date. The company will in future make more of a specialty of their celebrated steel pens, which are so well known in England and throughout the Continent of Europe.

E. I. HORSMAN, New York, is adding a new department to his already large line of comic pictures and frames of various sizes and designs, which will be really worth seeing by the trade when in the city.

THE glass inkstand design shown in the out below is from E. W. Frost, 131 William Street, representing a pear in a cluster of leaves attached to a portion of the stem. The pear serves as a fountain for the ink, and a knot in the stem as a dipping-cup, the whole enclosed by a very pretty silver-plated pen-rack of like design. They are made in three styles, acid finish in flint and white, and painted to represent natural fruit, in mineral colors burnt in. They can be had with or without rack.

A SUBSTANCE called "Alpha fibre" is used to a large extent in the manufacture of paper in Europe, and it is urged that it can be successfully produced in America. The production of the Alpha fibre plant in the French colony of Algeria is enormous, the number of acres devoted to it being ten millions. It is supposed that the economic value of the crop raised can be made equal at least to three fourths the value of rags gathered in the civilized world. In 1874 60,000 tons of this fibre were exported, mostly to France and England, and no doubt this will be largely increased during the present year, as the season is reported to be very favorable for its cultivation. We do not know precisely what the conditions of its successful cultivation are, but it is argued that it cannot fail to be successfully grown in some sections of the Southern States.

R. G. HUTCHINSON, 44 Maiden Lane, manufacturer of the Acme Corkscrew, is likewise the manufacturer of the "Douglass" Reference File, which we omitted to add in a notice of that article in our issue of September 29. In the same number, by some disarrangement of "copy" and oversight in reading proof, we gave Mr. Hutchinson credit for having on hand a new line of inkstands, all of which applies to Nicholas Muller's Sons, to whose long list of new and varied styles this is the latest addition.

E. G. SELCHOW & Co., 41 John Street, New York, have just out a new card-counter or whist-marker, as shown in the accompanying cut.

It is mounted on ebony, handsomely nickelplated, and so arranged that the counter cannot be set back or moved forward without making a clicking sound which advises those playing the game of what his adversary counts. The nickel-plated sells at $3 per dozen, the brass at $2 per dozen.

ANDERSON & CAMERON, 115 Fulton Street, who are now the agents in this city for Thomas De La Rue & Co., of London, have just received samples of various styles of Playing, Christmas, and New-Year's cards, which include some of the finest we have yet seen. It will pay to call in to see their stock.

THE CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY.

THE copyright business of the library, notwithstanding the depressed condition of the book trade, shows more entries than last year, about 11,000 copyrights having been granted since the first of January, 1877. An increasingly large number of periodicals, musical compositions, photographs, engravings, and maps are protected by copyright. The library grows so capidly, through its various collections, aided by purchase, exchange with foreign governments the deposits of national and State documents, additions from the Smithsonian Institution, and the operation of the copyright law, that the necessity of a new building, constructed especially for its accommodation and future growth, has long been conceded. It is believed that Congress will, at the coming session, provide for the better protection and safety of this great and invaluable library, and save the 60,000 books which are now being piled upon the floors in all directions from further injury.— Washington dispatch.

ENTERPRISE IN PUBLISHING.

THERE can be no doubt but that the Paternoster Row firm made a very handsome profit on Macaulay's History, and that for years it will still be a fine property; but there can be even less doubt that but for the generous impulse of the publisher, and the determination to make the book "go," it never would have had half its success. The very fact of so large a sum having been paid "in one cheque" caused the orders for so picturesque a history to flow in. Everybody took their cue from the courageous publisher who could back his own opinion to that large extent, and so immediate and thorough was the success, Mudie's library alone taking 3000 copies, that the scathing and in many instances very just objections of the Quarterly and the Westminster, and the subsequent strictures of Miss Harriet Martineau, whose fine Roman hand may be recognized in whose fine koman nand may be recognized in other reviews, have had little effect on the popularity of the work.... There is no question but as a rare work of art "Vanity Fair," or the "Newcomes," the most perfect reproduction of modern human nature in the world, is of a dozen times the value of Lord Macaulay's historical romance, but neither would sell as well. But there is not a question in our minds but that if a far-seeing publisher had given a very large price for either romance, and had subsequently advertised it and the fact, that he would have made his money and Thackeray's reputation. Where a publisher has a really good writer in hand, he can do almost what he likes with him. The moral, according to Dr. Croxall and his Æsop, of all this is that these dull times can be limited, if not put an end to, by judicious publishers themselves. We are not busy now, and we shall be busy at Christmas, just because we shall then make a greater stir, advertise ten or twenty times as much as we do now, and the good and much-enduring public have been for years persuaded to buy books at Christmas. It would be well for all parties concerned if this rush of business could be quietly dispersed over the year.—Publishers' Circular, London.

THE SCRIBNER MAGAZINE PUBLICA-TIONS.

"PAINTING the Lily" is an old proverb whose place is likely to be taken in these latter days "praising the Scribner magazines," has been the praise bestowed upon them, and so well have they deserved it. The enterprise displayed in the management of the Monthly, the variety and excellence of its reading matter, and the exquisite beauty of its art work, has given it a place neck and neck with its older rivals in the general race for popularity, and at this commencement of its fifteenth volume it is already a household word. But it is St. Ni-cholas, which, as Christmas time approaches, calls forth special delight, for, previous to its appearance, nobody had any thought that so beautiful a magazine for the little people was within the possibilities. Mrs. Dodge has a peculiar and unparalleled gift at knowing what the young folks like, and the publishers have put every means of entertaining them within her reach. As a consequence, St. Nicholas is the children's dearest delight, and the St. Nicholas library, in its bright and handsome uniform, is happiness itself. The new volume, "Baby happiness itself. Land," edited by Mrs. Dodge from the best of its treasures, is sure to find its way to lots of Christmas stockings. We are glad to note that Scribner & Co. propose to give the trade the full benefit of all their work for the monthlies and the similar publications, and no live bookseller will fail to have a full assortment on his counters.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. WILLIAM LONGMAN, the publisher, left a personal estate of about $1,000,000 to his heirs.

MR. ABR. S. ISAACS, who, after a three years' course of theological study in Germany, has returned to New York and taken editorial charge of the Jewish Messenger, intends to publish shortly a work on Hebrew literature

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WE call attention to a specimen illustration on another page of "Californian Pictures in Prose and Verse," which we referred to in our last as about to be published by Hurd & Houghton. The illustrations are all after drawings or photographs from nature, the former being by artists who have found their whole inspiration in California, and who are helping to create there an original school of art. They have been carefully drawn on wood, as already remarked, by Thomas Moran, W. H. Gibson, and others, and engraved by Morse, Bogert, Harley, and other skilled engravers. Among the full-page illustrations are views of the Crown of the Sierra, Mount Shasta, Golden Gate, Mount Tamalpais, and Mount Diablo.

W. B. MUCKLOW will have ready in a few days "Beauties of Herbert," by B. Spencer, and "Coral and Christian," by Miss Lillie E. Barr. He also calls attention on another page to his other books, and especially to the fact that nearly all the works are gotten up in a popular style, and that they are supplied by the principal jobbers.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have very nearly ready "Sursum Corda," a book of brief pieces selected from a wide range of authors, and designed for the consolation and reinvigoration of those who have been cast down by disappointment or bereavement. The selections have been made with excellent judgment and taste by Mrs. Tileston, who edited "Quiet Hours." The new story in the "No Name Scries" "Will Denbigh, Nobleman," comes very soon, and as Will is one of Nature's noblemen, and his historian is supposed to be Mr. Hamerton, this bids fair to be one of the most popular stories in this popular series.

Miss Phelps' new novel, "The Story of Avis," is announced by J. R. Osgood & Co. for the 20th. It is a book of 457 pages, much longer than any of her previous stories, but put at the same price ($1.50). It is a great advance on her other stories in mature power, in humor, and in literary excellence, and a large sale can be very confidently predicted for it.

"Bessie's Six Lovers," by a noted author, promises to be a charming book. Poor Bessie, tired and worn out with a winter's campaign of captivating the hearts of the innocent and unsuspecting, and having become thoroughly satiated with all the frivolities attending the task, flies the fashionable haunts of New York City and seeks the peaceful abode of a Quaker uncle, where she hopes to enjoy for a season the most quiet seclusion. For the same purpose, six Philadelphia youths forsake their homes, and, as luck would have it, they must needs come to the precise locality where Bessie now resides. These are her six lovers. Bessie attempts to deceive them by passing herself off as the farmer's niece, and how she does it, and the various adventures she goes through, will be given to the public by T. B. Peterson & Bros. within a few days at least. Would it not be a pleasant variety in book-making for all our belles to give us the true story of their court-ships? What enterprising publisher will take this up?

Mr. Darwin dedicates his latest work, in press by the Appletons, to Prof. Asa Gray, of Cambridge.

LEE & SHEPARD have in preparation "Our Lucky Series," which is intended to do for the little ones what "Our Sparkling Series" is giving their older friends. Some of the volumes are "Just His Luck;" "Bound in Honor," by that ever-popular juvenile writer, J. T. Trowbridge; "His own Master," by the same author; and "The Silver Seekers," by Sam'l W. Cozzens; whose reputation as a capital story-teller is so good that further comment is unnecessary.

MACMILLAN & Co. are expecting by early steamer the new edition of Prof. Jevons' "Principles of Science," in 12mo, at a much lower price, which brings it within reach of many students who so far have coveted it in vain. It is one of the most valuable treatises on scientific method which modern thought has produced.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co. will issue this month a fourth edition of Foster's "Pre-Historic Races."

D. LOTHROP & Co. have nearly ready an armful of new books: "Anecdotes of Animals," with pictures by Harrison Weir, Wolf, and other artists; "At Eventide," a volume of sermons by Dr. Nehemiah Adams; "Flossy and Bossy Stories," a book full of pictures for small children, by Margaret H. Eckerson; "Mother's Boys and Girls," by Pansy, and bountifully illustrated; "The Ninety and Nine," the popular revival melody, fully and finely illustrated for a gift-book; "The Unerring Guide," by Rev. Dr. H. V. Dexter, classifying under proper headings the numerous passages of Scripture relating to duties; and a new edition of Starr King's charming book on "The White Hills," which is freshly brought to popular attention by the publication of his noble sermons.

JOSEPH COOK'S Monday Lectures on "Biology" have already reached the sixth edition, within two weeks after publication.

MISS HOWARD'S "One Year Abroad" threatens to repeat the popularity of her charming story "One Summer," having passed to a third edition within a week.

THE novel and brilliant Japanese dress of Mr. Scudder's two juvenile books, "The Bodley Family" and "The Bodleys Telling Stories," and the capital stories and pictures which they contain, have insured them a wide popularity, and orders are coming in upon the publishers, Hurd & Houghton, helter-skelter.

EXCEPTION is entered to our brief note on the Harding invoice at the trade sale, as generalizing the prices below the actual average. We are glad to state that many of these Bibles brought close on list prices, and that the bids were so satisfactory that the lines catalogued were largely duplicated.

WALLACE'S "Russia" is a good book, and now the Danes and the Swedes are finding it out, translations having been published in both languages.

ROBERTS BROTHERS are in imminent danger of becoming known as the American Tauchnitz. They will shortly issue "Mercy Philbrick's Choice" in paper covers, in a style very similar to that which everybody is familiar with in the Tauchnitz editions, only prettier in some respects.

BISHOP E. M. MARVIN, of the M. E. Church, is preparing a book about his late trip around the world, which will be published by Bryan, Brand & Co., St. Louis, about December 1st. It will contain 500 or more octavo pages, illustrated with a fine steel portrait of the bishop and a number of engravings.

Two volumes of Mr. J. R. Green's "History of the English People," extending his "Short History into a library work, are prominent for this fall. They take the history down to the Restoration. Vol. III. will contain the Revolution, 1660–1782; and Vol. IV., Modern England, 1782-1870.

MR. JAMES A. MOORE, of Philadelphia, has in press several new books, which will be issued in the latter part of this month: "Gold and Gilt," by the author of "Judge Not;" "Tender and True," by Miss McKeever; a new edition of the Journal and Letters of Henry Martyn; and "The Bible for the Young," by Pew Logram Cobbin and Matthew Henry Rev. Ingram Cobbin and Matthew Henry.

CASSELL, PETTER & GALPIN call attention to their latest publications, which are Robertson's finely illustrated "Great Painters of Christen-dom," Ashworth's "Recollections of Richard Cobden," a neat and very cheap edition of Goldsmith's poems and the "Vicar of Wakefield," and three excellent books on cookery and housekeeping.

MR. STEDMAN'S readers, says the Tribune, have for some time been of the opinion that a collection of his latter poems was in order, and they will be glad to learn that all his contributions to the magazines and other poems, since the collected edition of 1873, will be found in a volume soon to be published by Jas. R. Osgood & Co., under the title of "Hawthorne, and other Poems."

MR. T. WHITTAKER announces "Mediævalism, Papal and Ritual, Stated and Contrasted," by the Rev. Dr. John Henry Hobart; "What Marriages are Lawful?" by the Rev. W. F. Brand; and "The Principle of the Pledge," by Dr. W. R. Huntington, making an addition to the series of tracts of the Church Temperance Committee.

THE Caxton exhibition at South Kensington has closed, but the catalogue remains as a permanent memorial of the celebration and a valuable addition to lithography. Mr. Henry Stevens' history of the printed Bible is spoken of as "alone sufficient to make the catalogue famous." A permanent exhibition has been suggested.

MR. H. A. PAGE, author of the De Quincey, is to publish a small volume entitled "Thoreau, his Life and Aims: a Study." The object of Mr. Page's book is to exhibit Thoreau's love of nature in its relation to his anti-slavery agitation. It will contain many anecdotes of Thoreau's wonderful ways with animals, here first brought together, and will be published by Messrs. Chatto & Windus, London, during the present month.

MR. FRANK W. ROBINSON, of 1420 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, is about to publish a musical series in pocket form, entitled "Les Diamants de la Couronne" (Crown Dia-monds). This series will be embellished with silhouette and pictorial designs appropriate to the sentiment of the piece, and will be printed in clear excelsior or diamond type on exceedingly fine white paper; the size over all will be 5 x 8 inches. The retail price will be five cents each.

NEW BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

An Open Letter from Rev. Edward Eggleston.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY AND ST. NICHOLAS ON SALE.

"HALF the ruin of our time," says Rev. Dr. Eggleston, speaking of children's literature, "lies in bad reading. You cannot crowd it out with negative measures; you must put good interesting books in the place of bad interesting books." . . . "If there be any God's work in the world this is one." "If I could only introduce into the homes of poverty and ignorance the pictures, stories, poems, rhymes, and household tastes and interests that come in with St. Nicholas, I should be able to steal a march on the devil, and get in beforehand."

All lovers of children will welcome

THE NEW VOLUME OF ST. NICHOLAS.

Outwardly it is uniform with the earlier volumes; inwardly it is a grand improvement upon them. It contains a greater number of pages, and a larger number of illustrations, including many excellent reproductions from the Old Masters. All the serial stories are given entire, together with Prof. Procter's Star Papers, "The Stars of Each Month," and there are nearly three hundred shorter stories, poems, sketches, fairy tales, etc., etc., besides rhymes and jingles, puzzles, etc., etc.

It is indeed a treasury of wit and wisdom, mingled with humor and pathos. As Charles Dudley Warner says, "St. NICHOLAS is made level with the comprehension of children, and yet it is a continual educator of their honor and courage."

The price of the new volume is four dollars. The two earlier volumes are sold at three dollars each; the three earlier volumes in sets for ten dollars; the four volumes at fourteen dollars. Each volume is complete in itself. The half-yearly volumes (six numbers to each), sold at two dollars, are especially adapted to Circulating, School, and Sunday-school Libraries.

BABY DAYS.

We have just issued BABY DAYS, a large octavo, printed on heavy tinted paper and bound in bevelled boards with handsome gilt stamp and illuminated cover linings. The book has been made up from the pages of ST. NICHOLAS by the editor of that magazine, and every selection has been made with special regard to the very little ones. It is crowded with just such poems and stories by our best authors as mothers enjoy reading to children and children delight to hear, and there are three hundred illustrations. It is, we think, the best, the handsomest, and the cheapest book of its class in the market, and it is sold only through the trade.

As showing the spirit of the book, we quote from the introduction this charming poem, "Baby's Skies," by M. C. Bartlett:

"Would you know the baby's skies?

- "Would you know the baby's skies?
 Baby's skies are Mother's eyes.
 Mother's eyes and smile together
 Make the baby's pleasant weather.
- "Mother, keep your eyes from tears, Keep your heart from foolish fears, Keep your lips from dull complaining Lest the baby think 'tis raining."

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1878.

ST. NICHOLAS for 1878 will contain a new serial story, "Under the Lilacs," by Louisa M. Alcott—the illustrations are by Mary Hallock Foote; also Three Serials for Boys—to follow each other in rapid succession. The November issue will have a THANKSGIVING HYMN, by Mary Mapes Dodge, set to music; and a practical paper of great value, on Christmas Presents AND How to MAKE THEM. In the December number, of which we expect to print one hundred thousand copies, there will be contributions by Bryant, Longfellow, the author of "Alice in Wonderland," and other distinguished names. A series of papers, "Around the World in a Yacht, Boys!" by a brilliant writer now on the actual tour of the world in his own yacht, are promised. There will be a stirring sketch, hitherto unpublished, by the late THEODORE nitherto unpublished, by the late THEODORE WINTHROP, and a story by the author of "The Schönberg-Cotta Family;" French Nursery Jingles, by a daughter of Peter Parley; Slate Pictures for Little Artists to Copy; Natural History Sketches, by Professor Brooks, of Johns Hopkins University; and a series of papers on Parlor-Magic, being harmless and interesting experiments for young people, by Leo H. Grindon, Professor of Botany in the Royal School of Chemistry at Manchester. England. School of Chemistry at Manchester, England, etc., etc.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY FOR 1878.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY will remain as it has been, peculiarly American in its contributions, and will publish no second-rate or secondhand English novels. There will be three American serial stories: "Roxy," by Rev. ED-WARD EGGLESTON, author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," "The Circuit Rider," and other stories that have given him a national reputation; "HIS INHERITANCE," by MISS TRAFTON, already begun, which the accomplished critic of the New York Express calls "a masterly story of frontier life;" and on the conclusion of Miss Trafton's story, "A KNIGHT OF FORTUNE," by HJALMAR HJORTH BOYESEN, the well-known author of "Gunnar," "A Norseman's Pilgrimage," etc.

The illustrations of the magazine will present all that is new and all that is excellent in the art of wood-engraving. The series on American sports and American colleges, which have already attracted so much attention, will be continued. Besides these, we have on hand and in preparation nearly one hundred original illustrated articles.

The publishers recognize the fact that the No canvassers employed. We day of the old-fashioned magazine is over, that the trade to sell the magazines.

literary dandyism and dilettanteism are out of date, and that a magazine can only live by the earnest treatment of the great questions which interest society. So that besides serials and shorter stories, sketches of travel, and all the delightful variety of a popular magazine, there will be papers by some of the ablest American writers, giving the results of the studies of a life-time. Notable among these will be a series, the last work of Robert Dale Owen.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINES ON SALE.

To enable Dealers to meet the constantly increasing demand for SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY and ST. NICHOLAS without loss on account of unsold copies, the magazines will be sent on sale, beginning with the NOVEMBER NUMBERS. Unsold copies to be returned within three months from the date of issue, in good condition, leaves uncut, charges paid.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY, $4 a year. St. Nich-OLAS, $3. The usual discount to Dealers on annual subscriptions, and of current numbers. No canvassers employed. We rely solely on the trade to sell the magazines.

Imperial 8vo. Crimson and gold, gilt edges, $12.

"The author has studied her subjects with great care; she has consulted and compared authorities ancient and modern, with much industry; and her examination of the remains she describes was a labor of love and enthusiasm. . Nor does describes was a labor of love and enthusiasm. . . Nor doss she confine her attention to art and archæology. She gives many fresh and lively sketches of the often described life of the dahabeeah; of its great events, such as sand-storms and shooting the cataracts; of the scenery, and the social habits of the natives. As for the numerous illustrations that are so conspicuous a feature of the work, although they merely come in as subsidiary to the letter-press, they seem to us to leave nothing to desire. They show that the author is ab much at home with the pencil as the pen, while it is clear that she must have been at least as industrious in drawing as in writing."—Pall Mall Constitutions. ing."-Pall Mall Gazette.

THE GREAT NOVEL OF THE YEAR!

Will be published Saturday, October 20:

THE STORY OF AVIS,

ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS.

Author of "The Gates Ajar," etc. I vol., 16mo, 457 Pages, $1.50.

This is much the longest story MISS PHELPS has ever written, and in plot, power, humor, and literary excellence, it will doubtless be unanimously pronounced her best. It is a novel of New England life and character, and is richly endowed with those felicities of thought, that deep and broad sympathy, and the peculiar fascination for which MISS PHELPS' stories are remarkable.

A popular author and lecturer, writing to the New York Tribune, pronounces it "a work of genius; one of the deepest and subtlest romances of the time. It is a love-story, but not an every-day, prettily conceived and executed one. No hand but a woman's could have framed such a story, and only Miss Phelps, in America, has shown herself the possessor of just the alchemy which goes into a great protest, in the form of a novel like 'The Story of Avis.' Avis Dobell and Philip Ostrander are henceforth as real personages as have been created by the hand of a romance writer. . . . The indefinable magic of reality and imagination is held unquestioned by Elizabeth Phelps in this new and successful venture."

Bearing in mind the large popularity of MISS PHELPS' previous stories ("The Gates Ajar" having had a sale of nearly 70,000), and in view of many indications that "The Story of Avis" will command a very wide circulation, we respectfully suggest that, in order to secure copies of the first edition, you send your order immediately.

Orders will be filled according to the date of their receipt.

If the "United States Official Postal Guide," published by Messrs. H. O. LEATHERETTE.

LEATHERETTE is an article now well known to the trade, and, without falsifying or exaggeration, it is destined to be more extensively used for bookbinding than any other material. It certainly possesses—Beauty, as it is used extensively for silver cases, papeteries, passe-partouts, etc.; Flexibility, as it covers picture frames, boxes of all shapes, and embosses for wall paper; Durability, as it finds a market for the inner soles of shoes, desk and table tops, the bands of feather dusters, covering for whip handles, etc.; and it is certainly suitable for book-binding, as it is hard to distinguish it from leather, it imitates it so exactly, and it takes ink, lithographing, and gilding with fine effect.

Individuals or firms wishing a set of books covered with a binding both durable and waterproof, cannot do better than use LEATHERETTE, as for a few cents a yard more than book-cloth they can have grain of the seal, levant, or morocco, straight or pebbled, russia or skiver, and each grain in all desirable colors. Samples will be sent free on application to

THE BEAUTIES OF HERBERT. By I BOSTWICK HAWLEY, D.D.

A cluster of gems selected from the works of Rev. George Herbert, A.M., of the 16th century. This little casket of iewels consists of the choicest and most unique Poems that make up The Temple, which, in the opinion of competent judges, rivals the productions of the great John Milton; of the most apposite and instructive of Mr. Herbert's Proverbs, and of a quaint treatise on Sobriety, making in all a complete treasury of his best thoughts crystallized into precious jewels of exquisite beauty. The poems entitled The Altar, Love-Joy, Bitter-Sweet, Jesu, Heaven, and Love, are among the most tender in the English language-Dr. Hawley has done good service in preparing this volume, especially in prefacing the several parts with suitable Biographical and Historical Introductions, the first of which is a faithful and beautiful portraiture of Rev. Mr. Herbert.

a few chapters are: The Corrupting Library, The Dance-Hall, The Saloon of Bacchus, The Gambling-Hell, The Theatre, The House of Death, etc. Among the subdivisions of the book may be mentioned: "Coleridge, the Day-Dreamer," "The Climax of Scoundrelism," "Three Sister-Sirens," "The Pangs of Remorse," "Imploring Cries for Help and Vengeance," etc., etc.

"The Temple of Pleasure" is full of rich and racy anecdotes, and will fascinate the most careless reader. A sale of 50,000 copies is confidently anticipated.

ECCE REGNUM; or, An Inquiry into the Nature and a Revelation of the Glory of the Kingdom of God according to the Scriptures.

The author of this important and valuable book has decided to remain unknown to the public so far as his relation to this last work is concerned. "Ecce Regnum!" Behold the Kingdom! Look at it! It is pre-eminently a book for the times in "thoughts that breathe and words that burn." Those who have read Dr. Tyng's "He Will Come" cannot pass "Ecce Regnum" by. It deserves to be scattered like the leaves of the autumn.

This "half-hour" book can be put into any pocket and read in almost any place. For example, on the way home rom your city office, in street cars and on the railway or teamboats. And while it will go into any pocket, it takes erv little out of it.—Methodist, N. Y.

The attractions of each little book must be sought for within the covers: and the reader, who, on examining the Quaker-like outside, may possibly have been led to the conclusion that the contents must be something of the nature of a religious tract, is agreeably disappointed to find that, apparently, there is no range of subjects which these miniature volumes have not the hardhood to embrace. * * This dainty phalanx of liliputian volumes, as it adds one recruit after another to its slender file, will undoubtedly be the means of rescuing many a delightful bit of writing from the oblivion into which short essays and articles are too likely to fall.— N. NOTES IN SEASON.

"PEMAQUID," Mrs. Prentiss' new story of early New England life, will be ready at A. D. F. Randolph & Co.'s within the fortnight. It has already pleasantly recommended itself as a serial, and Mrs. Prentiss' name to any book always bespeaks hosts of readers.

"HARRY HOLBROOKE of Holbrooke Hall," the second volume in Lockwood, Brooks & Co.'s "Wayside Series," will be published very shortly. In it Sir Randal Roberts gives a vivid series of pictures of English country life and sports, and it can hardly fail to please a large circle of American readers.

Two capital juveniles, the "Wonder World" of stories from all lands, a book that will serve children as a door into literature as well as for an amusement, and another of Mr. Geo. C. Eggleston's bright books for bright boys, "The Signal Boys," are next on the list at Putnam's.
An illustrated holiday edition of "Other People's Children," under the title of "Budge & Toddie," will follow, in response to a demand from the Western trade.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have just ready another volume of the "Star Series," "'Lil,' Fair, Fair, with Golden Hair," a novel by the Hon. Mrs. Featherstonhaugh. The London Athenaum speaks very highly of this work. A new edition of "Frazer's Tables" for the determinant mination of Minerals, based on the tables of Weisbach, has just been published, as also a new edition of John Darby's "Odd Hours of a Physician" and "Hours with John Darby," which are now issued in one volume at $2.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will sublish shortly a new edition of the late J. S. C. Abbott's popular one volume of histories of Russia, Austria, and Italy. For that of Austria he had prepared, shortly before his death, a new chapter, bringing the history down to date, which will now be included. They have also in press the new story by Mrs. Charles, author of "The Schoenberg-Cotta Family," "Lapsed but not Lost." The volume of selections from her writings, recently published by this house, should not be forgotten by her admirers.

GEORGE MACLEAN & Co., of Philadelphia, have just issued very cheap editions of two copy-righted works, Naphey's "Physical Life of Women," and "Out of the Hurly-Burly," by Max Adler. The former has had a phenomenal success. It was one of the first reputable books, on the delicate subject of which it treats, issued in this country. Two hundred thousand copies have been sold in English and a large number in German. It has sold largely abroad, and is still one of the best-selling works in the market. Max Adler's "Hurly-Burly," strange to say, has met with a greater success abroad than at home, 35,000 being sold abroad and only 15,000 in this country. Four houses have published it in England, and a German edition has lately been published in Leipsic. The English press praised it highly, and the Emperor of Austria sent the author a gold medal. The "Physical Life of Woman," in cloth, is now $1; paper, 50 cents; "Hurly-Burly," cloth, $1.25; paper, 75 cents.

J. R. Osgood & Co.'s books for this week are Miss Phelps' novel, "The Story of Avis," which is sure to be one of the most read and most talked of books of the season; Mr. Stedman's new volume, "Hawthorne and other Poems," taking its title from the noble poem read at Harvard last summer, and including all the short pieces written by Mr. Stedman during the last four years, making a book of great po-etic value and attractiveness; "Le Parnasse Français" (which will surely be immediately translated by the trade into its English equivalent, "The French Parnassus"), a collection of French poetry from 1550 to the present time, selected by James Parton, who has done his work con amore, has left out all passages so Frenchy that they could not be read in the family or in schools, and, besides writing an interesting preface, has given in the index a deal of information respecting the authors. This work will be issued in two styles, one uniform with Osgood's Household editions of the poets, the other an octavo for holiday use. The "Vest-Pocket" books for this week are "Favorite Poems" of Collins, Dryden, and Marvell, in one volume, of Mrs. Hemans, and "Songs" from Shakespeare's Plays. These three complete the hundred volumes of this unique little library, which holds a world of good reading.

THE PROPOSED POST-OFFICE REGISTRATION.

WE print elsewhere the text of the proposed bill, prepared by Mr. Bissell, for the registration of newspapers taking advantage of the pound rates on second-class matter. This opens a vexed question, which, as we have before said, it is most desirable to have settled in some permanent way. And Congressional legislation is of course the one permanent way, beyond the influence of changes in the administration of the department or of individual caprice. The publishers of a large class of journals, of public importance, were much harassed during the past summer, as our readers have reason to know, by some very curious decisions from Mr. Marr and others excluding them from the benefit of newspaper rates-a difficulty which was not removed till copies of and affidavits from the journals in question were brought personally before Postmaster-General Key, who promptly decided, with sound common-sense, that the publications in question were newspa-The American Grocer, on which the attack seemed to be concentrated, was one of the iournals submitted.

But while the new act is intended to cover this important question, we are by no means certain that it covers it in the right way. In the first place, the bill leaves it indefinite whether the printing of the words "registered for transmission through the mails at the privileged rate," after the English fashion, on the issue and on the wrappers is obligatory or not; it is, at best, a long and awkward phrase for a title-page, and to those papers which write and do not print their wrappers, the printing would be a considerable additional expense. But the real pith of the thing is in the fourth condition of section sixth.

What are "public news and articles relating thereto, or to other current topics or events, either general or special"? These phrases must again be construed, like our old friend the phrase "primarily for advertising purposes," and the bill is as indefinite as the one it is meant to remedy. If Mr. Marr and Mr. Bissell are to be the judges, as the bill perhaps is meant to contemplate, their previously expressed opinions make it probable that the legitimate trade journals will again be thrown out, despite the Postmaster-General decision, which would be practically annulled. In that case, higher rates will be charged upon this class of newspapers than under previous highpostage bills, and the journals must suffer accordingly.

It is, however, very much to the advantage of legitimate journals, whether trade journals or otherwise, that the gratuitous advertising sheets, issued for the sole benefit of their publishers, should not have the postal advantages offered to newspapers. Unfortunately, the bill may be evaded by them and actually turned in their interest against regular publications. is easy to put on the cloak of public purpose, and Baldwin's Monthly, for instance, "consists mainly" of general literary articles such as the magazines print. On the other hand, perhaps as a general rule, the trade journals could not survive unless they had more pages of advertising than of reading matter. The fact of it is, that the only way to decide practically whether a publication is a newspaper for public purposes is to ascertain whether the public adopt it by paying for it. The whole thing should turn upon the payment of subscriptions. The old law covers this point, but it does not seem to work to the satisfaction of the department. A publisher is often very ready to take the oath, but in practice he is very apt, simply through carelessness, to let his employes violate it. Facts don't always come to his notice. A practical way to meet the difficulty might be to require the publisher, at the end of each quarter, to take oath that he had made personal investigation of the mailing of his publication, and that in his information and belief copies had been mailed at pound rates only to paying subscribers and others within the law; and to suspend the pound rates until this assurance has been given. He would be less careless in swearing to facts than in swearing to promises.

We do not understand that the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is really concerned in this matter, bechase it was at the first attack decided that, as a literary journal, it was entitled to the privilege of pound rates. But all journals and all business men are interested in seeing common-sense justice done in so important a matter, and it is altogether too dangerous to permit the government to prescribe just what shall constitute a "newspaper" and just how newspaper publish. ers are to conduct a business which they must understand much better than the government.

Our friends of the Nation, in noticing the Trade-List Annual in last week's issue, did so, we fear, from a too hasty glance. Instead of fewer, the Annual for 1877 contains thirty-seven more lists than that for 1876, the fact that the index of 1876 contained, as there stated, the names of publishing firms who had contributed to previous Annuals having probably misled the writer. Wilson, Hinkle & Co.'s list is not among the omissions, the firm which succeeded to their list some months since appearing in their proper place as Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co. The most notable omission, that of J. B. Lippincott & Co., was overlooked. —In its succeeding issue, for this week, the Nation notes that it "accidentally ignored the fact" of the change of firm, but it fails to note its more injurious mistake of stating that the number of lists is less instead of greater than last year-a fact which should not have been accidentally ignored, and which we learn had been called to its attention. This is a serious error in criticism, involving the loss or growth in importance of the publication. We fear that this is what, should the Evening Post do it, the Nation would call "journalism."

AMERICAN BOOKMAKING.

An English book-dealer says no American publishing house ever got out a book equal to the general style of printing in vogue in Eng-He does not refer to binding or outside show, but to the print, the taste, the ink, and the quality of the paper. In some particular the American book is sure to fail, be it only in the proportions of margins.—New York Sun, Oct. 16.

To the Editor of the Sun—Sir: Observing a paragraph in to-day's issue of the Sun containing a statement as to the inferiority of American publications compared with English, in the matter of paper and print, we take the liberty of sending you a few pages of "Rice's Calculus," with the request that you donate the work to the "English Book Dealer" who made the wholesale and, as we believe, erroneous statement above referred to. National pride forbids us to permit his assertion to go unchallenged, and we have no doubt other publishers can further refute it. You will excuse our sending a fragmentary book, but the balance, some 200 pages, is still in press.

A PUBLISHER WORTHY OF HONOR.

Some interesting reminiscences of Mr. William Longman are given in the last issue of the London Bookseller. Mr. Longman was the virtual founder of the London Publishers' Circular, and in this also a handsome tribute is paid to him, we presume from the pen of Mr. Sampson Low. The Bookseller says:

"In 1837, while engaged in the publishing department, he became dissatisfied with the manner in which the then only trade journal, Bent's Literary Advertiser, brought new books before the notice of the booksellers, and he suggested some improvements; but these suggestions were ignored by the proprietor of that journal. Finding that there was no chance of improvement, Mr. Longman consulted some other members of the trade, and a committee of fourteen publishers, of whom only three survive] was formed for the purpose of starting a new publication which should more fittingly represent the wants and requirements of the trade.

"The conception of the work and the plan of it were Mr. Longman's. He selected Mr. Sampson Low, then carrying on a retail business in Lamb's Conduit Street, for the post of editor, and although retaining the nominal proprietorship in his own hands, derived no pecuniary benefit from the publication. The first number of the Publishers' Circular made its appearance on the 2d of October, 1837, and presented a great improvement upon Bent's list. In order to give the work a successful start, three thousand copies were printed for gratuitous circulation, and all the influence of the house of Longman was brought to bear upon its numerous connections. The Circular became an established success, and has been carried on ever since under the able management of Mr. Sampson Low, who we hope will continue the work for many years."

"Bibliography appears to have been a subject of special attraction to Mr. Longman, and it is a cause of some regret that he abandoned this for subjects of a more profitable character. He compiled a very useful volume, published anonymously, 'A Catalogue of Works in all Departments of English Literature, classified with a General Alphabetical Index, The full titles, sizes, prices, and dates of the last edi-tions given.' A second edition of this, corrected to the end of 1847, appeared in 1848. About this time he took great interest in the subject of trade regulations, for the purpose of repressing underselling, and took the chair at a meeting of the trade held at Exeter Hall. When the question was afterwards, in 1852, most improperly referred to Lord Campbell, Mr. Grote, and Mr. Macaulay, he formed one of the deputation. The decision was adverse to a protective system, and Mr. Longman was one of the first to withdraw from the Booksellers' Association, which immediately afterwards was dis-solved. At a more recent period he stated that, although his own private opinions had undergone no change, he was not disposed to move in the matter of trade protection.

"Apparently, soon after this he turned his attention to studies of another kind. The 'Travellers' Library' occupied much of his time, and he also became a traveller. A privately published 'Six Weeks' Tour in Switzerland appeared from his pen in 1857, and he took part in the proceedings of the Alpine Club, of which for a time he was president. In 1859, having taken up his residence at Chorleywood, Hertfordshire, he endeavored to enlighten the laborers of his neighborhood by giving them lectures upon the early history of England. These lectures he afterward published in shilling parts, 'for distribution among the laborers belonging to the Chorleywood Association.' The laborers were ungrateful—they preferred beer to printed lectures, and the distribution was almost entirely gratuitous. Mr. Longman, however, pursued his historical researches, completing the volume in 1862. In 1869 he published the 'Life and Times of Edward III.,' the standard history of that monarch and the stirring times in which he lived. His historical works were well received, and when his name was proposed and balloted for at the Society of Antiquaries, he had the rare honor of being elected without receiving a single black-ball.

THEORIES AND PRACTICE OF COPYRIGHT.

M. DANIEL DE FOLLEVILLE, Professor of Civil Law, has reprinted from La France Judiciaire an essay "De la Propriété Littéraire et Artisin the thirty-three pages of which he lucidly examines the three views of literary property now prevalent. According to the first, the author has an inherent and perpetual right to the product of his pen. The second theory is the direct opposite of this: literary work cannot by its nature be the exclusive property of its author; therefore society has an unrestricted right to the reproduction of all literature. M. de Folleville. himself takes the third view: he considers that the author and society have equal rights; the writer's title to his MS. is incontestable, but publication is an alienation for the benefit of society and should therefore be recompensed by society. By publication the author's absolute title is transformed into a claim for indemnity—a claim which most nations satisfy by assuring to the author the exclusive right to the reproduction of his own works for a certain number of years. In the examination of this theory and of the articles of the code which govern its applica-tion in France, M. de Folleville cites some curious rulings. It has been held, for instance, that the repetition of an air by a handorgan is an infringement of the composer's copyright—a principle reversed by a special

In the vexed question of copyright in articles originally published in periodicals, it seems that in France the title remains in the author, except in so far as he may have parted with it for a single publication in a single periodical. The editor has no right to farm out correspondence. In Spain any newspaper article can be reproduced if credit be given. The final pages of Professor de Folleville's pamphlet are taken up with comparative legislation on copyright. The United States follow England, but are a little less liberal; here copyright ceases absolutely in forty-two years. Italy it runs eight years. In Spain and in Russia it lasts for life, with remainder to the author's heirs for fifty years. M. de Folleville remarks that no nation has adopted the theory of perpetuity of copyright. He ignores America generally, and is therefore ignorant that by our rulings a play can practically be perpetually protected. Copyright only affects published works; performance of a play is not publica-tion; as long, therefore, as the dramatist keeps his play in MS. the common law will protect his manuscript as carefully as his hat or his handkerchief; his title is, to all intents and purposes, perpetual.—The Nation, Oct. 11th.

[The fact that Great Britain, by special act of Parliament, granted perpetuity of copyright on Clarendon's "History of the Rebellion" seems also to have been overlooked.—ED. P. W.]

TEXT OF THE REGISTRATION BILL.

A Bill for an Act for the registration of second class matter and the sale of postage stamps thereon.

Be it enacted, etc.:-

SECTION I. There shall be two rates for mailable matter of the second class—to wit, a "privileged" rate and an "ordinary" rate. Publications registered as herein provided shall be entitled to pass through the mails at the privileged rate; all others shall be subject to the "ordinary" rate.

SEC. 2. From and after the passage of this act, publishers of mail matter of the second class who may desire to secure to their publication the benefit of the privileged rate of postage shall submit the same to the department under such regulations as the Postmaster-General may prescribe, who shall cause the same to be examined, and, if determined to be entitled to the benefit of the privileged rates, shall cause a license or certificate of registration to be issued to the postmaster at the place where such publication shall be published, who shall notify the publisher of the same to that effect.

SEC. 3. Such license or certificate of registration shall entitle the publisher of such publication to have printed upon each issue thereof, and upon the wrapper of each package thereof, the words "Registered for transmission through the mails at the priviledged rate," or words of like import which may be prescribed by the Postmaster General, and the payment of an annual fee of $1 to the postmaster at the office of mailing shall further entitle the publisher of such publications so registered to have the same transmitted through the mails at the following rate of postage, to wit: When published as often as once a week, two cents per pound or fraction thereof; when published less often than once a week and as often as four times a year, three cents per pound or fraction thereof.

SEC. 4. The certificate of registration, granted as in the preceding section, shall be revoked only by the Postmaster-General or by his order, and then only in case the publication to which it shall have been granted shall have so changed its character as to make it subject to the ordinary rate, or in case the publisher thereof shall be guilty of a palpable evasion of the postal laws relative to the classification of mail matter.

Sec. 5. Any person who shall print upon any number of his publication or the wrapper thereof the words designated in section three (3), or other words of like import which may be prescribed by the Postmaster-General under the authority conferred in that section, to whom has not been granted a certificate of registration, or who shall submit false evidence to the department as to the character of his publication, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and for every such offence shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100.

SEC. 6. The conditions upon which a publication shall be admitted to the privilege of registration are as follows:

First. It must be regularly issued.

Second. It must be issued from a known office of publication.

Third. It must be for a public purpose.

Fourth. It must consist mainly of public news, or of articles relating thereto, or to other current topics or events, either general or special, provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to permit books, either bound or unbound, or publications which, although issued in regular series or successive numbers, are but reprints of books, to be entitled to the benefits of the "privileged" rate.

SEC. 6. On all mail matter of the second class not registered as provided in the preceding sections postage shall be paid at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, which rate shall be called the ordinary rate

SEC. 7. The Postmaster-General shall prescribe such regulations not inconsistent with the provisions of this act as shall be necessary to carry the same into effect.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE November number of The Literary World will be extended to twenty-four pages, and will contain, besides notices of all important new publications and the usual variety of news and gossip, counter articles upon Joseph Cook's Lectures on Biology, one by Rev. Minot J. Savage, of Boston, and the other by a scholar whose name will be at once recognized,—the two eminently representing the opposing schools of thought upon that subject.

THE November Galaxy contains a paper on "The Federal Language," being a chapter on Americanisms, by Richard Grant White.

THE fourteenth of the "Poet's Home Series," in the November number of Wide Awake, will have for its subject E. C. Stedman, and for its author R. H. Stoddard. There will be a portrait of Mr. Stedman.

MR. Longfellow will contribute to the December Harper's Magazine a poem called "Keramos," which, with illustrations by Abbey and Fredericks, will extend to fourteen pages.

Harper's Monthly for 1878 will have no less than three serials, by Mrs. Thackeray Richie, Mrs. Mulock Craik, and Thomas Hardy.

D. APPLETON & Co. are putting new energy into the pushing of their periodicals through the trade, and have issued circulars offering liberal rates on orders or subscriptions received through dealers, whether to be delivered to them or to subscribers direct. These include Appletons' Journal, with the fine steel plate of "Dickens in his Study;" the Popular Science Monthly and its capital Supplement; and the New York Medical Journal, which can be had in clubs, at trade discount, in any of the combinations. It is intended to offer to the trade so liberal a margin that it will be an inducement to them to take hold vigorously.

THE publishers of the Atlantic promise remarkable attractions for the new volume. Henry James, Jr., will present the counterpart of "The American," in a novel in four parts, "The Europeans," in which national contrasts of character are studied in America. Another serial, "Berthold: a Romance," to run through five numbers, is the first important work of a new writer, Wm. H. Bishop, and there is a promise of a considerable story from Mr. Howells himself. A new feature will be studies from French, German, and English books not usually accessible by leading writers. There has just been added to the admirable Atlantic portraits of Mr. Bryant and Mr. Longfellow a third, of Mr. Whittier, also from the pencil of J. E. Baker, the artist of the previous portraits. The publication is peculiary fitting, in view of the approach of Mr. Whittier's seventieth birthday, and both as a portrait and a work of art the picture is extremely satisfactory.

THE Library Journal for October will be devoted chiefly to college libraries and their development. There will be leading articles on College Library Economy, by Frederick Vinton, of Princeton College, with views and plan of the Princeton Circular Library Building; on College Libraries as Semi-public Libraries, by Prof. Robinson, of Rochester University; on Learning to Read in College, by R. R. Bowker, and, it is hoped, one by Justin Winsor, President of the Library Association, and now of Harvard University, outlining his plans for bibliographical work in connection with college study. Some account will be given of what has been accomplished in Class-room Bibliography, by Prof. Moses Coit Tyler, at Michigan University, and by others; the librarians of twenty leading colleges contribute Statistics of Student Reading and suggestions; and there will be other features of college interest. Library Journal contains in every number many features of interest to the trade. The yearly subscription is $5, less trade discount, and single copies will be sent through the trade with like allowance.

WE cannot help again commending the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, New York, as the best periodical of its kind in America, It is very ably conducted.—Boston Traveller.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE LIFE OF J. M. W. TURNER, R.A., by Walter Thornbury. (Holt.) The publication of a life of Turner is very welcome and seasonable. A new interest has sprung up regarding him and his works of late years, and the world is glad to receive other testimony than that of Mr. Ruskin relative to his claims as a great artist. Mr. Thornbury quotes largely from Ruskin, but also differs from him materially in the estimate he places upon the majority of Turner's paintings, especially those sent out during the last years of his life. Mr. Thornbury does not spare Turner's character either, telling the whole truth about him as a man in his dealings with his engravers and others. He does not present a very heroic figure, although no doubt a truthful one. There are few periods of English art invested with the intense interest that clings to the age in which Turner painted. Born in 1775 and living till 1851, his lifetime included the rise and culmination, probably, of English landscape painting. As the greatest landscape painter of any time, an account of his methods, his merits, his faults, and his failings cannot but appeal to every one having any artistic tastes. This is a second edition of a work published over fifteen years ago. It is considerably enlarged by the addition of sixteen previously unpublished letters of Turner and numerous anecdotes respecting the great artist, furnished by his friends and fellowacademicians; and the appendix has had added to it a record of fourteen years' sale of his pic-The work is embellished by a number of illustrations, fac-similed in colors, from Turner's original drawings. of the "Amateur Series." The fourth volume 12mo, cloth, $2.75.

SURLY TIM, AND OTHER STORIES, by Frances Hodgson Burnett. (Scribner A. & Co.) In a note appended to this little volume, Mrs. Burnett announces that this and "That Lass o'Lowrie's" are the only works issued under her name which have been prepared and corrected for publication in book form under her personal supervision. This volume comprises, besides "Surly Tim," "Le Monsieur de la Petite Dame," "Smethurstses," "One Day at Arle," "Esmeralda," Mère Giraud's Little Daughter,"
"Lodusky," all well known to readers of Scribner's, and "Seth," published in Lippincott's. Two of them are in the Lancashire dialect the author loves so well to reproduce, while the others are equally well told in "North Callina" patois, London cockney, and French phraseology, showing her at home on any ground or in any scene she may choose to represent. stories are all very dramatic, full of strong contrasts and vivid color and a strange tenderness that almost moves to tears. "Surly Tim" is one of the most touching and powerful short stories we have ever read. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE BIOGRAPHY OF CLEEN AND AND ADDRESS OF THE PROPERTY OF T THE BIOGRAPHY OF ALFRED DE MUSSET, lator's words best describe this memoir of Alfred de Musset by his devoted brother Paul: "In many respects a model of what a biography ought not to be. It is an ardent and tearful defence, a eulogy, a threnody, a picturesque and highly idealized sketch: it is anything, in short, but a sober and truthful piece of portraiture. . . . But the eager plea of M. Paul de

We divine all that he avoids saying, at the same time that we like him the better for his chivalrous care of his brother's reputation. Alfred de Musset, in his dissipations and recklessness, was not unlike our own wayward poet Poe, who has often been compared to him. His brilliant genius and his wrecked life are alike matters of history, his own pen having laid bare his heart's weaknesses and follies. To those who can read between the lines this charming volume offers both entertainment and instruction. Miss Preston's reputation as a translator will be enhanced by the delicate manner in which she has rendered this simple and graphic narrative. 12mo, cloth, $2.

ELEMENTARY PERSPECTIVE, by M. J. Keller. Clarke & Co.) This handbook is intended to fill a very important place, notwithstanding the many works on this subject already before the public—that is, the "middle ground" between those which are too voluminous and those which are not sufficiently explicit. It has been in use in the School of Design, Cincinnati University, for two or three seasons in manuscript form, during which time its usefulness has been fully tested, and it has received such changes and additions as the author found, from practical tests, to be of the greatest value. It is now offered to teachers and students, with the hope that it will prove a practical aid in the study of the art of drawing. It is condensed and very simple in style. 12mo, cloth, $1.

THE WINGS OF COURAGE, Stories for American Boys and Girls, adapted from the French by Marie E. Field. (Putnam.) "The Wings of Courage," "The Deserted Castle," and "Queen Coax" are the stories contained in this little book. They can scarcely be called fairy tales, and yet are such a charming mixture of fact and fancy as to be quite out of the ordinary run of stories. "The Wings of Courage" is the story of a little French boy, Clopinet, who, being born with the idea of becoming a sailor, does not take kindly to the work his father sets him. His father, becoming impatient and thinking him utterly useless, sells him to a tailor, a horrible, ill-tempered old hunchback. The tailor carries him off on his back, but when night comes Clopinet eludes him and takes refuge amid the cliffs of Honfleur. There he finds a deserted hut, in which he lives. He makes acquaintance with the birds and follows them to the highest peaks, watching their habits and hunting for their nests. In this way he collects a number of beautiful heron's plumes, which he sells for a large sum of money, going back home with a fortune. This is not the end of the story, as he afterwards becomes a great naturalist and a famous and rich man. A pretty moral is evolved out of all the stories, which are adorned with the embroidery of a most deli-cate and poetical imagination. The style is exceedingly simple and attractive. Illustrations by Lucy G. Morse. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

SIX SINNERS, by Campbell Wheaton. (Putnam.) "Six Sinners" are six little girls, whose exploits at school in Bantam Valley form the chief part of the book. Dora Maynard, the "chiefest" of these sinners, is a wild, imaginative little girl who has been brought up in the country, under the care of her grandpapa and grandmamma and in the company of her cousin Jack. She is sent to boarding-school by her Musset deceives as little as eager pleas usually | father, in the hope of taming her. Her troubles and adventures here are very entertaining. The school-children and the teacher are very graphically described, while Dora is finally the heroine of a very dramatic episode which winds up her school-days. A lovely little book for girls. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

ALL FOR HIM. (Carleton.) Like "All For Her," by the same author, this is a history of a crime, written with the minute fidelity and graphic realism of a newspaper report of an actual trial. It shows power of a no mean order, cultivation, and a keen knowledge of New York City life. The subject is by no means an elevating one, being the murder of a young girl by her lover, a fashionable society man. Her remains are dissected, placed in two trunks, and sent to different quarters of the State. The finding of these trunks is the opening scene of the story. From this to the dénoûment, the case is worked up with all the skill of a trained lawyer and the brilliancy of a veteran journalist. 12mo, paper, $1.50.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES. ?

W. J. WIDDLETON's unique paper edition of Poe's Prose Tales is having a steady sale. His other editions of the same author's works, which are as neatly gotten up as they are reasonable in price, will, since the late publication of several defences of the poet, be more sought after than ever.

DERBY BROTHERS, of New York, have in press "How we raised Our Baby," with an introduction by John Habberton, who certainly knows all about the subject. The work, while indulging in ready humor, will give solid advice as to the problem of raising children.

JOHN R. ANDERSON. of Hartford, Ct., having purchased the plates of the admirable collection of juveniles entitled "Dickens' Little Folks," will publish them at short intervals in two editions, one in 6 and one in 12 volumes. We call attention to his offer to dealers in our advertising colums.

The great book from Roberts Brothers this season, and one of the best of the many recent notable biographies, will be the "Memoir and Letters of Charles Sumner," which is to be published early in November. It tells the story of his boyhood, school and student life, travel in Europe, work as a lawyer, large social acquaintance, and his first conspicuous public appearance as the Fourth-of-July orator in Boston for 1845. The story is told by Mr. Edward L. Pierce, one of Senator Sumner's literary executors, and is told with excellent judgment and taste. Many of Mr. Sumner's letters are included, and the allusions to more or less famous people are accompanied by footnotes that give just the concise and sufficient biographical or historical information readers desire. The two volumes contain two portraits, one an admirable engraving from a daguerreotype taken when Mr. Sumner was between 45 and 50, the other copied from a portrait taken when he was a young man. This last is in Mr. Longfellow's possession, and is greatly valued by him.

THE REV. JOSEPH COOK'S Monday Lectures are published in London in serial parts, each containing several lectures. Five parts, with thirty-one addresses, are already out.

ROBBRTS BROTHERS have in press for early publication "Tom: a Home Story," by Rev. George L. Chaney, whose "Fred Grant & Co." pleased and made more manly a host of boy readers.

REV. Dr. F. H. HEDGE has in the press of Roberts Brothers a new book entitled "Ways of the Spirit, and other Essays." This is emphatically good news, for Dr. Hedge never publishes any thing poor or commonplace or less than admirable in thought, learning, breadth of view, and noble charm of style.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co. are preparing for a Christmas feast "Slices of Mother Goose," with fine literary dressing by Miss Alice Parkman, and artistic "fixins" by "Champ." Just what form they will be served in is not decided, but something taking.

ORDERS for "The Story of Avis" poured into Osgood's in advance of publication so fast as to indicate that it will have a very large sale.

In the Putnams' forthcoming holiday book, Mr. Bryant's poem of "The Flood of Years," with designs by W. J. Linton, the trade may expect a volume of unique and very elegant style.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will shortly publish, for the Society of Ethical Culture, a volume of scholarly essays, on various topics, by Dr. Felix Adler. "Creed and Deed" is the title and gives a cue to the book.

Mr. McCoan, author of the book on Egypt published by Henry Holt & Co., and recently the editor of the Levant Herald, was kindly relieved from journalistic duty by the Turkish Government, in the nick of time for the preparation of his book. His paper had something of a Western European character as well as circulation, and upon the breaking out of the present war a staff of correspondents was organized to give trustworthy reports of the conflict. In publishing such items it violated the rules of the Turkish War Department, which provided that only news issued through it shall be made public, and for this offence publication of the paper was prohibited for six months.—Tribune.

THE "Home Cook Book" is evidently not for a day but for all time—and all kitchens. Mr. Waggoner reports it in its 22d thousand, in which edition have been added articles on the important subjects of "marketing" and "servants," swelling the book to 400 pages.

THE Cambridge (England) University Press will publish immediately the Gospel of St. Mark, with critical and explanatory notes, and an Introduction by Dr. Maclear, Head Master of King's College School, London. This is the first instalment of the Cambridge edition of the "Bible for Schools" to be brought out under the general editorship of Prof. Perowne, with the assistance of an able staff of editors.

HENRY A. YOUNG, of Boston, will publish some time this month "The Wooden Spoon," by Park Ludlow, which will make the third volume of the "Red Shanty Series."

The sale of Bishop Gibbon's (now Archbishop of Baltimore) work, "The Faith of Our Fathers," is upwards of 22,500 copies, the largest sale that any Catholic work has ever reached in this country, and the prospects are that it will in reasonable time reach 100,000.

Five hundred copies of Rev. Phillips Brooks' "Yale Lectures on Preaching" have been sold in Boston.

Among Macmillan & Co.'s interesting promises for this fall are "Lectures on Mediæval Church History," by Archbishop Trench; vol. iv. and v. of Prof. Masson's "Life of Milton;" vol. iv. of the translation of Lanfrey's "History of Napoleon the First;" "Lectures by a Certain Professor;" a new volume of Sermons, by the Rev. Alexander Maclaren; "Sermons on some Aspects of the Christian Ideal," by Prof. Lewis Campbell; "A Commentary on St. Paul's Epistles to the Thessalonians," by the Rev. Dr. Eadie; Emile de Laveleye's "Forms of Property," translated by G. R. Marriott; Mr. Gladstone's "Primer of Homer," and a "Primer of Greek Literature," by Prof. Jebb, in the series of Literature Primers edited by Mr. Green; a Primer of Pianoforte Playing, by Franklin Taylor, edited by Mr. George Grove; "History of European Colonies," by E. J. Payne, in the Historical Course for Schools, edited by Mr. Freeman; and, for the children, "The Cuckoo Clock," by the author of "Carrots," illustrated by Walter Crane; and "The Magic Valley," by Miss E. Keary, with illustrations by E. V. B.

THE volume of poems by Rev. John W. Chadwick, of Brooklyn, has passed through five editions.

- D. M. BENNETT, editor of The Truth Seekers, has published in book form, under the title "Christianity and Infidelity." the discussion carried on between him and the Rev. G. H. Humphrey, from April to September, in the columns of his paper, which at the time excited not a little interest among the constituents of the contestants.
- G. P. Putnam's Sons have just issued the twenty-first edition of "The World's Progress, A Dictionary of Dates," edited by George P. Putnam. This edition has been revised and continued by F. B. Perkins, the synchronistic tables and the alphabetical arrangement of historical and statistical facts having been brought down to July, 1877, and the short chapter of "Statistics from the United States Treasury Department" having been enlarged by the addition of similar statistics from authoritative sources.

MISS E. M. COE, principal of the "American Kindergarten," in New York, has in preparation a number of little books illustrating her methods of teaching.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. have just issued a new and revised edition, at reduced price and uniform with the author's other works, of Marsh's "The Earth as modified by Human Action." formerly widely known under the title of "Man and Nature." An appendix and a few other additions have been made.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have ready a new and enlarged edition of Mrs. Bates' delightful "Classics for Babyland;" "Little Truths for Little Folks," a series of Bible stories told by Laurie Loring, and illustrated; "My Beautiful Picture Book," a quarto, 13 x 15 inches, with stories told in prodigious type, and large pictures; "Poems for our Darlings" from Mrs. Thaxter, Miss Phelps, Ella Farman and others, illustrated, of course; "Vacation Stories" for boys and another set for girls; and "The Voyage of the Steadfast," a very readable story by W. H. Kingston, who has already made a name among boy-readers. About the Ist of November, Lothrop will bring out the promised new and attractive edition of the American Golden Treasury books: Sir Roundell Palmer's "Book of Praise," "A Book of Golden Deeds," gathered by the author of "The Heir of Redcliffe;" Coventry Patmore's "A Garland from the Poets;" F. T. Palgrave's "Golden Treasury of the Best Songs and Lyric Poems in the English Language;" and "The Pilgrim's Progress." These excellent books will appear in 16mo volumes, at $1.25 each; also in a redline edition, with illustrations, at $3 each.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will soon issue a new edition of Susan Coolidge's "What Katy Did at School," with illustrations by Mary A. Hallock.

J. B. Lippincott & Co., in addition to their long list of fall announcements already given, add the following: "Gray Abbey, the author of "One in a Canter," will be volume 4 of the "Star Series" of novels, which has had quite a success. "In the Meshes," by Chris-tian Mackenzie, will be volume 5. Early in November will appear "Six Hundred Robinson Crusoes," who will be on hand to delight the youth of both sexes; it will be a 12mo, with plenty of illustrations. "Souci" is the title of a new novel by Mrs. Twells, the author of "The Mill of the Gods." A timely work will be that of the Rev. Horatio Southgate, D.D., "The Cross above the Crescent." As the author was many years a bishop at Constantinople, and has had real practical experience among the Turks, he will be able to throw a great deal of light upon their manners and customs, which at this time will be especially welcome. It will be in the form of a romance. "The Blue Banner" will be a companion volume, and will give the adventures of a Mussulman, a Christian, and a pagan in the time of the Crusades and Mongol Conquest. Léon Cahun is the author, and W. Colles Sanders translates it from the French. It will be illustrated with 76 wood-cuts by J. Lix. It will be ready, in crown 8vo, extra cloth, in a few weeks.

DR. SCHLIEMANN'S forthcoming book, to be published here by Scribner. Armstrong & Co., will have an introduction by Mr. Gladstone, who consented to become sponsor for the book only after careful examination of its contents and consultation with the authorities of the British Museum.

A BOOK of "Fairy Tales from Spenser," with wood-cuts and illustrations in colors, is in press by Chatto & Windus.

THE (London) Academy, in announcing Mr. Bayard Taylor's forthcoming work on German Literature, says: "We have no one in England at all comparable to Mr. Taylor in German, and especially Schiller and Goethe, literature."

A "LITERÄRT ALBUM," containing contributions in prose and verse by the best Swedish authors, with portraits of each author, is to be the Christmas enterprise of a Stockholm publisher.

THE Tauchnitz collection of English authors now comprises 1669 volumes. Of these, 1597 are by British writers and the remaining 70 are by American authors.

STATIONERY NOTES.

We shall be glad to receive, for gratuitous notice, samples or brief descriptions of all novelties of general trade interest, of which small cuts will be inserted if furnished. Buyers ordering or making inquiry as to goods from the notices in our columns will confer a favor by mentioning the Publishers' Weekly as the source of their information formation,

F. J. Swain, late manager for Perry & Co., has just completed the manufacture and introduction of a novelty which promises to be a The cut herewith represents several success.

designs, and the goods are furnished stamped in colors or embossed, as may be desired. embossed retail for 75 cents; those in colors sell for $1.25 per box. The demand for this line of goods thus far has been unprecedented.

KAUFMANN & Co., New York, have a new and beautiful line of portfolios in linen, duck, and canvas, which are handsomely ornamented with over fifty different subjects, such as flowers, bouquets, birds; etc. They come in three different sizes, No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, ranging in price from translate aftern dollars per dozen. They seem to be just the thing for the fall and holiday trade. This house has one of the largest styles of the goods, which consist of a line of | assortments of scrap-book pictures, box ornastationery cases made of wood corresponding with the tin now in use, embracing bill-head. post-office, letter, note, and envelope cases, etc. These goods are much more attractive than those now in use, and can be sold at equally low prices. The trade will find it to their advantage to examine the samples, which can be seen at 131 William Street, where Mr. Swain is located.

C. S. PLUMMER, with May, Hard & Co., New York, has started East with a fine line of new papers, wedding goods, and holiday papeteries. Among the latest novelties is the "What Day" papeteries, containing one quire of satin-finished paper, octavo size, and envelopes to match; "Billet de Correspondance," containing twenty-four cards and satin-finished envelopes to match. Each box has seven different ments, and chromo cards in the market.

WM. D. BENNAGE, JR., 47 N. Ninth St., Philadelphia, has just published a new and complete school report, which is very useful to teachers and deserves careful reading. It sells at the moderate price of $1.25 per hundred. His "Favorite" series of school government, comprising a number of merit cards, are very handy and convenient. Besides these, he manufactures the "Favorite" liquid slating for blackboards, which can be used on walls, boards, or paper, and makes a dead-black surface superior to slate. It is claimed that it will neither glaze, scale, nor rub off, and can be applied by the most inexperienced. It is put up in pints at $1.25, in quarts at $2.25, in half gallons at $4, and in gallons at $7.50. Catalogue will be sent on application.

THE HOLYOKE PAPER Co., Holyoke, Mass., have registered in the Patent Office a trademark, which is "a representation of the papyrus, or Egyptian paper-plant."

WILLIAM S. HICKS, New York, has patented a new design in pencil-cases.

C. C. SHEPHERD, New York, has just sent out a new "Scholar's Companion" slate, of which we give an illustration. It is neatly made, having a place in the top for holding pen, pencil, sponge, and water for cleaning the slate, and will be found a convenient article for school-children. The cut below shows a new writing and slate desk combined, which is quite a novelty, as well as a useful article for children, and is meeting with great success in the trade. For particulars inquire of J. G. Kent, 145 Nassau St., New York.

BROWER BROS., New York, are now making their lap tablets in silk and velvet, which are very handsome, and in portfolio shape with Dreka's dictionary blotters set in, which makes the tablets a complete writing companion and an appropriate article for holiday presents to either sex.

WILLIAM A. DAVIS, late with J. B. Holmes, has started in stationers' specialties at 53 Summer Street, Boston, Mass. We wish him success in his new undertaking.

PETER O'DONNELL, of New Orleans, La., is in town; also J. H. Thomas, of Dayton, O., and D. T. Knight, of Boston, Mass.

A. P. TAYLOR, of Newark, O., has sold out. E. T. Weiant will succeed him at the old stand.

J. B. HOLMES, Boston, has been sold out at sheriff's sale. The stock realized 29½ cents on the dollar and was bought in by his brother.

PERSONAL NOTES.

IT is expected that the medal of the Humane Society for the current year will be awarded to a distinguished member of the book trade. On monday last, a Fifth Avenue stage, recklessly coming down the dangerous channel of Broadway, was wrecked on the reef of rocks parallel to the front of Scribner, Armstrong & Co.'s store, and came very near being dashed to pieces on the plate-glass windows. The cabin passengers, many of whom were ladies, were panic stricken into wild excitement, nor were their fears allayed until a gallant form was seen to rush through the crowd upon the shore, and, dashing venturesomely forth, to catch in his arms one of the passengers who was about flinging himself out from the cabin door. Such bravery demands reward, and it is but justice that we should mention the name of John H.— but no, Mr. Dingman's well-known modesty might forbid. The wreck resulted in no loss of life, but the shore was strewn for some distance with debris from the wreck, canes, umbrellas, etc., and one fine large black valise was totally ruined.

MR. M. M. HURD, of Hurd & Houghton, is again back from Europe, in better health than for a long time past.

GLEANINGS FROM THE PRESS.

SPEAKING of the Half-Hour and Vest Pocket series, the Nation says: There are, in publishing as in other trades, fashions to which the maker of books must needs conform. Just now the fancy of the hour seems to be for small books—so-called 18mos and 32mos. In Paris the publishing house which gave its name to the very handy size known there as the "format Charpentier" has now begun the issue of a series of booklets to be called the "Petite Bibliothèque Charpentier," and to contain the little masterpieces of De Musset, Mérimée, M. Jules Sandeau, and others.

Opposition, says the Publishers' Circular, London, seems as a rule to benefit most literature. The Index Expurgatorius, Peter Bayle has told us, so benefited books that booksellers used to conspire to get their works condemned by the Pope's Censor, and to-day from France a correspondent writes that a very singular result of the official campaign against the republican press "that it has actually increased its sale enormously, carried it broadcast over provinces where it never went before, and has greatly elevated its spirit."

BUSINESS NOTES.

DONNER, N. H.—A. H. Donner & Son, booksellers, have gone out of the business.

NEW YORK CITY.—At a meeting of the creditors of R. Worthington, the accounts of the assignee, W. L. Allison, were presented and passed, which warrant the current dividend of 10 per cent on the whole amount of verified claims, which is about $40,000. Further proceedings are held in abeyance to await the decision of Judge Blatchford on a claim of the Mutual Bank for rent against the bankrupt.

LEATHERETTE.

LEATHERETTE is an article now well known to the trade, and, without falsifying or exaggeration, it is destined to be more extensively used for bookbinding than any other material. It certainly possesses—Beauty, as it is used extensively for silver cases, papeteries, passe-partouts, etc.; Flexibility, as it covers picture frames, boxes of all shapes, and embosses for wall paper; Durability, as it finds a market for the inner soles of shees, desk and table tops, the bands of feather dusters, covering for whip handles, etc.; and it is certainly suitable for book-binding, as it is hard to distinguish it from leather, it imitates it so exactly, and it takes ink, lithographing, and gilding with fine effect.

Individuals or firms wishing a set of books covered with a binding both durable and waterproof, cannot do better than use LEATHERETTE, as for the same price as book-cloth they can have grain of the seal, levant, or morocco, straight or pebbled, russia or skiver, and each grain in all desirable colors. NOTES IN SEASON.

Nelson & Sons have now ready "The Mediterranean Illustrated." No pains have been spared in making this one of the handsomest gift-books for the holidays.

B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. will issue on the 1st of November a cheap edition of "What a Boy, who, we believe, is already so well known to the public as not to need an introduction.

SARAH H. LEGGETT'S elegant holiday volume, "Golden Songs of Great Poets," is now ready. A more unique and fitting holiday present among books we think it will be difficult to find.

BAKER, PRATT & Co. have now ready "Lilliput Land," which is so full of reading and illustrations that we almost fear little eyes will not want another book before Santa Claus comes around again.

PORTER & COATES have just ready "Dolly," with a bright face, and dressed in the neat linen of the International Series. "Dolly" will not want for admirers.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co., besides the books recently mentioned by us, have now ready new editions, some of them at reduced prices, of "Pre-Historic Races of the United States,"
"The World of Wheels," "Great Conversers," and "Words: Their Use and Abuse."

H. T. WILLIAMS will publish early in November "Beautiful Homes," being the fourth volume of his popular "Household Series."

The volume has been profusely illustrated, and will no doubt be quite as popular as its predecessors. A little later he will publish Miss Frost's "Guide to Needle work, Embroidery," etc., and "Evening Amusements" by the same author, whose books never fail to take. Among his works just teady we notice "Daisy Eye-bright's Household Hints and Recipes," Fret-Sawing for Pleasure and Profit," and Parts VI. and VII. of his new Fret Saw Designs.

Shuldon & Co. have just ready "The Narrative of a Blockade Runner," by Captain J. Wilkinson, who gives in this interesting volume an account of his experience in running a blockade—in fact, eighteen of them—and makes a valuable addition to the history of the late civil war from the Confederates point of view; also Justin McCarthy's "Miss Misanthrope," which will not fail to become as popular as the rest of this brilliant essayist's works. also have approaching publication the new edition of that remarkable book, "Life of Trust," of Mr. Müller, the English philanthropist, who is now lecturing in this country. The book will have an introduction by the Revs. Francis Wayland and E. P. Thwing.

Lee & Shepard have just ready an imposing array of new books and new editions. and all lovers of adventure will find delight in Capt. Chas. W. Hall's story, "Adrift in the in Capt. Cans. W. Hair's story, "Adrift in the lee Fields," which is crowded with excited scenes, and Dr. Hayes' capital story of Arctic experience, "Cast away in the Cold." Mr. G. H. Calvert's new book on "Charlotte von Stein" is an excellent companion to his "Life of Carlotte" included Carlot him. of Goethe"-indeed, Goethe himself and other notables of his day figure in the biography. "Golden Hair," by Sir Lascelles Wraxhall, is a story of the Pilgrims, and by that simple fact must command the attention of a large circle of readers. Prof. Dolbear's little book on "The Telephone," with its scientific explanation sand abundant illustrations, is a very timely and acceptable volume. May G. Darling's "Battles at Home" and "In the World" are sure of a host of readers.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have been obliged to postpone publication of Pierce's "Memoir and Letters of Charles Sumner" until the 7th of No-vember. "Will Denbigh, Nobleman," "Sursum Corda," and the first volume in the American Tauchnitz edition, "Mercy Philbrick's Choice," are among their freshest publications.

"THAT GIRL OF MINE" is on the way (Petersons), and her appearance is fixed for on or about the 30th of October. This is said to be the book of the year, and will be found to be one of the most brilliant novelettes of the season. The story involves a description of good society" in Washington, and the author-un-known-is evidently familiar with the subject. It is hinted that some of the characters in the tale are fac-similes of personages well known in Washington society, and, indeed, through the whole United States. This gives it one of the greatest elements of success, for there is nothing like a little "mystery;" it accomplishes wonders in cases like this.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

THE President has called the attention of the special session of Congress to the desirability of an immediate appropriation for American representation at the Paris World's Fair of 1878, and a Union of promoters and proposed exhibitors, whose circular we present elsewhere, has been formed in New York to assist government action or to take its place in case there should be further delay. This Union seems to be in responsible and capable hands. and to be chiefly a patriotic rather than a moneymaking enterprise, and we believe its good offices may be looked to with confidence. we are to be worthily represented,-in fact, if we are to be represented at all,—the need of immediate action is sufficiently evident.

We sincerely hope that the American book trade, unpromising as the present prospect of its representation is, will do its best to return the compliment and courtesy of our French brothers, by furnishing, in some way or other, a creditable and fairly representative display. It is true that the results of the experiment of representation at our own Exhibition were not altogether encouraging, and it is true also that not much, if anything, is to be gained, in direct pecuniary returns, by an American exhibit of books at Paris. But in the long run it is a gain, to any trade, to have and make use of the opportunities of comparison, of criticism, and of improvement, offered by these grand world's gatherings, and in those who have to do with books, above all others, should there be found an eager appreciation of the advantages of international amity and progress. Besides, we may in some relations appeal to national and individual pride, for at least in school-books, and also, probably, in cloth bindings, we may renew and multiply the honors won at Vienna.

It seems improbable, we regret to say, that any action will be taken by the trade as a trade, but we appeal to eminent and wealthy houses not to let the American book trade be unrepresented in the capital of culture.

TO CONTRIBUTORS TO THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

MR. HENRY S. OLCOTT, the corresponding secretary of the "American Union of Paris Exhibitors," has issued the following circular:

Notice is hereby given to all intending to exhibit their products at the forthcoming International Exhibition at Paris, to report at once in writing the nature of their exhibit and the space required on floor and wall. The time remaining is so short that an immediate response to this circular is imperatively demanded. The national body, styled the "American Union of Paris Exhibitors," was formed in this city on the 18th inst. by exhibitors and influential citizens friendly to the movement, solely in the interest of exhibitors. Its preliminary expenses are defrayed by voluntary subscriptions, and no charge will be made for registering. The "union" is not intended to forestall the action of Congress. It will facilitate the work of a governmental commission, in case one should be created, while, if such should not, it will take charge of American interests at the exposition, acting as agents and forwarders for exhibitors.

State boards, trades organizations, and all other associations of exhibitors are requested to furnish information, and the "union" invites the press to aid in promoting the patriotic object in view.

Voluntary subscriptions to defray the exenses should be made payable to the order of Mr. August Belmont, treasurer, and, together with all other letters relating to business, addressed to the undersigned, with a stamp for By order, return postage.

A SHABBY PIRACY.

ONE of the contributors lifts up his voice at the club meeting in the November Atlantic against the "shabby piracy" of the cheap novel series-whose origin, by the way, he traces no further back than New York, whereas the New York libraries were the progeny of the Chicago Lakeside. We may sympathize with the conversion of the term "Riverside" to typographical work which would make the Riverside press jump out of its boots into the river. The writer (Mr. H. E. Scudder?) says:

That the lively projector of this enterprise will reap a golden harvest is very clear to me, but it is by no means so clear how a leading New England journal can bring itself to indorse this business as "in every respect notable and commendable." It is a notable and disgraceful piece of piracy, and if it is commendable, then the ingenious person who steps into your hall and gracefully appropriates your overcoat deserves to have a Philadelphia award. I hold that this New York literary tramp has done a very disreputable thing, and inflicted great wrong— First, on the English author, whose work he

Second, on the American author, who cannot afford to sell his wares at a price which is remunerative to a man dealing in stolen pro-

Third, on the American publisher, who pays copyright to English authors for the privilege of reprinting their works in a worthy manner;

Fourth, on the general reader, who has eyes to be ruined by a poor-faced, fine type set in unleaded columns.

To encourage this style of cheap literature is to do an injustice to every reputable publisher in America and to every man or woman in the United States who depends upon literary labor for a livelihood.

It will be time enough to be jubilant over the era of cheap reading when we can get the best books, clearly and neatly printed, at the lowest possible price consistent with a fair profit to the manufacturer; it is rather premature to hail the advent of that period in the appearance of the flimsy paper and execrable type of The Riverside Library. (The name Riverside, hitherto associated with an establishment noted for the accuracy and elegance of its typography, is obvious sarcasm.) I am the happy possessor of the fifth number of that series; it contains Thaddeus of Warsaw, by the adorable Miss Jane Porter, and the Paul and Virginia of St. Pierre the latter work occupying just eight and one sixth pages, with 18,921 letters to the page. (I have counted them with the assistance of a microscope.) Both stories, it goes without saying, abound in typographical errors. Our entertaining old friend Thaddeus has had many a hard rub in the course of his varied career, but I think he was never quite so shabbily treated as in the present instance.

FLIMSY BINDINGS.

A CLERICAL SUBSCRIBER of the London Book-seller calls attention "to the flimsy nature of the cloth bindings now in common use, and suggests that something better and stronger should be employed for books intended for schools and for village libraries." The Bookseller adds: "He is quite right. The binding of our common books is disgracefully bad; in the first place, the sewing is defective; the bands are then cut off too close to the back; and lastly, the books are stuck into their cases without care and are only retained by their end-papers. Very different to the books we used at school. still have our dog's eared Walkingame, with the corners worn off and otherwise disfigured, but as firmly fixed to the cover as when the bands were first drawn through the boards. The cloth cover of a modern book is strong enough, provided it be firmly affixed to the book." We may commend this paragraph to the attention of the Sun paragraphist on American book-mak-

COMMUNICATIONS.

A CORRECTION.

New York, October, 22, 1877. To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Sir: By some accident, which is as apt to be from our fault as anybody's, a statement lately got into the WEEKLY that we had "paid Mrs. Alexander thousands of pounds." We find the statement copied in other papers, so it seems best to ask you to correct it publicly. The facts are that we have paid Mr. Bentley, Mrs. Alexander's publisher, "thousands" of dollars, under our arrangements with him for her books, and we understand that he has voluntarily divided our payments with her.

Respectfully yours, HENRY HOLT & Co.

BOOK NOTICES.

HISTORY OF THE OTTOMAN TURKS, by Sir Edward S. Creasy. (Holt.) Another new work on the Eastern Question; a work well known in England, of which a new revised edition has lately been prepared, and from which this volume has been printed. The new edition contains many corrections, some curtailments, and some addition of pages relative to events subsequent to the Crimean War. It gives a detailed and graphic account of the beginning of the empire of the Ottoman Turks, its progress, and its condition at the present time. The author's style is exceedingly picturesque and attractive. Many of his pages read like excerpts from the "Arabian Nights," so full of story and romance are they; the work itself, chiefly founded upon Von Hammer's celebrated "History of the Ottoman Empire," is also an epitome of all the great writers on this subject of recent days. It gives a wonderful amount of information, whose accuracy has been tested and approved, and may be offered as an authority on the "Eastern Question." Large 12mo, cloth, $2.50.

CALIFORNIAN PICTURES, by Benjamin Parke Avery. Messrs. Hurd & Houghton lead off with what promises to be one of the handsomest gift-books of the season. In the way of letterpress, illustrations, and binding, it is as fine as anything we have seen from the Riverside Press, and that is saying a great deal. The reading matter by the late Mr. Avery, editor of the Overland Monthly, and for many years a resident of the Pacific coast, consists of a number of sketches, in prose and verse, descriptive of choice bits of California scenery, which are not familiar to the general public, or even to many residents of the Pacific slope. Mr. Avery carries his readers with him through the Sierras, to the head waters of the Sacramento, up Mount Shasta, to the Geysers and Golden Gate Park, and among the Santa Cruz Mountains. All the illustrations are after drawings or photographs from nature, the former by California artists. They have been carefully drawn on wood by Moran, Gibson, and others, and very finely engraved. There are eight full page illustrations, very beautiful and picturesque. The volume is a quarto with gilt edges, bound in blue-gray cloth, with a very artistic stamp in gold and black on the front corner. It will form an acceptable memento of the late author, or a very appropriate and elegant gift for the holidays. Cloth, $5; in full morocco, $9.

HISTORY OF FRENCH LITERATURE, by Henri Van Laun. III. (Putnam.) To the majority of readers this volume will probably prove the most interesting of the series, as it embraces the most dramatic period of French history, in which moved the most striking and best known figures in French literature. Book VI., "The Forerunners of the Revolution," begining with the death of Louis XIV., gives a brief account of what the writer calls the transition authors, Jean Baptiste Rousseau, Fontenelle, La Motte. Destouches, Crébillon, Le Sage, etc., and "Later Port-Royalists," Rollin, Racine, and D'Aguesseau; a long account follows of Voltaire, his works and his enemies; of the encyclopædists; of Buffon; of the works of Rousseau, and society at the end of the eighteenth century. Book VII. is devoted to the Revolution and comprises a history of the orators of the Revolution, prises a history of the orators of the Revolution, republican and royalist pamphleteers, literature during the Reign of Terror, the ultra-revolutionists, the theatre during the Revolution, the end of the Reign of Terror, and literary men of the day. Book VIII., "The Empire and the Restoration," and Book IX., "The Reign of Louis Philippe," deal with such interesting names as Chenier, Chateaubriand, Madame de Stæll. Thiers Mignet Guizot Michelet Hugo Lamar. Thiers, Mignet, Guizot, Michelet, Hugo, Lamartine, De Vigny, Dumas, Sue, Geoge Sand, Balzac, etc., etc. Numerous quotations are given to illustrate the style of various authors, while graphic anecdotes serve to briefly and happily present the characters described. The volume is altogether a charming one, complet-ing one of the most interesting and valuable literary series recently brought before the pub-lic. An Index to the whole series will be found in this volume. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

MONDAY CHATS by Sainte-Beuve, selected and translated from the Causeries du Lundi, with an introductory essay, by William Matthews. (Griggs & Co.) Out of many hundred criticisms, Prof. Matthews has with rare discretion selected those bound together in this volume. He complains of the "embarrassment of riches" that obstructed his labors and the difficulty he encountered in making a selection. His final decision was influenced by two considerations, the desire to give variety, and to choose themes of intrinsic and permanent interest. Fénelon, Louis the Fourteenth, Pascal, Rousseau, Guizot, the Abbé Galiani, and Frederic the Great are the principal subjects out of the eleven themes given. Prof. Matthews' essay covers almost ninety pages, and gives a most delightful account of the life and writings of Sainte-Beuve. He speaks of "the fineness of his workmanship, the brilliancy and exquisite delicacy of his style, his vast and varied knowledge, his catholic taste and comprehensive sympathies, and, above all, his rare sense and almost unerring judgment." To quote further: "By the verdict of nearly all persons competent to decide, he was, what Matthew Arnold terms him, 'the finest critical spirit of our time'-perhaps it is not too much to say, the acutest and most brilliant critic of this century." 12mo, cloth, $2.

A COUNTERFEIT PRESENTMENT, Comedy, by W. D. Howells. (Osgood.) Out of a mere thread of a plot and a few characters Mr. Howells weaves a very charming little comedy. His characters consist of Miss Constance Wyatt; her father and mother; a Mr. Bartlett, a painter; and his friend, Rev. Arthur Cummings. The scene opens in the parlor of the Ponkwasset Hotel, the time being in the fall, and the house almost deserted by boarders. Mr. Bartlett and his friend are in the midst of a discussion of Mr. Bartlett's affairs, when Gen. Wyatt and his daughter enter the room, having but recently come from Paris. Constance, at the sight of Bartlett, faints and Gen. Wyatt behaves like a crazy man. Bartlett's anger is aroused, and he is about leaving the house, where he had just determined to spend the fall, when an explanation is offered him of the extraordinary scene he had witnessed. It seems he possesses a remarkable resemblance to a former lover of Constance, whom she imagines has jilted her, and for whom she is dying. The scenes which follow, in which Constance and Bartlett learn to love each other and the full baseness of the first lover is made known, are full of wit, sentiment, and fire. "Little Classic" size. $1.25.

THE PILGRIM PSALMS, by the Rev. Samuel Cox. (Randolph.) Rev. Marvin R. Vincent, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, introduces Rev. Samuel Cox to the American public by brief remarks upon the reverend author and his works. We learn from this introduction that he is at present engaged in editing the Expositor, and that he has written the "Expositor's Note-Book," "Biblical Expositions," and other works. This volume is an exposition of the Songs of Degrees (Psalms CXX. to XXXIV.), or the Pilgrim Psalms, as they are also called. The author enters into no dry and tedious disquisitions upon disputed points, but gives the reasons which in his own mind determine the date and authorship of each of them. He also interprets their meaning with scholarship and devotion, points out their poetic beauty and the moral they are intended to convey. A very beautifully gotten-up volume. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

MINERALS OF NEW ENGLAND, by F. L. Bartlett. (Dresser, McLellan & Co.) Since the discovery of the Newburyport silver mines in Massachusetts, particular attention has been drawn to the probable mineral wealth of the New England States, and thousands of people are spending time and money prospecting for the precious metals. This little volume will tell "where and how to find them." It contains, besides, a description of the principal ores of gold, silver, copper, lead, antimony, etc., with simple methods for testing the same; also a brief description of the geological formation of ore veins, with directions for prospectors and miners. 16mo, boards, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

The Story of Avis, by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. (Osgood.) Avis Dobell is one of the "problematic characters" of modern, cultured New England life. Miss Phelps has told her story with the earnestness, pathos, and picturesqueness that has made her pen a power among all thinking, educated people. She discusses a problem as in her previous books, but one of a deeper and more subtle character than any heretofore touched upon. That she does not solve the problem (for who can explain nature's mysteries?) goes without saying. The story is of love—not the commonplace love of the popular novel, but the love of a woman of genius for a man not quite her equal mentally or morally. The plot is simple enough, and would take but a few lines to tell, but the reader will be best pleased to discover it for himself. The style in which the book is written is excessively charming; it is imbued with a keen, quiet humor that is felt more than seen, and has the color and dramatic fervency of expression the true outcome of an artistic nature. It will no doubt be pronounced the most finished and most powerful novel Miss Phelps has written. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

DOCTOR TOM, by Edward Payson. (Dresser McLellan & Co.) Very nearly four hundred pages are here devoted to describing what the author calls "little more, indeed, than an episode in one life." Doctor Tom is never off the stage, from the beginning to the end of the story. His appearance, his thoughts, his misfortunes, adventures, love-affairs etc., are related with a minuteness and fidelity that are truly wonderful. Slackwater, a New England village, is the scene which witnesses the entire unravelling of Doctor Tom's story. Slackwater people and Slackwater wisdom and wit furnish the accessories to plot and dialogue. "Doctor Tom" is a fictitious name adopted by the hero for reasons which he relates. The plot is so brief, and simple that we will not enter into further particulars as it would be taking the chief interest away from the book to tell the secret. plot, too, is a minor consideration, as the story will be read by the majority for its style and evi-dence of thought and culture. The author is the son of one of New England's most eminent divines. 16mo, cloth, $1.

JACK GRANGER'S COUSIN, by Julia A. Mathews. (Roberts.) Paul Stuyvesant, Jack Granger's cousin, has been brought up, to his thirteenth year, by two maiden aunts, who would never let him engage in any out-door sports or rough play, and so had succeeded in making a perfect "Miss Nancy" of him. When he comes to live at Granger's house, he is a dapper little chap, polite and refined. but a thorough prig in his talk and manners. He goes to school with Jack and is thrown, much to his disgust, into an entirely new element, the rough, hearty school-boys being strangers to his experience. Here his lack of moral and physical courage are strikingly brought out by numerous graphic incidents. The book winds up with a charming episode showing all the boys in their noblest guise, and reinstating Paul in the reader's respect. The book is one that both parents and children may derive instruction from. It is very ably written, and sets forth the very highest ideal for the young people's imitation. 16mo, cloth, 🐉.

DIANA, by Susan Warner, author of "Wide, Wide World," co-author of "Wych Hazel." (Putnam.) "Diana" will take rank at once, among the admirers of the Warner sisters' books, as the strongest and most intense story we have yet had from their hands. The style of it need not be described, as it is very similar to that of previous works, but there is a breadth and depth about it, a maturity of thought, in fact, which appeals to a different and an older class of readers than that for which the "Wide, Wide World" was written. It is a New England love-story, with the baldest surroundings, but the writer succeeds in creating a most romantic atmosphere for her lovers. The characters are all real people, Diana being one of the loveliest and most noble of women. The interest in her story never flags for an instant, through her happiness or her misery; she is unlike any of these authors' previous, characters in the depth of her nature and her personality, and will no doubt be received as the most natural and attractive of any of their creations. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

PATSY, by Leora B. Robinson. (Putnam.) The author of "The House with Spectacles," a story that met with a large sale last year, has sent us a new volume for little girls, one that will be found even better than the former story, and one full of brisk conversation and the action and animation that is natural to healthy, real children. Patsy's story teaches some profitable lessons about carelessness and ill-temper, and may be placed in a little girls hands, certain of bestowing upon her both amusement and the means of improvement. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

BABY BALLADS. (Lee & S.) This is a lovely little book of rhymes for the babies, illustrated with the charming pictures of Oscar Plesch. The rhymes have a pretty jingle that the little ones will like, while the pictures, all subjects taken from the busy play-life of childhood, are just about perfect. The book has a very quaint and attractive binding, and will, no doubt, go into many baby-hands before holiday-times are over. 4to, cloth, $1.

STATIONERY NOTES.

THE German stationers are bringing out betrothal cards in mediæval Gothic style.

THE Albion Paper Company have begun arrangements for building a new paper-mill near their present works at Holyoke.

THE penholders manufactured by Mabie, Todd & Bard sell at $4.50 per dozen, not per gross as erroneously quoted in our issue of the 13th inst.

THE Massachusetts stationery manufacturers just now are very busy in getting up holiday goods, many of them having so much on hand that they are recessitated to take orders conditionally. The feeling and trade in Boston are especially good. In New York, too, many factories are kept going both day and night.

MR. CHARLES SNEIDER lately returned from a successful trip through the East, where he found ready sale for the fine lines of stationery which he exhibited. His latest in note-papers is the "Marblette," in four tints imitating the different shades of Italian marble, and visiting-cards and billets de correspondance made in the same style. The "Jardin de fleurs" is printed in four different designs on sixteen shades of paper, and is radiant with roses, pansies, humming-birds, and butterflies. A unique design represents the upper left-hand corner turned down and apparently fastened with pins, hairpins, hooks and eyes, padlocks, matches, etc. This is so cleverly done as to almost deceive the eye at first sight. In mourning papers the corner, with a black border, is simply turned down without any imitation of fastenings. Envelopes are made to match the different styles.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. HABBERTON is at work on a serial story.

"MIRAGE," by Miss Julia Fletcher, the author of "Kismet" (known in England as "George Fleming"), is coming in the "No Name" novels.

ESTES & LAURIAT are bringing out a very large edition of "Chatterbox" for 1877, which, as everybody knows, gives a great deal of reading and a host of pretty pictures for little money.

"THE History of Ceramic Art in Great Britain, from the Earliest Period to the Present Day," by Llewellyn Jewett, in two volumes, with nearly 2000 illustrations, will shortly be published.

E. B. PORTER, formerly of the firm of Yohn & Porter, has been made general agent and manager of a temperance work entitled "Fifteen Years in Hell," which will only be sold on subscription.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. issue this week a new impression of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," with a number of additions. It is beyond comparison the fullest and best work of its kind, and Mr. Bartlett spares no pains to make it perfect.

G.P.PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation "The Silver Country of the South-west," which will give the history, mining statistics and resources, and a general description of that portion of territory formerly known as New Spain, and now Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona, and parts of Utah and Mexico.

D. LOTHROP & Co. are preparing for the children some ravishing pictorial attractions which they call "Sugar Plums," selected by Miss Farman, editor of Wide Awake; also "Poems in Company with Children," by Mrs. S. M. B. Piatt, one of the tenderest and most poetical of American writers of verse.

REV. DR. CAMPBELL'S "Story of Creation," giving the results of scientific research in the domains of geology and astronomy, will be published soon by Lockwood, Brooks & Co. It will have 30 or 40 wood-cuts illustrating and emphasizing the "Story" Dr. Campbell tells, and adding largely to the value and attractiveness of the book.

MESSRS. PORTER & COATES announce for next week T. S. Arthur's new book. "The Bar Room of Brantly;" also for speedy issue a new volume in the "Art at Home Series," "Music in the House," by John Hullah. "Dolly," by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, is starting off well, and will soon have to pass through another edition.

PROF. WILLIAM EVERETT, in preparing to write the life of his father, Edward Everett, asks for all letters to or from that personage, all autobiographic bits or other manuscripts that were his, and any personal reminiscences that may be affoat; pledging himself to copy what may be needed and return the originals. These may be sent to him at Holmes Place, Cambridge.

LEE & SHEPARD, who have been so successful in publishing the "relationship" order of literature, have "Another Man's Wife" and "Something Better" in hand. "That Wife of Mine" will come out next week 70,000 strong. The "Husband" is about twice as numerous, but it is expected that they will be evenly matched before Christmas. And what a couple they are!

A PARTY of four canoeists voyaged last summer among the Canadian rivers. One of the gentlemen was John Habberton, another Mr. W. L. Alden, the funny man of the Times. It is scarcely necessary to add, says the Tribune, that a book, and a clever one, will come of it some time next year, when the spring starts the canoe-fever up again. "Canoeing in Kanuckia" is the phonetically alliterative title suggested by one of the humorists.

MACMILLAN & Co. will issue this fall a new edition of Dr. Radcliffe's "Proteus; or, Unity in Nature." "This work, which appeared originally a quarter of a century back, and has since been so far revised as to be practically a new book, is designed to show that the same archetypal plan is traceable in all things; that this doctrine of unity is a truth of vital importance to the interpretation of nature, and that, in fact, the story of nature finds its true antitype in that of Proteus."

D. LOTHROP & Co. will shortly publish a book of special interest to all who love the poetry of Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Bayard Taylor, Aldrich, Howells, Stedman, the Piatts, and other American poets, and who like to know something of the personal appearance, home surroundings, and literary habits of these famous authors. This is, of course, "Poets' Homes," with its portraits, and pictures of the inside and outside of the dwelling-places of these charming singers.

"The Life of Rev. Dr. Edward Norris Kirk," by Rev. D. O. Mears, will be published shortly by Lockwood, Brooks & Co. In his denomination (Congregational) Dr. Kirk was widely recognized as one of the most successful of preachers, and all who came in contact with him were impressed with the beauty and simple dignity of his character. Mr. Mears has told the story of his life very fitly, and the handsome volume with the strikingly handsome portrait will be very acceptable to a large circle.

The latest edition of Low's (English) Educational Catalogue, prepared by Mr. C. F. Blackburn, has entries of nearly fifteen thousand text-books, which is about double the number contained in the first edition. As heretofore, these are classified under the topics most suggestive to teachers or educationalists, so as to afford the least delay in finding any desired information, and the arrangement, on the whole, shows great discrimination, as well as much pains and labor. In discarding capitals (except for proper names and their derivative adjectives), Mr. Blackburn has established a precedent which American bibliographers at least would doubtless like to see followed generally n trade cataloguing.

J. R. OSGOOD & Co.'s list of new books for this week comprises "Raphael," the second volume in Sweetser's excellent series of "Artist Biographies;" "Alfiera," as the fourth volume in Howells' rightly named "Choice Autobiographies." with a prefatory essay by Mr. Howells; Dr. J. P. Thompson's "Lectures on the Centennial of American Independence," which won praise from German scholars, Italian statesmen, and English professors when delivered last year in Berlin, Dresden, Florence, Paris, and London; and Hawthorne's famous story "The Scarlet Letter," illustrated superbly and with rare intelligence and sympathy by Mary Hallock Foote. This cannot fail to win great admiration as a work of art, and will be a royal gift-book.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID has a new novel, "Gwen Wynn.

CHAPMAN & HALL are issuing a 3s. 6d. Thackeray.

MR. J. NORMAN LOCKYER'S volume on the "Solar Spectroscope" is nearly ready in England.

ROBERT BROWNING'S "transcription" of the "Agamemnon" has just been published in London.

THE "Annals of Sennacherib," which were nearly completed by the late George Smith, will be brought out this year, under the direction of a well-known Assyriologist.

THE new volume of the South Kensington Art Handbooks, imported by Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, will be on "Bronzes," by Mr. Fortnum.

PROF. BOYESEN'S coming serial is called "A Knight of Fortune," and is said to "throw light on some of the great social problems of the day."

WEBER, of Leipzig, will shortly issue the prospectus of a new universal literary lexicon, somewhat similar to the Dictionnaire of M. Vapereau.

THE MILTON PUBLISHING LEAGUE is a new organization of Canada origin, having its head-quarters in Montreal. It is described as a Broad Church Tract Society, and it has already issued several minor publications.

Mr. Thomas Howells Edwards, who for many years past has been connected with the business of Messrs. Trübner & Co., London, has been admitted into partnership. No alteration will be made in the name of the firm.

THE late Lord Lytton left not only a complete play, founded on the Captivi of Plautus, but "an original comedy of modern life," entitled "The House of Darnley," which has been completed, at the request of the present Lord Lytton, by Mr. Coghlan, by the addition of a fifth act, and has been produced in London at the reopening of the Court Theatre.

Engelmann, of Leipzig, announces the publication, during the coming year, of a volume upon the Life and Works of George Sand, from the pen of Leopold Katscher, the German translator of Taine and London journalist, who has already published several interesting papers on his heroine in prominent English and German periodicals. German, English, French, and Italian editions of his forthcoming book are promised.

It is announced that Messrs. C. Kegan Paul & Co. have purchased the publishing business of the well-known London house of Messrs. Henry S. King & Co., of 65 Cornhill and I Paternoster Square. The new firm will carry on business at the latter address, Messrs. King's bank and Indian agency remaining in Cornhill. Mr. Paul is known to literature as the biographer of William Godwin; he has been connected with Messrs. King for some years. The new firm will issue, as their first book, one by Mr. Bonwick, the author of the "Last of the Tasmanians," called "Pyramid Facts and Fancies.'

LEATHERETTE.

LEATHERETTE is an article now well known to the trade, and, without falsifying or exaggeration, it is destined to be more extensively used for bookbinding than any other material. It certainly possesses—Beauty, as it is used extensively for silver cases, papeteries, passe-partouts, etc.; Flexibility, as it covers picture frames, boxes of all shapes, and embosses for wall paper; Durability, as it finds a market for the inner soles of shoes, desk and table tops, the bands of feather dusters, covering for whip handles, etc.; and it is certainly suitable for book-binding, as it is hard to distinguish it from leather, it imitates it so exactly, and it takes ink, lithographing, and gilding with fine effect.

Individuals or firms wishing a set of books covered with a binding both durable and waterproof, cannot do better than use LEATHERETTE, as for the same price as book-cloth they can have grain of the seal, levant, or morocco, straight or pebbled, russia or skiver, and each grain in all desirable colors. ECHOES FROM MIST-LAND:

Or, The Nibelungen Lay revealed to lovers of Romance and Chivalry. By AUBER FORESTIER. One handsome volume.

Six hundred years ago appeared a production called the Nibelungen Lay, a work of such wondrous beauty and of such surpassing literary excellence, that it has challenged the admiration of scholars in all lands. It is a tale that echoes back the clash of arms, and strife of passion which characterized the early periods of German history, and at the same time is full of the beauty and tender love-strains of the days of chiralter.

Says Cartyle: "A true epic spirit lies in it; in many ways it has meaning and charms for us. As the oldest tradition of modern Europe, it possesses a high antiquarian interest. In its still, thoughtful depths a whole infinitude of patience and love and heroic strength lie revealed."

A NEW BOOK BY THE AUTHOR OF

THE THIRD EDITION.

SURLY TIM. and OTHER STORIES

BY MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT,

Author of " That Lass o' Lowrie's."

One volume, small 12mo, cloth, extra,

AUTHOR'S NOTE.

In this little volume have been brought together those of my short stories which have been thought most worthy of preservation in the present form. The author begs to say to her readers that "That Lass o' Lowrie's" and the present volume are the only works issued under her name which have been prepared and corrected for publication in book form under her personal supervision.

Opinion of Richard Henry Stoddard,

The last volume from the pen of Mrs. Burnett is a little collection of stories, eight in number, all of which, with the exception of the last, "Seth," appeared in Scribner's, where they were widely read and admired. The opening story, "Surly Tim," is a study of Lancashire Life, and one of the most pathetic we have read for many a day. "Le Monsieur de la Petite Dame" is an exquisite study of French life and manly devotion. "Smethurstes" is a finer study of cockneydom than any that Dickens ever drew. "One Day at Arle" is a terrible story of swift and sudden punishment, of which the moral, if it has one, is, that there is a soul of goodness in things evil. "Esmeralda" is a double study of American character and French life. "Mere Giraud's Little Daughter" is a charming French study. "Lodusky" is a wonderful study of a passionate American Amazon, and "Seth" a revealment of what love may be in some natures. We are glad to have these stories of Mrs. Burnett's in a volume, and we are sure her admirers will be glad to have them.

HOW WE RAISED

BABY.

By A BENEDICT.

In introducing it the author of "HELEN'S BABIES," says:

"The cordiality which many thousands of readers have manifested in their reception of a couple of little books about children, emboldens the undersigned to say an earnest word or two in commendation of a book rather more serious than his own, but infinitely more valuable to those who are interested in children. For if the apparent regard of adults for little people be as genuine as the writer believes it to be, there is something not only undesirable, but horrible, in the fact that half of the human beings who are born into this world depart with a haste which no quantity of tears and parental love (as at present manifested in most families) is able to retard. There is a certain mournful consistency in the course of humanity toward children; the little beings are usually styled angels, so they are generally treated as if they possessed the supposed angelic faculty of being superior to the earthly condition of food, raiment, air, light, cleanliness, and all else that contributes to healthfulness; in their case, however, the jewel-like nature of consistency is not

"It is quite possible that a perusal of this volume may prevent a few hasty marriages, and may break some matches which if made in heaven, must have been arranged by apprentices; in such case, however, the author is to be blessed and not cursed.

"The intensity of the paternal sentiment can certainly be affected in some manner which may prevent the multitude of infant deaths, and the frequency with which promising babies grow to be stupid men and women, criminals and even scribblers and congressmen, and books like the one now before the reader are better fitted than any other to begin the work of reformation.

NOTES IN SEASON.

Thos. Y. Crowell's neat and remarkably cheap issue of the works of standard British poets now embraces nearly all the popular English songsters, and will be completed in a few more volumes.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. will publish at once Prof. C. W. Shield's important book on "The Final Philosophy." This is a review of scientific and religious current thought to show what will be the final and successful harmony of them in the near future, and should attract attention from both sides.

Lockwood, Brooks & Co. have in preparawhich may be mentioned Rev. D. O. Mears'
"Life of Edward Norriss Kirk," "Bourbon
Lilies," by Mrs. L. W. Champney, and a number of new editions of popular books. "Harry Holbrooke, of Holbrooke Hall," by Sir R. H. Roberts, is now ready.

D. APPLETON & Co. have ready for issue next week their "Handbook of Winter Resorts," a companion to the two previous books of the sort, which will give information and illustrations as to the Southern resorts in Florida and elsewhere, the Pacific coast and the tropical islands, as Bermuda and Cuba. Mr. Darwin's new book on the "Forms of Flowers" will probably be ready at the same time.

"SUBSTANCE AND SHOW, AND OTHER LEC-TURES," by Starr King, is just ready at the Os-goods. The twelve lectures include "Socrates," "Goethe," "The Laws of Disorder," and others with which Mr. King magnetized the lecturegoers of twenty years since. They are prefaced with an introduction of sixteen pages by E. P. Whipple, who selected and edited the lectures, which make a noble book.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready another volume by the author of "Schönberg-Cotta Family," entitled "Lapsed but not Lost;" Professor Schaff's "Harmony of the Reformed Confessions," which was delivered in the form of an essay before the General Presbyterian Council at Edinburgh last July; and the popular short histories of J. S. C. Abbott. They are now printing the sixteenth thousand of Roe's "Knight of the 19th Cen-CASSELL, PETTER & GALPIN have just ready "The Great Painters of Christendom," from Cinabue to Wiekie, by John Forbes Robertson, a finely illustrated large quarto, at $20. The author is a leading writer in this specialty, and his work embraces critical notices of the Italian, Flemish, Dutch, German, Spanish, French, and English schools of painting, with biographical sketches of the foremost artists of each school, accompanied by portraits and engravings after the most celebrated works. The book ought to do exceedingly well at this season.

THE fall parcel sale of Messrs. Bangs & Co. opens Tuesday, November 13th, which should not be forgotten by the trade, as they will offer a considerable variety of goods suitable for holiday sale. The catalogue, of over a hundred pages, is just ready and will be forwarded on application; it includes well-assorted invoices from Little, Brown & Co.; J. B. Lippincott & Co.; Scribner, Welford & Armstrong; W. W. Harding; Estes & Lauriat; R. Worthington; Virtue & Yorston; Lee & Shepard; Roberts Brothers; James Miller; Lockwood, Brooks & Co.; and other well-known houses.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish Wednesday, Nov. 7, the "Memoir and Letters of Charles Sumner" in two octavo volumes. A second edition has already been printed in advance of publication to meet orders, and there is every indication that the work will have a very large sale, and take rank at once with the lives of Macaulay, George Ticknor, Harriet Martineau, and Charles Kingsley, in popular regard. At the same time Roberts Brothers will publish the third volume of "Supernatural Religion," a work which has occasioned a vast deal of discussion in England, and which readers interested in theological subjects cannot afford to neglect.

J. B. Lippincott & Co. announce several new issues for this week. The second volnew issues for this week. The second of the "Foreign Classics for English Readers," will be "Voltaire," by Col. E. B. The Publishers' Weekly.

NOVEMBER 3, 1877.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE POST-OFFICE BILL AGAIN.

We print elsewhere an official copy of the proposed new postal bill, of which the one previously printed proves to have been but an imperfect first draft, as well as a letter from Mr. Bissell. The Government has taken a common-sense and commendable step in submitting it to criticism before sending it to the Congressional Committee, and for this new departure the officials of the department, Mr. Bissell in particular, deserve hearty thanks. The merits claimed for the bill in the accompanying circular are certainly desiderata; in fact, of their desirability there can be no question. The question is, however, whether the bill really fulfils the promise of the circular, and we must say that many of the criticisms made upon the original draft in a recent issue of the WEEKLY still hold. Mr. Bissell's letter states that it is proposed to include all legitimate trade journals and to exclude only the "guerilla" sheets published essentially in private interests and having no subscription lists. But we fear that the bill is still ambiguous and permissive of evasion; if, we repeat, some effective means of basing the privileged rate on actual subscriptions could be put in practice, that would, after all, be the true test.

While the postal matter is under discussion, we may refer to one other point in which perhaps some slight latitude might be wise. In this book publishers are strongly interested. It is the frequent custom of publishers, in sending books for review by public journals, to paste or slip in a blank giving bibliographical details, some of which are filled in with ink. Letter postage is then charged at the office of delivery, and the goods must usually be refused. If some means could be devised which would not be occasion for fraud, it does seem that such harmless writing as this, or even a name written in a book, might be permitted to go at printed rates. And we trust that, in the present disposition of the department, it may be less inclined to dictate how publishers shall page their papers, shall issue supplements, and shall otherwise manage their business.

In many respects, especially in simplifying the classification, the bill is a decided improvement. It is desirable that it should, however, as the department suggests, be fully discussed, and, as our own readers are so directly interested in the matter, we shall be glad to hear from any of them through our correspondence columns.

The English conference of librarians proved a great success, and the American librarians who are now home, or on their homeward way, express themselves as delighted with both the results and the reception given to themselves. Over 200 were present, from all parts of the world, and the Americans took a leading and most creditable part. Out of such conferences much good must come, first to the librarians, and, ultimately, to the book trade; we may hope, now that the A. B. T. A. has sunk into obscurity as a legislative body, that it may some day be revived as the means of such friendly conferences of the trade.

OUR Christmas number will be the issue for November 24th, and we are taking every pains to make it more beautiful in typography and more attractive in contents than that of last year, in which we own to no little pride. It has been repeatedly acknowledged that this issue is the finest publication of its kind in any country, and we hope the American trade will not be backward this year in enabling us to surpass previous efforts.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL.

The fine steel engravings representing the four Harper brothers, and the brief biographical sketches which accompany these, are very interesting, and afford food for thought and stimulus for exertion in any honorable calling in life. It was a happy thought to present the portraits, said to be very correct likenesses of the now departed brothers, and an account of their early struggles and ultimate success, in this edition of the Trade-List Annual.

It is invaluable in a public library, publishing house, or to any person or persons wishing to select books for a library. It is the sum and substance of all book catalogues.—Lutheran Observer.

A bulky volume, The Publishers' Trade-List Annual for 1877, will be found a capital reference book; for all the works published in this country are herein recorded and grouped with an immense amount of other valuable matter. There is given, also, a noble sketch of the lives of the Harper Brothers.—Commonwealth.

POST-OFFICE CLASSIFICATION.

THE following draft of a proposed bill—the one printed previously was, we are informed, but a first and tentative draft—has been forwarded from the Post-Office Department, with the circular herewith:

Post-Office Department, a October 22, 1877.

SIR: Annexed you will find a draft of a bill upon the much-controverted subject of classification of mailable matter and rates of postage thereon, which it is proposed to lay before Congress at its approaching regular session. It has been prepared with great care, and is designed to remedy some of the evils growing out of the present statutes upon that subject, and to avoid, if possible, many of the annoyances to which the Department has been subjected under their operation.

It will be observed that it makes no change in the present rates of postage.

in the present rates of postage.

The merits claimed for it are—

1st. Simplication in the classification. It puts all newspapers, periodicals, etc., in the second class whether sent from office of publication or news agencies, or between individuals, with two rates, the "privileged" for the former and the "ordinary" for the latter. It also avoids the enumeration of matter of the third class.

2d. Enlargement of the privileges heretofore accorded "printed matter." Vide section 5.

3d. Protection from interference of all the legitimate publications of this country under the registration system. The fee cannot be regarded as burdensome, and is only to cover expenses which may grow out of the system.

4th. Permanence and uniformity in the rulings of the Department.

It is not claimed for the bill that it is perfect in its present shape, and the object of thus calling attention to it is that a free discussion of its merits and demerits may be had, and advantage taken of any pertinent suggestions that shall aid in perfecting it.

A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATIVE TO CLASSIFICA-TION AND RATES OF POSTAGE OF MATTER DEPOSITED FOR TRANSMISSION THROUGH THE MAIL.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

Section 1. That mailable matter shall be divided into three classes:

First. Letters and postal cards.

Second. Regular printed matter.

Third. Miscellaneous printed matter and merchandise as now provided by law.

SEC. 2. That mailable matter of the first class shall embrace letters, postal cards, and all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except book-manuscript passing batween authors and publishers, proof-sheets and corrected proof-sheets.

SEC. 3. That mailable matter of the second class shall embrace all matter exclusively in print which is, or has been regularly issued from a known office of publication, without addition by mark or sign, except as provided in section 5.

SEC. 4. That mailable matter of the third class shall embrace all matter not embraced in the first or second classes which is not, from its form or nature, liable to destroy, deface, or otherwise damage the contents of the mail bag or harm the person of any one engaged in the postal service, and is not above the weight provided by law, which is hereby declared to be not exceeding four pounds for each package thereof, except for books or documents pub-lished or circulated by order of Congress, or official matter emanating from any of the departments of the Government: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to permit liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials, and obscene matter to pass through the mails, and all matter of the third class shall be subject to examination and rates of postage as now provided by law.

SEC. 5. That mailable matter of the second class shall contain no writing, print, mark, or sign thereon or therein, except as herein provided, to wit: the name and address of the person to whom the matter shall be sent, either written or printed; the printed title of the publication; the printed name and address of the publisher or vender who sends the same; and when sent as registered matter under the "privileged rate" as hereinafter provided, the printed words indicating such registration, and printed words indicating the date on which the subscription to such matter will end; when sent without registration under the "ordinary rate" the sender thereof may write or print his own name and address thereon with the word "from" above or preceding the same, and may inclose in brackets paragraphs or articles of such publications to which he desires to call attention. The privilege extended to the sender of matter of the second class not registered, by this section is also extended to the sender of printed matter of the third class. Upon any package of merchandise which is declared mailable by law there may also be written or printed the number and names of the articles inclosed, and the sender thereof may write or print upon any such articles a mark, number, or letter for purpose of identification. Matter of the second or third classes containing any writing other than that above indicated, or made in the manner other than above indicated, shall not be delivered except upon the payment of letter postage, deducting therefrom any amount which may have been prepaid by stamps affixed to the package; and any person who shall conceal or inclose any matter of the first class in that of the second or third classes, and deposit, or cause the same to be deposited, for conveyance by mail at a less rate than would be charged by the conveyance by mail of the matter concealed or inclosed if sent not so concealed or inclosed, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of five dollars: Provided. however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent publishers and dealers in registered matter of the second class from inclosing in their publications bills and receipts for subscriptions thereto.

Sec. 6. There shall be two rates for mailable matter of the second class, to wit: a "privileged" rate and an "ordinary" rate. Publications registered as herein provided shall be entitled to pass through the mails at the "privileged" rate; all others shall be subject to the "ordinary" rate.

SEC. 7. From and after the passage of this act, publishers of mail matter of the second class who may desire to secure to their publications the benefit of the "privileged" rate of postage shall submit the same to the department, under such regulations as the Postmaster-General may prescribe, who shall cause the same to be examined, and, if determined to be entitled to the benefits of the privileged rates, shall cause a license or certificate of registration to be issued to the postmaster at the place where such publication shall be published, who shall notify the publisher of the same to that effect.

SEC. 8. Such license or certificate of registration shall entitle the publisher of such publication to have printed upon each issue thereof, and upon the wrapper of each package thereof, the words "Registered for transmission through the mails at the privileged rate," or words of like import, which may be prescribed by the Postmaster-General; and upon the payment of an annual fee of fifty cents to the postmaster at the office of mailing shall further entitle the publisher of such publication so registered, or if sent from a news agent, the sender thereof, to have the same transmitted through the mails to regular subscribers thereto, at the following rate of postage, to wit: when published as often as once a week, two cents per pound, or fraction thereof; when published less often than once a week, and as often as four times a year, three cents per pound, or fraction thereof; such postage to be prepaid in the manner now provided by law: Provided, however, That no matter shall pass through the mails at the "privileged" rate unless the words of registration shall appear thereon.

SEC 9. The certificate of registration, granted as in the preceding section, shall be revoked by the Postmaster-General, only in case the publication to which it shall have been granted shall have so changed its character as to make it subject to the ordinary rate, or in case the publisher or sender thereof shall be guilty of a palpable evasion of the postal laws relative to the classification of mail matter.

SEC. 10. Any person who shall print upon any number of his publication, or the wrapper thereof, the words designated in section three, or other words of like import, which may be prescribed by the Postmaster-General under the authority conferred in that section, to whom has not been granted a certificate of registration, or who shall submit false evidence to the department as to the character of his publication, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and for every such offence shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars.

SEC. II. The conditions upon which a publication shall be admitted to the privilege of registration are as follows:

First. It must be regularly issued, at stated intervals.

Second. It must be issued from a known office of publication.

Third. It must consist mainly of public news, or of articles relating thereto, of either a general or special character, or of literary matter, in either case with or without advertisements: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to admit books, either bound or unbound, or publications which, although issued in regular series or successive numbers, are but books or reprints of books, to the benefits of the "privileged" rate.

Fourth. It must be printed and published in the United States.

SEC. 12. On all mail matter of the second class not registered as provided in the preceding sections postage shall be paid at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, which rate shall be called the "ordinary" rate, and shall be prepaid by postage stamps affixed to said matter.

SEC. 13. The Postmaster-General shall prescribe such regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, as shall be necessary to carry the same into effect.

SEC. 14. All laws inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

We are enabled also, by courtesy of Mr. Bissell, to present his views on the question:

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL FOR THE POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., October 26, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

I have received the issue of your publication containing the comments upon the bill which I have drafted upon the complicated question of classification, etc. You will observe from the enclosed that you have not reported the text of the bill I have prepared, but have copied the first imperfect draft which was published in the Herald of Saturday the 13th, as stated in the circular letter. I do not regard the bill as perfect, and the object in thus early calling attention to it is that it may be thoroughly discussed, so that when presented to Congress it may be as nearly perfect as it is possible to make it. My views upon the subject have been expressed briefly to Mr. Jones, of the American Grocer, who will, I presume, comment upon them in his issue of November 1st. There is no disposition on my part at least, and I think on the part of the department, to exclude from "privileged rate" in the mails any of the legitimate publications of the country. Having been at one time a newspaper man myself, / certainly should do nothing to impede their transmission through the mails. Those trade publications which have a bona fide subscription list, and are not issued to serve a temporary or purely individual purpose, have the same claim for transmission through the mails as the general metropolitan press, or the leading monthly periodicals. But the Government is now carrying at the pound rates a large number of these "guerrilla" sheets at a great loss, and it is this class at which the bill is aimed. I think you will find my views as expressed to Mr. Jones to be in accord with your own. Respectfully, A. H. BISSELL.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

35 Rue De Luxembourg, Paris, October 15, 1877.

DEAR SIR: It was not until two weeks ago that I arrived in Paris, and since then I have accomplished but little towards furthering the interests of a book department at the Exposition next year, as the elections have been filling the minds of every one here, with enough to exclude almost all other subjects.

M. Fouret informs me that there will be a French Book Department of some three hundred exhibitors; this, however, includes stationers, lithographers, etc.—in other words, all who can come under the head of printers, binders, or dealers in paper. At the American Consulate I find nothing but doubt as to whether there will be any American Department at all or not, and in the absence of any one who can take official action in the matter, we are unable to do anything.

I have, however, directed some drawings to be made of suitable cases, and expect to bring them with me, but beyond this do not expect to have anything to do with a display, as my plans prevent me from thinking even of coming over again next year. M. Terquem, who was at Philadelphia last year, has been exceedingly kind in assisting me, and as he expects to be in New York late in November or early in December, he will be able to assist very materially in any arrangements.

Yours very truly,

JNO. R. ELLIOT.

BOOK NOTICES.

CARICATURE AND OTHER COMIC ART, by James Parton. (Harper.) There is in this volume, Mr. Parton believes, a greater variety of pictures of a comic and satirical cast than was ever before presented at one view. Many nations, ancient and modern, pagan and Christian, are represented in it, as well as most of the names identified with art of this nature. Mr. Parton goes back to caricature among the Romans, Greeks, Ancient Egyptians, the Hindoos, and then through the Middle Ages, the Reformation and Puritan period, gives us the best of Hogarth and his time, English caricatures of the revolutionary period and of the French re-volution; among the Chinese; comic art in Japan; later French caricatures; the present condition of comic art in Germany, Spain, Italy; and in England as interpreted by Punch, and in America by our own Nast. A greater portion of the contents of this volume appeared from month to month in Harper's, but many of the most curious and interesting of the pictures are given here for the first time. Mr. Parton speaks of the difficulties he encountered in Mr. Parton making his work of getting just the material he wanted, almost all caricatures having but a momentary interest, and many of a past time being too immoral to reproduce. Still, in spite of these difficulties, he has made a volume of real worth and permanent interest, every en-graving in it having a certain value aside from the entertainment it affords, as an illustration of the various phases of this side of art. There are 203 illustrations in all, that Mr. Parton has ransacked the world to obtain. The typographical excellence of the work is specially to be noted, the printing of the texts and cuts being unusually fine. The paper is tinted and heavy, and the binding in exquisite taste. Altogether the volume is one of the most beautiful and artistic issued by the Harpers. Quarto, cloth, $5.

DOCUMENTARY HISTORY OF THE STATE OF MAINE. VOL. II. CONTAINING A DISCOURSE ON Western Planting, written in the year 1584, by Richard Hakluyt. (A. Williams & Co.) Hakluyt's five volumes, prepared with great enthusiasm and industry, containing notices of over two hundred voyages instituted by the English, and called by Froude the "prose epic of the modern English nation," have been a most valued storehouse of materials for the history of early discovery and colonization. A lost manuscript by this author, never before given to the press, is the fortunate prize which forms the greater part of this volume. It is a discourse purporting to have been written in recommendation of an enterprise of planting the English race in the unsettled parts of North America discovered by Cabot and not yet occupied by any Christian people. An exceedingly interesting preface and introduction by Prof. Leonard Woods, late President of Bow-doin College, gives in detail an account as to how this copy of Hakluyt's discourse was obtained, a brief description of the manuscript itself, some account of Hakluyt, and of the argument of the discourse. Mr. Charles Deane, the editor of the discourse, supplies, in quite a large appendix, copious and valuable notes. 8vo, cloth, $4.

INTRODUCTORY FRENCH READER, by Dr. Emil Otto. (Holt). Messrs. Holt & Co. have made such arrangements with Dr. Emil Otto that their American adaptation of his works will be published under his full sanction. The present volume is composed of selections from the sixth German edition. The notes are added by the American editor, Professor Edward S. Joynes of the Vanderbilt University, and the vocabulary has been carefully rewritten. The aim has been to offer a sufficient selection of easy reading, such as may be used after the first outline of the grammatical forms and along with the further study of the grammar. With this view, the sections have been made easily progressive. Section I. is interlinear. Section II. presumes a knowledge of the regular grammatical forms, irregular forms being explained or indicated in the notes. In the remaining sections, the forms are presumed to be known, and the explanations are mainly confined to construction and idiom. An introductory grammar of like scope and purpose with the reader is in course of preparation. 12mo, cloth, $1.

ADRIFT IN THE ICE-FIELDS, by Capt. Charles W. Hall. (Lee & S.) That the boys of America may gain a knowledge of the winter sports of our neighbors of the maritime provinces, this tale has been written. It chronicles the adventures and misadventures of a party of English gentlemen during the early spring while shooting sea-fowl on the sea-ice by day, together with the stories with which they whiled away the long evenings. The breaking up of the ice carries four of the hunters into involuntary wandering amid the vast ice-pack, which in winter fills the great Gulf of St. Lawrence. Their perils, the shifts to which they are driven to procure shelter, food, fire, medicine, etc., together with their devious drift and final rescue by a sealer, are used to introduce very interesting descriptions of the ice-fields of the gulf, the habits of the seal, and life on board of a sealing steamer. It is just the kind of book—brim full of facts and real adventures—that the boys will delight in. The stamping on the binding in silver (floating ice-bergs) is very effective. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

HAWTHORNE'S SCARLET LETTER. (Osgood.) This is a new illustrated holiday edition of this celebrated work. The illustrations, twenty-nine in number, consist of numerous full-page pictures and some exquisite vignettes, all from the pencil of Mary Hallock Foote, and engrav-ed by A. V. S. Anthony. The chapters all have ornamental head pieces drawn by L. S. Ipsen. We take great pleasure in noticing the entire get-up of this volume. The illustrations are thoroughly in character with the story, full of poetry and a dreamy mystery, while the work is the very best we have had from Mary Hallock. The head-pieces to the chapters and the ornamental letters and little vignettes at the beginning and end of chapters are very beautiful and artistic. The mechanical parts, printing, binding, etc., are all that can be desired. Take the work as a whole, with the interest that must always cling to its story, and the exquisite embellishments of the artists, it ought to have a large and wide sale in the coming season. Sq. 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, $5.00.

THAT GIRL OF MINE. (Peterson.) The chief events of this story occur in Washington, the author having thus the opportunity of giving a graphic account of Washington society and Washington celebrities. Many of the portraits are said to be true to life and are very clever. The heroine is a pretty, unconventional little Southern girl, who goes to Washington to spend the winter with a wealthy and fashionable aunt. She has already been claimed as "that girl of mine" by one Philip Boughton, as poor as he is good-looking, but in Washington she is accorded so much admiration that she has many temptations to forget him. She remains true, however, in spite of many eligible offers, among which is one from a marquis. The story is very simply told, but possesses the many nameless qualities which have made this realistic style of novel one of the remarkable literary and pecuniary successes of the year. 12mo, cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

Bessie's Six Lovers. (Peterson.) Bessie Morgan having met with a disappointment in love, begs her father, a wealthy New York merchant, of whom she is the only child, to let her go to Pennsylvania to spend her summer quietly with an old Quaker uncle. Here she meets six young fellows from Philadelphia. They are not at all pleased at first to hear of a young girl being about, and in a conversation which Bessie overhears laughingly picture her chaims, imagining her to be a raw, ignorant country girl, Bessie enters into the joke, forbids her uncle telling of her wealth, and adopting the Quaker garb and speech, fully repays the young men in her own way for their ridicule. When her real character becomes evident, as it does in a short time, they all turn into adorers, elect her their queen, and make her the central figure in all their plans and pleasures. Of course she marries one of them, and lives happy forever afterwards, as the fairy tales say. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

PAULINE, by L. B. Walford. (Holt.) "Mr. Smith," by the same author, will be recalled as one of the specially good novels of the "Leisure Hour Series." This has the same freshness and originality, with even more evidence of power. Pauline is typical of the highminded, high church young English girl, pure and serene, to whom all sin is a mystery and a terror. She is loved by a reckless, dissipated young man, "one of the wild Blundells," whose life and death are very sad, but strongly depicted, and meant to point a moral. There is an underplot to relieve what would otherwise be a very sad story, in which the love affair of Pauline's brother Tom, and her cousin Edith are, after many digressions, brought to a very happy issue. The character sketching is fine throughout, and the dialogue quite terse and witty. The story opens in the Hebrides, the scene is then changed to an English country house, then to Wales, London, and back to Scotland. "Leisure Hour Series," 16mo, $1.

CHOICE AUTOBIOGRAPHIES, edited by W. D. Howells; Lives of Lord Herbert of Cher-BURY AND THOMAS ELLWOOD. (Osgood.) two more thoroughly contrasting figures than those of Lord Herbert and Thomas Ellwood could have been placed in opposition: the one a gay cavalier of the first James' time, frank, courageous, worldly, and not constrained in his confessions by any self-consciousness; the other a strict Quaker, good and beautiful in his life, a friend of William Penn and a stu-dent of John Milton; the one representing the last phase of chivalry, the other a sturdy disciple of a new dispensation which eschewed the world and its forms and vanities. Both memoirs are delightful, and are introduced to the reader by essays by Mr. Howells, which supply missing facts and links, point out special traits in the narrators, special beauties in the memoirs themselves, and offer some very pleasant criticisms of the autobiographies in their entirety. "Little Classic" style. $1.25.

A KNIGHT OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY, by Rev. E. P. Roe. (Dodd, M. & Co.) This tells of a young man brought up by a rich and fashionable mother, indulged in every way, and taught none of the restraints which religion or high principles impose. He goes into the world and falls a victim to his vices and lack of self-control. He loses his position in the business he has entered, and goes down, step by step, till he seems utterly disgraced. A good woman comes to his rescue and holds out a helping hand, to which he clings, and by which he again resumes his place among honorable He has a career as a soldier, our late war furnishing this opportunity, does some chivalrous deeds, and succeeds in proving to the woman he loves that he is indeed a knight of this prosaic nineteenth century. A high purpose is aimed at by the author all through, but the story is not lost sight of in the lesson. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

DOLLY; A LOVE STORY, by Frances Hodgson Burnett. (Porter & C.) A bright, clever, coquettish young woman who can remain true through a seven years' engagement, and seabout dying for love, when an unfortunate chain of events causes her lover, an impecunious literary man, to doubt her and leave her, is an unfrequent figure in the modern novel—but—such is "Dolly," the very lovable little heroine, whose individuality permeates this volume from cover to cover. The style is quite unlike "That Lass o' Lowrie's," inclining more to the raciness of Rhoda Broughton than any other novelist we can just now remember. The principal actors are from what the author calls "Vagabondia"—shabby artists and shabbier journalists, but all cheerful and witty, and intensely human. The book will be much read and sought for, and is, decidedly, one of the best of the "International Series." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE CHATTERBOX FOR 1877-1878. (American News Co.) This is a New York edition of a very popular juvenile, manufactured by Frank Leslie. It resembles its English namesake in get-up and in its profusion of illustrations, and sells at the very low price of $1.00. We have also received from the American News Company quite a batch of their holiday juveniles;: "The Queen of Picture Books," with sixty full-page illustrations, $2; "Pictures and Rhymes for Young Minds," $1.50; "Our Little Folks' Picture Album," $1.50, and "Pretty Pictures and Pretty Rhymes, $1.50—the last four having each 22 full-page chromo-illustrations, and all of them cloth chromo illustrated covers. Besides, there are, in chromo board covers, "Friends of the Family," with 24 illustrations, 75 cents, and "Chats with the Animals," 100 illustrations, 75 cents, and "Little Tot's Treasury," 50 cents.

A MIRACLE IN STONE; or, The Great Pyramid of Egypt, by Joseph A. Seiss, D.D. (Porter & Co.) A résumé of all the recent discoveries and theories about the great pyramid of Gizeh will be found in this work. So many and such extraordinary facts have recently been evolved about it by learned and scientific investigators that some of the most sober and philosophic minds have been startled by them. "It would verily seem," Dr. Seiss says, "as if it were about to prove itself a sort of key to the universe—a symbol of the profoundest truths of science, of religion, and of all the past and future history of man." The work comprises three lectures—namely, "General Facts and Scientific Features," "Modern Discoveries and Biblical Connections," and "Analysis of Traditions, Opinions, and, Results." An appendix contains extracts from recent writers. There is also an interesting diagram of the pyramid. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE UNITED STATES AS A NATION, by Joseph P. Thompson, D.D. (Osgood,) The contents of this volume comprise six lectures on the origin and development of the United States as a nation, delivered by Dr. Thompson in Berlin, Dresden, Florence, Paris, and London, during our centennial year. They were listened to with great interest by audiences made up of persons of the highest condition and culture in the various countries in which they were given. It is at the request of these audiences they have been issued in book form. The titles of these lectures are, "Grounds and Motives of the American Revolution," "Doctrine of the Declaration of Independence," "Adoption of the Constitution," "The Nation Tested by the Vicissitudes of a Century," "The Nation Judged by its Self-Development and its Benefits to Mankind,"

"The Perils, Duties, and Hopes of the Opening Century." 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

WATER SPOUTS, edited by J. N. Stearns; SAVED, by M. E. Winslow. (National Temp. Soc.) "Water Spouts" is a collection of short stories, sketches, jokes, anecdotes, acrostics, verses, etc., etc., all having the one theme, intemperence, for their subject. The book is fully illustrated, and is designed for quite young children, the text and pictures both being of a juvenile character. It is one of the society's holiday publications, and is gotten up in holiday style, the binding being quite showy, the front cover being adorned with a pretty chromo lithograph. 16mo, cloth, $1.—"Saved" is for more advanced readers, and is the story of a young couple who begin life with every thing in their favor, money, position, and so on. The husband takes to drinking and wrecks both their lives, but is finally "saved by sympathetic kindness and the grace of God." 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

Tom's Wife. (Carleton.) A simple little story of domestic life, told by "Tom" himself in a very clever and humorous way. Every one will recognize in the picture a capital likeness to his friend's wife, and will smile over the little lady's inconsistencies and weak points. The story opens, all smiles and sunshine, with a newly-married couple. To begin, the wife prefers boarding, then she tires of boarding and prefers housekeeping; and here the first sound of war comes in when the house is to be selected and the furniture bought. A mother-in-law, unlike any that has been served up in recent literature, helps them through this crisis, and one feels as if everything for the future might be serene. But almost unaccountably a tragedy looms up, and the comedy bids fair to end in tears. However, "all's well that ends well," and no one will be displeased with the finale. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

No Name Series: Will Deneigh, Nobleman. (Roberts.) This new volume of the "No Name Series" continues to uphold the reputation of the series, as one of the best collections of novels in the market. It is a story of Devonshire life, quite simply told, without any sensational element in it. Sir William Denbigh is a somewhat old-fashioned hero, sans reproche, and having the punctiliousness and courtesy o the old school. His story is very delicately outlined, his love for Hester Kenrick meeting finally with all the success it deserves. Hester, her cousin Rufus, the old fisherman, Amos Leigh, Tom Flemyng, are all drawn with a skilful pen, showing the author to be a person of culture and refinement. The atmosphere of the book is unusually healthy, and free from morbid and depressing imaginings. cloth, $1.

ELSIE'S CHILDREN, by Martha Finley Farquharson. (Dodd, Mr. & Co.) Those who read "Elsie's Motherhood" will be glad to find here the sequel of that pretty story. The Travilla and Ross children are the chief actors in it, the different home influence exercised on each being strongly contrasted by the difference in behavior. Miss Day, the former governess of Elsie Dinsmore, reappears, her story having a good deal to do in illustrating the real nobility of Mrs. Travilla and her children. The story is continued till Elsie number two is a grown young lady, and has a love story of her own to relate. One of the books for girls that scarcely needs any endorsement, the intrinsic worth of the writers work being so well known. 16mo, cloth, $1.50.

Grace Ashleigh's Life-Work, by Mrs Mary D. R. Boyd; Almost a Man, by S. Annie Frost. (Am. Tract Soc.) The first of these two books is written especially for girls. It tells the story of a young girl, who has dedicated herself to the Lord's work. Her parents are rich, fashionable people, who scoff at all her endeavors and try both by threats and flattery to turn her from her path. The second story is for boys, and relates the temptations which befall a young fellow of seventeen, who, brought up without any religious education, comes in contact with other young men, who teach him fashionable follies and weaknesses. Both the stories have morals and are full of religious teachings. Each, 12mo, cloth, $1.

OUR COMMON INSECTS, by A. S. Packard, Jr. (Estes & L.) This is a reissue of a work that has obtained great popularity. It aims at placing before the unscientific reader in a pleasing and simple way an account of the habits and forms of the insects of our fields, forests, gardens, and houses. The essays of which the little volume is made up formerly appeared in the American Naturalist. An introduction was written expressly for this book, as well as a chapter on "Hints on the Ancestry of Insects." There are, in the way of illustrations, 4 plates and 268 wood-cuts. A work that almost every one would care to read and would become interested in. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE, by Robert C. Pitman. (National Temp. Society.) Judge Pitman has given to the subject of this volume a life-long consideration. The work is an important one, treating with great conciseness and marked ability of what the state loses in various ways through alcohol, and, in turn, of what is the duty and proper function of the state concerning alcohol. It shows that the liquor traffic is the enemy of the state and the foe of all the objects for which the state exists, and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, and authorities as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the liquor problem. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

ARTIST-BIOGRAPHIES. TITIAN RAPHAEL. (Osgood.) These are the initial volume of a little series of biographies of artists the Osgoods have in preparation. It will embrace the names of Michael Angelo, Guido, Murillo, Delacroix, Delaroche, Reynolds, Turner, West, Copley, and others. The volumes will be prepared by Mr. M. F. Sweetser, whose qualities of thoroughness in research and fidelity in statement have been proved in other fields of authorship. He will omit all critical and discursive matter, confining himself solely to the facts of the artist's life. It is believed this will add to the attractiveness and usefulness of the little books. Ea., 16mo, red edges, cloth, 50 cents.

SURSUM CORDA. Hymns for the Sick and Suffering, compiled by the editor of "Quiet Hours." (Roberts.) This volume is intended for all who need comfort and strength, and especially for invalids. It includes some of the familiar and cherished old hymns, as well as a large number which are not in the common collections. They are grouped under these headings: "Out of the Depths," "Aspiration," "Morning and Evening," "Trust and Peace," "Submission in Sorrow," "Sickness," "The Last Hour." The hymns are printed in large, clear type, easy to read, and the volume itself is in a light binding, making it not too heavy for an invalid to handle. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

LIL, by the Hon. Mrs. Fetherstonbaugh. (Lippincott.) Lillas Fane is a "wild Irish girl" with golden hair, and a wonderful black mare named Kittane, upon which she scampers all over the country. Her story is not new in the annals of fiction, but it is worked out with cleverness and quite a keen sense of humor. The book belongs to the class of society novels of which we get so many, and of which it is so difficult to say something new. Without any very salient points, it is a good novel, displaying merit both in its characters and plot, and can be safely recommended as sure to interest and please. "Star Series," 16mo, cloth, $1.

FRET-SAWING FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT. (Williams.) This book tells all that one can want to know about fret-sawing. It begins with a description of the materials needed, and the different qualities of different kinds of wood, and of the uses to which tortoise shell, mother-of-pearl, rubber, ivory, etc., may be put. Then comes a chapter on saws, saw-frames, and treadle-machines, on oil-stones, on designs, on marquetry, about gilding, dyeing and staining woods, overlaying, cutting out work, and so on. No one interested in this pleasant work but should have the book. 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

LILLIPUT LAND; OR, PEEP-SHOW FOR THE YOUNG, edited by the author of "Lilliput Levee." (Baker, Pratt & Co.) This is an American edition of the beautiful English "Peep-Show," full to overflowing of pictures, great and small, and all of the kind of subjects that children love to look at. The reading is in verse and prose and quite simple, suitable for very young children. The binding, brown boards, illuminated with figures in black and white, is very pretty. 4to, $1.25.

THE TELEPHONE, by Prof. A. E. Dolbear. (Lee & S.) The popular exhibitions of the speaking telephone during the past six months has created such a widespread interest in the instrument that this little book, explanatory of its action, will be gladly welcomed. It contains an account of the phenomena of electricity, magnetism, and sound, as involved in its action, with directions for making a speaking telephone. Illustrated by numerous cuts. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

JOHN WILEY & SONS have in press a "Handbook of Volumetric Analysis," designed for the use of classes in colleges and technical schools, by Edward Hart, S. B., Fellow of Chemistry in John Hopkins' University. The work will set forth the latest and most popular methods of analysis, and there being but a meagre literature on the subject, and the price of the proposed volume being but about $2.50, it seems likely the work will have a successful sale.

THERE will be two beautiful holiday volumes from Scribner, Armstrong & Co., respectively for grown-up art-lovers and little folk story-lovers. Under the happy title of "The Home Beautiful" Mr. Clarence Cook's Scribner papers on household art will be collected, with important additions, into a volume de luxe; and Mr. Donald G. Mitchell has gotten up a volume "About Old Story-Tellers," who they were and what they wrote, which, with its interesting illustrations, cannot fail to please.

Another important book on Egypt may be expected shortly: "Upper Egypt; its People and its Productions," a descriptive account of the manners, customs, superstitions, and occupations of the people of the Nile Valley, the Desert, and the Red Sea Coast, with sketches of the natural history and geology, illustrated from original sketches, by C. B. Klunzinger, M.D., formerly Egyptian Sanitary Physician at Koseir, on the Red Sea. Scribner, Armstrong & Co. expect to have it ready this month.

The Bulletin of the Boston Public Library for October contains bibliographical articles on the early history of Virginia and on Norumbega and the Popham colony, and continuations of its bibliography of the history of mental philosophy, and of its check-list for American local history. No one has yet been designated to replace Mr. Winsor, Dr Samuel A. Green, one of the trustees, acting meanwhile as superintendent. Two new branches have recently been opened, at the South End and in Jamaica Plain.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. publish this week, in holiday dress and with lavish illustration by the best artists in America, four popular poems by American famous authors—"The River Path," by Mr. Whittier; "Excelsior," by Mr. Longfellow; "The Rose," by Mr. Lowell; and "Baby Bell," by Mr. Aldrich. It is unnecessary to commend these poems, which everybody knows. But in their holiday dress they are specially beautiful. Each forms a dainty volume, to which the most skilful designers and engravers have contributed of their best work. The price of these is $1.50 each. For those who wish all of them together, the four are combined in a single volume called "Christmastide," which is substantially uniform with the handsome holiday gift-books that Osgood has produced now for several years. This is a $5 book, and will undoubtedly share the popular favor shown to "The Skeleton in Armor," "Mabel Martin," and the other gift volumes of this series.

REV. H. N. HUDSON, the Shakespeare scholar, is preparing for Ginn & Heath to publish, about November 20th, a "Classical English Reader," which will contain two hundred choice selections from a hundred standard authors. Mr. Hudson's severe taste and good judgment guarantee a volume of no ordinary value, and one that will cultivate a love and discriminating appreciation of the best literature in those boys and girls who shall be so fortunate as to use it. Brief biographical sketches will be given of the authors represented.

HARPER & BROTHERS have in preparation for their next publication day two of their promised elegant volumes for the holiday and all other seasons. Mr. S. W. G. Benjamin's "Contemporary Art in Europe" will be, as his papers and the illustrations in the Magasine have shown, a superb work of great interest, giving sketches and portraits of the leading artists, and cuts of their most characteristic works. In Mr. Trowbrigde's "Book of Gold" will be collected all his most recent popular ballads, etc., finely illustrated; they will make a very taking book for holiday trade. "What He Cost Her," by James Payn, will be the next addition to the brown-paper novels.

ROBERT CARTER & BROTHERS have nearly ready Dr. Hamlin's important and interesting book, "Among the Turks," giving in a $1.50 12m0 of nearly four hundred pages not only his personal experience during many years' residence in Turkey, but a historical and descriptive study of the nation; Dr. Macduff's "Life of Christ for the Young;" "Brighter than the Sun," with sixteen illustrations; and a new story by Miss Holt, author of "Isoult Barry" and other pleasant books of religious life in early days; "Lettice Eden," in which the historical picture is of the last days of Henry VIII.'s reign.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. will issue shortly A. M. Sullivan's "New Ireland." The author, who was recently quite prominent in Parliament, is quite able, we believe, to give, as is announced, "a true and faithful history of the numerous eventful episodes in Ireland's career during the last quarter of a century." Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's new work, "Fat and Blood, and How to Make Them," has proved a success beyond the anticipation of both author and publishers. The first edition was exhausted in a few weeks, and a new edition is now in preparation involving the resetting of the entire work.

John Wiley & Sons, who are very enterprising in keeping up with Mr. Ruskin's rapid pen, will shortly issue the first parts of two of his latest works, which he is printing at intervals. These are "St. Mark's Rest," "a history of Venice, written for the help of the few travellers who still care for her monuments," and "The Laws of Fésole," "a familiar treatise on the elementary principles and practice of drawing and painting, as determined by the Tuscan masters, arranged for the use of schools." They have also in press the third and fourth parts of both "Deucalion," "studies of the lapse of waves, and life of stones," and "Proserpina," "studies of wayside flowers," the success attending the issue of the earlier parts having determined them to complete the works in that shape. They also announce for issue about New Year's an important work on "Explosive Compounds, Power Drills, and Tunneling," by Henry S. Drinker. The volume will make a quarto of about one hundred pages, with nearly a thousand illustrations, working profiles, etc. The author has information by careful correspondence, personal inspection, and other direct means. Some 1400 tunnels are treated of, the peculiar difficulties of each are explained, and the remedies required and used are given. The list comprises tunnels from the various continents, even extending to New Zealand and Australia. The work will be issued by subscription, at about $15.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish about the middle of November Hon. Peter Harvey's "Reminiscences and Anecdotes of Daniel Webster." Mr. Harvey was one of Mr. Webster's stanchest personal, political, and pecuniary adherents, and his book contains a large number of interesting facts in regard to his great friend, anecdotes that reveal his frank, simple, manly, and affectionate character. One need not be an old-fashioned Whig to enjoy this book heartily. It will contain a full-length portrait from Ames' admirable painting which represents Webster with a slouch hat and a cane; a picture of the Webster home at Marshfield, with interior views; and the Webster monument.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will have ready about the middle of the month the first volume of the American edition of "Lübke's History of Art," as edited by Mr. Clarence Cook; the other volume will follow just before the holidays. The publishers promise a much more satisfactory book than the English edition, the existing translation having proved so imperfect as to defy revision, so that Mr. Cook has associated with him Mr. E. L. Burlingame, who has translated the work from the German entirely anew, the first few pages excepted. Mr. Cook has added a great number of valuable foot-notes, supplementing the original text, and Dodd, Mead & Co. have added to the 500 cuts of the original work nearly 100 more. Several thousand dollars will have been put into the book here.

GINN & HEATH have now ready Prof. Caskie Harrison's careful and accurate translation of the First Book of the Odes of Horace, which classical scholars and lovers of poetry will hasten to read. Chaucer's "Parlament of Foules," with a literary and grammatical introduction, notes, and a full glossary, from the very competent hand of Prof. T. R. Lounsbury of Yale College, which puts this old poem in admirable form for readers and for students of early English literature; the eighth volume of the "Annals of the Astronomical Observatory of Harvard College;" and a small pamphlet of "Parallel Rules of Greek and Latin Syntax for use in Schools," prepared by two instructors in Williston Seminary, and intended to show distinctly the correspondences and differences in Greek and Latin Syntax.

"The Gathering of the Lilies" is now about ready from the press of Mr. J. L. Sibole, of Philadelphia The author's previous work, "Violet with Eyes of Blue," met with a decided success last year. The present work will be artistically superior to the Violet in every way, and will contain more illustration. The first poem, from which the collection is named, is illustrated with eight gems in black and white crayon sketches on gray background, and besides these there are many colored plates and lithographic etchings, which will call forth hearty appreciation from all lovers of beauty in flowers and verse. The author, L. Clarkson, has spent a whole year in perfecting these designs, and Mr. Sibole has done his best to produce them in a chaste and elegant form.

"A HISTORY OF MUSIC," by H. G. B. Hunt, Warden of Trinity College, London, is in preparation.

SAMUEL SMILES is writing a biographical account of the late George Moore, the philanthropist, a portrait of whom, etched by M. Rajon, will be prefixed.

"THE Life and Writings of Lessing," by James Sims, soon to be published, will form the first two volumes of the extra series of the "English and Foreign Philosophical Library."

MR. GLADSTONE'S forthcoming collection of "Essays, Letters, and Addresses" will be divided into the following sections: Personal and Literary, Ecclesiastical and Theological, European and Historical.

CHARPENTIER, Paris, is about to issue in two volumes, under the title of "L'Orient," the studies on Eastern subjects contributed by the late Théophile Gautier to various journals and magazines.

M. VICTOR SCHOELCHER, the French senator, who still resides several months in the year at Chelsea, is engaged in making a complete catalogue of all engravers from the beginning of the art. It is estimated that there have been about 12,000 in all. M. Schoelcher's collection now contains a specimen of the work of about 8000 engravers, and he continues steadily adding to the number.

THE seventh volume of the revised "Encyclopædia Britannica" is nearly ready. Among the writers are Professor A. W. Ward on "Drama," A. R. Wallace on "Distribution," John Morley on "Diderot," E. B. Tylor on "Demonology" and "Derivation," Orcas Browning on "Education," Mr. Hamerton on "Drawing," and Professor Robertson Smith on "Decalogue."

PROF. E. A. GROSVENOR, of Robert College, in Constantinople, is translating from the original Greek, for American publication, the volume of "Byzantine Studies" by Dr. A. G. Paspati, a Greek archæologist, who has given fifteen years to the exploration of the antiquities of Constantinople: His book, which is copiously illustrated, also gives a summary of previous labors in this field.

CHAS. GODFREY LELAND is the latest sufferer from the "black flag" crusade of certain English publishers. He suggests to the Athenaum that Ward, Lock & Tyler, in advertising their edition of "The Breitmann Ballads," containing eleven out of forty-six, imperfect and unrevised, as complete and revised by the author, "may be within the law, but I doubt very much whether they are within the Gospel."—Tribune. Messrs. Ward & Lock reply that the offending title-page came to them with the book from Chatto & Windus' list.

Aug. Berth. Auerbach, Stuttgart, has added to his admirable collection of Transat-lantische Roman-Bibliothek Edward Eggleston's "Hoosier Schoolmaster" under the title of "Der Schulmeister von Flat-Creek," the translator'being W. Lange; and as "Onkel Gustav," a very pretty edition of "Helen's Babies" done over into German by Heichen-Abenheim, the translators of some of Bret Harte's works. "Onkel Gustav" is rather an adaptation of Habberton's book, having German names, and a German background introduced, to render it more acceptable to German readers.

THE new establishment of Ward & Locke, Fleet Street, London, a superb building in white Suf folk brick and Portland stone, 186 feet by 55, and admirably fitted for a large publishing business, is on a portion of the site of the old palace and prison of Bridewell. A few yards from the establishment Richardson the novelist was in business as a printer and bookseller, and there he wrote his famous "Clarissa Harlowe" and "Pamela," the delight of the ladies of his age and a model of pure fiction, at a time when such works were too often rather the exception than the rule.

THE London Bookseller states that Mr. Bernard Quaritch, the well-known London dealer, is about to retire from the publishing trade and entirely devote himself to his retail business. "In this," it adds, "we think he is wise, for although he has republished some excellent books—Kemble's 'Anglo-Saxons,' Digby's 'Broad Stone of Honor,' and some others—he must have found that to be a successful publisher, a man must devote considerable time to the work. As a retail bookseller, Mr. Quaritch has marked out a line for himself. In this he is unrivalled; and it is in this department that he has made his reputation."

A VOLUME of "Lives of Famous Poets," by Mr. William M. Rossetti—a reproduction, with modifications and additions, of the Prefatory Notices to the series, "Moxon's Popular Poets"—is announced by Moxon, London. The authors thus treated are Milton, Pope, Thomson, Cowper, Burns, Wordsworth, Scott, Coleridge, Campbell, Moore, Byron, Shelley, Mrs. Hemans, Keats, Hood, and Longfellow. Besides these, seven entirely new Lives will be added: those of Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, Butler, Dryden, Gray, and Goldsmith. Brief lists of intermediate poets will also be given, so as to afford a sort of general glance at the sequence of dates in British poetry.

MR. GLADSTONE'S Primer of Homer for the Literature Primers, under the editorship of J. R. Green, the historian, will be a most valuable addition. Professor Dowden's Shakespeare Primer, in the same series, is characterized by Mr. Furnivall as "sound and helpful throughout," "the best shilling's worth of Shakespeare criticism in existence. A copy of it should be with every copy of Shakespeare throughout the world." Professor Dowden defines the characteristics of the four stages now generally recognized in the development of the plays as (1) "In the Workshop;" (2) "In the World;" (3) "Out of the Depths;" (4) "On the Heights." "Love's Labor's Lost," "The Merry Wives," "Othello," and "The Tempest" are cited as illustrating the successive stages. Mr. Furnivall is generous in his notice, as his admirable introduction to the "Leopold Shakspere" covers nearly the same ground.

Scribner, Armstrong & Co.'s November List.

NOW READY.

THE FINAL PHILOSOPHY;

Or, System of Perfectible Knowledge Issuing from the Harmony of Science and Religion. By Prof. CHAS. W. SHIELDS, D.D., of Princeton College. One vol., 8vo, printed on superfine paper, cloth extra, $3.00.

This work possesses a far greater value than a mere critical history of conflicting hypotheses and dogmas. It is progressive, and leads to a wider and more advanced philosophy than has hitherto been reached in works of similar character. While the ripe scholarship of its author commends it to the careful attention of all philosophical and religious students, its clear treatment of abstruse questions, and its manifold attractions of style, make it an exceedingly readable, as well as a most instructive book for the more general reader.

FORTHCOMING.

A New Work by President Woolsey.

POLITICAL SCIENCE;

Or, The State Theoretically and Practically Considered. By THEODORE D. WOOLSEY, lately President of Yale College. In two vols., royal 8vo, of nearly 600 pages each. Handsome cloth extra. Price, per vol., $3.50.

KLUNZINGER'S UPPER EGYPT:

Its People and Its Products. By C. B. KLUNZINGER, M.D. Illustrated from Original Sketches. One vol., crown 8vo, cloth extra, $3.00.

The author of this work, Dr. C. B. Klunzinger, here gives to the public the observations made by him during a stay of eight years in Upper Egypt.

In contradistinction to most publications on Egypt, which usually give descriptions of the modernized capital and trading towns of the North, this work treats of life in upper Egypt, the Southern and as yet little known portion of the country.

The book is no dry narrative of travel, but gives, in tasteful and attractive language, an objective picture of land and people, special regard being paid to the natural history and natural phenomena of the country. We become acquainted with the ways of living, the occupations, the manners and customs, prevailing both in the provincial towns and in the country, we wander through the desert, we explore the sea for its natural treasures, and, lastly, we obtain a glimpse into the superstitious beliefs and doctrines of the Mohammedans. Of special interest is the author's comparison of the modern Egyptians with the ancient, the more so as the inhabitants of Upper Egypt have preserved the ancient type and many manners and customs in great purity. These, with all their views of life and opinions, have become thoroughly familiar to the author through the intimate intercourse of a number of years.

An Important Work by the late Prof. Henry B. Smith.

FAITH AND PHILOSOPHY;

Or, Discourses and Essays. By HENRY B. SMITH, D.D., LL.D. Edited, with an Introduction, by Rev. Dr. George L. Prentiss, Professor in the Union Theological Seminary. One vol., 8vo, cloth extra, $3.50.

"That Girl. or Mine" is a True Story of real life in the best and most fashionable society in Washington, and is published this day by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, and it will be found to be one of the most brilliant novelettes ever issued. On the simplest thread of plot is strung a story remarkable for tellung situations; being full of verve, and the fruit of a minute observation of society, at receptions, balls, germans, lunches, and in private society, with such a vein of humor running through it, that it will achieve a pronounced success. Mabel Vincy's night-ride with her lover's enemy, Stephen Makenzie, is described with an intensity and simplicity that makes it one of the most vivid and striking "hits" in modern literature. The handsome and true-hearted Philip Boughton; the veteran fiirt, Blauche Delzile; the weak, though good intentioned Clive Westerleigh: the courtly Marquis de Creve-Courmont, the poet of the Rocky Mountains; with several other telling characters, and "That Girl of Mine," with her whims and fancies, yet earnest love, make a whole which adds greatly to the reputation of the noted, but masked author of the book. "Good Society" in Washington is described in all its phases by one who is thoroughly familiar with the subject; and when the reader finishes this charming book, the story of the final triumph of true love, he regrets that it is "all too short." In spite of the thrilling incidents that crop out through the story, a quiet tone of repose and culture is never lost. It is said that some of the characters in the story are fac-similes of personages well known in Washington society, and indeed, through the whole United States. The volume is very neatly printed, in uniform style with "Theo," and "Bessie's Six Lovers," and will have a very large sale, as the price of it is but Fifty Cents a copy in paper cover, or One Dollar in cloth, and it will be found for sale by all Booksellers and News Agents everywhere, and on all Railroad Trains.

"THE GREAT PAINTERS OF CHRISTENDOM."

REAT Painters of Christendom, from Cimabue to Wilkie," is the title and subject of one of the most luxurious books of the season, or of any season, published from the great English house of Cassell, Petter & Galpin. The design of this magnificent work is to present, with every accessory that the engraver and painter can furnish, a worthy memorial of the most glorious works of art, from the days of the old masters down to the painters of the English school of to-day. In carrying out this plan, no pains or expense have been spared on the part of the editor and publishers to make the work worthy of its subject. Mr. J. Forbes-Robertson, the editor, is an English art writer of thirty years' experience. In the preparation of this work, he has consulted all the recognized authorities on art, British and Continental, citing them as far as possible in the text, and has used also the experience of his familiarity with the works of European art to be found in all the leading galleries of Europe. The work is introduced with an essay on the new birth of art in the thirteenth century, under the inspiring influence of the Papacy; and it then treats, in successive departments, of the Italian school, the Flemish, Dutch, and German schools, the Spanish school, the French school, and the English school, prefacing each with an interesting introduction, summarizing its history and characteristics. Under these departments, several pages each are devoted successively to the leading artists of the respective schools. No less than one hundred and twenty are thus sketched, in their history and relations to art, with interesting critical descriptions of their foremost works. Each of these one hundred and twenty chapters isprefaced by a portrait of the artist in a charming framework design. Their leading works are reproduced in the best work of the foremost wood-engravers; and the book is also beautiful with initial letters, decorative tail-pieces, etc. It makes, in all, a sumptuous huge quarto of four hundred and thirty-nine pages, at the cost of $20, in brilliant cloth binding. The early part of the book deals especially with Christian art, chiefly because the art of the early days found expression, for the most part, through church subjects. In its later pages, we come, in turn, to the battle-pieces of the great French painters, the landscapes of Turner, the figure-pieces of David Wilkie, and the weird mysticism of William Blake. In thus grouping the great works of the centuries, most interesting comparisons and contrasts are afforded, and the plan of the work presents an illustrative history of modern art in its best schools. No book could be better suited to cultivate an intelligent taste for art, both by the great works which it reproduces and by the most artistic fashion in which they are reproduced. We regret exceedingly that we are not able to present on this page, as we had desired, and according to the plan of the previous pages of this sort, some of the many beautiful smaller wood cuts which are to be found scattered through the book. The fact that the book is printed in England has made it impossible to obtain cuts in time for our edition.

THE CHILDREN'S ART SERIES.

THESE are the "paint bogies," and below is little Flossy Tangleskein, to whom, with Ruby Rose, they told their "colorful" stories, when the two little people visited Mr. The strangest thing about these bogies Rose's studio. was that "they had a power more wonderful than telling stories-that of making them happen;" so that in "All Around the Palette," which Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney has written, and "Champ," her husband, has illustrated with more than a hundred of the cleverest of pictures, and Lockwood, Brooks & Co. have published in pretty shape, other little people may read not only the stories told to Ruby and Flossy, but what happened to their very selves. Mrs. Champney is a charming writer for children, and with her "In the Sky-Garden" of last year, she hit on the bright idea of telling the little people no little about astronomy in the course of her delightful story. This year the idea has been followed out with "The Children's Art Series," of which "All Around the Palctte" is the initial volume, to which will be added, next year, a story about architecture. The plan is a capital one, and in this volume she succeeds in telling children as much about art, its history, its masters, and its technique, as they could glean from many a history. The book is one of the very prettiest juveniles of the season; the price is $1.50. The illustrations are wonderfully varied and all charming, and fit the text most happily, as becomes a book gotten up by husband and wife. We suspect, indeed, that the opening paragraph of the book lets the reader really into the secret of how the book came about; only the portraits heading this article are not quite accurate portraits of Mr. and Mrs. "Champ." "Stories and pictures, it was all the doing of the two Paint Bogies; sometimes Carrie (cature) told the stories and Tint made the illustrations, but more frequently Tint was the speaker, while the other Paint Bogy drew caricatures and made fun of all that Tint said. Not a very polite way of conducting herself, but the Paint Bogies were both merry little bodies, and never got provoked with each other."

in some slight measure, by the pictures we give here. But it is only in a very slight measure for, indeed, no two or three samples can ever suggest the variety that the pretty book contains. Here are splendid pictures of horses, and dogs, and cows, and donkeys; portraits, by the score, of the dearest little people in the world; wood-cuts from famous pictures; funny silhouettes and quaint devices, music pages, long stories and short stories, bright songs and funny verses, and—but we might go on and cover the four hundred pages of the book. It is, in brief, exceedingly pretty, and any child may have it for whom somebody is willing to spend so little as $1.25; and certainly that is very little money for the delights any darling will enjoy in getting the book, or any papa or mamma, or uncle or aunt, or papa's friend, or anybody else, will obtain, in turn, from the thanks of the grateful recipient. What a splendid time of Santa Claus himself must have in carrying around his stacks of such beautiful books as these to the children!

THE BODLEY BOOKS.

"THESE books were written for the amusement of children. They contain some of the doings of Nathan, Philippa, and Lucy Bodley, their father and mother, the hired man Martin and his brother Hen, Nathan's cousin Ned, Nathan's pig, the dog Neptune, Lucy's kitten, Lucy's doll, Mr. Bottom the horse, chickens, mice; and have, besides, stories told to the children by their parents, by Martin, and by each other." It is Mr. Horace E. Scudder who has written them, and he knows all about children, and the children know all about him; for he is the one who told of "Dream Children," and of "Seven Little People and their Friends;" and he has two dear little girls of his own, to whom, indeed, these Bodley books are dedicated:

To SYLVIA AND ETHEL.

They came by night at the turn of the year;
One was dark and one was fair;
It would have been lonely for one to be here,
So both came down the heavenly stair.

The books, of which the price is $1.50 each, are "The Doings of the Bodley Family." published last year, but issued this season in most beautiful new fashion, in a cover of Japanesque figured paper, with strikingly rich decorations, and "The Bodleys Telling Stories," new this year, and quite as brilliant in binding as its companion book. The variety of stories, sketches, verses, and pictures inside these handsome covers is the more remarkable, since they all reach a high standard of excellence, either from the literary or the juvenile point of view. One of the features of the later book is that it is "steeped in the atmosphere of American history." The Bodleys live near Boston, and, in taking their little people to drive, they visit almost all the historical places of its neighborhood. And so the children even play history. Many classical poems are also woven into the story as recitations of the children. And, above all, as one of the critics observes, "their author is the most serene and non-sensational story-teller for children, and therefore the best antidote for 'fire-water' that we have. He does everything with the complete finish that characterizes the work of those only who see their end from the beginning, and so are never in a hurry."

ST. NICHOLAS' BOOK-SHOP.

AND now comes St. Nicholas himself, who has a private publishing-house of his own, as well as a share in most of the others. The magazine named in homage to him is always delightful, and the bound volume for 1877 is, we were about to say, the most wonderful collection of the best and sweetest art and literature for children that ever has been published. Its editor, Mary Mapes Dodge, has that rare faculty for selection of the fittest which many scientific men deny that even nature possesses. By some means she succeeds in urging the contributors to extraordinary efforts; and, instead of finding Whittier, Longfellow, Bryant, Proctor, Thomas Hughes, George MacDonald, and the others, writing as if under a strain—as with most authors when treading unaccustomed paths—in St. Nicholas we find them talking to the children just as they would if all the dear boys and girls were clustered about their knees, with the firelight playing over the golden, the brown, and the gray heads. The grown folks should indeed be thankful to Mrs. Dodge for the better acquaintance with children's natures which the magazine has given.

The programme announced for the next year (the fifth volume) beginning with the number for November, 1877, is equal to the performance of the last. Louisa M. Alcott, whose stories have been read by all the world, will contribute a serial for girls, with the pretty title of "Under the Lilacs." Gustavus Frankenstein will have a continued, story for boys, "Tower Mountain." There will be a series of instructive and entertaining papers, by various authors, "The How Series," and another set, equally interesting, descriptive of foreign life. The wide range of St. Nicholas is suggested by the specimen illustrations given in these pages.

The Christmas (December) number of St. Nicholas will be received as the finest of all the splendid holiday numbers issued by the publishers. One hundred thousand copies are printing, and among the contributions, besides the serials already mentioned, are poems by Longfellow and Bryant, a short story by the author of "Alice in Wonderland," and other articles of remarkable interest. There is a new cover design, from the hand of Walter Crane, the famous designer of "The Baby's Opera," and, with other artistic attractions, it is a golden number. By all means, let everybody who desires to see a healthy moral and mental growth in children subscribe, through his bookseller, for St. Nicholas for his little friends.

St. Nicholas' publishers, Scribner & Co., have also issued a delightful large octavo book. called "Baby Days," for mothers to read to [their very little ones. It is full of songs and stories, all aimed to enlarge young minds, while affording them healthy food and amusement, and written by authors who have proved themselves able to reach and charm the child-heart.

able to reach and charm the child-heart. The pictures, three hundred in number, are full of suggestion, fun, and art. The volume has been made up from previous issues of St. Nicholas, for the special purpose of providing a book for the very little folks, all to themselves.

The Wolfday Gift Books.

We present below, arranged alphabetically by publishers, a running descriptive list of the holiday gift books of the season, with brief references to other volumes for the library or parlor-table, that may fairly be classed among the books for Christmas presents. So generous is the offering of the publishers that the reader's difficulty will be, we fear, not what to choose, but what not to choose. Every kind of book, at every price, is to be found somewhere in the list, and of the more important a full description, with illustrative cuts in connection with it, is to be found in the previous pages.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY of course lays its strength chiefly at holiday times on a books for the little folks, but we may note as admirably suitable for holiday presents their fine "Teachers' Bible," one of the best editions in the world, in any variety of styles, at prices ranging from $4 to $15, at which latter it can be had in full American levant, a piece of binding which, of its kind, cannot be surpassed in the world. Two volumes of religious interest are "God's Word Man's Light and Guide," a series of Sunday-school lectures by eminent clergymen ($1.50), and "The Old Bible and the New Science," by Rev. Dr. J. B. Thomas ($1.50). A new edition of "The Name Above Every Name," which is Christmasy with its list of the names of Christ ($1). "Daily Light on the Daily Path," which sells by the ten thousand, and "Our Little Ones in Paradise," a compilation for bereaved parents, may also be mentioned.

D. APPLETON & Co. do not present as many holiday books as usual on their list of this year, but have nevertheless several books for the season, and of course an indefinite line on their regular list, of books that are bought for Christmas presents by the hundreds and thousands. "The Life and Words of Christ." by Dr. Cunningham Geikie, D.D., an elaborate work, in two volumes, with a dozen engravings on steel, at $8, is a work of broad religion, earnest devotion, scholarly thought, and elegant style, which, it is said, will rival, if not surpass, Farrar's, in the reputation it is destined to make. Such a book as this is of course peculiarly acceptable as a Christmas gift, especially to a clergyman. A volume of "Gems of the Centennial Exhibition," quarto, $6, is rich in illustrations as well as descriptions of the objects of art from all countries there exhibited. It is the complete work of which the papers in Appletons' Art Journal, among the most beautiful of the articles on the Centennial, have been parts. Of course, there is a book on "Pottery and Porcelain," which covers the ground from the earliest times down to the Centennial Exhibition; it is by Charles Wyllys Elliott, whose name is well known in connection with the Household Art Company of Boston, and as an The handsome book, which costs art writer. $5, has 165 illustrations, and contains the more important of the marks and monograms. Those who are seeking one of the many books on this subject would do well to include it in their list. There is a new Lacroix volume, "Science and Literature in the Middle Ages," illustrated, like the previous beautiful volumes, with a dozen or more chromo plates and 250 engravings on wood, very richly bound, at $12. All these books are unusually popular at Christmastime. The illustrated edition of Bryant's Poems, published a year or so ago, should not be forgotten at holiday-time.

A. S. BARNES & Co. do not present any special holiday books, but their "Student's Commonplace Book," which combines a printed manual of literature with the blanks of an index rerum ($4.50), is useful for a present; and attention may be called to the new volume, of Dale Lectures on Preaching, by Rev. R. W. Dale, of England, which are just published.

most characteristic while rurest subjects of that strange genius; bound proofs on India paper, in folio, at $8. The series of seventy-two etchings after the old masters, by William Unger, is now completed, and is one of the finest of books for those who have so much as $80 to spend for the completed volume. Another sumptuous book, to be completed in

J. W. BOUTON has, as always, a fine list of imported works de luxe, among which the most notable are a superb new volume of seventeen etchings from the leading "Examples of Contemporary Art," from the studios of living English and Continental artists, a large folio in wellum cloth, at $12, interesting to all who are capable of enjoying the finest work. A second volume of etchings is Prof. W. Bell Scott's Etchings from the works of William Blake, with descriptive text, including many of the twenty parts, of which three are now issued, at $9 per part, is Racinet's great work on "Le Costume Historique," illustrated with 500 superb plates in gold, silver and colors, or in tinted lithography, and forming an absolute cyclopædia of its interesting subject. The new Lacroix books, "XVIIIme Siècle, Lettres Industrie, Sciences et Arts," is imported by Mr. Bouton in the original French edition, and is a superb work, with 15 chromos and 250 engravings on wood, in a rich binding, at $13.50.

His lists and his store are both full of art works of the most sumptuous character, from thousands of dollars down.

J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS issue a superb giftbook from their lithographic press in Boston, in their edition of Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner" ($7.50), always a favorite subject for the pencil of the artist, admitting, as it does, of the fullest use of imaginative genius. The illustrations are twenty large plates by the celebrated English artist, J. Noel Paton, R.S.A., familiar to the public in the many smaller reproductions, but here presented complete and in large size. The vigorous strength and weird power of these plates need no commendation. They are presented in a large oblong folio, tastefully bound in gilt and black stamping, which makes a holiday book most creditable to these newcomers into the publishing field.

CASSELL, PETTER & GALPIN have one of the most superb art books of the year in "Great Painters of Christendom," edited by J. Forbes Robinson, a book lavish in full-page and other illustrations, and giving exquisite reproduc-tions of the finest works of the old masters and modern painters, with portraits and many beautiful decorative pieces. It is almost a cyclopædia of modern art, and forms a glorious royal quarto, at $20. A full-page plate and description of the book have already been given. Another fine art work is the "Royal Academy Album," including 40 permanent photographs, after the most beautiful paintings in the Exhibition of 1877, with descriptive text, edited by " The L. Jennings, another royal 4to, at $25. "The Leopold Shakspere," new within a year, is a compact volume of nearly 1200 pages, with about 400 illustrations, which has been received by very many critics as the most satisfactory one-volume edition of the greatest of poets; it is offered in various styles, at from $4.50 to $10. Mr. Furnivall's elaborate introduction to the work is itself one of the most admirable treatises on Shakespeare and his works that has yet been presented. There is a second volyet been presented. There is a second vol-ume of Professor Henry Morley's "Library of English Literature," covering "Illustrations of English Religion," with many quotations and cuts from the early books, etc., in a handsome volume at $5. The fifth volume of Walter Thornbury's "Old and New London," fully illustrated ($4.50), is ready; the finely illustrated "History of the United States," by Ollier and Chester, is completed by the issue of the third volume ($4.50 per volume), and there is a new "History of India," by James Grant, also illustrated in the lavish style of the Cassell books, at $4 a volume. The "History of Prot-estantism," by Rev. J. A. Wylie, LL.D., is a superb three-volume work, also profusely illustrated, at $5 a volume, excellent for presentation to a clergyman. Among their books, an elaborate "Dictionary of Cookery," comprising nearly 1200 pages and 9000 receipts, is to be noted, at $6.50.

JOHN CHURCH & Co. publish a welcome holiday book for musical people in "The Great Tone-Poets" ($1.50), in which Mr. F. Crowest groups together informing sketches of the great masters, with critical descriptions of their works, including Bach, Handel, Gluck, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Weber, Rossini, Schubert, Mendelssohn, and Schumann.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. reach the art tastes of the day with a practical little book on "China Painting" (75 c.), which could be given accept ably to many people, as it tells how one may make many beautiful things for one's self.

CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER call attention at Christmastide to many works in standard literature with their imprint, among them Rollin's, Macaulay's, Hume's, and Gibbon's histories, the works of Shakespear, Hazlitt, Goldsmith, etc., and other standards, offered in fine bindings, of which a list will be found elsewhere.

From Church's "S.lhouettes." (Estes & Lauriat.)

Dodd, Mead & Co. bring out this season the most important publication that this young but enterprising firm has yet undertaken, Lübke's great "History of Art," in two volumes, $7 each, which is described more fully elsewhere. No pains or expense has been spared to make this superior to the latest editions, both German and English, and with Mr. Burlingame's new translation and the admirable work Mr. Clarence Cook has put into both the text and the illustrations, and in his own new notes, it is a superb work. The stories of Rev. E. P. Roe, with their religious bearing, are great favorites at Christmas-time, and are presented in very attractive binding, at a most reasonable price. There are other pleasant books for grown people on their excellent list.

DONNELLEY, LOYD & Co., publishers of the Lakeside novels, issue a mammoth holiday volume in "The Fireside Library," a well-filled folio, containing a remarkable variety of stories and poems by the best writers, including complete novels of Reade, Wilkie Collins, and several others, bound in cloth, with gilt stamping, and illustrated with full-page wood engravings, at $5.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have Farrar's "Life of Christ," one of the books that belong peculiarly to Christmas. It has attained a wide popularity as a book reflecting the catholic spirit of Christians of to-day, and is presented in various editions, from $2.50 up. Their pretty set of "Devout Classics"—the works of Jeremy Taylor and others—neatly boxed, is also to be borne in mind. New this year is Phillip Brookes' series of "Yale Lectures on Preaching," which is considered by many the best of the courses, all of them good, so far preached on the Beecher foundation.

ESTES & LAURIAT have a capital Christmas budget for great folks and little folks alike in their series of amusing "Silhouettes." In each set (50 cents each) are ten or a dozen silhouettes on leaves fastened together, exceedingly bright and clever, and the two sets are to be had together in a neat portfolio at $2. The regular list of this house contains many superb books for Christmas presents, such as the sumptuously illustrated Guizot's Histories, the "Globe Encyclopædia," and the like. Their edition of Haydon's Life and Letters, an exact reproduction of the full English edition, in two volumes, at $6 each, is a new book that many will be glad to put on their shelves at Christmas.

HARPER & BROTHERS meet all tastes with their great variety of beautiful books this year, but have devoted themselves chiefly to meet the general demand for popular art literature. First is to be noted their series of books in uniform shape, a pretty quarto, at $3.50 and $4 each, giving, as do all the Harper books, a great deal of value for their price. These are, "Contemporary Art in Europe," by Mr. Benjamin; "Art Education applied to Industry," by Col. Nichols, and "Art Decoration applied to Furniture," by

L'AURORE.-HAMON.

From "Contemporary Art in Europe." (Harper.)

GEBBIE & BARRIE issue a superb book, an edition de luxe of the work of the Marquis de Belloy on "Christopher Columbus and the Discovery of the New World," with illustrations designed and engraved by that prince of illustrators, Leopold Flameng. These comprise six fine full-page etchings and fifty admirable engravings on wood, picturing the scenes in the old world and the new of the life so interestingly followed in the text. They also publish, as volumes in "The Gentleman's Illustrated Library," the dramatic works of Molière, in Van Laun's new translation into English, with nineteen engravings on steel, three handsome octavo volumes, at $10.50.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co. publish a number of books that will be interesting to a special class of readers, our Scandinavian citizens. Their translations and adaptations of Norse saga and pictorial literature now include several important works. The volume of "Monday Chats," of Sainte-Beuve, the great French literary critic, fresh this fall ($2), may also be mentioned.

Mrs. Spofford, which is just ready. All of them are valuable as well as beautiful and very profuse in illustrations. The exquisite decorative border of our motto-page is from the frontispiece of the "Art Education." Other art books are Mr. William C. Prime's important work on "Pottery and Porcelain" ($7), and, more popular again, Mr. James Parton's book on "Caricature" ($5), which is exceedingly amusing. All these books are described more fully in the pages specially devoted to the Harper art books. "The Book of Gold, and other Poems," grave and gay, by J. T. Trowbridge ($2.50), includes his recent contributions to Harper's Magazine, and other later poems, and is very strong and interesting in its varied illustrations. The cover is of a novel and most rich design, which is one of the most striking surprises of the season, a season in which ingenuity has been lavished on endeavors after new and striking effects. One of the illustrations is worked in lithography on the side in rich bronze colors, and the book is half bound in buff leather, suggesting in its binding the title of the book itself. The design was suggested by the binding of an old missal. Di Cesnola's important work describing and illustrating his "Researches and Discoveries in the Island of Cyprus" is just ready. Books suit-illustrations and striking side-stamping, is not to forgotten as a table-book, at a low price.

HENRY HOLT & Co. present as their special gift-book this year "Single Famous Poems," a handsome square 12mo, at $2.50, in which Mr. Rossiter Johnson, the well-known editor of able for horiday gifts, and especially for the library, are to be found on the Harper list in the utmost variety. The Doré "Ryme of the Ancient Mariner" ($10), Wolf's "Wild Animals" ($4), the "Jesus of Nazare,h," of Lyman Abbott ($3.50), Reclus' well-known books on popular geology ($5 and $6 each), are among the most noteworthy illustrated books; while among those for the library-shelf are such works as those of Motley, Trevelyan's Macaulay, and the books of travel of which this great house has always made a specialty. The Household Dickens, by the way, with its many

"Little Classics," has collected those famous poems which nobody ever can find—which have, for the most part, circulated in newspapers and found a permanent place only in the corners of collections here and there. They have also a new book, similar in decoration to the beautiful "Pearl Fountain" of last year, in "The Prince of Argolis," a story of the old Grecian fairy-time, having no less than one hundred and thirty illustrations by J. Moyr Smith, who illustrated the previous book. It is an amusing semi-burlesque of a Grecian fairy tale, with dainty classical illustrations, following closely in their details the latest discoveries about Greek art, and with many curious little bits of decoration introduced all

HURD & HOUGHTON have this year a very beautiful book, by Benjamin P. Avery, of "Californian Pictures in Prose and Verse" The text is descriptive of the finest while least known Californian scenery, and superb full-page illustrations by Thomas Moran and others, make the book worthy of the scenery it represents. Among holiday books of previous years should be mentioned "Forest Scenes" ($6.50), poems, with illustrations by John A. Hows; the red line edition of the "Poetical Works of Alice and Phoebe Cary" ($3.50); Mrs. Clements' excellent hand-books on art; the English poets in the new "Riverside Edition;" the new editions of standard English authors, as Dickens, Scott and De Quincey; and the fine two-volume edition of Bacon's select works—the latter, all of them, fine works for the owner of a private library. The taste of the proprietors of the Riverdside Press is well known, and in reissuing these standard works they have made books whose editing and arrangement please the scholar as much as their typography and get-up please new and cheaper edition of the "Pearl Fountain," a book of fairy stories, at the same low price. The "Vers de Société" of last year is reduced in price from $7.50 to $4, and is a book as bright and fresh now as it was then. Taine's English Literature, on their list, is always a book to be thought of at holiday-time, and there is this year a new one-volume edition at $3.75. Thornbury's Life of Turner, the artist, is an interesting art book, brilliant with the colored reproductions of Turner's most famous paintings; and the set of books on the war countries, Russia, Turkey, and Egypt, an important trio, may fairly be included among books that recommend themselves for gifts. On this list also are to be found such beautiful illustrated books as the Taine-Doré "Pyrenees," such standards as the editions of Mill, Maine, Tylor, and other foremost writers, and such lighter works as those of Richter, the novelists Hardy, Mrs. Alexander, Auerbach, Winthrop, and prising Max Müller's "Memories," Lamartine's "Graziella," and Pushkin's "Marie," neatly issued in red-line, at $1.50 each. These are charming volumes, both in their contents and exterior, and illustrate the high standard which Western publishers are setting for themselves.

JANSEN, McCLURG & Co. call fresh attention to their pretty books from foreign tongues, com-

From "Californian Pictures." (Hurd & Houghton.)

LEE & SHEPARD have a new volume in their tasteful and attractive series of popular religious poems, finely illustrated and bound in holiday style, an admirable present for those who desire to make their Christmas gifts convey a suggestion of the religious character of the day. The two previous books were Mr. Lincoln's tavorite poem, "Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" and the famous hymn, "Nearer, my God, to Thee;" for this year they have selected as a fit companion Henry Francis Lyte's touching and beautiful hymn, "Abide with me." Miss L. B. Humphreys has made the designs, which are very tender and lovely, and the book is exquisitely printed on heavy plate paper, and bound in a neat, small quarto, at but $2.00. Illustrative pages have already been given. For a wider popular market, Mr. George M. Baker, well known as a compiler of excellent judgment in hitting the public taste, has added to his "Ballads of Beauty" and "Ballads of Home" a third companion volume, into which he has collected the favorite and most stirring 'Ballads of Beauty" ($3.50 each). A large number of poets are represented, and the poems are illustrated by a full-page picture at every other leaf—forty in all. A new style of binding has been gotten up for these books, which, in quarto size, are stamped showily in gilt, red and black. A new edition of an old favorite, "Æsop's Fables," with Griset's superb illustrations to the number of more than one hundred, appears in the same size and style, and at the same price, and commends itself, alike by the humorous and admirable illustrations, the large and handsome text, and the clever binding design, suggested by one of the fables, to both old and young. Lee & Shepard have also on their list a great variety of standard and other attractive books.

is worthy to take rank with those sumptuous books of previous years, Davillier's "Spain" and Trollope's "Italy," and is beautiful with 425 wood-cuts, largely full page, by the first artists and engravers of Germany. The "storied Rhine" is world-famed as the most picturesque of rivers, and its scenery and historic associations give exceptional opportunity to the pencil of the artist, which in this volume has been made the most of. It costs, in imperial quarto, extra cloth, $18. The same house has for more modest purses three books made up from the interesting papers and illustrations of travel for which

S. H. LEGGETT sends out this year, as her first important venture in publishing, a book which takes rank among the chief successes of the season, "Golden Songs of Great Poets" ($5). For it she has secured a number of original poems by the leading American poets, as well as illustrations from many of our first artists. Oliver Wendell Holmes writes the introductory, "On the Threshold;" Bryant, "The Song Sparrow;" Longfellow, "The Poets;" Whittier, "June on the Merrimac;" Lowell, "The Firefly, a Parable;" and Bayard Taylor, "The Lost Caryatid." The illustrations to these poems are as varied in style as the poems are varied in subject; and, indeed, no pains have been spared to make the book worthy of the contributions on which it is based. The binding is of novel design, having fac-similes of the autographs of the contributors in gold stamping, and altogether the book is one which does credit to the pluck and good taste of this lady new-comer among the publishers.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have one of the fine books of the year in "The Rhine, from its Source to the Sea," a work translated by G. C. T. Bartley, from the German of Carl Stieler, H. Wachenhusen, and F. W. Hackländer. This Lippincott's Magazine has been noted: "Wanderings in Four Continents," and "Persons, Places, and Things," $3 each; and "Highways and Byways of American Travel," in which the text is by Edward Strahan, Sidney Lanier, E. A. Pollard, and others, a book at the still cheaper price of $2, notwithstanding its numerous illustrations. One of the most fitting books of the season is the new edition de luxe of a first of religious classics, "On the Imitation of Christ," by Thomas & Kempis, an edition which is presented as the finest in the market, beautiful with etchings and wood emarket, beautiful with etchings and wood emarket, beautiful with etchings and wood engravings, and richly bound in vellum cloth, at $5. "Pegasus Resaddled," by H. C. Pennell, is a second clever book by the author of "Puck on Pegasus," with happy illustrations by Du Maurier ($2.50), which will please the admirers of society verses. There is a new illustrated edition of "Maud" ($4), Mr. H. A. Herr being the artist. Rev. H. C. Batterson, D.D., presents a volume of "Christmas Carols, and Other Verses," red-line, $1; and their list is otherwise rich in attractive works.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co. have devoted their especial attention this year to pleasing the young people with the prettiest books possible, but among their new books several of interest to grown people may be mentioned—as an illustrated volume on "The Story of the Creation," by Rev. Dr. S. M. Campbell, a popular contribution to the discussion of science and religion, and a "Life of Edward Norris Kirk, D.D.," an interesting biography each other, and besides the pleasant gossip about them, their history, and their homes, there are portraits and views of the homes of most of them. The famous Moody and Sankey hymn. "The Ninety and Nine," forms the text of a prettily illustrated small quarto volume, the illustrations by Robert Lewis, which makes of a man remembered in connection with the founding of the American Chapel at Paris. Their pretty "Wayside Series" of novels is also not to be overlooked; a new volume by Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney, "Bourbon Lilies," is just about ready.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have one book, originally planned in Wide Awake for the delectation of little folks, which has attracted quite as much if not more attention from grown people—the series of papers on "Poets' Homes," now made into a $2 volume. Fifteen prominent American poets and writers are talked about, for the most part by an admirable religious gift at $2. Besides many other books on this list, we may note new editions of the admirable "Golden Treasury" books, in red-line, at $3 each.

Macmillan & Co. present one of the most interesting works that has ever been written about that interesting country, China. It is by the veteran Archdeacon Gray, who has resided there for twenty years, and treats fully of the laws, manners, and customs of the Chinese, including also 150 full-page illustrations of the oddest sort, since they are designed by Chinese artists, and give the Chinese view of the home life and customs of the country. It is in two fine 8vo volumes, in similar style to "Holland House," at $10. The volumes of the previous years in this shape are also to be kept in mind: "Holland House," White's "Selborne," Mrs. Oliphant's "Makers of Florence," etc. Professor J. Norman Lockyer adds to his series of sumptuous books one on "Star-Gazing, Past and Present," a history of instrumental astronomy, in a profusely illustrated 8vo, at $7. In the "Golden Treasury Series" there are new volumes: the "Religio-Medici," by Sir Thomas Browne, and a nine-volume Shakespeare; and we should not forget to note that one of the pleasantest books for boys and girls is Miss Yonge's pleasant papers of kindly counsel on and to "Womankind." The list is otherwise strong in fine standards.

From " House Beautiful." (Scribner, A. & Co.)

Nelson & Phillips have a new volume of Christmas poetry in "Christmas Chimes" ($2.50), edited by Mrs. E. J. Knowles, and with an introduction by Rev. Dr. J. F. Hurst. Under the divisions of Chimes of Promise, of Peace, of Sorrow, of Joy, the volume collects a number of interesting religious poems, and it is illustrated by Miss Mary A. Lathbury, whose charming illustrations to "Fleda and the Voice" made that book one of the Christmas features of last year. The list of this house, the Methodist Book Concern, contains a number of works of religious interest that appeal to Christians at large, as well as to those of the Methodist connection. Among these is Virginia F. Townsend's new book, the thrilling story of "The Protestant Queen of Navarre, the Mother of the Bourbons" ($1.50).

THOMAS NELSON & SONS offer as their most popular book a new volume of "English Pictures," by Rev. Samuel Manning, uniform with several similar volumes on other countries of previous years, in a handsome large volume, at $3.50. The text is interesting, and the book is studded with the most charming illustrations of English scenery and historic buildings. The frontispiece is a colored plate of Stoke Pogis churchyard, and the binding is very brilliant. "The Mediterranean Illustrated" is a picturesque book about the shores of that historic sea, including 30 full-page and over 100 other engravings, in a royal folio, at $6. There is a new edition of a similar book, "The Arctic World Illustrated," at $6.50; and a compendium of "Recent Polar Voyages," also finely illustrated, but in more modest shape, at $2.50, will interest the same class of readers. Other beautiful books are included among those presented by this house.

Noyes, Snow & Co. have a Christmas book from the pen of Rev. E. F. Burr, D.D., the author of "Ecce Cœlum" and of "Pater Mundi." Under the title of "From Dawn to Day," Dr. Burr has grouped two original poems, "The Ballad of the Nile" and "The Ballad of Bethlehem." giving the stories of Moses and of Christ, and thus illustrating the festal day in both the old and the new dispensations. With some thirty or forty full-page cuts, in rich holiday binding, small quarto, the book will make a handsome Christmas gift, at $3.50.

JAS. R. OSGOOD & Co. have this year hit upon a most happy plan for the accommodation of those unhappy mortals whose generosity is boundless and whose taste is of the best, but whose purses are neither boundless nor very They have selected representative and favorite poems of four leading American poets, and finished them with the most charming illustrations, and each of these is presented by it-self in a dainty small quarto of tasteful and elegant binding, at the moderate price of a dollar and a half—which should be within any one's limits. As will be seen from the descriptive and illustrative pages elsewhere, the four poems, "The River Path," "Excelsior," "The Rose" and "Baby Bell," afford a wide variety of subject, which is the more evident in the superb $5 volume into which they are all bound together, under the title of "Christmastide," making a book similar to "The Hanging of the Crane," "Mabel Martin," and "The Skeleton in Armor," which all retain a deserved popularity. The new heliotype books ($10 each) this year are "The Millais Gallery," with twenty-four reproductions of the most celebrated pictures of that famous artist, descriptive text and a biographical sketch, and "The Faed Gallery," doing the same for the painter of "Evangeline" and of the quaint and pathetic figures and scenes from Irish and Scotch low-life which have given him wide reputation. The other heliotype works, Raphael, etc., are always fresh, and one charming volume, "Child-Life in Pictures," is to be reduced from its old large and costly shape to be uniform with the "Child-Life" in poetry and prose, at $3. The illustrated edition of prose, at $3. The illustrated edition of Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" in red-line ($5) shows the strongest work yet done by Mary Hallock (Foote), and the high praise may be awarded to her illustrations that they are as powerful as the story itself. A double page is given to this book also, and many of the vignettes of this number are from its beautiful Hawthorne's name recalls the fact that Mr. Stedman's recent volume, "Haw-thorne, and other Poems" (dedicated, by the way, to Mr. Benj. H. Ticknor, of the Osgood house), is one of the most charming books of the season for lovers of the poets. Mr. Jas. Parton's "The French Parnassus," in the holiday edition, at $3.50, gives the finest of French brief poems, from 1550 down, with biographical notes on the poets, etc., and takes its place alongside Mr. Emerson's and Mr. Whittier's volumes of English selections. A gathering of "Tears for the Little Ones," from prose and poetic literature, by Mrs. Helen K. Johnson, is a book of comfort for bereaved parents, in a neat red-line volume. The new illustrated library edition of Dr. Holmes's poems, complete, ($5), should not be forgotten, and the fully

PORTER & COATES issue this year no special holiday gift books for the elders, but their new and cheap editions of Dickens's Works and the Waverley Novels are always in season. The several volumes of the "Art at Home" series, "Music in the House" (75 cts.), etc., are in pretty shape, and interesting books; and the volume on "Historic Mansions and Buildings of Philadelphia," finely illustrated, in rich quarto, at $5, is interesting to readers in that locality, as well as in others, not least for its notices illustrated favorite edition of Tennyson, complete and in brilliant binding, at the marvellously low price of $1.50, makes a fine present for little money. A superbly illustrated edition of "Frithiof's Saga," in a new translation by L. A: Sherman, highly commended by Mr. Longfellow, the plates by a distinguished Swedish artist ($7.50), is a book for lovers of poetry and art. Charles Dudley Warner furnishes another of his delightful volumes, on "Being a Boy" ($1.50)—he seems to have grown up a good deal of a boy,—and new editions of "My Summer in a Garden" and "Back-o-log Studies" are issued in like style at the same reduced prices. Lovers of light and bright literature will be glad to see the new edition of "One Summer" ($3.50), which has illustrations from Mr. Hoppins' clever pencil. To those who love literature pure and simple, the Osgood list offers perennial attractions in its standard editions of American poets and prose authors, not to speak of the books for everybody's stocking in the "Little Classic" and "Vest Pocket" series.

of the occupants and owners thereof. The books on "Famous Horses of America" may be noted as interesting a special class of read-

GEORGE P. PUTNAM'S SONS have one of the most unique books of the season in Mr. Bryant's poem of "The Flood of Years" ($3), with the designs from the pencil and graver of W. J. Linton. How pretty a book it is, is suggested by the specimen illustrations on another page. It is bound in simple elegance, with side-stampings of silver, and silver edges, producing an effect as beautiful as it is novel. "Helen's an effect as beautiful as it is novel. Babies" makes its reappearance in a handsome illustrated edition, under the title of "Budge and Toddie." The illustrations are by Lucy G. Morse, and the many thousands—we had almost said millions-of people who have read about the tricksy imps will be glad to find out how they actually looked. One of the best books for holiday presentation to a scholar is Van Laun's "History of French Literature," now completed in three handsome volumes, similar to Taine's English Literature, at $7.50 for the complete set. Attention may also be called to the new edition, brought up to August, 1877, of the "World's Progress, a Dictionary of Dates" ($4 50), and the "Cyclopedia of Biographies," edited by Parke Godwin ($3.50), and the excellent series of library and table atlases, published by this house, at prices within the reach of any pocket.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have a pretty specialty in their "ribbon-bound books," of which an especially timely one is "Christmas Evergreens," by Rose Porter; another fresh number is by Rev. Dr. John Hall, "You and Your Children. Happy Homes: How to Make Them." These books, if so they may be called, are collections of individual leaves, tied together between illuminated covers with bright Charles Sumner" ($6). There are few works in biographical and anecdotical literature more interesting than this, not only for the memories which cluster around the central figure, but for his early association with such men as Longfellow, Prescott, Bancroft, Story, and their peers. There are few books that more thoroughly belong to an American gentleman's library; and in the manner of their publication, with the two admirable portraits of Sumner, nothing is left to be desired. Mrs. Moulton's delicious volume of "Poems" is a pleasant addition to their remarkable line of poetry.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have a handsome and attractive volume, "Art Rambles in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland," by John T. Reid, a pretty, small quarto, including bits of ribbon, and are to be had at the modest price of from 40 to 75 cents each. They are, as Pepys says, "mighty pretty" things for the Christmas stocking. Mrs. E. Prentiss's new story "Pemaquid," a novel of olden times in Yankee land, will please many at this time; and for the kitchen there is a novel present in "Cookery Cards for the Kitchen," six sheets intended to be hung up on the kitchen-wall, at 50 cents. Of course, the delightful volumes of religious poems. "The Changed Cross," "The Shadow on the Rock," and "The Chamber of Peace," which have sold by the hundred thousand, are as popular now as ever.

ROBERTS BROS. offer this year no new illustrated gift-book, unless the new edition of Retzsch's remarkable outline illustrations to Shakespeare shall be ready in time. But Bida's superbillustrations of the book of Ruth, as well as other previous volumes on their list, should not be forgotten, and in the new set of Walter Savage Landor's "Imaginary Conversations," one of the classics of English, there is a present to delight any one who can appreciate good literature. The set is in five volumes, of which the last includes an admirably full index to all the dialogues, never before properly indexed, and of all works needing a good index. It costs, complete in cloth, $10; in library dress of half calf, $15. But there are many who will prefer to select for a literary friend the two fine volumes of the "Memoir and Letters of 150 views from nature, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel ($10). "The Birthday Book of Flower and Song," with page illustrations in color and selections from the poets, is the most sumptuous work of this kind that has yet been brought out, costing $7.50. New editions of Sir Walter Scott's Poetical Works, with redline border and full page illustrations ($4), and of Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare," with Sir John Gilbert's illustrations ($4), as also the "Selections from the Poets" made by the late Mr. Bellew, the reader, with biographical sketches, printed with red-line border ($4), are also to be noted.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co.'s piece de resistance is the beautiful volume of "The House Beautiful" ($7.50), which is described and illustrated fully on a previous page. It is one of the most elegant of the many books on this topic this year, as those readers who have read Mr. Clarence Cook's papers in Scribner's will easily testify, and as our own readers will find from the pages elsewhere. Their list, one of the best of the season, is otherwise crowded with beautiful and solid books for the library-shelf. Among them, Dr. Schliemann's new work on "Ancient Mycenæ and Tiryns," with Mr. Gladstone's elaborate introduction, fully and most beautifully illustrated, stands first ($12). Next may be mentioned the new book on "Upper Egypt," the most popular country this year for the bookmakers, by Dr. Klunziger, illustrated from original sketches, a large octavo, at $3. Another book of travel is Dr. Henry M. Field's "From Egypt to Japan." In strong books for presentation to a scholar or clergyman may be mentioned President Woolsey's great work on "Political Science," in two volumes, at $3.50 perience, by Amelia B. Edwards, charmingly written, and illustrated with interesting drawings from her own pencil, in quarto, at the reduced price of $12. Jacquemari's "History of the Ceramic Art," a standard work on pottery, with its beautiful etchings, is presented in cloth this year at the much cheaper price of $10.50, each; Prof. H. B. Smith's "Faith and Philosophy" ($3 50); Dr. Shedd's "Theological Essays" ($2.50); Prof. G. P. Fisher's work on "The Beginnings of Christianity ($3); Bowen's elaborate summary of "Modern Philosophy" ($3), and Prof. C. W. Shields' treatise on "The Final Philosophy" ($3). The standard editions of previous works of such writers as these, and other well-known books, good at Christmas-time because they are good at every time, are also not to be overlooked.

SCRIBNER, WELFORD & ARMSTRONG have an interesting volume of travel in "A Thousand Miles Up the Nile," a volume of personal exand is also to be had in a number of new fine bindings. Trollope's "Italy" and the Doré "Spain" are sumptuous books that hold their own every season; and among less costly books may be noted especially "The Chandos Poets," beautifully illustrated editions in red-line, at $3.75 and upward per volume. The catalogue of this house comprises many of the finest old and new English illustrated and other volumes, which it would be useless to attempt to schedule.

J. L. SIBOLE & Co., Philadelphia, whose pretty book, "Violet with Eyes of Blue," was one of the pleasantest surprises last season, present this year another book similar in character but still more beautiful, "The Gathering of the Lilies" ($4). The poems, and the illustrations also, are again by L. Clarkson, who was introduced in the previous book. The poems themselves are pretty and bright, and the illustrations are exquisitely dainty. Four of these are chromoed, requiring seventeen different printings, after water-colors, and are very beautiful floral designs combined with scenes and figures. The other twelve are for the most part lithographed after crayon drawings, on tinted ground; and the lithography is exceptionally beautiful work. The volume is bound in novel style, and is likely to surpass the popularity of the previous book.

E. B. TREAT calls attention to the Moody Library, three volumes, containing respectively Mr. Moody's sermons in New York, Chicago and Boston, which sell together, in a box, at $4.50.

W. J. WIDDLETON publishes a line of standard books that are always to be borne in mind in holiday gift-buying, the works of such writers as the elder Disraeli, Hallam, Prof. Wilson, Lamb, Milman, and others. His many editions of Poe's works, collectively and separately, are also to be noted.

H. T. WILLIAMS has a taking and useful series of books in his practical works for the beautifying of the household. These books are not for the ambitious people who can spend money in costly household art, but are devoted to telling people of moderate purses what they can do for themselves. The new volume this year is "Beautiful Homes;" it is full of practical advice and illustrative pictures and diatrams, showing how any home can be made beautiful by the hands of its owners at very little cost. It is a delight to look over such a book and picture what can be done in the imagination (and, with a little vigor, in the actual) with the aid of its friendly suggestions. There are nearly 350 cuts The previous books of the series are the "Window Gardening," with 250 engravings; "Household Elegancies," with the same number, and "Ladies' Fancy Work," with 350 pictures; and by and by the series will be extended with a similar book on "Evening Amusements." These volumes are uniform, in pretty style, at $2 in a holiday edition, or $1.50 plain. In addition, there are various little books, "The Ladies' Guide," "Household Hints," "Fret Sawing," etc., still lower in price.

R. Worthington has a very charming set of books, fresh this year, in the "Handy Volume Waverley," pocket volumes of the most delightful shape and with a page marvellous at once for its compactness and clearness and beauty of type and binding, boxed neatly, at the price of $20 for the set. There are new red-line editions, from new plates, of Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome," and Aytoun's "Lays of Scottish Cavaliers ($1.25); as also cheap editions of the same book. The Lansdowne edition of the poets, published in England, by F. Warne & Co., in Oxford, red-line border, and otherwise handsomely gotten up, at $1.50, supplies an admirable gift-book at a low price. New editions are promised, both in red-line, at $2, and, in a cheaper edition, of Mr. George A. Baker Jr.'s society poems, "Point-Lace and Diamonds," and his papers of social satire, "The Bad Habits of Good Society." two bright books of the day that have already enjoyed wide popularity. A good many other capital books are to be found on his list.

The Little Folks.

WHEN Santa Claus gets to work for the children, we always find him at his best. The beautiful books he gets ready for the little people are such nowadays as fill their elders with equal delight, and indeed, as St. Nicholas says to its readers, they are meant for children from five years old up to seventy-five. The brightest writers and the best artists spare no pains to delight and to elevate the younger folk through the books on which the binder lavishes his best endeavors. All of which will be found proved by the evidence submitted below.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY publish a novelty, in the style of the English "Chatterbox," in "The American Chatterbox," a richly illustrated quarto, of 412 pages, of same size, manufactured by Frank Leslie. It resembles its English namesake in get-up and in its profusion of illustrations, and sells at the very low price of $1. They also have "The Queen of Picture Books," with sixty full-page illustrations, $2; "Pictures and Rhymes for Young Minds," "Pictures and Tales for Little Folks," "Our Little Folks' Picture Album," and "Pretty Pictures and Pretty Rhymes"—the last four having each twenty-two full-page chromo-illustrations, at $1.50 each. Besides, there are, in chromo board covers, "Friends of the Family," with twenty-four illustrations, 75 cents, "Chats with the Animals," one hundred illustrations, 75 cents, and "Little Tot's Treasury," 50 cents.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY has a most charming book in "Dear Old Stories Told Once More," a book by "Faith Latimer," whose name is assurance of its excellence. This tells the old Bible stories in attractive fashion and in large, clear type, with forty full-page illustrations, at a price of but $1.25. "Grace Ashleigh's Life Work," "Almost a Man," and "Betty and Harry," are new stories for older and younger children, with four to eight illustrations, at the low price of $1. One of the happiest hits of the Society this year is their line of little books in polished wood boxes: the "Holly Books," six square 24mos, in pretty cloth bindings, are furnished in one of these boxes at $1.50 a set; and the "Very Little Tales for Very Little Folks," four books in cloth, similarly put up, at 80 cents.

D. APPLETON & Co. present no especially new juveniles this year, but it is quite in order to call attention to that most lovely book, "Janet and Her Friends," issued both in French, in which it was originally written, and in an English translation, at $3 each. The author and artist is the youngest daughter of the late Chief-Justice Chase, and her book was received last year as one of the prettiest things of the season. Pleasant series of books, and single volumes in profusion, also bear the Appleton imprint.

From "Lilliput Land." (Baker, Pratt & Co.)

BAKER, PRATT & Co. issue an exceedingly pleasant book, one of the popular quartos, in "Lilliput Land" ($1.25), which contains all the good things of "Peepshow," edited by the clever lady who wrote that bright book, "Lilliput Levee." It is presented in a very tasteful cover of chocolate-brown design, very attractive and rich without being gaudy, and the variety of pictures of all sorts—really an extraordinary variety of styles—and of pleasant text makes it exceptionally noteworthy.

ROBERT CARTER & BROS. have ready a book which is Christmas itself, for it is the story told for little people of the Master of Christmas Himself. This is, "Brighter than the Sun, or Christ the Light of the World" ($3.50), a pleas-helpful as well as pleasant; not to speak of the many sets in boxes, of which this house also makes a specialty.

There are a number of other series, down to the "Picture Page Library," which has a chromo side, a picture at every opening, and costs only 25 cents a volume.

DONNELLEY, LOYD & Co. issue a book for boys that contains enough of thrilling excitement to keep them supplied till Christmas comes again—"The Boy's Winter Evening Lithe Children who Live in It." Mrs. Sanford has a remarkable faculty for entertaining the children, and the new book is not only delightful in its reading, but beautiful with full-page cuts and with many scattered through the text. The previous books of the series, "A Houseful of Children," "Frisk and His Flock," the story of dog Frisk and the flock of children at school, and "Pussy Tip-Toes' Family" itself, are offered this year in a new and very beautiful style of binding, in illuminated boards. These books cost in cloth, full gilt, $2.25; in boards, $1.25 each. A similar book is the story of the performing dog, "Capt. Fritz, his Friends and Adventures," by Mrs. Emily

Huntington Miller, of Chicago, whom the young people know as the editress of one of their most popular papers. This, with seventy clever illustrations, is priced at $1.50. "The Sunday Evening Hour" ($1.50) is another book poems most likely to interest children, from the tiny tots to those growing into manhood and womanhood. This is their child-book of the year; but many others should not be forgotten, children. varied with bright stories, pleasant sketches, merry poems, and illustrations as varied as the text. A descriptive page will be found earlier in this issue. Mr. Scudder's previous books for the little people and others on this list are only less worthy of notice.

HURD & HOUGHTON tempt the little folks with two books, whose brilliant covers are nothing short of irresistible: "The Bodleys Telling Stories," new this year, and "The Doings of the Bodley Family," of last, reissued in new shape, each at $1.50. Both these are edited by Mr. H. E. Scudder, who knows as do few others how to entertain and delight the Jansen, McClurg & Co. have two bright books, telling children something practical about cooking and housekeeping—"Six Little Cooks; or "Aunt Jane's Cooking Class" ($1), and the new volume, "Dora's Housekeeping" ($1.25), by the same author. These pretty books should go to every child who owns atin kitchen!

LEE & SHEPARD have always been famous for their juveniles, whose writers include many of the most popular of the day. One of the prettiest things in the market this year is their hooks by Seekers," and other books by such bright authors as Trowbridge, Elijah Kellogg, and Cozzens. The boys will take especial delight in Capt. Hall's new book of Arctic adventure, "Adrift in the Ice Fields" ($1.50), as thrilling as the most eager could wish, and full of sailors' yarns told about the ship's store, with many clever illustrations; Dr. Hayes's similar book, "Cast Away in the Cold" ($1.75), is presented in a new edition, in quarto size, also fully illustrated. Both these books are in very chaste while taking bindings, whereon silver stamping does duty for the ice. Oliver Optic has a new book, "Isles of the Sea" ($1.50), completing "Young America Abroad " so has Rev. Elijah Kellogg, "Forest Glen" ($1.25), the fifth in the series of that name. These also for the boys; for the girls there is a new and bright story by Sophie May, "The Quinnebassett Girls" ($1.50). "Child Marion Abroad," by W. M. F. Round, is the very pleasant story of a bright little girl's journeying through Europe, what she saw and what she did—a delightful book, interestingly illustrated ($1.25). "Each and All" ($1) is illustrated ($1.25). a companion to and continuation of the story of that charming volume, "The Seven Little Sisters who Live on the Round Ball that Floats in the Air," a book deservedly famous; both these are suitable for quite young children. Lee & Shepard's list is also crowded with juveniles by other standard writers for children, in volumes and in pretty sets; of Mary G. Darling's lads," and it has Pletsch's charming cuts of children for illustration; the preceding ones in the set are Mrs. Follen's "Little Songs," and "New Songs for Little People," by Mrs. Anderson ($1 each). They are just starting also a new series, "Our Lucky Series," in fifty-cent well-known books, "Battles at Home" and "In the World," and of Mrs. Geo. L. Austin's charming compilation of child-poems, "The Little People of God, and what the Poets have said of them," there are new editions, respectively, at $1 and $2.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co., in the multitude of their juveniles, lay especial stress, as the public have, upon the new series of "My Books," edited by Uncle Herbert, whose "Prattler" was one of the successes of last year. These are: "My Primer," "My Pet Book," and "My Own Book," suited respectively to the several more than a hundred of the most charming illustrations, so droll as to set Santa Claus a-laughing almost out of his boots. Some of them are given in the special pages elsewhere. The book costs but $1.50, and that pretty book of stories on astronomy, by the same writer, published last year, "In the Sky Garden," with silhouettes ages of children, and richly illustrated with fullpage and other illustrations, at from 30 cts. to 75 cts. Another book by Uncle Herbert is "The Budget," a picture and story book for boys and girls, similar to the "Prattler," at $1.25. "Six Hundred Robinson Crusoes" is the taking title of a new story by Gilbert Mortimer, which is fully illustrated, at $1.50. There are many pretty and pleasant books besides.

From "Slices from Mother Goose." (Lockwood, B. & Co.)

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co. have a number of new and beautiful books for the children this season, notable especially for the profusion and variety of their illustration. Of these, the first of the "Children's Art Series," "All Around a Palette," by Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney, is one of the most taking and pleasant books ever gotten up for the little people. The "paint bogies" in an artist's studio tell the two children, Flossy Tangleskein and Ruby Rose, a number of pretty stories about all the colors on the palette, weaving in a great deal of valuable and entertaining information about art, and to these the clever pencil of "Champ" has added in blue, is reduced to the same price. These books are such as old people as well as young take delight in. Nelly Hind's Christmas book, "Songs and Silhouettes," the songs by noted authors, and the silhouettes representing the months of the year, is also reduced to $2. A second fresh thing this year is the "Slices of Mother Goose," the stories retold in merry rhyme by Alice Parkman, with grotesque illustrations again by "Champ," on fourteen large cards, in red and black, in an attractive envelope, at only fifty cents. "One Happy Winter" ($1.25), by Mrs. S. S. Robbins, who wrote the popular "Win and Wear" books, tells the story of what some boys and girls saw in Florida, and gives lots of pictures of them, too. "The Cedars" ($1.25), by "Ellis Gray" (Mrs. Louisa T. Craigin), is the second of the "Long Ago Series," and is another fresh, bright book, with illustrations to match. "Real Boys and Girls" will delight in the very jolly book telling about themselves, written by Mary C. Bartlett, and having pictures of their doings (75 cents). This house has on its regular list a number of other bright juveniles, good enough never to grow old, as, for instance, "The Story of Our Country," by Mrs. L. B. Munroe ($1.50), which is good from Christmas to Fourth of July.

D. LOTHROP & Co. present an array of juveniles quite past numbering, and in styles and combinations to suit all tastes and purses. Mrs. Piatt's lovely series of "Poems in Company with Children," an illustrated small quarto, a $1.50, has the intense poetic feeling of her always charming work, and is quite as delightful to parents as to children. The pleasure books made up from that delightful magazine, Wide Awake, and its younger sister, Babyland, are very attractive, and are offered in every variety of size and price, to suit all ages of children. "Mother's Boys and Girls," by Pansy, a favorite author, is a large-type book of much interest, with full-page and other cuts, at $1.25, in boards; this is for children who have had a year's growth since the simpler "Pansy's Picture Book" of last year. The head-piece of our "Christmas Greeting" is from this book. The "Adventures of Mil-

MACMILLAN & Co. have two pretty new books this year in "The Cuckoo Clock," by Ennis Graham, whose "Carrots" was one of the most popular books of last year, which is a bright sort of fairy story, and has many illustrations from the pencil of Walter Crane; and "The Magic Valley," by Miss E. Keary, in uniform style, and illustrated by the lady know as "E. V. B." New editions of "Tom Brown as Oxford" and "School-Days at Rugby," in fresh and cheap shape, are not to be overlooked.

tiades Peterkin Paul" is a large quarto, in boards, at 50 cents, with funny verses and the funniest of pictures by Hopkins; Mrs Bates's "Classics of Babyland," in the same size, is enlarged this year by the addition of new matter. These last poems are also put separately into little twenty-five-cent books, in very showy illuminated cloth covers. "Behaving," a book of papers on children's etiquette, by the author of the "Ugly Girl Papers" ($1.00), should not be overlooked. The "Story Book of Flossy and Bossy," for girls, is a pretty little book and has pleasant pictures, at but 75 cents. These are the freshest and most important, but there are lots of things more—in fact, the perplexed buyer might easily spend a day over his choice from this list alone. J. A. MOORE issues a couple of new books, "Gold and Guilt," and "Tender and True," which are said to be charming stories; and promises also three new juveniles from the German of Hoffman and Nieritz, "The Crown Prince and His Scapegoat," etc., at $1 each.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS are the publishers of most of the stirring books for boys by W. H. G. Kingston, who adds this year "The Young Llanero," a story of Venezuelan life, and "Twice Lost," one of Australian adventure, $2 each. Another book that will please the boys, or grown people, is the account of the "Great Shipwrecks" from 1544 to 1877, a book full of thrilling illustrations as well as descriptions, and costing $2.50. "Wrecked on a Reef" is said to be a true story of twenty months among the Auckland Isles, from the French of F. E. Raynal ($2), a book of similar attractiveness. Popular books on natural history for children are "Forest, Jungle, and Prairie," about wild animals, and "Birdie and Her Dog," about domestic animals, respectively at $1.25 and $1.50. Their regular line of quarto juveniles is as attractive as ever, with "The Children's Wreath," $1.25; "The Children's Garland," by A. L. O. E., $1.25; "Bible Pictures for Our Pets," and so on ad infinitum.

NELSON & PHILLIPS have among new juveniles a set of five pleasant volumes, under the title of "The Kirkwood Library," written by Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller, of Chicago, one of the most delightful of writers for the young; and "The Boys' Pocket Library," in which, at 60 cts. each for the little 24mo volumes, are contained some of the best of the standard tales and sketches interesting to boys, such as "Rab and His Friends," and "The Wreck of the Golden Mary." Two volumes of picture-books, "Illustrated Historical Sketches," and "Pictures from Our Portfolio," arranged by Annie Myrtle ($1.50 each), are books of beauty and interest; and that pleasant book of last year, "Fleda and the Voice," written, as well as most charmingly illustrated, by Mary A. Lathbury ($1.50), should not be overlooked.

Noves, Snow & Co. have an excellent set of books in the bright "Long Look Series," by Rev. Edward Abbott, one of a family who know how to write books for little people, and himself editor of the Literary World. The new Moccasins, and other legends of the American Indiaus," by Cornelius Matthews, a companion book ($1.50), which, with Mrs. Jane G. Austin's "Moon-folk," complete the "Moon-folk Series." A new book from George Cary Eggleston, who writes bright stories about the boys of the South, "The Signal Boys; or, Captain Sam's Company," fills out the "Big Brother Series." Two clever books, "Patsy," by Leora B. Robinson, and "Six Sinners" ($1.25), by Campbell Wheaton, make up, with "The House with Spectacles," the "Spectacles Series," books recommended for boys and girls between five and twelve. "The Wings Courage" ($1.25) is a pleasant series of stories adapted from the French, nicely illustrated by Lucy G. Morse; and "Once Upon a Time" ($1), a book whose title commends it, is also to be noted. Among pre-book is "Out-doors at Long Look" ($1.25); and as the previous volume told the story of how a house is built, this deals with every-day work about a country-place. A great deal of information is pleasantly woven into the story, and there are many admirable illustrations, including more than a score of Nelly Hind's clever silhouettes.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. have a capital child's book in "The Jimmyjohns, and other Stories," by Mrs. A. M. Diaz ($1.50), a book almost as good as William Henry, and illustrated with a deal of cleverness and humor. "Child-Life in Prose" and "Child-Life in Poetry" ($3.00 each) are never to be forgotten at any Christmas-time.

PORTER & COATES issue a pleasant volume, for boys and girls, in "Happy Days," a quarto, illustrated with over 100 pictures, and containing contributions from leading juvenile writers, among them some of the early papers of Miss Alcott, and others by the Cary sisters, Stephens, etc. They have also some interesting works from previous years.

GEORGE P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish some capital books for young people this year, several of which complete series of great interest. First to be mentioned are "The Wonder World" ($1.75), a collection of stories interesting to children, translated from the folk-lore of all nations, and made into a beautiful book, with happy illustrations, and "The Enchanted vious books, the bright "Roddy Series," "The Boy with an Idea Series," telling about mechanical amusements for boys, and "The Silver Treasury," a holiday edition of poems for home and school recitation, are to be kept in mind.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have—well, what would the little folks like best? A new book from Miss Alcott, of course! It is the fourth volume of "Aunt Jo's Scrap-Bag," and is full of pleasant stories of "My Girls," prefaced by the "Talk with Girls," which so many of them read and were delighted with in St. Nicholas. The book ($1) is charmingly illustrated by Mrs. Hallock Foote. A book that ought to be for boys what Miss Alcott's is for girls, is "Tom: a Home Story," by Rev. George L. Chaney, whose "Fred Grant & Co.," of a year or two ago, was a most capital book. This is a bright sketch of some smart boys that every boy will like; it costs $1.25, to which price its companion is also reduced. Miss Julia A. Mathews, a favorite writer, has also a book for boys, "Jack Granger's Cousin" ($1, and from Mrs. J. H. Ewing comes another pleasant series of tales, "A Great Emergency, and other Stories" ($1.25), pleasantly illustrated. For younger children, there is a little book by P. Thorne, in which the author of "Jolly Good Times" has something to say in continuation of that pleasant volume about "Jolly Good Times has something to say in continuation of that pleasant volume about "Jolly Good Times at School; also some times not quite so jolly," a book jolly in contents as well as in title. We have only to remind our readers that on this list are to be found the previous books of Miss Alcott, those of Susan Coolidge, and others as charming, to make them eager for the shelf on which are arranged the books of this house.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & Sons issue always a great variety of taking books for children, of which may be noted especially this year their adornment of this number, as our readers have already found, but there are a thousand times as many good things left. The current numbers of this paragon of children's magazines ($3 per year) or the attractive bound volumes ($4 each) make a capital present. The volume for very little folks, "Baby Days," made up from its

"Every Boy's Annual for 1878," containing stories and sketches by people who know what boys like, with eight colored plates and many hundred wood engravings, at $3; "The Science of Conjuring," by Robert Houdin, a book that will set the boys wild, at $2.50; "Little Wide Awake," for 1878, by Mrs. Sale Barker ($1.25, boards; $2, cloth); and "Mother Goose's Fairy Tales," a complete collection of the old favorites, in large type, with a couple of hundred illustrations, at $2. The cheaper books for all ages of young folks quite outreach mention.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. have one of the prettiest of the many pretty juveniles in Donald G. Mitchell's pleasant chats "About Old Story-Tellers," illustrated as charmingly as it is written, which is saying a very great deal. There is no one whose style is pleasanter than "Ik Marvel's;" and in this book he has chatted pleasantly about the writers and the books which are the classics of child literature, from the "Arabian Nights" down to the German, French, and English story-tellers of the last generation. Pleasant in itself, it is also a pleasant introduction of a child to literature; and a boy or girl who finds it in the Christmas stocking should be happy indeed. It is good news, of course, that there is a new book from Jules Verne—"Hector Servadac" ($3), of course as thrilling as ever and as full of pictures. Pleasant books for little people, in profusion, bear their imprint from previous years.

St. Nicholas (Scribner & Co.) has a new coat this Christmas, and is as fine as a feather. We have borrowed some of his plumage for the pages, is about as near perfection as a book can be.

SCRIBNER, WELFORD & ARMSTRONG have a most beautiful volume in "Spenser for Children," by M. H. Towry, a series of tales rewritten from Spenser's "Faerie Queene," illustrated with six plates in color, much after the style of Walter Crane, by Walter J. Morgan, a handsome volume, at $3.75, and others; and of course a fresh supply of Aunt Louisa's popular books, a series of four books of "Comicalities," at $1.50 each, and others of similar style, "New Year's Eve," and "The Kingdom of the Greedy."

From "Baby Days." (Scribner & Co.)

THE WORLD PUBLISHING COMPANY issues another variety of "Chatterbox," "Chatterbox Junior," offered as "a centennial present for very young America." The letter-press is very simple and in large type, and there are many illustrations, at $1.25, boards.

The editor of the "Chatter-box" edits also "The Prize for Boys and Girls," which is full of bright reading and titles of "Good Stories" and "Pictures and Pages," with a great variety of reading and illustration, both in cloth, with chromo side, at $2 each.

Specialties.

A DICTIONARY is always a good present, and by those who have just a dollar to spend, the pocket edition of Webster's Dictionary, published by Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., and containing more than 18,000 words, with valuable tables in morocco tucks, is to be kept in mind as worth looking up.

OF course the little people are fond of games at Christmas, and among the cleverest and most instructive are the "Sliced Objects," animals and birds, issued by E. G. Selchow & Co.—dissected puzzles, that teach as well as entertain. E. B. Treat & Co.'s new parlor games of American History are also to be noted.

A GOOD gold pen is always an acceptable present, and such an one is made by Mabie, Todd & Bard, one of the most enterprising gold pen manufacturing houses in the United States, we might say in the world, for their pens are used quite as extensively in the old world as in the new. They have pens of every description, and to suit the hands as well as purses of all.

IF anybody wants to get a scrap-book for Christmas—which is always a capital present—we commend to his attention Mark Twain's patent article of the sort, already gummed. They are manufactured by Slote, Woodman & Co., in all sorts of styles, including the "Pictorial Scrap-book," "Child's Scrap-book," and "Pocket Scrap-book." They cost from a few cents up to $5.

THE slate desks and similar articles manufactured by Chas. C. Shepherd make a very useful and pleasant gift for a child. One of them is a combination desk, with a regular slate on one side and a transparent slate on the other, with varied writing, drawing, and other instructive and interesting copies for each, and pencils, ruler, and slate-rubber; all this sells within the reach of any pocket. The rotating transparent slate is an interesting novelty.

MILTON BRADLEY & Co. offer for Christmas' stockings their well-known lines of games and home amusements, including, especially in the latter, their adaptations of the Kindergarten gifts. The Springfield games have long been noted as among the most popular in the market; and for low-priced presents, that improve as well as delight, there is nothing better than the boxes of Kindergarten materials, which this house was among the first to introduce in this country.

E. STEIGER has also been issuing for the past year or two the Froebel Kindergarten Gifts, in a series now reaching a dozen or more boxes, put up in very pretty and attractive shape for Christmas presents and household use, and costing from fifty cents the box, up. These are really especially worth looking up for those who like to combine instruction with amusement. The series of globes of all sorts, published by him, also suggests a present for the library.

Among the most artistic presents possible, is a pretty piece of bronze. The lines manufactured by Nicholas Muller's Sons are illustrated by the cut given herewith of their statuette reproduction of J. Q. A. Ward's famous statue of "The Indian Hunter," now in the Central Park, New York. The cut is one quarter size the statuette, which retails at $6.25. These goods, as well as the varied and beautiful lines of inkstands, thermometers, etc., manufactured by this house, rival the foreign goods in style and finish, and are to be had in various fashions of the latter, as bronze, verd, verd antique, and the new finish known as Japanese bronze. A new line of inkstands, attractive as well as novel, is made of Mexican onyx, trimmed with gilt and bronze. They are to be had with single and double ink-wells of cutglass, which set them off to good advantage, and range in price from fifteen to seventy-five dollars.

LEROY W. FAIRCHILD & Co. present a considerable line of goods attractive for Christmas presents in their superior gold pen and pencil cases. They have introduced a number of pretty novelties for the present holiday season, which are the acorn and cannon extension pencil in solid gold, silver, and rolled gold plate. These goods are of neat and tasteful design and of excellent workmanship, and holiday buyers will do well to look up their lines.

ONE of the most attractive features in the holiday trade this year, is found in the "Heliotype Galleries" which Messrs. James R. Osgood & Co. have established in the principal cities, for the sale of their heliotype engravings. They are repeating on a large scale, this season, the experiment which they found so successful in Boston last December. These heliotype engravings are marvellously faithful reproductions of the original steel engravings, and at the low price at which they are sold—one dollar each—should command the attention of the public and of dealers.

A BOOKCASE is one of the most capital of presents, and we may call attention to two varieties of portable cases which are especially worth noting. The first, the Portable Eastlake Bookcase of Lockwood, Brooks & Co., is one of the handsomest pieces of furniture that can be put into a library, and can be had in two sizes, in black-walnut and oak, at various prices, in the neighborhood of $20 per case. The Portable Shelving, under the Gardner patent, supplied by the American News Co., is a less costly form of bookcase, and can be had in small as well as in large sizes, at prices ranging from $1 to $16.

Those who are buying a scrap-book will do well to invest also in a jar of the novel substitute for mucilage called "Stickaline," manufactured by Asa L. Shipman & Sons, which is recommended as especially suited to this purpose as well as for other uses to which mucilage is put. It is put up in neat style—but should not be mistaken for pomade, as the capillary consequences might be disastrous—has an agreeable odor, and, among other advantages, it is claimed that it will not discolor nor wrinkle paper, and, being of a greater consistency than ordinary mucilage, is not liable to spill or overflow, while much cleaner work can be done with it. It is put up in handsome glass jars, in three different sizes, and retails at 25, 30, and 50 cents.

Louis Meyer, Philadelphia, publishes one of the most satisfactory lines of Christmas presents in his admirable compilations of the best music. "Concordia," issued in numbers, and also in a neat oblong volume, at $2, is an extraordinarily good collection of sacred and kindred music from the great masters-operas, oratorios, etc.—simply arranged, and suitable either for the piano or parlor-organ. There is no prettier gift than this for the money. "Golden Treasury" is a larger work, of full music size, giving a variety of secular composition for the piano, selected with admirable taste, again from the best music available. Other similar volumes are to be found on his list, which is worthy the attention of all who love music, and the best music.

CHRISTMAS and text cards make one of the pleasantest mementoes which can be sent to friends at the Christmas season, with other presents, or as modest remembrances by themselves. A most beautiful line of Christmas goods of this kind is issued by J. H. Bufford's Sons, of Boston, in almost infinite variety, and so beautiful are they that they have been very largely exported to England. Marcus Ward & Co., the English publishers, issue a varied and delightful assortment of the same. The American Tract Society issues many pretty text cards—"Words of Wisdom," "The Good Shepherd and His Sheep," etc.—and in looking about the book-store for Christmas presents, it is worth while to lay in a stock of these pretty remembrances.

ONE of the novelties of this Christmas season is the new patent egg charm, just introduced by the gold-pen manufacturing firm of Aikin, Lambert & Co. It is no larger than a small bird's-egg, with a "tiny" pencil entirely concealed, that makes its appearance by a "magic movement" when required. Its usefulness, as well as beauty, has already gained for it a wide sale. It is made of celluloid, so susceptible of variety that the little charm can be had in the style of malachite, tortoise-shell, and the real egg, as well as in a thousand other beautiful blendings of color. A patent lock pen and pencil-case, for pocket use, is another novelty; it is of similar construction to the telescopic case, though more modern and without the troublesome screw movement. It is, consequently, less liable to get out of order, while no more expensive.

SCHLIEMANN'S GREAT WORK.

ANCIENT MYCENÆ.

Discoveries and Researches on the Sites of Mycenæ and Tiryns.

By Dr. HENRY SCHLIEMANN, Author of "Troy and its Remains." With a Preface by the Hon. W. E. GLADSTONE.

With Maps, Colorea Plates, Views, and Cuts representing several hundred objects of Antiquity discoverea

(IN ALL 500 ILLUSTRATIONS.)

One volume, quarto, superbly printed on superfine paper, cloth, extra, $12.00.

SPECIMEN ILLUSTRATION.

It is pleasant to be able to announce that the record of Dr. Schliemann's wonderful discoveries at Mycenæ has at last received his final touch and will be in the hands of the public as soon as the photographer, printer, and binder can do their work. No more important announcement has greeted the expectant eyes of the cultured reader for many a day.

The treasures of antiquity brought to light by Dr. Schliemann are of the highest archaeological value, aside from their classical and literary interest, but it is in the latter point of view that they have their chief significance, and they will form a strong basis for the arguments of those who, with a truer insight, have been combating the views of the extreme school of criticism, which would resolve all the records of the early Greek poets into shadowy myths, as unreal as the fanciful stories of the "Arabian Nighta." It is nearly a year since Dr. Schliemann wrote his famous letter to the King of Greece, announcing his discoveries, and during this time the public have had numerous accounts both of the "find" itself and of the circumstances thereding its unearlying. These were all of precessive more or less fragmentary, and every one has been looking forward with discoveries, and during this time the public have had numerous accounts both of the "find" itself and of the circumstances attending its unearthing. These were all of necessity more or less fragmentary, and every one has been looking forward with expectancy for the detailed narrative of the learned explorer, which it was foreseen, from his "Troy and its Remains," would do sample justice to the subject. This expectation will be found fully confirmed in the superb volume which will appear early in December. It is a handsome quarto, elegantly printed on superfine paper, and has been most lavishly illustrated. Nothing can exceed the conscientious thoroughness of the writer, and every step in the record of his discoveries may be followed and wrifted by the photographic representations of the very objects themselves which he describes. The engravings with which the book is richly loaded are themselves interesting from an artistic point of view, aside from their value as representations of the very loads. the originals.

(THE BOY WALTER SCOTT.)

The long silence of this favorite author is at length broken, and it is the young people whom he now invites to the feast which he has prepared for them. The somewhat quaint title of the book faithfully indicates its contents.

In the Preface, which is addressed to "Grownup People," Mr. Mitchell very charmingly says: "In the matter of books, as in the world, I believe in old friends, and don't think they should be laid away upon the shelf without good cause, and age is hardly cause enough. In short, I must confess a lurking fondness for those good old-fashioned stories which were current forty years ago—and some of them, may be a hundred years ago—written in good straightforward English, with good straightforward English, with good straightintent."

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY.

THE DECEMBER NUMBER

Contains, among other notable articles, a half dozen of those "matter-of-fact papers" for which SCRIBNER is so justly famed, including two illustrated articles on important branches of American industry-"American Oyster Culture," and "The Wooden Age," treating of the Lumber trade and production of the United States; Col. Waring's second enthusiastic paper on "The Thoroughbred Horse," with amusing illustrations after Leech and others; Mrs. Herrick's Natural History paper, this time on "Ants;" " Mars and his Moons," relating to the late astronomical discovery; the first of Robert Dale Owen's posthumous papers, relating 66 Recallings from a Public Life," or Western People and Politicians Forty Years Ago. The Travel paper of this number takes us "From the Atlantic to the Andes," through the heart of Brazil. The serial stories, 46 His Inheritance," by Miss Trafton, a story of army life on the Western frontier, and Eggleston's powerful story, *6 Roxy, *? the scene of which is laid in the exciting political campaign of 1840, are real pictures of American life.

There are shorter stories and poems—a study of Keats, "After Many Days," by the poet Stoddard; a curious paper containing "Some Precepts for Slandering Safely," etc., etc.

Dr. Holland discusses "Protection," "A Reform in the Civil Service," and "The Public Charities," and gives a record of the recent "Harvard Examination for Women." "The Old Cabinet" is about "The Newspaper," "The Ladies' Magazine Man and the Powerful Politician," "Architecture and Art in New York," etc. Among the books reviewed are Clarence Cook's new book on household art, "The House Beautiful," Pierce's "Memoir of Sumner," and Mrs. Burnett's "Surly Tim and other Stories." In "Bric-à-Brac," Mr. Stockton gives a second instalment of his humorous "Models for Letter-Writers," etc., etc.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY, 1877-78.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY is the most distinctively American magazine published, and yet it has a large circulation in England; it undoubtedly ranks among the best illustrated periodicals of the world. During the past year its record has been especially brilliant. The best novels of the year, the best short stories, some of the choicest poems and the best essays, as well as the most remarkable series of papers on Household and Home Decoration, have all appeared in SCRIBNER.

AMERICAN FIELD AND WATER SPORTS.—This series, which has been so attractive a feature in the past year, will be continued. The papers are separate, are written by specialists, and are beautifully illustrated. Some of the best and most unusual in subject will shortly appear.

THE PICTURESQUE SIDE OF AMER-ICAN FARM LIFE.—A series of papers by writers who stand in the front rank, both in qualities of style and in keen insight of nature. Mr. R. E. Robinson, author of a delightful paper on "Fox-Hunting in New England," in the January SCRIBNER. will represent the same section in this series. John Burroughs will write of Farm Life in New York. Maurice Thompson, the poet-naturalist, will describe the characteristics of Western farming, of which but little has been written. No paper or series of papers yet issued in SCRIBNER will so fully realize the constant desire of the magazine to keep out of the ruts. and, both in text and illustrations, to obtain quality rather than quantity, and to print fresh, strong, and delicate work from original sources.

CLARENCE COOK (author of "The House Beautiful"), will have a series entitled "Some Old Masters," consisting of papers superbly illustrated, on Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Michael Angelo, etc. These papers will have an interest and value different from the ordinary magazine article, as they will give the results of the studies of a life-time by the most prominent art critic in this country.

OUT-OF-DOOR PAPERS—by John Burroughs, author of "Wake Robin," etc., will contain articles on Birds, "Tramping," "Camping Out," etc. Mr. Burroughs' papers will begin in the January number, the first being entitled "Birds and Birds," and illustrated by Fidelia Bridges.

SAXE HOLM.—New stories by this popular writer will be given, beginning with "Joe Hale's Red Stockings," in January. This "novelette" chronicles an episode of the late war for the Union.

ARCHITECTURE OF BIRDS.— Dr. Thomas M. Brewer will contribute four exquisitely illustrated articles on birds'-nests, which every lover of nature will delight in. Dr. Brewer has probably the finest collection of birds' eggs in the world to draw upon for the illustration of these papers.

LITERARY PORTRAITS.—Richard Henry Stoddard, not only one of the most eminent of our poets, but also distinguished for his knowledge of English literature and English literary history, will contribute a number of literary portraits, including those of Keats, Shelley, etc.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS will continue to employ the ablest pens, and will include the present admirable summary of English publications. Besides the special articles above enumerated, the magazine will contain Poems, Sketches, Essays, Reviews, and shorter Stories.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS of the magazine, in variety and excellence of design and in typographical execution, will be in advance of those of any other popular magazine.

Subscription price, $4 a year, payable in advance to us or to any bookseller. Single Numbers, 35 Cents. No club rams.

The Bodley Books.

THE MOST UNIQUE AND ENTERTAINING JUVENILE BOOKS OF THE SEASON.

The Bodleys Telling Stories.

In one volume, small 4to, with 81 illustrations, $1.50.

The Bodleys Telling Stories is the handsomest juvenile ever issued in this, or we believe any other country. — Boston Gazette.

The cover is after a new design — Japanese, apparently — which covers both outside and fly-leaves with the most vivid and startling, yet pleasing, arabesques of color and pattern, wherein fields of starry skies, lotus leaves, scarlet flowers, and other phantasmagoria are set against each other with the inspiration of genius. The book is full of pleasantly-told stories such as little ones love, is profusely illustrated by real artists, and has many well-described games and carefully-arranged pieces of music interspersed, which the Bodley family are supposed to indulge in, and which we are sure many real families will play this winter. In short, the work is admirable in every detail, and sure to give great pleasure in every household where it comes. — Washington Sunday Herald.

THE GATHERING OF THE LILIES.

MAGNIFICENTLY ILLUSTRATED BY THE AUTHOR,

L. CLARKSON,

In exquisite Water Colors, Lithocoustic Etchings, and Tinted Crayon Sketches.

This levely GIFT BOOK is made up of the following charming Original Poems:

"THE GATHERING OF THE LILIES,"

'TO THE EASTER LILY."

"FAST LITTLE MISS CROCUS,"

"BURIED LILIES,"

"THE LAST LILY," and

"CROWNED."

The first poem, from which the collection is named, is illustrated with eight real gems in black and white crayon sketches, on gray background. In this poem the "JAPAN," the "GARDEN," the "MEADOW," the "TIGER," the "WATER," and the "DAY "Lily, together with the sweet little "LILY OF THE VALLET," each make a characteristic plea for notice and favor; along comes "QUEEN CALLA," and her sway is at once acknowledged, as they

"Clamor each to deck her brow With honor sought,"

After impressing silence, she informs them that she has come to share her crown with

"The Valley-Lily, who is fair As she is sweet."

The second poem, entitled "TO THE EASTER LILY," is beautiful in tone and sentiment, and is illustrated by a magnificent full-sized "Calla Lily," in water colors, upon an atmospheric background.

Following this comes "FAST LITTLE MISS CROCUS," which is somewhat like the favorite "Mushroom Innocence."

The most charming picture, as well as the most strikingly descriptive of the poem it illustrates, "BURIED LILIES," is a dreary snow scene, framed with all the wild flowers of spring.

As a fitting companion, both in verse and artistic ability, follows a poem entitled "CROWNED." The fulpage illustration in water colors, where the lilies of the valley "mingle with the thorns" in the crown, is suggestive, and will call forth the reader's truest and tenderest sympathies.

"THE LAST LILY" is a poem that will be read by many as though they were reviewing their own lives. It is a poem, but no less a picture—strange as fiction—stranger, being true in the lives of so many. It is illustrated by an etching after "Gilbert."

The water-colored title page is marvellous, both as a creation of fancy and a work of art. A wreath of "FLOWER-FAIRIES" and lilies rises gracefully from among the water lilies, and, floating about "Queen Calla," drifts away into mist.

This, our new gift book for the season of 1877, needs but little other recommendation to the public than the popularity of the author's first book, "Violet with Eyes of Blue," and we only ask that those who desire something new, original, and perfectly lovely, will request their bookseller to show them "The Lilies."

With Frontispiece. Price, $1.

"We do not believe a more useful book for girls has been published."-The Alliance.

"It is a lucky stroke of genius, because it is a good thing well done. It has the charm of a bright story of real life, and it is a useful essay on the art of cooking."—New York Times.

"It is from the pen of a lady concerning whom we have good female authority for saying that she understands cooking as well as she does book-making, and that is saying a good deal."—W. C. Bryant, in New York Evening Post.

"We have had cook-books and cook-books, but decidedly the most unique of the lot is 'Six Little Cooks,' in which wit, work, play, and the science of cookers are compounded into a delicious after-supper literary dessert."—The Advance.

Pottery and Porcelain.

FROM EARLY TIMES DOWN TO THE PHILADELPHIA EXHIBITION of 1876. By Charles Wyllys Elliott. With One Hundred and Sixty-five Illustrations, and the more important Marks and Monograms. 1 vol., 8vo. Cloth, extra, $5.

"What we have attempted has been to gather and present, in a way to be easily understood, the most important facts respecting 'Pottery and Porcelain.' The study of this interesting subject has for more than a century been constant in Europe, and notably so during the last twenty-five years. A correct knowledge of it may now almost be called a liberal education. In the United States something has been done; and the public mind is now asking 'What is it that makes "Pottery and Porcelain" so attractive to scholars, statesmen, women, and wits?'

"In some degree we have answered this question. My part of the work has been to gather where I could such historical and technical facts and such illustrations as seemed most valuable, not only to the student, but to the collector."—Extract from Preface.

A NEW EDITION OF BENJAMIN ON SALES.

NOW READY:

THE SECOND AMERICAN EDITION OF

A TREATISE

ON THE LAW OF

SALE of PERSONAL PROPERTY;

With references to the American Decisions and to the French Code and Civil Law.

By J. P. Benjamin, Esq., Q.C., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-law.

Edited by Hon. J. C. Perkins, from the Second English Edition.

In one volume. 8vo. Law sheep, $6.50.

Benjamin on Sales is a work of distinguished merit, and has acquired an enviable reputation both in Great Britain and in the American States. The rapid sale of the first American edition of this work has rendered a second necessary within three years of the former publication. This is almost wholly unprecedented. In the meantime there has been an accumulation of an unusually large number of decisions, both in England and America, upon the most vital points in the Law of Sales. The editor has carefully examined these decisions, and has endeavored to give the full benefit of them, both English and American, to this edition. No new edition has been published in England since the second, being that on which the first and the present American editions are based. The editor has, therefore, endeavored to supply, not only a new American, but also a substitute for a new English edition, at the same time. The decisions are now brought down to the very latest period; some of them have even been collected from various law periodicals, and from the reporters, in advance of publication in any regular series of reports. About five hundred new cases have been cited. The index has been revised and much enlarged; and it is believed that this edition will give to the profession, in a convenient form, a full view of the actual state of the Law of Sales as it stands on the day of publication.

PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY

AND OF THE

LITERARY NEWS.

Far surpassing in number of pages, illustrations, and typography, any previous issues, is the bes medium of attracting buyers at the most important season.

Imprint editions of the Publishers' Weekly (with the front title "Christmas Catalogue," issued by ——), embracing all the illustrated pages, editorial matter, and lists, of this issue, viz.:

164 pages-double the matter in last year's issue-can be secured only by immediate order, the issue being so large that considerable time is required for its extra fine printing. The expensive get up, far exceeding our calculations, also necessitates, to new subscribers, a raising of rates to Ten Dollars per hundred (inclusive of imprint on front cover), without any reductions for large quantities, for even these rates do not cover the mere cost of paper and printing.

To those who desire to reach a wider public than they seel they can afford to seek through the more expensive Christmas Number of the Publishers' Weekly, the Christmas Number of The Literary News is recommended as the best possible medium to cultivate a holiday trade.

This year's issue will embrace thirty-two pages (twelve pages more than last year), containing notes and specimen illustrations of the leading Christmas Books, and a full Catalogue of all the new books of the season. Editions will be supplied as follows:

Inclusive of imprint on front page.

4to. Cloth. Gilt. $2.00.

"A FAMILIAR HYMN IN A BEAUTI-FUL GUISE. - Lee & Shepard publish for the holidays an illustrated edition of the favorite and tenderly beautiful hymn, 'Nearer, my God, to Thee.' The designs, by Miss Humphrey, are carefully engraved. The form and size of the book, the purity of the tint, and the clearness of the letter-press, make the volume a tasteful and valuable Christmas gift. The hymn is too well known to need any words of praise, for its universal use on occasions of bereavement shows that the true spirit of submission and devotion breathed in every line touches a sympathetic chord in every sorrowing heart." -Providence Journal.

By WILLIAM KNOX. With Full-page and Initial Illustrations. Elegantly bound.

Small 4to. $2.00.

"One of the daintiest gift-books of the season is the edition just put out by Lee & Shepard, of Abraham Lincoln's favorite poem, 'Oh! why should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?' The poem, grave and tender in theme, and sad in the mournful swing of its rhythm, is one that impresses many as it impressed the lofty and melancholy spirit of Lincoln — many who will be glad to possess it in this beautiful dress. The typographical execution of the volume is thoroughly excellent, the designs, beautiful and appropriate."—Portland Press.

"No holiday book which we have seen surpasses this one in the splendor and richness of its appearance and the tastefulness of design on the part of both editor and publisher. It is a most beautiful book, worthy to adorn the finest drawing-room or parlor in the land, and yet not beyond the means of 'ordinary people.' The volume contains 40 full-page illustrations, most of which are real gems of art. The poems are selected from the favorite English and American authors, including Tennyson, Byron, Moore, Browning, Bryant, Aldrich, and many others, the themes relating chiefly to those qualities of grace, beauty, and love which have always employed the finest powers of the poets."—New Haven Courier.

CROSSING THE QUICKSANDS;

Or, The Veritable Adventures of Ned and Hal upon the Pacific Slope. By SAMUEL WOOD-WORTH COZZENS. 16mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.00.

"A story bubbling full of interest, a chronicle of many adventures on the Pacific slope, in which Hal Hyde and Ned Bown, two young chaps with whom we formed a pleasant acquaintance in another volume, appear as actors in many scenes, and in adventures of the most startling and entertaining kind. Sile Carter is a veritable character, and deserves to rank with the best of backwood creations in story. He is thoroughly interesting and instructive. Its author has struck a vein worth working, and we can pay no higher compliment than to say that the two volumes of the series thus far presented are equal in merit and interest to any of Mayne Reid's books for lads. The adventures with animals are graphically told. Hal's bragging is natural in a certain order of boys, and Ned is a capital fellow."—Boston Traveller.

THE YOUNG TRAIL-HUNTERS;

Or, The Wild Riders of the Plains. Being the Veritable Adventures of Hal Hyde and Ned Brown in their Journey across the Great Plains of the South-west. By the same author. 16mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.00.

The Rural New Yorker says: —"For exciting life on the Plains and thrilling adventures, we commend this work. The parts borne respectively by the two boys Hal and Ned, who formed part of a trading party, are none the less interesting by reason of their boyish blunders. The free-and-easy style of life, with its strong lights and shades, is just the sort of matter with which to make a boy's book, and the author has used it liberally."

THE SILVER-SEEKERS;

Or, HAL AND NED IN MONTANA. By the same Author. (In press.)

"The author of 'The Young Trail-Hunters,' and 'Among the Quicksands,' has the reputation of being a capital story-teller; and his long life among the red men of the West, and his adventures in hunting and trapping, give him an inexhaustible fund from which to draw tales of thrilling adventure and wonderful daring."

YOUNG FOLKS'

BOOK OF AMERICAN EXPLORERS.

By THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON.

One Volume. Handsomely illustrated with over Fifty Full-page and Letter-press Illustrations of Historical Scenes and Characters. Price, $1.50.

SPECIMEN OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

"The style of the book is pleasing, unique and story-like, the principal explorations and adventures being told in the first person by those who took active parts and afterwards wrote out accounts. Thus the voyages of Columbus are made up from extracts of letters written home by him to the Lord Treasurer of Spain, by Dr. Chanca, physician to the fleet, from the last will of Diego Mendez, who accompanied the great explorer on his fourth voyage, and from other equally authentic sources, which organic plan likewise gives to the whole history a freshness and enthusiasm particularly pleasing to young people. Many of the illustrations are from the oldest prints, and so quaint that they are a charm of the history themselves. In fact, 'aside from Dickens' delightful history of England, we do not know of any narrative which has said so much, kept itself within the bounds of truth, and retained at the same time a fascinating air of fiction."

NOTES IN SEASON.

ESTES & LAURIAT will publish probably next week Daudet's new story, "The Nabob," which, it is hinted, will create more of a sensation than "Sidonie." At the same time, the "Life of Haydon" will appear, in two fine octavo volumes, printed from English duplicate plates.

A NEW book from Miss Amanda M. Douglas is always welcome; Lee & Shepard have just ready "From Hand to Mouth," in uniform shape with her other novels published by them. Their new 50-cent "sparkling" book, "Something Better" than any of the others, is nearly ready.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will shortly publish the narrative of a ride of "A Thousand Miles in Texas on Horseback," the personal experiences of N. A. Taylor, formerly a New York journal-ist, but now a resident of Texas. It gives a stirring account of that State. Another book of adventure in press is "Eighteen Months on a Greenland Whaler."

DERBY BROTHERS have just ready "How we Raised Our Baby," which is full of hints that parents who would bring their children up as ornaments to society should not miss reading. John Habberton, whose experience with children is known to almost every well-regulated family in the land, has taken it upon himself to introduce the work.

The first volume of Mr. Clarence Cook's American edition of Lübke's "History of Art" (Dodd, Mead & Co.) is going off excellently, and as it is impossible to print again before Christmas, the retail trade must fill out their orders at once, if they would be sure of the book. Mr. Cook has nearly finished the final revision of proofs for the concluding volume, and the publishers now expect to have it ready in time for Christmas buyers to purchase the set complete.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish this week a book on "Public Hygiene in America," comprising a centennial discourse delivered before the International Medical Congress, at Philadelphia, in September, 1876, by Henry I. Bowditch, M.D., of Boston; with extracts from correspondence from the various States, and a di-gest of American sanitary law by Mr. Henry G. Pickering, also of Boston. They announce for the 10th Peter Harvey's "Reminiscences and Anecdotes of Daniel Webster," a book that promises to be very interesting; and a new edition (the fourth) of Bartlett's valuable work on "Americanisms."

J. R. OSGOOD & Co.'s books for the coming week or two include Miss Howard's "One Summer," printed from new plates, and illussummer," printed from new plates, and litus-trated with numerous designs by Mr. Hop-pin's skilful pencil; Col. Waring's travel volume, "The Bride of the Rhine," hand-somely printed in a volume much like Warner's "Being a Boy," and bountifully supplied with pretty pictures; and "Frithiof's Saga," which has been newly translated from the Swedish by L. A. Sherman, Ph.D., of New Haven, and will now be issued in a quarto volume, with superb illustrations by an eminent Stockholm artist, Mr. A. Malström.

THE trade have already found out fully, from the Christmas number, what a very charming and salable juvenile Lockwood, Brooks & Co. have in "All Around a Palette." They should not overlook, as another good thing, the "Slices of Mother Goose," which will meet the tastes of a great many people who want to give a bright present to a bright child. They are very humorous cards, in envelopes or bound in boards, and very taking. The price in envelopes is 75 cents—not 50, as they at first proposed to make it; in boards, $1.25. The "Life of Edward Norris Kirk" is an important book, just ready, and a list of fresh juveniles is to be found elsewhere.

CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER will have ready by next week another of Jules Verne's marvellous stories. We have had his experience in the bowels of the earth, under the sea, in the moon, and now we have "To the Sun," under which title Edw. Roth makes an American translation of "Hector Servadac." The story tells how a fragment of the earth flew off toward the sun, with some dozens of people on it, but in different localities—thus, Gibraltar is floating in space, part of Spain, some of Algiers, etc.—much to the surprise of every one, the general impression being that all the world is destroyed but the part they inhabit. This is one of Verne's cleverest stories, and makes a popular holiday book, being handsomely illustrated and prettily bound.

OUR CHRISTMAS NUMBER.

WE trust that before this issue reaches them, our readers will also have received the Christmas number of the WEEKLY, which we are rushing through the press as rapidly as the large size of the number and fine printing permit. Despite delays and misfortunes in the preparation of the number, including sickness, jury duty-that affliction which is peculiarly visited upon the publishing trade-and other ills that flesh is heir to, every page was in type-thanks to the enterprise of our printerson the day of publication, and we had hoped to deliver copies before Thanksgiving. just as we were ready to print, came word that the paper-mill, from which extra heavy paper had been specially ordered, had broken down, and the paper, which had been promised for November 17th, did not arrive until Tuesday of this week. The time necessary in making ready the number of illustrated forms included in the issue, is very considerable, and the excellence and rapidity with which the establishment of Mr. S. W. Green has printed, in a large edition and within less than a week, twelve forms, nearly every page illustrated by fine cuts, constitute a really remarkable feat that deserves record in the annals of typography. Five presses have been kept running on the number. We are glad to acknowledge our obligations, in addition to those to the Messrs. Green, to Mr. Powers, the practical superintendent, to whose untiring energy we are peculiarly indebted; to Mr. Neu, the foreman of the composing-room, and his assistant, Mr. Holland; to Mr. Shinar, the proof-reader; to Mr. Henry, in charge of the advertising pages; to the makers-ready, and to others connected with the work, for the enterprise and courtesy which they have shown. The number is printed with ink manufactured by Geo. Mather's Sons, which speaks for itself.

We are sure the Christmas number will be received with general satisfaction, for it greatly surpasses any previous issue of the WEEKLY, and previous issues have been received with very complimentary words, as well by the press and public as by the trade. The imprint edition is double the size of last year, covering 164 pages, and, indeed, costs more to make than the price to which we have been compelled to advance on new orders-viz., $10 per hundred. The trade (fine paper) edition makes a book larger than Harper's Magazine, and has a round hundred illustrations in the text, besides the quantity in its hundred pages of advertisements. A novel feature in the reading matter, of especial interest, and, we believe, of unusual value for pushing the sale of leading books, is the double pages devoted to the chief books of the year-a full-page representative illustration on the right and an interesting descriptive notice, with smaller cuts or decorations, on the left-hand side. In the editorial arrangement, and in all points of typography and press-work, we confidently challenge close comparison with any similar publication in any of the book-producing countries. We also call attention to the promptness with which, against all these difficulties, the number is deliveredwe expect within the week following its date.

In asking the attention of booksellers to the value of this number, well distributed, as a means for attracting holiday trade which might otherwise go to other lines of goods, we must state that we cannot undertake to fill additional orders unless sent to us at once. We are printing extra copies of the imprint edition beyond those ordered, in expectation of an additional demand when the number is seen, and dealers will be supplied from these in order of the receipt of their favors. We mean to issue none unless in good season for holiday advertising, which, however, like holiday-buying, is pretty well concentrated into the fortnight preceding Christmas. The number, to be sure, is costly, but its cost will be more than repaid, we believe, in the buyers who are attracted by its pleasant foretastes of books, to spend their money in the bookstore rather than elsewhere.

WE believe it would be difficult to match, in the book trade or out of it, the extraordinary "cheek"—nothing short of slang will express it—with which the "Book Butcher" of Troy, in his circular printed elsewhere, invites the publishers to assist him in slaughtering their books and the trade. It would scarcely seem possible that he would issue such a card without some justification, and yet we cannot believe that any publisher could deliberately walk into a trap set to guillotine himself and his local customers.

A LETTER from Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, issued through Messrs. Scribner, Armstrong & Co., the authorized publishers of her later works, "That Lass o' Lowrie's" and "Surly Tim's Trouble," has appeared in most of the papers, disavowing responsibility for the republication by other houses of her early! stories, "Theo," and now "Pretty Polly Pemberton," by Messrs. T. B. Peterson & Bros., and "Dolly," by Messrs. Porter & Coates, contributed as serials to Peterson's and other magazines. The last-named house reply in a circular letter, stating that they purchased the rights of volume publication from Mr. Henry Peterson, of Deacon & Peterson, proprietors of the Ladies' Friend, in which the serial appeared, and who that Mrs. Burnett's letter denied a valid sale. of her rights in the copyright, which give Messrs. Porter & Coates entire legal justification, her letter being to inform the public that the Scribner books are the only ones issued under her present sanction and by which she wishes to be judged. The control of early books after the writer has achieved fame is a vexatious question which has troubled many an author before Mrs. Burnett.

BOOK-BUTCHERING EXTRAORDI-NARY.

The following circular has been sent generally to the trade

BOOK NOTICES.

THE FINAL PHILOSOPHY, OR SYSTEM OF PER-FECTIBLE KNOWLEDGE ISSUING FROM THE HAR-MONY OF SCIENCE AND RELIGION, by Charles Woodruff Shields, D.D. (Scribner, A. & Co.) This work had its origin in a brief essay entitled Philosophia Ultima, published by the author in In it he set forth so clearly the way in which the differences that have existed between science and religion for so many years might be reconciled, that the attention of many prominent American scholars was attracted to the writer. A number of wealthy and sympathetic Philadelphia friends, desiring to give him a chance to fully develop his science of harmony, believing it to be the only true basis upon which the conflicts of science and religion could be settled, secured for him a chair of instruction in Princeton College, New Jersey. The present volume is the result of that endowment. Dr. Shields' divides his work into two parts, "The Philosophical Parties as to the Relations between Science and Religion" and "The Philosophical Theory of the Harmony of Science and Religion. had paid for it $450. We do not understand In both parts, whether describing the various antagonistic parties in this conflict, or setting forth what he calls "the one last philosophy or theory and art of perfect knowledge," he is earnest, liberal, and scholarly. His work is a valuable one in many senses. It will aid in bringing about a more harmonious state of things between scientists and religionists, and is full of data that is very convenient to have together for reference. It contains two unusually full and complete indexes-namely, an "Analytical Index to Subjects," in the order in which they are treated, and an "Index to Authors" whose opinions have been cited. In its typography, the work is every thing that could be desired. 8vo, cloth, $3.

*ILLUSTRATIONS OF ENGLISH RELIGION, selected. edited, and arranged by Henry Morley. (Cassell, Petter & G.) These illustrations consist sell, Petter & G.) of selections from English literature, beginning A.D. 670, with a translation into blank verse of Cædmon's Paraphrase. This is followed by specimens of equally rare English religious writings, from the Conquest to Wiclif. Langland, and others, 1400. The sixteenth century is illustrated through the works of Fisher, Tyndale, More, Latimer, and others. The reign of Elizabeth is rich in such names as John Knox, John Fox, Matthew Parker, Francis Bacon. Spenser, and Richard Hooker. The reign of James I. claims Donne, Andrewes, etc., Charles I. and the Commonwealth, George Herbert, Richard Baxter, Jeremy Taylor, John Milton, John Bunyan, with others of minor note. Each reign, in fact, down to Victoria, finds a voice to demonstrate the poetry and grandeur of England's religion—Newman, Arnold, Kingsley, Browning, Carlyle, and Tennyson being the spokesmen of our own day. The volume is very handsomely gotten up as to paper, print, etc., being very richly illustrated with woodcuts of the various authors mentioned. forms the second volume of Cassell's "Library of English Literature"—a valuable series started last year with "Shorter English Poems," and which, when completed in five volumes, will be virtually what is claimed by its title. 4to, cloth, $5.

THE BEGINNINGS OF CHRISTIANITY, by George P. Fisher, D.D. (Scribner, A. & Co.) This volume is founded upon a course of lectures delivered at the Lowell Institute, in Boston, in February and March, 1876. The author, who is professor of ecclesiastical history in Yale College, has undertaken, first, to describe the ancient Roman world, including both heathen and Jewish society, into which Christianity entered and in which it first established itself; secondly, to examine the New Testament doc uments from which our knowledge of the beginnings of the Christian religion must be derived; and, thirdly, to discuss some of the most important topics connected with the life of Jesus and the apostolic age. Under the first heading, he has, besides describing the external life of the Roman empire in a very graphic way, dwelt upon the popular religion of the Greeks and Romans, the Greek philosophy in its relation to Christianity, the state of morals in ancient heathen society, and the religious as well as social condition of the Jews at the birth of Christ. The New Testament criticisms in the second part form a valuable addition to the literature of this kind. The work in its entirety is an able and scholarly production, dis-playing research and study. It is an impor-tant addition to early Christian history. 8vo, cloth, $3.

DOUBLEDAY'S CHILDREN, by Dutton Cook. (Putnam). In the beginning, this reads like a story for the young people, as it is filled with minute details of the wild pranks and romantic vicissitudes of the Doubleday children's youth. Doubleday is a gentleman, with a profession, from which he derives no income, hence duns, executions, sheriffs, etc., are familiar incidents to his neglected children. When he at last shuffles off this mortal coil in a debtor's prison, his loss is more a relief than otherwise. the youngest child, has told the story thus far, but Doris now takes her turn, and afterward Nick, the eldest of the children, tells his side of the story. Doris' life is the most interesting and dramatic of the three, as she makes a runaway marriage with a handsome young Frenchman, who is living very quietly in London, but conspiring against the French government. He is killed in the revolution of 1848, which witnessed the overthrow of Louis Philippe, and the reader is treated to some very vivid descriptions of the Paris of those days. The book is an unusually enjoyable one for quiet reading, its descriptions are so very minute and its characters so varied—journalists, actors, refugees, artists, etc., all coming and going naturally through the numerous incidents of the story. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

Wonder-World Stories, collected and translated by Marie Pabke and Margery Deane. (Putnam.) All the fairy literature of the world was searched for these stories and legends. Chinese, French, German, Hebrew, Hindoostanee, Hungarian, Irish, Italian, Japanese, Russian, Swedish, and Turkish specimens of wonder lore, with original and marked characteristics, are combined within very attractive covers, the text being adorned by a number of very graceful vignettes, while several fullpage illustrations add to the beauty and attractiveness of the volume. The opening story, "The Flower Monster," from the German of B. Paul, is a charming little allegory based upon the well-known characteristics of the "Drosera rotundifolia." Then comes "The Wedding Gift," from the French of Porchat, a pretty conceit beautifully worked out. The Chinese, Japanese, and Hindoostanee stories will be found the most novel and probably the most attractive, as they present the most salient features. Taking the book altogether, it is an unusually interesting contribution to juvenile literature, and is not without many points which will draw the older folks to it. Sq. 12mo, cloth,

THE ORIGIN OF THE WORLD, ACCORDING TO REVELATION AND SCIENCE. By J. W. Dawson. (Harper.) The author explains that the scope of this work is in the main identical with that of "Archaia," published in 1860. In preparing a new edition, brought up to the present condition of the subject, it was found that so much required to be rewritten as to make the work essentially a new one, hence it was decided to give it a new name more clearly indicating its character and purpose. The intention of the work is to throw as much light as possible upon the present condition of the much-agitated questions respecting the origin of the world and its inhabitants; to afford students of the Bible the means of determining the precise import of the biblical references to creation, and of their relation to what is known from other sources; and to give to geologists and biologists some intelligible explanation of the doctrines of revealed religion, with the results of their respective sciences. It will be seen the author takes an orthodox view of these subjects, his argument being based upon the assumption that the Bible is the inspired word of God. 12mo, cloth, $2.

AMONG THE TURKS, by Cyrus Hamlin. (Carter.) Dr. Hamlin lived for thirty-five years in the Turkish empire, coming into daily contact with its government, institutions, religions, peoples, etc. It would be odd if he had not many interesting adventures and experiences, illustrative of the peculiarities of the land, to relate. Those embraced here are selected out of many, and are rich in humor and local color. He tells us much besides about the Turks, which it is valuable to know in the present condition of things, and which places them in a more favorable light than hasty writers are wont to bestow upon them. The first few chapters give a succinct history of the Turkish past, and the latter ones record a progress that there is every reason to believe true in the laws, in social life, in education, and in morality generally. Even the many restrictions once placed upon Christians, Dr. Hamlin shows have been removed, while a long list which he submits proves many of the persecuted race to be holding offices in high places His book is an excellent contribution to the "Eastern Question." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

CHOICE AUTOBIOGRAPHIES, edited by W. D. Howells. Memoir of Carlo Goldoni. (Osgood.) Mr. Howells, as usual, introduces Goldoni to the American reader in a most charmingly written essay, which compares him with Goldsmith in certain particulars of his life and in certain qualities which he possessed as a writer. Goldoni was not a poet, and lacked somewhat the higher theoretical virtue of the English essayist, but he tried to teach in his comedies "purity, good faith, and other virtues which were foolishness to most of the world, by whose favor he must live." But "he resembled Goldsmith in the amiability of his satire, the exquisite naturalness of his characterization, the simplicity of his literary motive." So Mr. Howells tells us, with much more that is highly interesting about Goldoni himself, and his comedies, which gave him a niche in Italian literature, in the eighteenth century, as the comic dramatist of the people. His memoir is exceedingly amusing, overflowing with quaint adventures and droll stories, which read like chapters from "Gil Blas." "Little Classic" style, $1.25.

TALES OF ANCIENT GREECE, by the Rev. G. W. Cox. (Jansen, McC. & Co.) The grace with which these old tales of the mythology are retold makes them as enchanting to the young as familiar fairy lore or the "Arabian Nights. The scholarship evinced by the author and the poetical language in which he clothes his thoughts recommend the volume to mature and cultivated minds also, both for entertainment and constant reference. All the old stories of the Greek gods and heroes will be found here, with tales of the Trojan war and of Thebes, and a number of miscellaneous tales; among which are, "The Vengeance of Apollo" and "The Battle of the Frogs and the Mice." This edition is from the third English edition, and is very beautifully gotten up in every particular. We do not know of a Christmas book which promises more lasting pleasure. Saturday Review, London, says: "It ought to be in the hands of every scholar and of every schoolboy." 12mo, cloth, extra gilt, gilt edges, $2.

FAITH AND PHILOSOPHY, by Henry B. Smith, D. D., edited by George L. Prentiss. (Scribner, A. & Co.) This volume is made up of twelve essays upon some of the most important questions of the age—"The Relations of Faith and Philosophy," "Nature and Worth of the Science of Church History," "The Idea of Christian Theology as a System," "The New Latitudinarians of England," "Renan's Life of Jesus," "The New Faith of Strauss," "Whedon on the Will," etc., etc. The title, "Faith and Philosophy," was given it as it seemed most fitly to indicate its general character. Dr. Prentiss, in a well-written introduction, speaks in enthusiastic terms of the place Prof. Smith occupied as a philosophical thinker, a theologian, a scholar and critic, and of the estimation in which he was held by his friends, the most cultured men of the day. His loss is an almost irreparable one to the learning and culture of the country. Every one will be glad to find some of his best papers in the present permanent form. 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

THE TWO CIRCUITS, by J. L. Crane. (Jansen, McC. & Co.) Mr. Crane's story is drawn from his own experience as an itinerant preacher through the unsettled portions of Illinois in its early days. The circuit-rider was then a familiar character to the settlers, and welcomed and made much of at every cabin he stopped at, giving in return a sermon or discourse to a strange audience gathered from all the adjacent cabins. His experience was varied, often exciting, often pathetic, and more often very ludicrous. Mr. Crane has woven his many facts into a very pretty story, with a hero who is young and engaging, and a heroine that is all the most sentimental could desire. While the story has its tender and even sad side, it has also a perfect fund of humorous and laughable incidents, which fly away with all seriousness or gravity. It has been strongly endorsed by the leading religious papers of the West. It contains twenty-five full-page illustrations, designed by the author. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

Wayside Series: Harry Holbrooke of HOLBROOKE HALL, by Sir Randal H. Roberts. (Lockwood, B. & Co.) A stronger contrast could not be found than that which this work and the first volume of the series, "Nimport, presents—the latter being a story of Boston life of to-day, the characters being cultivated society people, who talk not only cleverly but epigrammatically of current events and social questions, while the present novel almost wholly with sports such as men love, hunting, fishing, racing, etc., which the author describes with an enthusiasm that shows him to be a true sportsman himself. The time is not very recent, while the scene is an English country-house, the hero being a country squire, but a brave, manly fellow, who fulfils all the requirements of a real hero. There are two love stories, told in an old-fashioned but very pleasing style, which absorb the chief interest of the book, and add to the attractiveness of a very pleasing story. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE LITTLE BROWN HOUSE, by Mrs. D. P. Sanford. (Dutton.) Mrs. Sanford lives in the kindly remembrance of many children through her "Pussy Tip-Toes Series," the volumes of which have for several Christmases past been among the most lovely books issued. "The Little Brown House" continues the story of the Greyson family. The first chapter relates the history of their moving to a distant part of the country, and their settling in their new quarters, "the little brown house" already mentioned. We get a daily and minute history of the children's sorrows and joys, plays and pastimes, mishaps, adventures, and failings. The little readers for whom the narrative was written will no doubt find abundant pleasure in it. The volume is, typographically, a most beautiful one. It is uniform with the author's previous juveniles, richly adorned with pictures, printed on fine tinted paper, and has a cover that is both original and pretty. 4to, cloth, $2.25.

The Bar-rooms at Brantly, by T. S. Arthur. (Porter & Coates.) A new book from T. S. Arthur is sufficient of a novelty to attract attention. He again discusses in this work a subject that has been a favorite one with him of late years—namely, intemperance. Brantly, the scene of the story, is a little village outside of New York, which, through the strenuous efforts of a few of its leading men, has been entirely freed from taverns and drinking-saloons, and has become a model community. A New York man with an eye to speculation comes there and opens a new hotel, in which liquor is sold freely. The results from this temptation are disastrous and heart-breaking; one family after another is broken up, through the husbands and sons falling victims to a love of drink. The destruction of the hotel and the final redemption of Brantly and its inhabitants are related in Mr. Arthur's best style. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

DEAR OLD STORIES TOLD ONCE MORE, by "Faith Latimer." (American Tract Soc.) Bible stories in any guise have always been special sources of delight to children; their picturesqueness and intense dramatic interest appeal with a singular power to a child's imagination. The dear old familiar stories of Noah and the ark, Abraham and Isaac, Isaac and Rebecca, Joseph and his brothers, Moses, Ruth and Naomi, and so on, as retold here, with a wonderful freshness and brightness, take on a new meaning, and offer apparently new fields of pleasure to the little ones. Forty stories in all are contained in the book, embellished by forty very fine full-page, illustrations, among which we recognize a number of Doré's best efforts. 4to, cloth, $1.25.

REV. DR. CHARLES H. HALL, of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, has a volume in press by Hurd & Houghton, on the subject of "The Church of the Household." He is a vigorous speaker, and should write a good book.

THE AUTHORS' PUBLISHING Co. call attention to their "literary bonanza," "The Buccaneers," a novel warranted to make a sensation in any one's emotions. They have also a number of other recent books, on a wide variety of subjects, to which the attention of the trade is directed.

The book on "Money and its Laws," by Mr. Henry V. Poor, published by H. V. & H. W. Poor, should not be neglected by the trade because it is out of the line of usual publication. It has been generally received as a compendium of great value, with much information of current usefulness otherwise unavailable.

A VOLUME on "The Labor Problem in the United States," by a writer whose essay, it is stated, takes Mrs. Thompson's prize offered through The Library Table, is nearly ready at the Athenæum Publishing House, New York. Thurlow Weed furnishes an introduction. It will be issued in paper and cloth.

A BOOK on "The Chisolm Massacre," the political tragedy in Kemper County, Miss., is published in Chicago; it is proposed to devote the proceeds to the removal of the bodies of Judge Chisolm and his heroic daughter to the North and the erection of a monument.

ATTENTION is called by G. P. Putnam's Sons to Mr. Graham McAdam's "Alphabet in Finance," as presenting simple, vigorous, and effective discussions of the silver question, the double standard, and the creed of paper money, as announced by Senator Jones, in his report for the Congressional Currency Commission.

SHELDON & Co. have just published a new and enlarged edition of George Müller's "Life of Trust." The addition to the work consists of an account of the last five years of Mr. Müller's last five years of Mr. hwing, of Brooklyn, under the personal direction of Mr. Müller, who is now in this country.

A NEW juvenile story from Mrs. Charlesworth, the author of "Ministering Children," will be published shortly by Robert Carter & Brothers. It is called "The Old Lookingglass; or, Dorothy Cope's Experience." Several other English juveniles will be ready at the same time.

J. R. Osgood & Co. have nearly ready a book on "Raphael and Michelangelo," by Charles C. Perkins, of Boston, giving an outline of the lives of these great artists, and describing fully their wonderful careers. The work will form an octavo, and will contain many illustrations, including several heliotypes.

Professor Peck, the son-in-law of the late Professor Davies, and well known for his own mathematical series, is editing for A. S. Barnes & Co. a new set of text-books combining the features of both Professor Davies and his own works, under the title of "Davies' and Peck's United Course." The "Complete Arithmetic" is just ready.

A COMMITTEE of Boston publishers, including Mr. James T. Fields, William Lee, Benjamin H. Ticknor, J. S. Lockwood, and Dana Estes, solicit contributions for the "Book Table" at the approaching Old South Church fair, to be held in the old meeting-house next week—an object to which, we trust, the trade will be glad to contribute.

THE special holiday trade sale of books opened at Geo. A. Leavitt & Co.'s on Monday, and, despite the unpleasantness of the day, attracted a good gathering of buyers, chiefly, however, from this city and vicinity. The catalogue embraced many attractive invoices, and the buying started off well, at reasonably good prices.

A HITHERTO unknown story by Edgar A. Poe is said to have recently come into the possession of Mr. John H. Ingram, who has taken charge of Poe's literary reputation in England It is entitled "The Journal of Julius Rodman," and is a description of an imaginary "First Passage Across the Rocky Mountains of North America ever Achieved by Civilized Man." An English paper publishes a precis of the story.

THE Long Island Historical Society has nearly ready its "centennial volume" on "The Campaign of 1776 around New York and Brooklyn." The work, edited by Mr. Henry P. Johnston, largely from original documents, contains a circumstantial account of the battle of Long Island and the capture of New York, but touches as well on the Revolutionary history of nine States. Mr. George Hannah, librarian of the society, Brooklyn, will receive subscriptions at $3, for the limited edition. The book will have illustrations.

"THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES" ($5), just published by Frank W. Robinson, 1420 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, is a series of biographies of the Judges of the Supreme Court. Their portraits are engraved on steel, and the publisher presents them as the finest that can be made in line, stipple, or mezzotinto style. Wm. H. Barnes, the author, has had personal acquaintance with all of the recent occupants of the Supreme Bench, and is therefore eminently fitted for the work. As a national portrait gallery, the work is of much interest.

THE Presbyterian Board of Publication have just issued, "Visions of Heaven for the Life on Earth," by the Rev. R. M. Patterson, author of "Paradise," to which this is a companion volume; also a very pretty book for the holidays, "The Sunbeam Book," which is a collection of Bible lessons and stories for the little folks, small quarto, cloth gilt, fully illustrated. "Light for the Day" is the title of a new volume, to be issued by them within a few weeks, similar in character to "Daily Light," published by Bagster, of London.

THE American Sunday-School Union is about to publish an edition of "The Scholars' Hand-Book," by the Rev. E. W. Rice, arranged especially for the use of the Sunday-schools of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The only difficulty heretofore existing against its use by this denomination has been the seeming impracticability of arranging the lessons with any reference to the various seasons of their church year. This difficulty is now overcome. "Poor Henry; or, the Pilgrim's Hut on the Weissenstein," is the last publication of this house; Dr. C. G. Barth, of Würtemberg, is the author.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce a new series of handy-books about "Men of Letters," short books to be edited by John Morley, which shall tell people the main facts as to the life, character, works, and position in literary history of some of the greatest writers in English. Among the contributors will be the Dean of St. Paul's, who will write on Spenser; J. A. Froude, on Bunyan; Principal Shairp, on Burns; Mark Pattison, on Milton; Goldwin Smith, on Wordsworth; R. H. Hutton, on Scott; Leslie Stephen, on Johnson; J. A. Symonds, on Shelley; J. C. Morison, on Gibbon; and the editor on Swift.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. have just ready Mr. Clarence Cook's "book beautiful" about "The House Beautiful," which certainly comes close to the ideal of bookmaking. The text is most delightful reading, the many illustrations are exquisite and exquisitely printed, and the title-page is worthy of note as a tasteful innovation. Those who delight in household art, the subject of the book, will delight in the book itself as a work of art. They will issue on Saturday next, Dr. Schliemann's great work on "Mycenæ," and his discoveries there, which includes an elaborate introduction by Mr. Gladstone. The book is elegantly gotten up, with maps, colored plates, views, and cuts illustrating several hundred types of the objects found in and about the royal sepulchres.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready two very important books: Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford's book on household art, "Art Decoration applied to Furniture," profusely illustrated, the third of their pretty art series, and the most popular and comprehensive of the books on this subject, and Di Cesnola's "Researches and Discoveries in the Island of Cyprus," a book full of interest here and finely illustrated. Mrs. Spofford's book is particularly noticeable for its historic review of schools in furniture, as well as its good advice. Among their forthcoming books are "The Khedive's Egypt," an elaborate book on that interesting country, by Edwin de Leon; the first volume of "A Modern Minister," which has been attracting attention in its serial publication in Blackwood, as the work of a rising George Eliot, and, in the Half-hour Series, Macaulay's "Lord Clive."

A POPULAR edition of Richard Cobden's speeches and political writings is to be published by the Committee of the Cobden Club.

THE new edition of Sir Walter Scott's novels, with wood-cuts by P. Thumann, Eugen Klimsch, and G. Urlaub, recently started by Grote & Co., Berlin, is now being issued in London by Messrs. Marcus Ward & Co.

THE memorial statue of the late Mr. Adam Black, the eminent publisher, erected to his memory in Edinburgh, was recently unveiled in the presence of a large assemblage. Lord Moncrieff, in a long address, presented the statue to the Lord Provost and citizens.

An English edition of Lessing's works is promised. The Dramatic Works complete, which have been in preparation for some time, will be issued soon, as two volumes in "Bohn's Standard Library," and will be followed, after a short interval, by a selection from the prose works.

MR. THOMAS HARDY'S new story, "The Return of the Native," will be begun in the January number of Belgravia. The scenes will chiefly be laid in the open air, on the hills of a large heath to the west of the New Forest, and the leading characters will be seconded by a chorus of rustics, as in some of the writer's previous novels.

The prize of 5000 roubles offered in 1874 by the Russian Government for the best book on the history of cavalry, has been awarded to the work of Lieutenant-Colonel George T. Denison, of the British army in Canada, recently published by Macmillan & Co. The competition was thrown open to the officers of all foreign armies.

It is announced in the Athenaum that a printed copy of the draft report of the Parliamentary Copyright Commission is now in the hands of each member, and a meeting will shortly be held for settling the final result. The clauses are upward of seventy in number, and the recommendations, especially as regards dramatic copyright, are elaborate and comprehensive. Sir Fitz-James Stephen has supplied a code of the existing law, which enables the bearings of the whole matter to be clearly understood. Unless existing differences of opinion should be reconciled, there is a likelihood of at least one minority report accompanying that of the majority. The evidence fills a blue-book of about 800 pages. "We are glad," adds the journal, "to think there is a fair prospect of the report of the Commission being made the subject of a Government measure next session.

THE Index Society proposed at the English library conference has already been put into practical shape. A meeting for organization was held on the 26th ult., at the London Li-brary, and it was resolved to form a society under that title, having for its immediate object the compiling of indexes to well-known books that are deficient in that respect, and also the formation of subject indexes. These are to be printed and circulated among the members. The society will at the same time proceed with the work of making a general index of universal literature, which should be accessible to members at the office during compilation. library of indexes will be commenced, and will include whatever can contribute to the formation of a comprehensive key to all knowledge. Subscribers' names and other communications will be received by the Honorary Secretary protem., Mr. H. B. Wheatley, 5 Minford Gardens, West Kensington. The subscription will be one guinea.

Of the excellence and completeness of the work, the publishers present the following testimonials:

"The undersigned, having carefully examined the work recently published by Mr. Henry V. "Poor, upon the subject of Money, hereby express their conviction that he has unfolded its "NATURE and Laws with an amplitude and clearness which have all the force of demonstration. "His assumption of treating money as a subject coming within the range of the exact sciences has been well sustained. The application of the principles laid down in the first part of his work cannot fail to restore order in the place of the chaos of opinion which now prevails, and "to point out, unmistakably, the conditions necessary to a restoration of the currency of the "country to the standard of coin. We commend the work to the public as an able, scholarly, "painstaking, and exhaustive treatise upon a subject in which is involved, more than in any other "now engaging their attention, the welfare of the people of the United States."

HOWWE

"The book is anonymous, but Mr. John Habberton, in the introduction intimates that it is full of hints, attention to which, on the part of parents, will tend at once to lessen the mortality among children, and to prevent those of them who live to man's estate from becoming criminals, writers for the press, or members of Congress."—New York Evening Post.

"John Habberton, author of 'Helen's Babies,' acts as its godfather, and commends it to the public. The book is something more than an addition to the 'Family' literature: it is intended to give, beneath some play of humor, really valuable counsel."—Christian Intelligencer.

". The subjects treated in this work are practical, and they are mainly facts, for it is quite evident that the Benedict who wrote this book is a physician who is conversant with his subject, and writes with enthusiasm."—Brooklyn Eagle.

- "'Gérard's Marriage' is as exquisite in its form, color, and delicacy, as a choice piece of Sèvres porcelain."—Literary World.
- "'Samuel Brohl and Company,' in short, deserves attention, as being the ripest and most captivating performance of one of the first novelists now living in France."—New York Sun.
- "'Spirite' exercises a subtile spell, a fascination over the reader, which compels him to go on to the end."—Utica Herald.
 "'The Tower of Percemont' is equal to the best of George Sand's smaller romances; the portraits of all her characters are skilfully drawn, and the descriptions of nature are exquisite. When shall we see another such a writer?"—Express.
 - "' Meta Holdenis' is altogether admirable, both in itself and as an example of the high art of narration."-Evening Post.

NOTES IN SEASON.

"POETS' HOMES," making a small quarto volume, with portraits of the leading American poets, pictures of their homes and libraries, and pleasant description of their lives and writings, is just ready at D. Lothrop & Co.'s.

JOHN CHURCH & Co. have just published as Christmas gift-books holiday editions of the "Musical Union" of piano and song, full gilt, $4, and of "Mendelssohn," the memoir by Ferdinand Hiller ($1.50), as also "The Great Tone-Poets," by F. Crowest, spoken of in our Christmas number.

J. R. Osgood & Co.'s books for this week are two volumes in Longfellow's "Poems of Places," devoted to Germany; Mr. Sweetser's excellent account of Murillo, as the fourth book in the popular "Artist Biographies;" and Dr. Sherman's fine translation of "Frithiof's Saga," heartily commended by Mr. Longfellow, superbly illustrated by A. Malmstrom, an eminent Swedish artist, printed with red-line border, and elegantly bound for a holiday book ($7.50).

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish shortly, in their "Collection of Foreign Authors," a translation of Comte de Gobineau's Nouvelles Asiatiques, under the title of "Romances of the East." These stories of Asiatic life are, for freshness and graphic style, among the most notable things in recent literature. The same house has also complete—an excellent investment for holiday stock—Black's library edition of Waverley novels, which, for beautiful letterpress, illustrations, and general get-up, is not easily to be excelled.

ROBERTS BROTHERS' new books include "Windfalls," a volume of miscellaneous, scholarly, entertaining, witty essays by Thomas G. Appleton; Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton's "Poems," in a book like Mr. Chadwick's poems, and sure of a cordial welcome from a host of personal and literary friends; and, most important of all, Dr. F. H. Hedge's new volume, "The Ways of the Spirit," which is pronounced on good authority one of the profoundest, most scholarly, most suggestive collections of religious essays in American literature or any other. It is emphatically a book.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready, "Reminiscences and Anecdotes of Daniel Webster," by Peter Harvey, who has collected, we believe, more material concerning the great statesman than any other writer on the same subject. The book, a respectable octavo, contains, besides a portrait, a full-length sketch of Mr. Webster in fisherman's costume, by Ames; Green Harbor at Marshfield; Library at Marshfield, and the statue in Central Park, in this city. The same house also publishes the fourth edition of Bartlett's "Dictionary of Americanism," which has fairly established a reputation as a standard work.

THE literary interest in the book embodying Dr. Schliemann's Grecian researches is very much heightened by the purport of Mr. Glad-stone's Introduction (some forty pages in length), fully endorsing the work, the full title of which is, "Mycenæ: A Narrative of Researches and Discoveries at Mycense and Tiryns." The American copyright edition, printed from duplicates of the English plates, by Scribner, Armstrong & Co., is issued this Saturday, simultaneously with Mr. Murray's London edition. The volume is among the most splendid and copiously illustrated books of modern times, containing in all (including maps and colored plates) over seven hundred illustrations.

LEE & SHEPARD will shortly publish "Seola," a novel to which very strong and flattering adjectives are applied; Oliver Optic's new story, "Isles of the Sea," completing the second series of "Young America Abroad;" "Leedle Yaw-cob Strauss," and other Dutchly-humorous poems, by Charles F. Adams, of Boston, with numerous pictures by an ingenious Boston artist, who hides his name under the pseudonym "Bound in Honor," which has the significant sub-title, "A Harvest of Wild Oats;" and "Something Better," as the fourth volume in the Sparkling Series. Lee & Shepard are now ready to receive advance orders for 50.000 of this. "Go Up Higher," James Freeman Clarke's new volume of wise, practical, positively religious sermons, must not be overlooked in the rush of books at this season; it is one of the best books, good for this year and many years to come.

HOLIDAY BOOK SLAUGHTERING.

WE printed in our last issue the extraordinary card of the Book Butcher up the river; there come to us now, with request for publication, correspondence and newspaper scraps regarding a similar affair in Minneapolis—the incursion of a cheap-John dealer who sets up his tent just at the holiday season, and prepares to cut out the trade of the regular bookstores at about the only time of the year when there is business enough in these days to really pay a profit above store expenses. He proposes to sell as low as one hundred per cent (sic) below the regular retail prices, which, at nothing on the dollar, certainly beats any thing the regular trade can do. We don't propose to arraign any one for selling goods as low as they can reasonably be sold—that is, so long as they are paid for at a hundred cents on the dollar, and the buyer in other respects keeps within the limits necessary to legitimate trade. These are the rights of an American citizen. these "slaughters" so far have not been legitimate; usually somebody gets badly cheated. Of the Minneapolis case, a bookselling firm of that city writes: "The stock of this fellow is not so heavy as he advertises, the book department being decidedly light, but he hurts us by quoting cost rates on goods he hasn't got and doesn't intend to have, but 'will order!"

We have unfortunately no effective advice to offer to the Minneapolis trade. We can only lay the matter before publishers and jobbers, as another illustration of the working of certain lines of policy, but this of course has no effect on the present matter. The local trade there propose to meet the new-comer on his own ground, which means that, if necessary, they must sell below cost. They take the wise step of calling the attention of the local public that they have labored long to earn the good-will of the city, and that the new opposition has not. Under such circumstances, this last is about the only resource of the legitimate bookseller, and he is wise therefore who makes himself as useful as possible the year through to his local community.

We present herewith the latest bill prepared by Judge Bissell, modifying considerably that printed in our issue of November 3d, and modifying it in many respects for the better. This bill is already before Congress. We had in type for this issue a detailed review of the previous bill, with proposed modifications embodying the views of leading publishers, but the new bill puts a new phase on the matter, and we must defer criticism till later. The bill is not yet quite such as publishers desire, but we believe the modifications desirable for their interests can be introduced without difficulty. The Postmaster-General, in his report, endorses the new bill, and includes a valuable report from Judge Bissell on the subject, to which we hope to give full attention hereafter. We are very glad to note the entente cordiale at present existing between the department and the publishers.

THE LATEST POSTAL BILL.

45TH CONGRESS, 1ST SESSION. H. R. 1546.

In the House of Representatives, November 22, 1877.

Read twice, referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Money, by unanimous consent, introduced the following bill:

A bill providing for the classification of mailmatter, and rates of postage thereon.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That mailable matter shall be divided into three classes:

First, written matter;

Second, printed matter;

Third, merchandise.

SEC. 2. That mailable matter of the first class shall embrace letters, postal cards, and all matter wholly or partly in writing, except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 3. That on mailable matter of the first class, except postal cards, postage shall be prepaid at the rate of three cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof. Postal cards shall be transmitted through the mails at a postage charge of one cent each, including the cost of manufacture.

Sec. 4. That mailable matter of the second class shall embrace all matter exclusively in print, without addition by writing, mark, or sign, except as provided in section eighteen, proof-sheets and corrected proof-sheets.

SEC. 5. That there shall be two rates for mailable matter of the second class, to wit: a privileged" rate and an "ordinary" rate. Publications registered as hereinafter provided shall be transmitted through the mails at the "privileged" rate; and other matter of this class shall be charged with the "ordinary" rate.

SEC. 6. From and after the passage of this act, publishers of mail-matter of the second class who may desire to have their publications transmitted through the mails at the privileged rate of postage shall submit the same to the department, under such regulations as the Postmaster-General may prescribe, together with the fee required for registration, which is hereby declared to be one dollar per annum. publication thus submitted shall be examined, under such regulations as shall enable the Postmaster-General to ascertain its true character, and, if found to be within the conditions named in section ten, a certificate of registration shall thereupon be issued to the postmaster at the place where such publication is published, who shall cause the same to be placed on file in his office. A duplicate of such certificate shall also be filed in the Post-Office Department. When such certificate shall be received by the postmaster, he shall immediately notify the publisher of the publication to which it is issued, to that effect. This certificate of registration shall entitle the publication to which it shall be issued, when sent from the office of publication or a news-agency, to be transmitted through the mails, at the following rates, to wit: When published less often than once a week, and as often as four times a year, three cents per pound or fraction thereof; when published as often as once a week, two cents per pound or fraction thereof, such postage to be prepaid in the same manner as now provided by law: Provided, however, That no publication shall pass through the mails at the privileged rate unless a certificate of registration has been issued to it: Provided also, That every publication admitted to the privileged rate shall have printed upon each issue thereof the words "Registered at privileged rate."

SEC. 7. The certificate of registration granted as in the preceding section shall be revoked by the Postmaster-General only in case the publication to which it has been granted shall have so changed its character as to make it no longer within the conditions named in section ten.

SEC. 8. That registered matter of the second class shall be examined at the office of mailing; and, if found to contain matter which is subject to another rate of postage, such registered matter shall be charged with postage at the rate to which the enclosed matter is subject.

SEC. 9. That any publisher who shall print, or cause to be printed, upon any issue of his publication, the words designated in section six, to whose publication a certificate of registration has not been granted, or who shall submit, or cause to be submitted, any false evidence to the department relative to the character of his publication, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, for every such offence, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 10. That the conditions upon which a publication shall be admitted to the privilege of registration are as follows:

First, it must be regularly issued at stated

Second, it must be issued from a known office of publication.

Third, it must be originated and published for the dissemination of information of a public character, or upon some special subject, or devoted to literature, the sciences, arts, er some special industry, and having a legitimate list of subscribers: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to admit publications which, although issued in regular series or successive numbers, are but reprints of books, to the benefit of the privileged rate.

Fourth, it must be printed and published in the United States.

SEC. 11. That the certificate of registration issued under the provisions of section six shall be in the following form, to wit:

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

Postmaster-General.

Postmaster. -

SEC. 12. The term subscriber, as used in the tenth section, is defined to be a person who has actually paid or undertaken to pay'a subscription-price for a regular publication, or for whom such payment has been made or undertaken to be made by some other person. But, in the latter case, such payment must have been made or undertaken with the previous consent or at the previous request of the person to whom such publication is sent. subscription necessary to constitute the person making it, or for whom it is made, a regular subscriber must be for a period of time for which the publisher, according to his published terms, offers to supply his publication to subscribers by mail.

SEC. 13. On all mail-matter of the second class not registered as heretofore provided, except unsealed circulars; on proof-sheets and corrected proof-sheets, postage shall be paid at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, which rate shall be called the "ordinary" rate, and shall be prepaid by postage-stamps affixed to said matter.

SEC. 14. That the term "circular," as used in the preceding section, is defined to be a printed letter, which, according to internal evidence, is being sent in identical terms to several persons. A circular shall not lose its character as such when the date and the name of the addressed and of the sender shall be therein written, nor by the correction of mere typographical errors in writing. The rate of postage upon unsealed circulars shall be as now provided by law.

SEC. 15. That "printed matter" within the intendment of this act is defined to be the reproduction upon paper by any process except that of handwriting of any words, letters, characters, figures, or images, or of any combination thereof.

SEC. 16. That mailable matter of the third class shall embrace all matter not embraced in the first or the second class which is not in its form or nature liable to destroy, deface, or otherwise damage the contents of the mail-bag or harm the person of any one engaged in the postal service, and is not above the weight provided by law, which is hereby declared to be not exceeding four pounds for each package thereof, except for books and documents published or circulated by order of Congress, or official matter emanating from any of the departments of the government: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to permit liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials, obscene matter, or matter appertaining to lotteries, gift-concerts, or fraudulent schemes and devices, to pass through the mails.

SEC. 17. That all matter of the third class shall be subject to examination, and to a postage charge at the rate of one cent an ounce or fraction thereof.

SEC. 18. That mailable matter of the second class shall contain no writing, print, mark, or sign thereon or therein in addition to the original print, except as herein provided, to wit. the name and address of the person to whom the matter shall be sent, either written or printed, the printed title of the publication, the printed name and address of the publisher or sender who sends the same; and, when sent as registered matter under the privileged rate. printed words indicating the date on which the subscription to such matter will end; when sent without registration, under the "ordinary" rate, the sender may write or print his own name or address thereon, with the word "from" above and preceding the same, and in either case may make by the hand simple marks intended to designate a word or a passage of the text to which it is desired to call attention. Upon any package of matter of the third class, there may also be written or printed the number and names of the articles enclosed; and the sender thereof may write or print upon any such articles a mark, number, or letter for purpose of identification. There may be placed upon the cover or blank leaves of any book or of any printed matter of the second class, subject to the ordinary rate, a simple manuscript dedication or inscription that does not partake of the nature of a personal correspondence.

SEC. 19. That matter of the second or the third class containing any writing or printing, other than indicated in the preceding section, or made in the manner other than therein indicated, shall not be delivered except upon the payment of postage for matter of the first class, deducting therefrom any amount which may have been prepaid by stamps affixed to such matter; and any person who shall conceal or enclose any matter of the first class in that of the second or third class, and deposit or cause the same to be deposited for conveyance by mail at a less rate than would be charged for the conveyance by mail of the matter concealed or enclosed if sent not so concealed or enclosed, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of ten dollars: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent publishers and dealers in registered matter of the second class from enclosing in their publications bills and receipts for subscription thereto.

SEC. 20. That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to change in any manner the rates of postage charged under existing laws upon matter delivered at offices where the system of free delivery is established.

SEC. 21. That the Postmaster-General, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, may appoint a superintendent of mail classification, and may prescribe such regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. as shall be necessary to carry the same into effect.

SEC. 22. That section nine of an act approved June 23d, 1874, entitled "An Act making appropriations for the service of the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1875, and for other purposes," and all other laws inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

WHICH SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

(From the Minneapolis papers.)

THE SLAUGHTER OF STOCK: A CANDID ANNOUNCEMENT MADE BY A NEW FIRM.

ON Friday morning, November 23d, 1877, will open the largest book, stationery, and fancygoods store east of Chicago. Twenty-five thousand dollars' worth of stock, consisting of books, stationery, pictures, frames, holiday and fancygoods, Japanese goods in endless variety, and all the latest imported and domestic novelties of the season. The stock must be sold at once, every thing being marked at the lowest wholesale cost prices, running from 33½ to 100 per cent below the regular retail prices. Every thing marked in plain figures.

The entire stock being bought in August of this year, direct of manufacturers and importers for cash, of course can be offered far below what any retail house can afford to do, and even then afford the proprietor a small profit. There are no unsalable shop or shelf-worn goods in the entire stock, every thing being new and clean. The stock must be closed out long before the holidays, and consequently we respectfully solicit an examination of our goods at once. We have hired twenty lady and gentlemen clerks, all being well known to residents of Minneapolis.

No trashy or cheap goods will be sold. Every thing guaranteed to be as represented. I have not come to sell you cheap and nnsaleable goods at high prices, but to sell a new, clean stock at prices that everybody can afford to but at.

Respectfully yours.

C. W. COLTON,
Proprietor New York Store, 305 Nicollet
Ave., Winship's Block.

A CARD FROM MESSRS. GASLIN, WALES & CHUTE.

To the Citizens of Minneapolis:

Our Mr. Wales has been in Eastern cities for several weeks buying goods for the holiday and winter trade. He writes us that he has made the finest and best selection of goods that has ever been brought to this city, and at prices that will enable us to meet any legitimate competition.

We have been in the trade here for many years, and have aimed to do an honest, upright business, and whatever claims we may have upon our people over itinerant and short-lived rivals, we have earned by honest efforts to furnish the best goods at the lowest prices. Ours is emphatically a MINNEAPOLIS bookstore, and we are here to stay. We warrant all goods as represented, keep the fullest stocks in every department that the wants of our growing city require, and we cannot and will not be undersold. If it should be necessary to sell goods at or under cost, we are prepared to meet the necessity. Such being the case, we suggest the propriety of sustaining a home institution in preference to those not identified in any way with the interests of our city. In conclusion, we would say that we will soon have our complete holiday stock on exhibition, and simply ask you to visit our store, examine our goods, and learn the prices before you purchase elsewhere.

Very respectfully,
GASLIN, WALES & CHUTE.
125 Nicollet Ave., opposite Post-Office.

THE BOOK BUTCHER'S TRADE SALE.

DEC. 6, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Why, my dear man, don't you see the "Book Butcher" is holding a "Trade Sale?" After sticking the trade all they can by drummers, "special discounts," "regular trade sale," and "special holiday trade sale," of course the believers in this way of doing business will make a good consignment to the "Butcher." Only think, he makes "no charge for cataloguing." Such generosity is unparalleled. H.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THOMAS KELLY, New York, has begun the publication, in parts, of a work on "The Lives and Times of Illustrious Representative Irishmen," by Thomas Clark Luby, A.B.

A. Cogswell, 139 Eighth Street, has bought the plates of "Mabel Vaughan," and will issue a new edition, in attractive binding, early in December.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have printed, under date of December 1st, a supplementary page for the Trade List Annual, to be pasted in with their list, giving changed prices and additions.

S. R. Wells & Co. have just issued a new edition of Dr. Joel Shew's "Letters to Women on Midwifery and Diseases of Women," a work that has for some time been out of print.

D. APPLETON & Co. will shortly issue "Elements of Geology," by Joseph Le Conte. The object of the work will be to furnish a more complete treatment of American geology than is contained in Lyell's "Elements."

THE second Old Testament volume of "The Biblical Museum," the popular commentary edited by the Rev. J. Comper Gray, now in preparation, covers Leviticus to Deuteronomy. A. D. F. Randolph & Co. are the American publishers of the series.

WILLIAM B. MUCKLOW proposes to issue, immediately after the holidays, an important new work by the Rev. Dr. Deems, entitled, "Weights and Wings, and other Things." The same publisher announces for issue in December,

"Masks and Faces; or, An Appeal for Fidelity in Friendship," by S. H. Tyng, Jr., D.D.; and "Henri; or, The Little Savoyard in Paris," by Mrs. Lizzie P. Lewis—a book for boys.

THE latest edition of Chambers' Encyclopædia, which is supplied to the trade in this country by Mr. Worthington, 750 Broadway, New York, is revised up to October, 1877, and, as an indication of its thoroughness, contains full accounts of the deaths of ex-President Thiers and Brigham Young.

MISS HOWARD'S "One Summer," with Mr. Hoppin's characteristic illustrations (characteristic both of Mr. Hoppin and of the charming story), will be published next week by J. R. Osgood & Co., at the same time, probably, with Col. Waring's book of travel in eastern France, "The Bride of the Rhine," very abundantly illustrated.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have completed their list of new books for the holiday sea-One of the most popular will be Tennyson's "Maud," which is profusely illustrated, elegantly printed, and richly bound. "Wanderings in Four Continents" is a book of travel and adventure. As four parts of the world are visited, and as many exciting adventures take place in these parts, and as these same adven-tures are made doubly interesting by being portrayed by illustration as well as by narrative, it follows that it will be extremely attractive.
"Persons, Places, and Things" covers pretty much all there is to be seen in this world, though the volume makes no such pretension; it being sketches of travel, stories of adventure, descriptions of places, illustrated with over two hundred engravings, and are both instruc-tive and amusing. "Europe Seen Through tive and amusing. American Spectacles" is reissued in a much handsomer style than heretofore. "Some Highways and Byways of American Travel" is a series of sketches of travel in various parts of the United States, and is an excellent guidebook for the tourist and all those desiring information of their own country. It is profusely Three very handsome juvenile illustrated. books are those by Daudet, Kingston, and Mortimer. "My Brother Jack; or, The Story of What-d'ye-call 'Em," is from the French of Mortimer. Daudet. It contains sixty illustrations. Kingston is always on hand about Christmas-time, and well it is so, for no writer is more popular with the young. "The Two Supercargoes" is the title of the latest, and gives the woful experience of some unfortunates in savage Africa, "Six Hundred Robinson Crusoes," by Morti-

"Six Hundred Robinson Crusoes," by Mortimer, is claimed to be a true story of six hundred passengers being cast on one of the West India Islands, where they undergo some new experiences. These three are handsomely illustrated.

A LARGE octavo volume, to be entitled "The Stationers' Guide and Printers' and Booksellers' Trade Directory," is in preparation in London. It is intended to afford information on various matters connected with the English trade.

the esteem and interest he betrays for her to be love. She marries him, and goes home to a life without love, and to a depth of unhappiness which awakens the reader's constant sympathy. Her story has many sides to it, her troubles with her step-children, with her husband's uncle, a rich courtly old sceptic, upon whose bounty they are dependent, and her jealousy of her husband's first wife. Her force of character and good sense, however, surmount all these difficulties, and we leave her a happy wife, rich in the love she has nobly fought for and won. Though the author is quite unknown here, she is a welcome addition to the ranks of the novelists. 8vo, paper, 25 cents.

ONLY A CAT, by Mrs. H. B. Paull. (T. hittaker.) Tom Blackman is the name of Whittaker.) the distinguished subject of this memoir, who although "only a cat," was a most intelligent, docile, loving member of society. His adventures were various, and often quite exciting. He lived in the very highest circles, and became the repository of many singular family secrets, all of which he relates here in the very choicest feline language. He died at an advanced age, respected and regretted by all who knew him. We think the little ones will find much to amuse them in this very nice story much that is quite funny, and much that will instruct them about the ways of cats, and the high training and education of which they are capable if loved and kindly cared for. With numerous full-page illustrations, and attractively bound. A bright chromo on front cover. 4to, cloth, $1.50.

CREED AND DEED, a Series of Discourses, by Felix Adler. (Putnam.) Prof. Adler's Sunday lectures before the "Society for Ethical Culture" have been for over a year one of the attractive features of our city to cultured and thinking people. His preachings discard all creeds or doctrines, chiefly aiming to inculcate morality and high aspiration. The discourses contained in this volume are among the most notable given to the public—namely, "Religion," "Immortality," "The New Ideal," "The Priest of the Ideal," "The Form of the New Ideal," "The Religious Conservatism of Women," "Our Consolations," "Spinoza," "The Founder of Christianity," "The Anniversary Discourse." They are marked by a most scholarly style and cultured diction. The volume is very handsomely gotten up and printed. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE KHEDIVE'S EGYPT, by Edwin De Leon. (Harper.) Mr. De Leon was for many years in Egypt in an official capacity, which gave him exceptional advantages for gaining a knowledge of its last three rulers, including the present Khedive—with all of whom he had most intimate private and public relations. He feels, therefore, that he has much to say about the Khedive's Egypt that is new and interesting not only to the general reader, but to the thoughtful student of man and history as well. His work is not written in any partisan spirit, his sole desire being, as he says, to give a photographic picture of the changes wrought in the old "House of Bondage" by Mehemet Ali and his successors, and its true social, political, and economical position to-day. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

IN THE MESHES, by Christine McKenzie. Lippincott.) "Waif," the heroine of this story, seems especially marked out by providence or the author as a fitting subject upon whose unoffending heatl all the ills and woes of life may be poured. She has a hard time of it from the opening of the story, when her heart is almost broken by the news of her father's marriage, to the end, when we find her with her life and reason almost destroyed through the wicked machinations of her step-mother and step-sister. The scene of the story is America, the actors being chiefly Southern people. It has plenty of action and quite an intricate plot, and is quite acceptable in style. It will be received by novel-readers as a very interesting and exciting story. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

How WE RAISED OUR BABY. (Derby Brox.) If one judged this book from its outside appearance, it would find a place among the pre-niles. It comes in a real holiday dress, with a pretty chromo on front cover and plenty of gold adornments. But it is not a book for the little ones—far from it, indeed—for the little ones get enough experience, in proprid person, to dispense with a written history of the haps and mishaps of the nursery. Mothers are recommended to read the volume, and to learn much of practical value from the sad history of a young couple with their first baby. Mr. John Habberton, author of "Helen's Babies," furnishes a characteristic introduction. Sq. 16mo, cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

MATERIA MEDICA FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS, by John B. Biddle, M.D. (Lindsay & Blakiston.) This is the eighth edition of a well-known work, the seventh edition having been exhausted in little more than a year. It being necessary, therefore, to publish a new edition, it has been carefully revised, much of it has been recast and even rewritten, and many new articles have been added. The author trusts that it will be found to have kept pace with the progress of pharmacological science, and to contain all important recent contributions to the various departments of pharmacology. The illustrations are the same as in previous editions. 8vo, cloth, $4.

LETTICE EDEN, by Emily Sarah Holt. (Carter.) A very pretty and instructive story for girls, of the last days of King Henry the Eighth, told in the quaint and pleasing phraseology of the time. Lettice Eden is a young orphan who is thrown upon the world, and who becomes "waiting-gentlewoman" to a grand lady. The story of her life and love is very charmingly told by herself, and she also gives some very graphic sketches of historical events of her day. The chief aim of the book is to teach trust in God and dependence upon his goodness and mercy. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THOREAU: HIS LIFE AND AIMS, a study by H. A. Page. (Osgood.) Thoreau was a man so little known that any particulars of his life, any light thrown upon the singularities which distinguished him, will be welcome by his admirers. Mr. Page does not pretend to offer a biography, he only takes up the threads of Thoreau's life, and gathers from them and from his writings a very charming "study," " an effort to gain a consistent view of the man's character rather than an exhaustive record of the facts of his life." Little Classic style. $1.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

REV. EDWARD ABBOTT is making the Literary World a model of enterprising literary journalism. In the current number, he has obtained the co-operation of the most distinguished American poets and other writers in a unique tribute to Mr. Whittier, whose birthday comes on the 17th. There are poems in honor of the event by Henry W. Longfellow, Bayard Taylor, Edmund Clarence Stedman, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Paul H. Hayne, J. G. Holland, George Parsons Lathrop, Hiram Rich, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Lydia Maria Child, James Freeman Clarke, Wm. S. Shurtleff, Celia Thaxter, and Charlotte F. Bates; and greetings in prose from Richard H. Dana, William Cullen Bryant, Geo. Bancroft, Charles W. Eliot, F. Parkman, H. B. Stowe, Thos. Wentworth Higginson, Oliver Johnson, and Robert Collyer. Charles B. Rice describes Mr. Whittier's homelife in a short paper. An authentic list of Mr. Whittier's writings closes this testimonial, for which the Literary World deserves, as the Tribune justly says, the grateful recognition of all who have at heart the interests of American literature.

THE Chicago Law Journal is the title of a new magazine to be published in Chicago, at intervals of four weeks, and as much oftener as may be found necessary. The Journal will contain reports of the opinions of the Appellate Courts of Illinois in full, advanced opinions of the Supreme Court, occasional and important opinions of the Criminal, Circuit, Superior, and the United States Courts throughout the State of Illinois; also leading cases of the Supreme Court of the United States. E. B. Meyers & Co. are the publishers.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for January is a capital number, giving glimp es of many parts of the world. Mrs. J. W. Davis gives an excellent description of Prague; Van Cleef contributes a profusely illustrated paper on the celebrated "Hot Springs of Arkansas," the American Baden; Wm. H. Rideing has a chatty paper on "our" Broadway. J. W. De Forest, in a [brilliant paper, shows how the Turks fought the Russians just fifty years ago. Besides this, there are short stories, and poems, and other and heavier contributions, too numerous to mention.

THE initial issue of D. Lothrop & Co.'s quarterly Boston Book Bulletin, under the editorship of Mr. C. A. Nelson, who has had much experience with books in the trade and as a writer and librarian, has just been issued. It contains original articles and reviews from the Rev. E. E. Hale, A. Bronson Alcott, J. T. Trowbridge, F. B. Perkins, Professor John Fiske, F. B. Sanborn, and others.

In the forthcoming number of Scribner's monthly will appear a paper on "Pidgin English," by Mr. A. A. Hayes, Jr., one of whose clever parodies in this dialect has lately gone the rounds of the press. The same issue will contain "A Glimpse of Youth," one of three short poems recently written by Dr. J. G. Holland, who, it is said, will not write another novel at present, but will devote his best hours to the writing of poems, with the intention to soon publish a volume.

ST. NICHOLAS for January will be a very storehouse of good things. Among the attractions will be George MacDonald's promised "Letter to Young Americans," contributions from the author of the "Schönberg-Cotta Family," Dr. J. G. Holland, David Kerr, and others. The Christmas Card in the Holiday edition is to be followed, in the coming number, by New Year Card drawn by the same artist, Miss L. Greenway, of London.

An interesting feature of APPLETONS' Join-NAL for January will be a fully illustrated aride descriptive of the building of the Great Suspension-Bridge over the East River between New York and Brooklyn. The article will form the first of a series, under the general deignation of "The American at Work," which will illustrate and describe recent enterprises and later developments of industry in this country.

MR. LOUIS J. JENNINGS, former editor of the New York Times, has accepted the editorial charge and control of The Week, a new weekly journal about to be published in London, which, the New York World assures us. "will avoid the slovenly and gossiping tendencies which have impaired the usefulness of too many of the weekly journals of London."

THE Herald of Health for 1878 will contain a series of papers, addressed to farmers and mechanics, which will be plain, practical, and filled with suggestions for the improvement and preservation of the mind and body of these important factors of society.

THE New York Tribune has adopted the small folio form for its weekly edition, which makes it a great deal more convenient to handle.

THE New York Mail has changed hands entirely, and is now published by D. R. Locke (Petroleum V. Nasby).

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. T. J. BOYD, of the publishing firm of Oliver & Boyd, has been elected Lord Provest of Edinburgh.

MR. GEORGE BANCROFT is working away on the new volumes of his History of the United States, opening the era of the Federal Government.

HOWARD CHALLEN, of Philadelphia, about to retire from the publishing business, offers for sale the plates of his well-known publications.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

W. F. GILL is about to bring out a third edition of his "Life of Edgar A. Poe," with additions and many revisions.

HENRY HOLT & Co. protest that their peculiarly illustrated book, "The Prince of Argolis," is not a child's book, but rather that it is "a book to delectate the mature, if cheerfulminded, classical scholar."

E. HALLBERGER will publish in a few days "Homo Sum," by Georg Ebers, whose "Uarda" and "Eine Egyptische Königstochter" are so favorably known to the public. The new novel will give vivid pictures of the times of Constantine the Great.

HURD & HOUGHTON have just published a neat little volume of blank verse in which, under the title of "Angelo," the poet, Stuart Sterne, recounts the loves of Michel Angelo and Vittoria Colonna, in the most charming manner.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co., in connection with the Centennial Photographic Company, have issued a series of four portfolios, containing a selection of photographs of the exteriors and interiors of the Exhibition buildings, and of the most striking objects, in groups and separately, of the Exhibition.

A VERY tasteful and attractive catalogue "For the Holidays" has been issued by the retail department of G. P. Putnam's Sons, following out their custom of previous years. The cover is of rich light brown, lighted up with crimson, and there are many illustrations from the leading books.

E. STEIGER proposes to publish a classified descriptive catalogue of all important American, British, German, French, and other foreign publications on education and general philology, together with works of reference, teachers' hand-books, etc., exclusive of text-books. Mr. Steiger, who has done a large amount of really valuable work in furnishing the public with practical class catalogues, should be well supported by publishers in the way of furnishing him with the necessary information. The catalogue is intended to be issued in connection with the "Cyclopædia of Education," "The Educational Year Book," and separately. Printed circulars, giving further details, will be sent by Mr. Steiger upon application.

SAMPSON Low, MARSTON & Co., London, write to Porter & Coates: "We have been so much pleased with 'Recollections of Samuel Breck' that we have determined to reprint the book, and we think it well to give you this timely notice of our intention. We would gladly have arranged with you for the importation of an edition had you drawn our attention to it in time. Now, we can only say, that, in printing the book, we intend, in accordance with our usual practice, to give the author ten per cent royalty on trade price on sales after we have covered the cost of composition, and printing of 250 copies, and provided we are not interfered with by other publishers, which would render it necessary for us to publish at so low a price as to leave no chance of profit."

BARTLETT'S DICTIONARY of AMERICANISMS

Fourth Edition. A Glossary of Words and Phrases usually regarded as peculiar to the United States. By John Russell Barnett. Greatly improved and enlarged. 8vo, cloth &

This Dictionary of Americanisms will rank among the assimportant of the contributions which the scholarship of the age has made to this department of literature. It is so age curious collection of odd and outlandish words, but an invisable aid in the study of the English language. Many of is definitions are little social histories, pictures of manser, of maional eras, of political struggles. It is an index of our many-sided land, where traits and terms meet under one widespread nationality. It is as interesting to the student of language, in its relation to history and character, as it is valuable as a reference for the origin, locality, and significance of words and epithets born of a new civilization or modified by extraordinary circumstances.

and optimes born of a new civilization of invariant by con-ordinary circumstances.

The London Attennesses said of the former edition, "We close the perusal of the book with commendatory mention of the author's name and a proposal to do him the honor of 'Three cheers and a tiger.'"

ANGELO

A POEM. By STUART STERNE.

In one Volume, 16mo, Cloth, Gilt, $1.

Angelo is a blank verse poem of about two thousand lines, recounting the loves of Michel Angelo and Vittoria Colonna.

Mr. Bayard Taylor says of it, in the New York Tribune: "The key of feeling—or sentiment—upon which the poem is pitched, is remarkably well sustained throughout. In the character of Vittoria, especially, the author has achieved a distinct success: she is a sweet, gracious, noble apparition, justifying the love of Michel Angelo, yet justifying herself in holding it within the bounds of a pure and perfect friendship."

The New York Times said of a previous volume of Poems by the same author: "If it is the work of a woman, she, with many faults, has not her equal in poetic endowment in this country, hardly among any of her sex who speak the English language. If it is the early production of a writer of either sex, it promises a rich maturity."

The volume is tastefully printed and bound and is a charming little book for the holiday season. $PUBLISHED \;\; BY$

THE LIFE AND WORDS OF CHRIST.

By CUNNINGHAM GEIKIE, D.D.

With 12 Engravings on Steel. In two volumes. Price, $8.

OPINIONS OF DISTINGUISHED DIVINES.

From Bishop Beckwith, of Georgia.

"Since you sent me the copy of Dr. Gekie's 'Life and Words of Christ,' I have been so little at home, that it has been impossible for me to give it the careful examination which it deserves. Still, I have read it sufficiently to satisfy me of its great value, and that you are to be congratulated for giving to the American public a work of such interest.

"As a book of history, giving a clear statement of the condition of the world prior to and at the time of our Lord's couning, it furnishes an admirable commentary upon St. Paul's declaration in Galatians, that, "when the fulness of the time had come, God sent forth his Son," etc.

"Interwoven with our Lord's life, is the history of the Jews, their customs as a religious people, and their national and domestic life. The book, therefore, is of value, not merely to the theological student or the student of history, but the family. It furnishes information which every one should possess, and which thoughtful people will be glad to gain from so agreeable a teacher. I have not been able to examine the book with reference to the author's views upon the great doctrinal queswhat inforgation. I have not been able to examine the book with reference to the author's views upon the great doctrinal questions which divide Christendom sufficiently to form a judgment as to those views; his comment upon one or two doctrinal passages, I have read, and I am led to believe and hope that he has been too wise to write in the interest of any party. If I am correct in this, it, of course, adds much to the value of what Dr. Gelich has done. Hoping that your enterprise may be crowned with success, believe me, most respectfully, "John W. Beckwith, Bukop of Georgia,"

From Dr. John Hall.

"In these volumes ('Life and Words of Christ') the resources of Christian literature are not disregarded; but the results reached, and not the processes, lie on the surface.

"Assuming that Andrews, Ellicott, Neander, Langé, and others of the same class, provide for the minute and curious inquirer, the author has aimed at producing a book of continuous care prayers in which the reader was a few and the continuous care of the same care. tious, easy narrative, in which the reader may, as far as possi-ble, see the Saviour of men live and move, and may hear the words he utters with the most vivid attainable idea of his cir-cumstances and surroundings. The result is a work to which all Christian hearts will respond, and which will render to its readers increasingly real the wonderful works and the gracious words of 'the Man Christ Jesus.'

"The value of the work is enhanced to scholars by a body of 'notes,' so placed as not to distract the attention of the general reader; and a good index facilitates reference. One must regard such issues of the American press with profound satisfaction.

JOHN HALL, D.D., "Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church,"

From Bishop Littlejohn, of Long Islan

"Dr. Geikie's has performed his task—the most difficult in biographical literature—with great ability. His pages evince abundant and accurate learning, and, what is of even more consequence, a simple and cordial faith in the Gospel narratives, which, while enabling him to profit by the best results of modern criticism, shields him from the temptation to tone down or dilute the supernatural and divine features of the character and ministry of Christ.

"The work is noteworthy for certain special merits when compared with any previous treatment of the same therme. Its style is fresh, animated, and vigorous. Its arrangement of the subject-matter is such as to present the parts of that wonderful life of the Son of God in their due co-ordination and interdependence, thereby producing on the reader's mind the impression of a continuous organic, divinely-ordered whole from the beginning to the end.

"Dr. Geikie's 'Life and Words of Christ' cannot fail to win the approval and admiration of an intelligent Christian

"Dr. Gestre's 'Life and words of Christ: cannot mu to win the approval and admiration of an intelligent Christian public. The more widely it shall circulate, the more it will be regarded as a most valuable addition to a branch of sacred iterature which ought, in every age, to absorb the best fruits of sacred scholarship, and to command the highest gifts of

NOTES IN SEASON.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

HURD & HOUGHTON have just ready the promised volume of discourses on home and its relations, a subject always full of interest, by Dr. Charles H. Hall, of Brooklyn, a vigor-ous and incisive thinker. The title of the book is "The Church of the Household."

"THE Birth of Jesus," by Rev. H. A. Miles, just ready at Lockwood, Brooks & Co.'s, would be a good holiday gift to a rationalist. It is heterodox, but entirely reverent; thoughtful, suggestive, and very well worth reading by any one who is not afraid to see what can be said on the other side.

HARPER & BROTHERS, by vigorous enterprise, have succeeded in pushing through a second and larger edition of Prime's "Pottery and Porcelain" in time for holiday trade. The im-mediate success of this book, exhausting the first edition at once, is the more remarkable in view of the large number of publications this season, on this or similar subjects.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have had remarkable success with their Lubke's "History of Art," of which the second volume is now ready, just in the nick of time. The edition is almost entirely exhausted by wholesale orders, and those who have occasion to order copies must do so in a hurry. The second volume is much larger than the first, and contains special chapters and many plates found in neither the German nor English editions.

THE last two publications of G. P. Putnam's Sons, for the year 1877, will be the third volume of their "Select British Essayists;" comprising "The Tatler," "Guardian," and "Freeholder," and Mr. Frothingham's "Life of Gerrit Smith." This last possesses special interest as the biography of a man of exceptional originality of character, and-of an active philanthropic life, and also as throwing light on the history of the anti-slavery movement. It contains some valuable correspondence of the antislavery leaders, including some previously unpublished letters of Charles Sumner. A fine portrait of Gerrit Smith has been engraved for the book by Bannister, and it contains also some further illustrations on wood.

THE most important work on Ireland and its interests issued in many years, "Sullivan's New Ireland," is just published by J. B. Lip-pincott & Co., to meet the demand, in a new and cheap edition, price $1. It throws a great deal of light on Fenianism, and on that Irish party in Parliament to which Mr. Sullivan belongs, and is therefore of great value to all intelligent Irishmen, and not less so to the many Americans who have sympathized with the Irish in their struggle with the English rule. "The Ladye Chase," is the title of a little volume by Bishop A. C. Coxe, author of "Thoughts on the Service," "Impressions of England," etc., now republished as entirely revised by the author.

LEE & SHEPARD have now ready the long-announced book, "The Simple Truth," by Rev. Robert Collyer, intended primarily, as a gift by a clergyman to the happy couples he marries, to help them keep happy and grow happier. Everybody who knows Mr. Collyer will readily imagine how hearty, manly, and helpful a book it must be. They also have ready "Princess Eve," said to be an engaging story, translated from the German of Clementine Helm by Rosa Sachs, and equipped with good illustrations; and the speech that Senator Summer prepared describing his "Personal Relations with the President and Secretary of State,"-a speech which he never delivered, and which may very properly be printed now, when, as his friends believe, he is very unjustly criticised and purposely misrepresented.

J. R. Osgood & Co. publish this week C. C. Perkins' admirable volume on "Raphael and Michael-Angelo," of which we spoke last week; a duodecimo edition of "Child-Life in or, Two Hundred Miles in a Row Boat on the Moselle," charming in description and beautiful with abundant pictures; "Manners and Customs of Ye Harvard Student," a series of cartoons by Francis Gilbert Attwood, representing, with some caricature and a deal of underlying truth, the less studious and quiet life and habits of some of the blithe young men at Cambridge—not a coarse book, but a humorous and enjoyable one; and, as the new volume :.. the English and Foreign Philosophical Library "Outlines of the History of Religion to the Supremacy of the Universal Religions," a thoughtful and important work by Prof. C. P. Tiele, of Holland, translated by J. Estlin Car-

LITERARY LARCENY.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY, by an oversight that will occur in these days of an infinity of literature, has been swindled into printing in its January number, and paying for, a poem of Sydney Dobell's. In relation to the matter, Dr. Holland writes to the Tribune:

To the Editor of the Tribune.

Sir.: Will you kindly assist me to give a little notoriety to Mr. H. S. Kellogg, the pretended author of "The Song of the Milkmaid," published in Scribner's Monthly for January. A correspondent has kindly informed me that the poem is stolen from Sydney Dobell, and I have verified the information by referring to Do-

Mr. Kellogg's city address, as recorded upon the manuscript of the poem, is 425 West Twenty-first Street. Under this address, I find in pencil: "Watkins, Schuyler Co., N. Y." Now, as Mr. Kellogg only consented to take the modest sum of five dollars for his work, he could hardly have been driven to his wretched job by want. It must have been notoriety that he was after; so I beg you to post him, on my personal responsibility, for the benefit of the editorial craft, as a literary thief and swindler.

J. G. HOLLAND.

New York, Nov. 18, 1877.

This is nowadays a frequent danger; for it is practically impossible for any one, or two or aree men to be acquainted with every poem in the language. A similar blunder happened in the early days of Harper's Magasine, then partly eclectic, when Henry J. Raymond, its first editor, re-reprinted from an English magazine a considerable article which had originally appeared in Putnam's. A leading Chicago daily publishers.

once paid for and printed an editorial article taken bodily from the New York Tribune. The Commercial Advertiser caps the climax of the present blunder by observing that somebody has swindled the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have issued a fresh number of their neat periodical record of current literature, The Index. They have bound it up with their imprint edition of the CHRISTMAS WEEKLY, for distribution—making a doubly valuable combination. In this connection we should acknowledge the very handsome prefatory card inserted by them in their imprint edition:

"Messrs. A. D. F. Randolph & Co., in transmitting a copy of this Christmas Catalogue, desire to say that it was prepared and published by Mr. F. Leypoldt, of the Publishers' Weekly, to whom all the credit is due for this sumptuous manual of the books of the year.

This is all the more handsome, because it was entirely uncalled for.

WE have received from the "Cercle de la Librairie," Paris, the handsome Chriitmas feuilteton of the Journal, devoted to "Livres d'Etrennes pour l'Année 1877" (gist-books for 1878). It is a large volume of 280 pages, consisting exclusively of the advertising announcements, illustrated and otherwise, of French publishers.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE PARIS EX-POSITION.

. THE passage of the Paris Exposition bill, with an appropriation and with provision for government transportation, and the appointment of Gov. McCormic as Commissioner in chief, have made a creditable display on the part of America reasonably probable. An office will soon be opened in New York, in the Post Office building, for the entry of exhibits and the apportionment of space, and it is to be hoped that the book trade will at once put itself in a position to obtain sufacient room for a representative exhibit. this rush of Christmas business, little attention can be expected to anything else; but some immediate action is desirable, and we call the attention of publishers to the advisability of authorizing Mr. E. Terquem of Paris, who represented the French trade so acceptably at Philadelphia, to secure space for their share of an American book exhibit. In consultation with Mr. Jno. R. Eliot, of Philadelphia, who has taken commendable and unselfish interest in this matter, Mr. Terquem has drawn up a plan for representation, the terms of which are embodied in the heading of a paper in which he is asking publishers to enter their applications for space:

Collective Exhibit of American Publishers: price $15 per square foot of books arranged upon the shelves, which includes all charges, as follows: carriage to and from Havre to Paris; catalogue, show-cases, care, and attendancebefore, during, and after the Exhibition-repacking, re-shipping, and freight to America. Also for placing the books in best manner before the jury, obtaining and forwarding awarded diplomas and medals. To include all cost and charges from the time the books leave the United States until they again reach the United States.

This seems to us the most satisfactory plan, and it is certainly moderate in its demands. To insure its fulfilment, Mr. Terquem should obtain guarantees for 200 square feet of shelving-making the total amount $3000-and there should certainly be no difficulty about this. Mr. Terquem will call upon publishers, with explanations, designs for cases, etc., or can be found at 23 Union Square, room 10, or addressed at this office; and we bespeak for him a favorable reception of his plan. Especially in educational works, and in the art books published this very season, the American trade should take pride in showing Europe what standard our country has already reached.

WE present in this issue several letters from leading publishers on the pending postal question. Those of Messrs. Lippincott and Houghton were prepared in view of the first draft of the new bill, since much modified; but most of the points made still hold. The Lippincott letter calls attention to a number of abuses not remedied in the several changes, and Mr. Houghton's makes a strong case against the proposed centralization of a most important power; but the remedy is to be found only in abolishing the power, since the effects of leaving the question to local postmasters have already been shown in conflicting decisions, which admitted a publication to the mails at one office, and excluded an exactly similar Good points are made journal at another. against the new bill in the other two letters, written in view of the bill as it is actually before Congress. We cannot but agree with the Philadelphia publisher in his dissent from Mr. Bissell's views; and, as Messrs. Clarke point out, the business interest cannot afford to have new legislation which presents in advance ambiguities that must be "construed."

CRITICISMS ON THE POSTAL BILL.

MESSRS. J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. send us, as expressing their views on the postal bill, a copy of their letter to Postmaster-General Key:

PHILADELPHIA, OCT. 26, 1877. POSTMASTER-GENERAL KEY,

Washington, D. C.:

DEAR SIR: We are in receipt of the circular from the Post-Office Department, dated October 22d, and, being specially interested in any change from the arbitrary rulings now in force respecting periodical matter, have given it caretul study.

We may not have construed the circular correctly, but we would frankly state that we see no advantage to the publisher in the proposed changes. The amendment allowing us to affix our name on each parcel is accompanied with a tax (trifling it is true) and a condition that each parcel must be marked as " privileged " matter, which entails an expense and trouble more than commensurate with the advantage. In fact, it seems to us that, for the convenience of the Department in tracing lost matter, it would be advantageous to encourage the use of wrappers bearing the name and address of the sender. If it be that, under this "privileged" rule, publishers will be allowed to use their own judgment as to how they shall insert advertisements in their own journals, we admit at once that it is an improvement.

Then there is a condition that the periodicals "must be printed and published in the United States." We are special agents for several magazines issued in England, which are sent to us in bulk and distributed through the mail from our office, and the new rule would certainly operate seriously against us in that relation.

We take the liberty of here remarking that every change in the postal regulations for some years past has been to the disadvantage of the Enumerating a few of these, we publisher. would mention: First, the recent ruling respecting the advertising pages and inserts of magazines, etc. Secondly, the fact that, some years since, periodicals were allowed to exchange free. while the publishers are now obliged to pay the usual rate on all exchanges. Thirdly, that, at this same previous time, the postage on periodicals sent to subscribers and dealers was collected of the recipient, and the publisher is obliged to prepay the postage to both, thus concentrating the tax on the few, while formerly it was divided among the many-and a publisher cannot well add the cost of postage to the price of his periodical. Fourthly, can any thing be more unreasonable than the charge of letter postage on manuscripts sent to periodicals, while book manuscripts are subject to third-Yours very respectfully class rates ? J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co.

> THE RIVERSIDE PRESS, CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Dec. 1, 1877.

(Signed)

I have not given much attention to the new I am glad to see an evidence on postal act. the part of the Department to secure criticism, and my experience with the Post-Office Department has impressed upon me the fact that its managers are very earnest in their efforts to simplify its working and to secure the utmost efficiency.

There are two points in the proposed bill that seem to me susceptible of criticism

I. The requirement, in Sec. 7, that the license for registration shall be procured at Washington. This puts in the hands virtually of a single individual, with limited means of information, the decision that affects large interests, and if there should be opposition to a license, as there might often be, from interested motives, the expense of sending witnesses and counsel to Washington would necessarily be very great, and the unprincipled men of means, in contested It seems to me cases, would carry the day. that the question whether a license should issue could be much better decided by the postmaster of the city or town where the publication is mailed, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster-General. The postmasters in the cities are or should be men of character and ability, and they would be much more likely to know the character of the work offered for license than a clerk at Washington. In cases of special difficulty, there might be opportunity for appeal to Washington.

II. It seems to me that the third clause of the 11th section is not definite enough. clerk or postmaster who was confined literally to the language, would be likely to rule out all such publications as yours and our medical and law publications as not being connected mainly with public news; and it would be manifestly a very unjust ruling.

In haste, yours very truly, H. O. HOUGHTON.

Cincinnati, Dec. 14, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publisher's Weekly

THE new Postal Act, as published in the WEEKLY of 8th inst., changes the law as to privileged rates on second-class matter very materially, perhaps intentionally so, perhaps

Under the present Act, news agents, throughout the country, send through the mails at privileged rates, papers and magazines, wherever printed, to their regular subscribers.

As we understand this new Act, all news agents outside of the place of publication will be deprived of this privilege, and it will be accorded only to publishers and news agents residing in the same city.

We make this inference from the language of Sec. 6. After the publication has been approved by the Postmaster General, "a certificate of registration shall thereupon be issued to the postmaster at the place where such publication is published. . . . This certificate of registration shall entitle the publication to which it is issued, when sent from the office of publication or a news agency, to be transmitted through the mails at the following rates," etc.

Suppose Harper's Magazine is so registered, and the certificate of registration is on file at the New York Post-office, Messrs. Harper & Bros., and any news agent in that city, can send the Marasine through the mails at the privileged rates, while news agents at Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, or any other place cannot, because the postmasters at these places have no certificate of registration for that magazine. The Act distinctly says that "This certificate of registration shall entitle, etc.," not, the fact of registration as printed on the cover of the magazine, but the certificate which is in the hands of one postmaster; so all news agents at other points must pay full rates on all registered publications not printed in the cities where they are respectively located.

The question arises, Is it the intention of the Act to thus discriminate in favor of news agents in the place of publication and against all others? It may be a mere oversight. If so, it It may be a mere oversight. If so, it can be remedied by changing the language of the Act, so that all registered publications shall be entitled to the privileged rates wherever they are mailed by news agents to regular subscribers. The fines imposed by the Department for the use of the words, "Registered at privileged rates," by publications not so registered, should be large enough to give ample protection against the fraudulent use of the words.

The passage of the Act in its present shape would render a "decision" on this point necessary at the outset. It would be better to amend the Act now before its passage.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publisher's Weekly:

SIR: In the WEEKLY of Dec. 15th, I observe a communication from Mr. Bissell, in which he claims for his new postage bill that, in place of conferring power on the Postmaster General, "it limits and defines the power which the 15th section of the Act of July 12th, 1876, gives him." A reference to that Act will show that the section in question, in terms, confers no power on any one; but merely defines what periodicals shall be subjected to the ounce rate—everything else being presumed to enjoy the privilege of the pound rate. Mr. Bissell's bill, on the contrary, presumes that nothing is entitled to pound rates until after the Department shall have taken absolute action in its favor. In the one case we are presumed to be innocent until our guilt is proved; in the other we are presumed to be guilty and have to prove our innocence. The difference between these conditions is enormous, and invites the abuses to which I referred in a former communication as among the possibilities of the future.

If, in the apparently innocent words of the section referred to in the Act of July, 1876, there lurks the power which has enabled the Department to play such pranks with the periiodical business during the last six months, what have we to look forward to when every journal will have to be individually passed upon by an official from whose decision there is practically no appeal, and who will hold its destinies in his hands without being called upon to account to any one for his actions or his motives? Where, for instance, is there in that section anything to justify the recent rulings which forbid the immemorial custom of "inserts," or which require advertisements to be paged consecutively and to be evidently printed in the same office as the text? Yet the Department has arrogated to itself the right to assert these regulations, and all the periodicals of the land have been forced to adapt themselves to these novel restrictions, while Canadian journals have had the full privileges of our mails without being thus fettered, because, I presume, the Dominion Post-office has the common sense to see that there is no advantage to be gained by any one in interfering with the business of its country. I do not understand that Mr. Bissell's bill makes any concessions on these points, but on the other hand it compels all periodicals to pass in review before the gentlemen whose perverse ingenuity, already abundantly exemplified by recent exploits, is to be exercised in defining new refinements for restricting our business.

I had hoped that when the subject of periodical postage should again come before Congress, the absurd distinction between weekly journals and those published less frequently would be abrogated. It would puzzle even the ingenuity of the oldest employé of the Department to give a logical reason why a weekly journal should be carried at two cents a pound while a fortnightly one is charged three cents.

All reasons point to a directly opposite conclusion, and I regret that Mr. Bissell should have lost the opportunity of doing away with this perfectly indefensible discrimination.

Both for what it contains and what it omits, Mr. Bissell's bill should be defeated. It easily can be if the periodicals of the country will use their influence with members of Congress; and this I hope they will lose no time in doing.

Very respectfully, Publish

THE WICKED PROOF-READER.

OUR contemporary, the Publishers' Weekly, does not often afford us an occasion for a joke, but in its reprint of the announcement of his underselling bookseller who has hung out his sign in Minneapolis, the wicked composior made him say that he proposed "to sell a new, clean stock at prices that everybody can afford to but at." If all accounts are true, the other dealers of that section are butting at them with a vengeance.—American Bookseller.

"GOLDOM," for Goldoni, is a sad blunder for an intelligent proof-reader to pass; yet it disfigures the pages of the American Bookseller, which treats us also to "Archairia" for "Archaia."—Watchman.

We own up. Call a truce, brother Bookseller!

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT will have ready early in January, "Too Rich," translated from the German by Mrs. A. L. Wister, the well-known translator of Marlitt's, Mühlbach's and other popular German authors' novels.

THE "Original Mother Goose Melodies" published by Lee & Shepard have become quite popular, owing no doubt to the happy illustrations by J. F. Goodridge, as well as to the neat get-up of the book.

J. MURPHY & Co. are now printing the thirty-fifth thousand of Gibbon's "Faith of our Fathers," which is stated to have sold more extensively than any other Catholic book published within the last twelve months.

WE have received from F. W. Christern, New York, an elegant Weihnachts-Catalog (Christmas Catalogue) of books he has in stock and is importing. The catalogue is a remarkable piece of typographical work, especially in the setting of the advertising pages.

THE sale of the three handsome war-country books of Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. is much quickened by the demand for them by holiday purchasers. Separately, or together, Wallace's Russia, Baker's Turkey, and McCoan's Egypt, make capital gifts.

DAVIS, BARDEEN & Co. inform the trade that the first edition of De Graff's "School Room Guide" was entirely exhausted by advance orders before it was received from the bindery, and that they are therefore unable, at present, to fill any order. A new edition will be ready about February 1st, containing 419 pages, at $1.50.

J. L. Sibole's last venture, "The Gathering of the Lilies," has met with great success. Within the short time of sixty days, the first edition of three thousand copies has been disposed of, and the second edition is now under way. "Violet with Eyes of Blue," by the same author, and published last year, prepared the market for the new volume; consequently, its coming was eagerly looked for their venture.

and at once taken advantage of, much to the satisfaction of publisher and author. Both are to be congratulated on the marked success of

NOTES IN SEASON.

THERE are no notes in season—only the echoes of Christmas notes. The days between Christmas and New Year's are apt to be dies non to the trade—and well enough it is so; for if ever there is an overworked man, it is the bookseller on Christmas morning.

ROBERTS BROTHERS' are on hand with a list of books for the new year, one of which "The Wolf at the Door," in the "No Name" series, will excite no little attention, and stir up the sale of previous volumes. New books by E. E. Hale, Miss Julia A. Matthews, and Edgar Fawcett, are also of good promise.

IT may be well to call the attention of the retail trade, at the beginning of the year, when general business is slow, to the opportunity afforded by the magazines. Most of their publishers now offer very fair margins to the trade, and we may again call attention to the Messrs. Appleton's terms and list, to which is now added the resuscitated North American Review. Messrs. Barnes are also putting new force into the International, while the monthlies, the Galaxy excepted, still hold their own.

THE country will be very busy after the 10th of January with thinking and talking about matters of finance. Booksellers should make American publications are notices of Cook's a practical note of this. Gen. F. A. Walker's Lectures on Biology, and Dale's Yale lectures, important book on "Money," will be ready at Henry Holt & Co.'s soon after that date, and should have a considerable sale. Mr. Poor's comprehensive compilation and discussion as to "Money and its Laws," full of valuable statistics, is already before the trade. We may also call attention to the series of books on these subjects issuing by G. P. Putnam's Sons, especially their little "Economic Monographs."

MACMILLAN & Co., expect to receive before long the two handsome holiday books, "China" by Archdeacon Gray, and "Star-gazing" by Prof. Lockyer, which they had hoped for in time for the holiday trade. The former book, with its copious illustrations of Chinese life by Chinese artists, will be one of the most valuable and interesting in existence on this country; and Prof. Lockyer's history of instrumental astronomy is of course important. We must beg to enter a word of petition, in behalf of the American retail trade, to the English principals, that they will hereafter manage to give us their holiday books in time for the holiday trade. Each year Macmillan & Co. have some of the finest of books, and each year they come the day after the fair.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Galaxy, published in this city for the past eleven years, has been sold to Hurd & Houghton, who, it is understood, will consolidate it with the Atlantic Monthly.

BANCROFT'S Christmas Messenger, issued by . L. Bancroft, San Francisco, does great credit to that house. It is neatly gotten up, and contains a great deal of information interesting to purchasers of books.

THE Christmas number of The Publishers' Circular (London) makes a goodly volume of 227 pages, of which 202 are devoted exclusively to advertisements, many of them handsomely illustrated. This speaks well for the English trade, and for their appreciation of our contemporary.

THE Baptist Quarterly has been suspended. The business department of the Publication Society, states the Examiner, has issued it for several years at an annual loss, and its business committee do not feel justified in continuing it.

THE December number of the Magasine of American History (A. S. Barnes & Co., publishers), with index and title-page for the first volume, is now ready for delivery. Among its contents is a valuable essay on Martial Law by Asa Bird Gardner, Law Professor of the United States Military Academy. The same firm has also now ready a volume of Mrs. Martha J. Lamb's excellent "History of the Origin, Rise, and Progress of the City of New York."

The new volume and new year of the International Review open brilliantly. Among the most noteworthy contributions may be mentioned J. G. Whittier's sonnet on "Thiers," David A. Wells' "Elements of National Wealth," which is the first of a series on this subject, and Alex. H. Stephen's "Method of Presidential Elections." Mr. Tuttle and Mr. Gregory give sketches of the German, Mr. Nongarede the French, and Prof. De Gubernatis the Italian literary movements. Among American publications are notices of Cook's

PERSONAL NOTES.

Not Edinburgh only, says the Atheneum, but Glasgow also has chosen a publisher for Lord Provost. The latter city has selected Mr. William Collins, of the firm of Collins, Sons & Co. In early life Mr. Collins succeeded to the small but highly respectable publishing business, founded by his father in conjunction with a brother of the celebrated Dr. Chalmers. This he has increased by the addition of stationery and other branches, till it has become

THE END OF THE YEAR.

THE bookseller has always one comfort—that the year closes with a fair trade, however slow it has been before. The holidays give him an encouraging send-off into the new year, more encouraging, sometimes, than his accounts justify, when in January or February he takes stock and strikes his balance.

The year 1877 has not been one of marked prosperity, nor on the other hand has it really been, though sometimes it has seemed, a downhill year. The retrenchment and economy which have been a characteristic feature, have made themselves felt in most trades, and not least in our own. Extravagant hopes of a revival that should at once renew prosperity have not been fulfilled. Few people have made more than a living, but there has been a general effort, stronger this year than ever before, to keep expenses within income. There have not been so many failures as in the years preceding, and houses that weather the stress to the first of January, 1878, may be counted as likely to hold out safely. These pros and cons add up to show that the year has been one in which a foundation has been laid for reasonable business prosperity in the near future.

The year has been very peculiar in the sales of books. The astounding success of the cheap fifty-cent stories, prefaced by that of "Helen's Babies" last year, but carried to its height in Lee & Shepard's series, has been a most marked feature. It may be taken as showing a popular demand for cheap books, and as further proof that push and good advertising will make sales even in the dullest times. The extent suddenly attained by the business of reprinting standard novels in ten-cent sheets is a similar phenomenon, but its influence on the book business proper proves to have been over rated. It has finished what was left of the old dime-novel" business, and has had perhaps a palpable effect upon popular periodicals, although the demise of the Galaxy is not to be attributed in any considerable degree to this cause. Ultimately, the ten-cent reprints may prove of service to the trade, in training readers, and their sales cannot last long in the proportions of the year past. The number of books published for the holiday season in the field of art, and particularly household art, shows remarkably the growing culture of our people in this direction, and augurs well for the book trade, which must prosper with the growth of culture. The elegance of these volumes enables us to challenge comparison for American books with the products either of English or of French presses. In such works, also, from English plates or matching English editions, as Schliemann's "Mycenæ," Ltibke's An, Holt's war-country books, and several of the Harper reprints, where the comparison is direct, the result is all the more striking. We are in a fair way, as soon as returning prosperity and the diffusion of culture justify, to match, not a generation hence, the choicest productions of the French typographic art. The sales of most of the works last mentioned have been good, and of other salient books the same can be said. We are competing, in style and cheapness, with the English juveniles that until recently almost excluded our own, and the sales of these goods-which are apt to be sold as goods rather than as individual books, a better sign for the trade than for literature—have been remarkably large. If we were to run over the list of noteworthy books, the sales would average so large as to suggest that the year had been one of the best the trade had ever known. But it has been by no means that. The key to the discrepancy is probably in the fact that orders have not been large for the regular run of stock, the bulk of most publishers' lists, the sales of which after all determine on which side of the ledger the balance shall The change of base in school-books has resulted chiefly in taking what was left of this business out of the hands of the retail trade. The popularity of Christmas cards showed not only a growing delight in the pretty custom of sending such remembrances, but, more significantly, a use of these instead of more costly

The West has been this year, more than ever before, the great book market, and the Eastern trade must expect to see an increasing proportion of the publishing and jobbing trade, as well as the retail, transferred to Western centres. The large crops, at fair prices, have given the Western farmers and shippers more money to spend, although most of them still carry heavy loads of debt; while the Eastern States, depending so largely on the proceeds of investments, on manufacturing, and on the business of middlemen, who are being rooted out under present conditions of trade, have not furnished good markets. The South promises to develop a considerable market, though not yet for fine books, and if it escapes the repudiation danger, its merchants will in a few years be among the stanchest in the country. So far as the book trade at the East have done well, it has been almost entirely through wholesale sales, and this rather by publishers who had new things than by those who had "good lists." The Christmas trade was generally a trifle better than last year, and for most houses sales in general have been a few per cent larger.

Some of these facts point to a condition of trade and of the trade which is both cause and effect. In almost every business, goods could be bought as advantageously at the retail as at wholesale stores, though the latter were generally "retailing at wholesale rates." There is general complaint in the journals of all trades, that the lines of special business are being broken down: the jewelry papers complain that the book stores are selling jewelry, while we are complaining that the jewelry stores are selling books. Prices have been falling, directly or by the abuse of the discount system, until there is no margin left to pay fairly for handling goods. All this points to a reduction of the number of people employed in buying and selling, and of stores. It threatens also, to every trade, a reduction of the professional standard, the production in our own trade of a class of booksellers who know nothing about books. Nor is it, in a good sense, the "fittest" booksellers who are surviving. It is quite as much the "dollar stores" as the lack of money that have cut down the orders on a publisher's general list. Some time there must come a remedy for this, and we suspect it will come in some such hard-fisted way as Mr. Stewart's reform of the dry-goods business by his introducduction of the one-price basis.

In conclusion, there is one thing to be said to every business man. For the next year or two, the business question is to be uppermost in politics, and every far-sighted man, as a matter of the protection of his business, must give careful attention to the business aspect of politics and legislation. Just as we are ready to get upon our feet again, just as we are preparing to reap the fruits of sacrifice and economy, we cannot afford to be plunged back into demoralization by mistaken fiscal legislation or by errors in commercial policy. We do not desire to express opinions on these matters, but we do call upon every business man to look to it that his opinion and his influence are felt.

WE are indebted to the courtesy and patience of Mr. Bissell for a reply from the department to the criticisms on proposed postal legislation contained in our last issue. We would still suggest that the department circular, as to inserts, has practically worked to interfere with the private business of publication, as we have reason to know, having been compelled to modify features both of the WEEKLY and of the Library Journal, which had no relation to advertising matters; that, as regards Englishprinted periodicals, friendly negotiation is always much to be preferred to retaliatory measures; that, whatever power the Postmaster-general has or does not have under existing laws, publishers do not want their fate entrusted to the hands of any governmental department. We trust Mr. Bissell's suggestion for a conference may be carried out.

GOV. McCormick expresses his hearty willingness to give the publishing trade every facility for representation at Paris, but all applications must be entered from individual exhibitors, and must be filed by January 10th. Mr. Terquem has already received signatures from several houses, but too many are holding off to see what everybody else will do. It will not be creditable to the American trade should this policy continue. Blanks for applications will be furnished and applications may be made through Mr. Em. Terquem, care of the Publishers' Weekly office, New York, or Mr. J. R. Eliot, care Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Philadelphia.

MR. BISSELL ON CRITICISMS OF THE POS-TAL BILL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 24, 1877.

To the Editor of the Publisher's Weekly:

SIR: I have read with interest the communications "Criticisms on the Postal Bill," published in your issue of the 22d instant, and I avail myself of the courtesy which you have heretofore accorded me of replying very briefly to some of the criticisms contained in these communications. The letter of Messrs. J. B. Lippincott & Co., addressed to the Postmaster-General, I had seen, it having been referred to me. The first objection urged in that letter is to the recent ruling of the Department respecting the advertising pages and insets of magazines, etc. That ruling seems to have been misunderstood. It was not the exercise of an arbitrary power by the Postmaster-General, but was predicated upon a well-known statute relating to inclosures. Nor was it intended to be arbitrarily exercised by postmasters. It was directed against a prevalent custom, in which many publishers throughout the country indulged, of carrying stitched into their publications, handbills, posters, circulars, etc., which are chargeable with a higher rate, and which were printed away from the office of publication, whether with the intent to evade the payment of the higher rate to which the Government was justly entitled or not, I can not say. It had that effect, however. The evil had become so crying that the Department demanded it necessary, in order to protect its own revenue, to issue the letter of August 18th to post-masters. That was not done, however, without careful consideration of the rights of both publishers and the Government. It was only intended as a notice to postmasters, that they should insist upon its requirements in all cases where they were in doubt, as to whether publishers were inserting matter within publica-tions, which were not within the provision of what the statute intended should be carried as second-class matter. It was designed to place postmasters on their guard, and it has had, I think, only that effect.

Relative to the prepayment of postage of which Messrs. Lippincott & Co. complain, it is only necessary to say that so far as my knowledge goes, publishers throughout the country have very generally acquiesced in the justness of that provision. As to the discrimination against foreign periodicals, it is only justified on the ground of its being a retaliating measure, and in the hope that it may serve to break down the discrimination against American periodicals under the English registry system. I do not know why we should accord privileges to the English periodicals, which they do not reciprocate. Very likely it would effect the business profits of the Messrs. Lippincott & Co., but that is in no sense an argument against the justice of the provision.

Relative to the comments made by Mr. H. O. Houghton, of the Riverside Press, I have to acknowledge that any criticisms made by the publisher of the Official Postal Guide, is entitled to additional consideration from that fact, but I think Mr. Houghton does not apprehend the scope of the registry plan. It is not intended that the determination of the status of a publication shall rest with a "clerk at Washington." The fees derived from the registration of periodicals are to be devoted to the maintenance of a separate bureau, with competent, practical men engaged therein, not necessarily all of them at Washington. I do not suppose in these hands it would be difficult to determine the status of four-fifths of the publications offered for registration. In the case of the other fifth no change in their status would be made as under the present law, until it was determined upon a presentation of all the facts I beg leave to reiterate under the new law. that the power to determine the status of a periodical under the act of July 12th, 1876, is more unlimited, and could be exercised in a more arbitrary manner than under the proposed legislation. Under that act does not the ultimate decision lodge in the Postmaster-General? Suppose, for instance, he shall decide that the amount of space occupied by advertisements shall determine the question signed for advertising purposes," does not that act confer the power upon him to impose upon such publication the payment of the rates prescribed by that act. There are no other terms of limitation in the act to guide him in the determination of the ques-An appeal from his decision might, it is true, be carried to the courts not in the nature of a legal appeal, because the statute, so far as it is concerned, grants no appeal, but the publisher would have the same right as any other citizen deeming himself aggrieved by the action of the Government of having his day in court. That would, however, be but a te-dious process, subject to long delay and to his turn upon the docket, it having been pretty well settled that a proceeding by mandamus would not lie against a postmaster in the exercise of a public duty. It is well known that many of the decisions made during the last year reinstating publications to their former standing, were made simply because of the difficulty of determining their status under the act of July 12th, 1876, and because it was hoped and expected Congress would grant more definite legislation upon that subject. Suppose now no such definite legislation should be granted, might not the Postmaster-General insist upon the construction of the act which I have indicated, and under that construction relegate such publications as the The Tobacco Leaf, The Iron Age, or The American Grocer to the class paying the rate of two cents per ounce?

It is true, that under the proposed legislation the same power of determining the status of a publication is conferred upon the Postmaster-General, but at the time that power is more carefully guarded in the enumeration of the conditions under which he shall exercise that power.

The length of this letter forbids my discussing this matter further. I shall be obliged also to defer to a later date my comments upon your proposed substitute.

In closing, I have only this to say, that the Department does not desire to ask unfair advantage of the publishers of this country. I speak with assurance when I say that it is desirous of having a better understanding with them than in the past. To that end I would suggest that some of the representative publishers of the country appear before the Committee on Post-Offices and Post Roads of the House of Representatives after the recess, and discuss the matter there in connection with such representation of this Department as the Postmaster-General may designate.

Very respectfully,
A. H. BISSELL.

BOOK NOTICES.

be made as under the present law, until it was determined upon a presentation of all the facts under the new law. I beg leave to reiterate that the power to determine the status of a periodical under the act of July 12th, 1876, is more unlimited, and could be exercised in a more arbitrary manner than under the proposed legislation. Under that act does not the ultimate decision lodge in the Postmaster-General? Suppose, for instance, he shall decide that the amount of space occupied by advertisements shall determine the question whether a certain publication "is primarily de-" afterwards that "it is not to be had for love or money." After a lapse of half a century, an original copy of the little volume turned up at a sale in Australia, and through the attention the "treasure trove" excited, two others were found in this country. It is from these copies the present volume is made up. From the history connected with it, its dainty get-up, and the gentle character of its contents, it ought to be a favorite gift-book at this season. "Elia's" kindly humor specially distinguishes his portion of the work; his sister Maty's contributions point a more evident moral, but appeal by their simplicity at once to a child's understanding. "Prince Dorus" and some uncollected poems by Charles Lamb are added. The work is edited, prefaced, and annotated by Richard Herne Shepherd. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

New IreLand, by A. M. Sullivan. (Lippincott). So many social and political changes have taken place in Ireland since the beginning of this century, working as it were a perfect revolution upon the face of things, that the Ireland of to day is no longer the Ireland of history, crushed, impoverished, and church-ridden. The disestablishment of the English Church in Ireland has lifted many unjust and tyrannous exactions, and given a new and re-markable impetus to education. The agitation for "home rule," if it has not brought all the Irishman asks for, has given him fairer repre-sentation in the English Parliament, and more respect and consideration for his opinions and lights. His old improvidence has taught him the wisdom that is only bought through ex-perience, and we find him now careful, frugal, promoting agriculture, manufacture, and climbing slowly but surely to a position of respect and trust. Mr. Sullivan has been for years a prominent mover in the affairs of his country, and relates the scenes he has passed throughthe Fenian phase especially—with rare and vivid power of description. The work is recommended to all who take an interest in Ireland or who care to know its exact present condition. 8vo, cloth, $2.50; cheap ed., cloth, GREEN PASTURES AND PICCADILLY, by William Black, in conjunction with an American writer. (Harper). Those who read "The Strange Adventures of a Phaeton," will be glad to find here their old friends "Bell" and Lieut. von Rosen: indeed, the whole quartette who took part in that delightful journey. They are the near neighbors of the heroine of the story, Lady Sylvia Blythe, and are more or less mixed up in her fate. Lady Sylvia marries a young member of Parliament, and the reader is treated to some very clever scenes relative to the inside workings of elections. A large ranch in Idaho is left to "Bell" on condition that she comes out and occupies it for a year. This brings the whole party to America, and we obtain numerous descriptions of western farm life and western characters. The story is one of Mr. Black's best; the love episode is quite intense; the character of Balfour (Lady Sylvia's husband) very strongly delineated, while the descriptions are unusually bright and vivid. 12mo, cloth, $1.50; 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

THE ART OF BEAUTY, by Mrs. H. R. Haweis. (Harper). Mrs. Haweis' book is one of the most charming we have seen on this much written and much talked of subject. The lady writes as one who has studied her subject thoroughly from observation and from books. She never loses sight of the artistic side of her discourse, and gives constant illustrations of costumes, ornaments, etc., culled from artistic sources. While she theorizes con amore upon dress, beauty, and so on, she is also practical even to the smallest details, telling the clientèle for which she writes what colors to wear, how to have their dresses cut, how to arrange their hair, the best shoes for comfort and beauty, the most artistic ornaments to adopt, the proper use of cosmetics,—in fact the best way in which a beautiful woman may be made more beautitiful, and an ugly one less ugly. The illustrations are by the author, and are very appropriate and very fine. The work is altogether a very beautiful one. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

FROM EGYPT TO JAPAN, by Henry M. Field, D.D. (Scribner, A. & Co.). This is a companion volume to "From the Lakes of Killarney to the Golden Horn," the first volume of Dr Field's travels around the world. It has a separate interest of its own, however, and need not necessarily be bought with the first volume. Much of unusual interest will be found in this work, as may be derived from a few of the headings of chapters, which we quote: "The Temples of Egypt—Did Moses get his Law from the Egyptians?" "The Egyptian Doctrine of a Future Life;" "The Religion of the Prophet;" "Modern Egypt and the Khedive;" "Midnight in the Heart of the Great Pyramid;" "The Tragedy of Cawnpore;" "The Story of Lucknow;" "The English Rule in India;" "Missions in India—Do Missionaries do any Good?" etc., etc. 12mo, cloth, $3.

Angelo, a Poem, by Stuart Sterne. (Hurd & Houghton). This dainty little volume, from an almost unknown writer, contains a poem based upon an episode in the life of Michael Angelo—his hopeless love for Vittorio Colonna, Marchesa of Pescara. The story is beautifully told in most poetical language, and is full of strikingly fine passages. "Stuart Sterne" came before the world a couple of years ago in a modest little collection of "Poems," which received the very warmest commendation from the critics of several prominent New York papers. The poet's identity seems to be completely hidden under her nom de plume, but that she has some qualities which are very near akin to genius, all unite in acknowledging. 18mo, cloth, gilt edges, $1.

WINDFALLS, by T. G. Appleton. (Roberts). A very charming collection of essays, by the author of "A Sheaf of Papers" and "Syrian Sunshine." They are named "Something about our Good Things;" "A Month in the Adirondacks;" "A Plea for Phrenology;" "Three Months in the Shadow;" "The Loom of the East;" "Lavater; or, the Two Faces;" "The Kingdom of the Commonplace;" "Were the Slave States a Part of the Nation?" "American Good-Nature." "Our Contemporaries;" "A Broken Heart." The author culls from two authorities definitions explanatory of his title with which he adorns his title-page—viz., "Fruit that is blown down from the tree;" "A tree that has been prostrated by the wind." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

POEMS, by Louise Chandler Moulton. (Roberts). These little poems are tender, graceful, imaginative, and full of sentiment. The writer, now a resident of London, and a contributor to the London papers, is well-known among us, both for her critical letters and her charming children's stories, as well as her poetical effusions. She has for the first time collected her fugitive poems and made them into a volume. The volume makes a dainty gift for the season. It is most tastefully gotten up, with red edges and a binding of black stamped in red and gold. 16mo, cloth, $1.

THE LIFE OF OUR LORD, by William M. Taylor. (Randolph). The design of this volume is to give a consecutive view of our Saviour's life and teachings, by combining in one narrative the four Gospels of the Evangelists. In doing this, not only has the sacred text been diligently studied, but many acknowledged authorities consulted and compared; and a few simple notes have been added, containing the reasons for the order of the harmony. 16mo, gilt edges, cloth, $1.

APPLE BLOSSOMS, by Hattie Tyng Griswold. (Jansen, McC. & Co.). A collection of short poems which have from time to time graced the pages of our western periodicals. They are musical and graceful, and will no doubt meet with the appreciation they merit by the lady's friends and admirers. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER.

THE illustrated Christmas number of this valuable book trade journal is an artistic gem.

—Brooklyn Times.

It is a gift book, or pamphlet, in itself, and those who are seeking suggestions as to holiday purchases can do no better than to procure this pamphlet.—Boston Traveler.

Its pages are rendered brilliant by a large number of specimen illustrations from holiday books, and it is in every way a credit to its publishers and to the trade which it represents.

—Boston Journal.

"Your Christmas number of Publishers' Weekly is splendid. Beats anything else ever published in this line. The Christmas number of The Bookseller (London), does not approach it in interest. It is a holiday gift book in itself.—A.L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.'

WE have often spoken of the bibliographic skill and enterprise of Mr. F. Leypoldt, the editor and publisher of the Publishers' Weekly. The gem issue of his useful publication is the Illustrated Christmas Number.—Cleveland Herald.

THE illustrated Christmas number of the Publishers' Weekly reminds us how great a debt we owe to Mr. F. Leypoldt, of New York, for his laborious fidelity in supplying a guide through the mazes of that dense wilderness which book-publishing has now become.—('hristian Register.

One of the most tasteful and attractive catalogues which has yet been published, surpassing even the achievements of the English in the same line. It contains 170 pages of announcements, the most of which are accompanied by beautifully printed wood-cuts, which illustrate also the range and excellence of the art in this country. The number invites to repeated examination, through the elegance of its arrangement.—Tribune.

A HANDSOME volume of 172 pages, printed on fine-toned paper, and teeming with handsome pictures given as specimens of the pictorial attractions of the holiday books and of the other choice books of the season, full lists of which are given. The Number is very beautiful, the contents are well arranged, and it will be highly serviceable to the book trade, which, by the way, has no more enthusiastic and efficient promoter than Mr. Leypoldt, the enterprising publisher.—National Baptist.

THAT always valuable publication, the New York Publishers' Weekly, issues this year an Illustrated Christmas Number which, although largely devoted to advertising purposes, is in itself a book of no ordinary beauty and attractiveness. Its two hundred pages are filled with the announcements, by leading publishers, of their holiday books, accompanied by illustrative engravings taken from the works announced, which are scattered through its pages with rich profusion. All the prominent books for the holiday trade are here represented by sample illustrations. We wish every good boy and girl were sure of receiving a holiday book equal in interest and beauty to this elegant edition of the Publishers' Weekly,—Alliance.

WE welcome to our table the superb Christmas Number of the Publishers' Weekly, a publication well known to all lovers of books. The issue of Nov. 24 is regarded as a holiday number, and is worth ten times its price as a work of art. It contains specimen engravings from the books advertised in its pages, ranging through all fields of illustration, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe," but all worthy of attention. There are 172 pages, crowded with exquisite engravings selected from the splendid holiday books just coming out and in press; and the letter press and other mechanical details are all in keeping with the excellence of the illustrations. And all this for the paltry sum of 25 cents. Those who cannot afford to buy expensive works may find much consolation in this number of the Publishers' Weekly, which contains many a choice morsel for the gratification of their æsthetic palates.—Christian States-

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE new temperance book, "Fifteen Years in Hell," published by E. B. Porter, has already passed into a second edition.

MR. GEORGE P. LATHROP has nearly finished his novel, which will be published by Lockwood, Brooks & Co.'s "Wayside Series," in the Spring. Its scene is laid in New Hampshire.

A VOLUME of the sermons of Rev. F. W. Farrar is promised by Macmillan & Co. for early in the season, to contain the celebrated sermon on the eternal life, which has so stirred up religious thought in England.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have recently issued and will send on application, a supplement to their list in "The Uniform Trade List Annual for 1877." The slip contains a number of additions and a list of books on which prices have been changed.

Mr. N. S. Shaler, the well-known scientific writer, has recently privately published a series of little pamphlets on subjects connected with inventive property, patents and copywright. They discuss successively the nature of such property, the effect of invention on national culture and the relations of American communism to this species of property, the question of the fostering of invention in its relations to the profit of a State, and the international relations of property in patents and copywrights, taking throughout high ground in favor of the fullest aid to inventors and authors as both just and politic. Messrs. Jas. R. Osgood & Co., propose to make these papers chapters of a book in "Little Classic" shape.

WE call attention to the important trade change announced in our advertising columns, by A. J. Holman & Co. This house has absorbed, by purchase, the entire business of Mr. W. W. Harding's extensive Bible and Album establishment, including his full plant of stereo and electro Bible plates, machines, presses, tools, dies, etc. Mr. Harding, well-known outside the trade as the proprietor and publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, retires, we understand, from the book business altogether. We congratulate Mr. Holman, who has been engaged in the publishing and manufacture of Bibles for over forty years, on this new accession of business, and bespeak for his house the continuance of patronage so well deserved.

MANY persons outside of Philadelphia, are misled into believing that there is very little of historic interest in the way of mansions and buildings, save "Independence Hall," in the entire city. The new book of Porter & Coates does away with this popular error, by telling all about "The Historic Mansions and Buildings of Philadelphia." Mr. Thompson Westcott, the author, is perfectly at home on this subject, having written "The Guide Book to Philadelphia," and a history of the city. In the present volume, he has given a description of all the interesting historic buildings of the city, together with a notice of their owners and occupants. Plenty of illustrations make it doubly interesting.

Two works of the new Dutch school of theology, whose position, says the Tribune, corresponds somewhat to that of Professor Robertson Smith in his celebrated article on the Bible in the Encyclopedia Britannica, are promised by Roberts Brothers for early next year. The first is the work already famous, on "The Religion of Israel," by Pastor Knappert, of Leyden, as translated by Richard A. Armstrong. This recognizes distinctly a mythic character in the early Bible legends, and is otherwise a rationalistic interpretation of the development of the Hebrew faith. The other is an English translation of "The Bible for Young People," by Professor Oort, of Amsterdam, and Dr. Hooykaas, of Rotterdam, which will be issued in two volumes for the Old Testament, and one for the New.

L. Prance & Co., announce that they have arranged with Professor J. Overbeck, of the University of Leipsic, to bring out an American edition of that author's elaborate work on Pompeii, as translated by Mr. Koehler, of the house. Professor Overbeck will carry the work down to date, so as to include the latest discoveries. It will be illustrated by all the views and plans (about 350 in number) of the third German edition, and the lithographic plates will be executed by Messrs. Prang & Co. The same firm will shortly issue a work entitled "Illustrations of the History of Art." This work is a collection of about 4,000 of the best woodcuts from the works of Kugler, Luebke, Overbeck, Rosengarten, Adler, Woltmann, and others. The illustrations will be arranged chronologically, and will be accompanied by a copious index, so as to make the work availaable as a sort of atlas in connection with any book on the subject of art. This work will be issued simultaneously in the United States, Germany, England and Holland. A short "Handbook of Industrial Art, or Manual for Visitors of Museums and Exhibitions," giving a concise account of the history and the technical processes of the various art-industries, such as enamelling, mosaic-work, glassware, ceramics, cabinet-making, lace-making, textiles, metal-work, etc., is another of the novelties which this firm have in hand. Mr. C. C. Perkins's illustrated edition of Falke's "Art in the House" will be issued by this firm in the early part of 1878.

MISS AMELIA B. EDWARDS has written a special preface, addressed "to my American readers," for Messrs. Scribner's edition of that beautiful book, "A Thousand Miles up the Nile." In it she says:—

"I have to thank Messrs. Scribner, Armstrong & Co. for the courteous permission which allows me to address a few words in this place to my American readers. For many years I have had no warmer friend; to none have I been more grateful—and I wish for once to tell them so, no matter how briefly. I wish to tell them that for the work I have done, such as it is, I have been more than twice repaid in the ready welcome with which they have never failed to receive it: that I seldom put pen to paper without some loving thought of that great and unknown public on the far side of the Atlantic; and that while I live and write (which I suppose are synonymous terms) I shall ever look westward for very much of that quick, intelligent and genial sympathy which is, after all, the author's one 'exceeding great reward.

"It is with unmixed gratification that I find this present book, despite its costly garb, sharing the happy fortunes of its cheaply reprinted predecessors. As it is, of all others, the one book which it has given me most pleasure to write, so I would fain have it give most pleasure to those who read it; with which wish, my dear American friends, I commend it to your kindly offices."

MR. HEPWORTH DIXON'S new novel bears the title of "Ruby Gray."

MR. F. LOCKER and Mr. Austin Dobson are engaged in preparing a collection of the poems of the late Mortimer Collins.

A "History of English Humor," by the Rev. A. G. L'Estrange, is announced in England.

JULES VERNE will contribute a biography of Christopher Columbus to a new English illustrated weekly, entitled The Journal of Travels.

THE Stationers' Company, London, recently gave a dinner for "the inauguration" of the Master and Wardens, and also in commemoration of the Caxton Celebration. Mr. Rivington is the new Master.

BICKERS & Son, London, have purchased from Chapman & Hall the stocks and copyrights of the English translations of the Lacroix's works upon the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, issued here by D. Appleton &

THROUGH its organ, the Zeitungs-Courier, the Central Literary Bureau at Berlin offers a prize of 2000 marks for the best novel dealing with German subjects of the present time. The work must not have been previously printed, and must reach the adjudicators by the 1st of March next; the selected to be announced at the latest by the 1st of May, 1878.

THE London house of Macmillan & Co. announces a series of text-books in church history, for seminaries and higher schools, by the Rev. G. F. Maclear, D.D., head master of King's College School, whose class-books of Old and

New Testament History have a high reputa-tion in England. The series will comprise— (1) "An Introduction to Old Testament History;" (2) "An Introduction to the Gospel History;" (3) "The Apostolic History of the First Three Centuries."

This item, from a London paper, may also have application here:

"Publishers should be on their guard against attempts which seem to proceed from Ireland to obtain books in an underhand way. When a book is advertised or reviewed in a Dublin newspaper, the publisher receives an applica-tion for a copy "as a sample," for, it would seem, the sole object of getting a copy of the book for nothing. In one case recently—and this is by no means a singular instance-an application was made for 'a specimen copy, with the lowest price for a gross'!"
